Sergt. McLean of Hamilton, in An Inspiring Adress at the Opening of the Nights of Columbus Campaign ast Night, Pictured the Sacrifts of the Men at the Front.

MAYOR DUCAN'S ENDORSATION

With addrees fired by the reflected spirit of unity that has welded Canada's army into the finest fighting corps in Europe the Knights of Columbus Army Hut Fund campaign in Peterborough was auspiciously opened by a splend meeting in the Grand Opera House last night. It was the signal gun for the drive in the local sector, attired with inspiring harmony to its reverberant echoes that have been sounded in other cities of the Dominion where this movement has swept far beyond its modest objectives.

The principal addresses were delivered by M. John P. Dunn, of Ogdensburg, N.Y., and Sergt. McLean, of Hamilton. They coincided in only two respets, the one in subject, both speakers making an impressive plea for generous support to the Army Huts Fund, and the other in the sparkling humour that relieved the poignancy of the stors of the sacrifices of our soldiers. Otherwise the addresses were a contrast in style, rendered more effective through the common subject they mited their talents so strikingly to present. Mr. Dunn is an able speaker, a Canadian with two sons in the sevice, one with the navy and the other in the Air Force. Referring to the advertisement in the press mentioning his place of residence, he declared that no inducement across the St. Lawrence could make him surrender his citizenship as a British subject. He has been engaged as an organizer of the Huts Fund, in a territory from Halifax to the middle west, and his eloquence alone indicated the fitness of his choice for that responsibility. Sergt. McLean is a Scotchman, a Presbyterian, and a soldier of long experience in India, Africa, Belgium and France. He has been through the thick of the fighting. Three times he was wounded, and every cause promoted in the interest of the men at the front receives all the support he can throw into it. And that is not inconsiderable. His address sounded like some of the most vivid chapters from Patrick MacGill's stories of the London Irish. Although not an orator in the accepted connotations of the term he has a good command of language that never fails him in his word pictures of the scenes in which he played his part as a sergeant in a Scottish regiment. He uses a latent histrionic gift with the smooth and finished effect, in short the naturalness of an actor. He moved his audience at will from laughter to welling tears, and his little characterization of Private Potts lacked nothing in dramatic values.

The Sacrifice of Private Potts.

Though the story loses force in type, the strength of its moral may remain. Potts was a private in a regiment in India. He had gained a record as a brave man, but his crime sheet was heavy with offences of drunkenness and fighting. He had even struck a commissioned officer and finally he appeared before the O. C. for discharge. Sergt. McLean imitated the stuttering Potts in that interview with the Colonel, who expressed his disappointment in the transgressing private and a fatherly concern as to his future in civilian life. Potts replied that he would open a jewellery business. Later the war broke out. Sergt. McLean enlisted while at home on a visit to his mother. He was instructed to select a platoon from a group of recruits, taking care to pick out the most likely and experienced men for immediate service. One of the most soldierly of the nondescript civilians proved to be Potts, and Sergt. McLean welcomed him as an old comrade. The next scene moves to a sap at Festubert which was being held by a little party, including Potts and his sergeant. In a confidence under fire, they recalled their experiences in India, and the private who had been dismissed from the army because of bad conduct, explained that his jewellery business was as a burglar, and that he had pursued it prior and subsequent to his adventures in India. At Festubert, several of Potts' companions were badly injured and lay out in No Man's Land between the opposing trenches. He begged his Colonel to permit him to go out for a comrade named McDonald, but the officer refused, saying that it would be suicidal and every man was needed to hold the position. Potts paced up and down the trench to wait for the cover of darkness, but finally with an exclamation of 'Hell,' he went over the top alone, wriggled toward his fallen chum and returned under fire dragging him along the ground. He went back a second and third time, and on his fourth trip the bullets were spitting from machine guns. That was his last effort, for he was hit and crumpled down inert, dead.

"That was the spirit of Potts, the burglar," Sergt. McLean declared, as he turned his climax upon the audience. The outcast from the army had sacrificed all that he had, and the army that had dismissed him for misconduct recommended him as a brave man.

"I hope that the spirit of Potts will not look down upon any of us at home in our comforts and find us failing to make sacrifices of money to give little comforts for the boys out there who are going through these things every day."

Hardships Everywhere.

This was Sergt. McLean's style and it is a question if anything more graphic and impelling has been heard in Peterborough during any of its campaigns for war purposes. He told of his experiences, modestly and impersonally too, with a flying column which was employed to bolster parts of the line whenever there were signs of strain. For six weeks the men had marched and fought without removing a boot, snatching short intervals of sleep, carrying on more dead than alive. At the end of that time when they got their first rest there was nothing left of their socks when they unwound their puttees and unloosed their boots. The wool had worn into the flesh and had to be removed painfully with hot water.

These were just two of the stories of the everyday sacrifices of the men of the front, and they all wove together a powerful appeal to the people at home to make sacrifices in return that the soldiers may enjoy some of the little home comforts such as the Army Huts provide.

Unity For the Boys.

Sergt. McLean stated that the word Catholic meant universal, and the Catholic hutments deserved the public's support through the universal value they embraced. He mentioned the endorsation of Mr. George A. Warburton, of the Y.M.C.A. as proof of the value that is recognized in them. Among the soldiers harmony prevails. The question of a man's religion is not considered at the front. Besides, Catholic nations were arrayed against Catholic nation, Protestant against Protestant, and the Greek church, too, was presented on both sides. "But enough has been said of religion," Sergeant McLean declared. "The men on the field, the sister in the French convents never raise questions of religion. They are out to do all the good they can. I am proud to have taken part in the Hamilton campaign. We went out to raise $25,000 and the last figures showed that we had got $30,000. Don't wait to see what the other fellow is going to do. Ask yourself, "What did I intend to give the Knights of Columbus? Can I give more? And if you can, give it."

Lines of Communication.

Sergt. McLean said that the boys often sing "Pack up your troubles in the old kit bag and 'smile, smile, smile," when their hearts were sorely tried. There never was greater necessity for keeping the smile on Tommy's face than now. As they push forward in their advances the hutments will form the lines of communications. The people of Peterborough can serve the boys by helping to keep their morale at the highest pitch.

"We don't expect you to give all you have, but we do hope you will give all you can."

The Army Huts were intended to help maintain the morale of the men, and the importance of that duty was illustrated in the Italian retreat. This debacle had been due to a lowered morale in the ranks. There was no such danger on the western front, but the people at home should give all the more generously to furnish the limited comforts that could be supplied at the front bearing their love and prayers.

Encouraging Aid.

Dr. F. P. McNulty, chairman of the local committee, presided over last night's meeting in a most acceptable manner. The executive, he said, was greatly encouraged by the generous offers of assistance from the citizens, the War veterans, the business men, and in fact from the city as a whole. this was as it is should be, and augured well for future harmony and co-operation in all fields of endeavour.

Mayor Duncan Helps.

"I esteem it an honour and privilege to be here to-night to say a few words for the great work the Knights of Columbus have undertaken," Mayor Duncan said. "I feel sure everyone will give something be it ever so little. When the committee calls upon you, I know you will assist them by giving cheerfully. Let the people see that we are all behind this. We are doing a great work in support of this, and I'd like to say to the citizens to give as much as possible this week when the committee calls on you."

During the evening Miss Helen McLaren sang Tosti's "Good-bye," and "Annie Laurie," and Mr. Ed. Bartley sang "The Boys of the Old Brigade." Mr. Asa Huycke entertained the audience before the meeting opened with

MEN EXEMPTED AS FARMERS

Having in view the importance of leaving a sufficient number of men on those farms, which are actually contributing to the National Food Supply, notice is hereby given as follows:

1. ALL MEMBERS OF CLASS I POSSESSING EXEMPTION AS FARMERS which is expiring and WHO WISH TO REMAIN EXEMPT should communicate with the Registrars under the M.S.A., of their respective districts, REQUESTING AN EXTENSION IN TIME OF SUCH EXEMPTION. Questionnaires will thereupon be issued to these men by the Registrar and they will receive further exemption upon furnishing satisfactory proof that they are contributing sufficiently to the National Food Supply.

2. In order to facilitate productive employment during the Winter months, MEN EXEMPTED AS FARMERS SHOULD APPLY TO THE REGISTRARS FOR PERMITS TO ENGAGE FOR THE WINTER IN SOME OCCUPATION OF NATIONAL INTEREST, SUCH AS LUMBERING, MUNITION WORK, ETC. Such permits will serve to enable exempted farmers to pursue other useful occupations for the months during which farming operations cannot be carried on.

THE J. C. TURNBULL COMPANY, LIMITED

ANARCHY RAGING AT SOFIA, ACCORDING TO LATE DESPATCHES

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The main terms which Bulgaria has accepted include:

The demobilization of her army.

The immediate evacuation of Greece and Serbia.

The surrender of all transportation, as well as the right-of-way through Bulgaria for the development of military operations.

The Allies to have the right of occupation of all strategic positions of importance.

The military occupation of Bulgaria to be entrusted to the Italians, British and French; the evacuated parts of Greece to the Greeks, and the evacuated parts of Serbia to the Serbians.

No reference is made to the fate of King Ferdinand, this being regarded as purely an internal political affair.

The terms Bulgaria accepted also include the surrender of all munitions and military supplies.

Will Abdicate.

Special to the Examiner:

ROME, Oct. 1.—The Vatican has received confidential advices from Vienna that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria probably will abdicate in favour of his son, Prince Boris.

Prince Boris was born on January 30, 1894. He is regarded as much more liberal and democratic than his father.

Meeting in Washington.

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Representatives of sixty million oppressed peoples of Europe all meet here for an informal discussion of a League of Oppressed Nationalities on Thursday, it was learned officially here to-day.

Jugo-Slavs, Poles, Czecho-Slovaks, Roumanians, Lithuanians and other peoples will be represented.

Officials of the State Department and Allied diplomats will attend.

It is proposed to build a barrier of these small nations across Germany's eastern frontier and unite them with the Allied League of Nations at the end of the war.

The Foreign Policy.

(By Raymond Clapper—United Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Czar Ferdinand's exodus from Sofia is viewed as a virtual abdication in well informed diplomatic circles here to-day.

Malinoff, it is understood, forced Ferdinand to leave the country, fearing German influence. Whether Ferdinand will be permitted to return to Bulgaria and remain without influence, or whether he will be forced to retire to his extensive estates in Hungary, will depend on the attitude taken by Malinoff and his Cabinet, it is said.

Malinoff is in absolute control of Bulgaria's foreign policy, it is stated authoritatively. Affairs have been completely taken out of Ferdinand's hands. Democratic agitation in Bulgaria is increasing daily. The influence of Russia, before the Bolsheviki came into power, had already started seething among the masses, and is now beginning to bear fruit. Turkey is believed to be awaiting the result of the German expedition to Sofia before making a definite peace move. As soon as it is clear that Germany cannot regain Bulgaria, Turkey is expected to appeal for the good offices of the United States in getting her out of the war.

Complete anarchy is raging at Sofia, official cables from Athens stated to-day. "Complete anarchy exists at Sofia," the official cable to the Greek Legation stated. "The establishment of a Bolsheviki regime is feared. This would mean the massacre of all Germans."

DE LAVAL QUOITING CLUB HOLD THEIR FIRST HANDICAP CONTEST

The De Laval Quoiting Club finished on Saturday afternoon at their grounds their first handicap contest, in which 25 players took part.

The winners were as follows:

Class I — 1st prize, H. Campbell; 2nd prize, W. McDougal.

Class II—1st prize, G. W. Fitzgerald; 2nd prize, A. E. Todd.

The Club are now lining up their players for a doubles competition, the prizes being two Thanksgiving turkeys.

POSED AS AN AMERICAN.

German Deserter Well Treated By Dutch Until Exposed.

THE HAGUE.—For some days past American circles at The Hague have been expectantly waiting to receive the first American prisoner who, it is announced, had escaped across the Dutch frontier. Finally an American official went to the Dutch quarantine camp to look for the escaped prisoner.

He said the American prisoner called himself John Brown, had closely cropped hair, knew hardly any English, but had been six months in Buffalo and wanted to return to America. He was a simple undiluted German deserter.

The officer in charge of the quarantine camp spoke a little English and a woman who looks after the camp was, and is still looking forward to the first American escaped prisoner. Brown was treated royally until the fraud was discovered by British prisoners, who asked him to write his name, which he did in German script.

GERMANS OCCUPIED

Further north we progressed Honcourt, and gained possession Vendhuile. English and Canadian troops are closing in upon Cambrai, yesterday captured Proville and now in the face of strong resistance Cambrai has been set on fire by the enemy. This morning fighting began again north of St. Quentin and in the Cambrai sector."

French Official.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, Oct. 1.—(Official).—French troops this morning were pushing forward on the front between the Aisne and Vesle Rivers. French attacks in Champagne are continuing, with important advance scored in the Aisne Valley. Narville and Ste-Les-Audry have been captured. The French have taken more than 10,000 prisoners on the front from Suippe and Argonne since October 26, and have captured more than 300 guns in the same period. A great number of guns were of heavy calibre.

Belgian Official.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Continued progress along the whole front in Belgium is recorded in the Belgian official statement issued this morning. Amerswelde, Costnieuwkerke have been carried. Belgian troops have crossed the Yser-Roulers and Roulers-Menin Road at several points.

Are Withdrawing.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—(3.47 p.m.).—The Germans are reported to be withdrawing between the Vesle and the Aisne, west of Reims, where Gen. Berthelot's left wing is understood to be in action.

Gen. Gouraud's army, attacking in the Champagne, (Berthelot's right), is progressing satisfactorily, and is expected to reach its objectives by to-night.

piano selections that were greatly appreciated.

Will Not Overlap.

Bishop O'Brien said that the K. C. Army Huts would not overlap with the splendid work the Y.M.C.A. was doing. And if they did, what about it? If the facilities for the comfort and happiness were improved that was the desire of all the people at home. The highest authorities in this country and in England and France had urged the absolute need of the Army Huts. Far more was needed than all we could give. Bishop O'Brien remarked that all the local campaigns had exceeded their objectives and he hoped that this one would be equally successful. Referring to the welcome news of victory His Lordship said that the west front seemed about to cave in. The open fighting would increase the danger of our men, and the loss of life might be much gerater in attacking the retiring enemy. Winter was about to set in, and while the people at home were grumbling about the insufficiency of coal, the exposure of the men at the front to the weather was only one of the things they suffer.

"I wish the whole town had heard Sergt. McLean's address," Bishop O'Brien said, "It was the best description of conditions at the front that I have ever heard."

life might be much greater in attack-

Canada was composed of people of different origins. "We had English, Irish, Scotch, Welsh and French and were trying to Canadianize all of them. But what a pity it would be if we were so to Canadianize them that they lost that which was so delightful to the heart to hear, their own natural way of speaking the English language. "Where could you beat that Scottish burr of Sergt. McLean," His Lordship humorously commented.

Dr. McNulty said that he regretted to announce that Dr. Abbott, of Toronto, was unable to be present owing to the critical illness of his wife.

Debt to the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Dunn acknowledged all that the Y.M.C.A. had done for the men at home and overseas. "We have been their guests for a long time, but we say why should we be their guests all the time. May we not also be their hosts, and the K. C. Army Huts will be hosts of all the boys. That explains why this compaign was launched in the Dominion."

A BAG OF IRISH GRAPES AWAIT AN OWNER AT THE STATION

A Peterborough lady bought a bag of potatoes on the market Saturday from Mr. W. A Wood. She paid for them and gave her address as 49 Park street, without giving her name.

Mr. Wood states that there is no such number as 49 Park street, or 149 Park street, either. He took the potatoes to the police station, where they await the owner.

Maple Leafs Win Two Games

In the opening match of the City Five-Pin league at the Water street alleys last night the Maple Leafs won two of the three games from the Shamrocks. The games were keenly contested. The captains of the Shamrocks was unable to lead his team to victory on account of illness. A dummy score was used on each team.

To-night's game—C. G. E. vs. De Laval separators has been postponed until to-morrow night. Last night's scores were as follows:

There will be handsome prizes donated to the winners of the league.

LINDSAY SECURES ANOTHER INDUSTRY

Lindsay people are suffering from colds, la grippe and Spanish influenza. Have you got it? The complaint is not unlike la grippe, although it is more annoying, if that could be possible. It is an acute febrile infectious condition of three or four days' duration and the symptoms are chills accompanied by severe headaches with pain in the back and general feeling of malaise or loss of energy. The face is flushed and herpes appear on the lips in some cases. The fever runs from 99 to 102 degrees, and the highest point is reached on the second day, when there is a sudden drop, and by the fourth day the patient has practically recovered.—Lindsay Post.

To the Theatre Going Public

I wish to call your attention to the fact that I am sending to your city the elaborate musical spectacle "EVERYWOMAN." Contrary to a custom that has been followed in the past years by most theatrical producers with a popular success to their credit, I have steadfastly refused to organize and send out any duplicate companies of this world famed success, which is coming to your city at the zenith of its fame and glory, full of international honor and homage, and identical in the proportions that have made theatrical history here and abroad.

I realize that I may be sacrificing much in taking this stand, but I feel positive that the theatregoers of the few cities to which I am sending "EVERYWOMAN" will appreciate the excellence of this company. Many of you have no doubt witnessed a performance of "EVERYWOMAN," and will be gratified to know that Paula Shay, Natalia Lynn, Winnifred Baldwin, Percy Parsons, Norman Lane, J. K. Hutchinson, Frank Kilday, F. J. McCarthy, and Fred Hampton still head the cast and will appear in your city in the same roles with which they have been identified.

Feeling that you will appreciate this effort to give you the best in my power,

I beg to remain,
Faithfully yours,
Henry W. Savage

WEDDING BELLS

KYLIE—TUCKER.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Monday, Sept. 30th, the wedding was solemnized of Kathleen Annis Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Tucker, to John Cecil Kylie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Kylie, Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dean McColl. Mr. and Mrs. Kylie left for Detroit, and on their return will reside in Hamilton.

ALLEN--ANDERSON.

On Wednesday, Sept. 11, at ten o'clock, the marriage took place of Veronica Irene Allen, sister of Mrs. Ralph Byrne, to Thomas Joseph Anderson, both of Tompkins, in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Maple Creek, Sask. Rev. Father Knot officiated.

Mrs. Ralph Byrne, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Ralph Byrne acted as best man. The bride was attired in a cream silk, with an overdress of white silk embroidered net, and wore a veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses, sweet peas, and carnations, amid a mass of ferns.

Mr. Brown drove the party to Maple Creek in his car, a distance of 36 miles, and returned in the evening to the home of her sister, where a reception was held. They received many beautiful presents. The evening was spent in dancing till one o'clock, when the crowd departed, and Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left for a short trip east, and will be at home to their many friends after Oct. 1st.

CANADA'S HARNESS HORSES.

Canadians always cut a figure on the American tracks with their pacers and trotters, and this year is no exception. Chilcoot, the Toronto trotter, is one of the Big Line winners, and a shifty horse he is. Vic Fleming, Uri Pierce, Nat Ray, By Shively and a score of others have been winning on the "twice arounds."

Most have won oat money, for the winter, and have kept Canada in line for good horses.

Canada is there in every line of endeavour, and is now going to establish a few records in production.

The farmer will need help this fall. Plow, or release a man to plow. More production is needed.

Address by Miss E. Kennedy at Ennismore School Fair

The following address was delivered by Miss Eleanor Kennedy, one of the prize winners of school section number four, Ennismore, at the school fair held last week:

Mr. Chairman, Rev. Father, Ladies and Gentlemen, Boys and Girls:

We have been asked this afternoon to give a short description of the most interesting topic of the day, and I have chosen as my subject, 'How can we help to win the war?'

Although we are living here, away from even the sound of battle, we can help to fight one of the worst enemies which are confronting our troops, that is the 'shortage of food,' which will mean, unless we can do our 'bit,' starvation for the boys overseas. This alone would result in the defeat of our troops. We know the men of Europe are engaged in a life struggle to defend their homes and ours, and have no time to raise food for man or beast. This is left for the women, boys and girls, and they are bravely doing their best, with what is left to them. There are fewer men in Canada now than there were before the war, so it is plain we must help to take their place.

But how are we to do this? Can we do it by putting forth the same effort we did before the war? No! We must spend our spare time in doing some work, which will help to feed our boys across the sea. A child can do much even though he be small, to help on the farm and make the shortage of food felt less. I will tell you what I did to increase production this year. I helped my father to do the chores daily. I went for the cows, and helped to milk, and feed the calves twice a day. When haying started, I was kept busy raking and driving the hay-fork. When I finished that the grain was ripe. I lifted sheaves from the front of the binder, and turned them over to dry on the other side after a rain. I helped to draw in the wheat and oats, and I was just done in time to start school. During the winter months we can do little at producing food. But we can do something towards making our soldiers more comfortable. How are we to do this? We can learn to knit socks, and other things for the boys, so that when they come out of the trenches, they can have fresh new socks to put on, for our boys have the climate to contend with, and the mud, which is described by a Canadian poet, Mr. R. W. Service, now in khaki, in the stanza:

It isn't the foe that we fear,
It isn't the bullets that whine,
It isn't the business career
Of a shell, or the burst of a mine;
It isn't the snipers who seek
To nip our young hopes in the bud,
No, it isn't the guns,
And it isn't the Huns—
It's the mud, mud, mud."

What if our soldiers should come back after the war and taunt us with 'You expected us to win the war, but you left us there suffering and starving, while you enjoyed yourself over here?' Then let us plan and work. So many of our best men are giving their lives for their country, surely we can give some of our time and our comforts.

Thus we can hasten the time, 'when nation shall not lift sword against nation. Neither shall there be any more war.'

GRAIN MARKET

Corn markets were still on the down grade and going fast, under the influence of early peace prospects. The prices lowering was also aided by the Board to eliminate all speculative trading. Under the newest regulations, no food commodities will be allowed to be carried "long" for speculative purposes of the current month. Holders of "long" stuff for the current month must show absolute need of the grain for immediate use for food purposes.

Oats are also weaker. Barley is in cash. Fodder feed situation is strong and hay is quoted $1 per ton higher.

In the option markets Monday there were sharp declines on receipt of news of the Bulgarian armistice. Still further restrictions on trading announced by the Chicago Board of Trade also had a depressing effect on prices. In the cash markets receipts are still comparatively light, though cash oats at Fort William are quoted a little easier on No. 2's, bu no other grades quoted. Barley continues firm, with a good demand.

Hay— Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2, $23 to $21; No. 2 mixed, $18 to $19 per ton; straw, car lots, $9 to $9.50.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards— Receipts yesterday, 67 cars with 1,035 cattle, 91 calves, 497 hogs, and 1,294 sheep and lambs.

Whether "peace talk" is already having a similar effect on cattle prices to that which it is having in corn prices is at present but a surmise. But certain it is that the feeling that peace may come much sooner than most people a short time ago believed it would coincides with the evident determination of the packers to pull down cattle prices. It may be that the packers see an end to their big contracts for supplying beef to the armies now in the field. At all events, while only a week ago they were clamouring for all the fat, heavy steers for the export beef trade they could get hold of this week, as the shippers and commission men put it, they will not look at them. In other words, Monday they were bidding 50 cents lower than last week, and

Allied Advance Responsible For Bulgaria's Surrender

Victors Obtained Entry Into the Territory of the Enemy In Less Than Fifteen Days, Says French Statement—Bulgars Knew When the Jig Was Up.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—An official report from the war office on operations in Macedonia shows step by step the advance of the allied armies, which resulted in Bulgarian delegates signing an armistice with the allies at Saloniki on Sunday night.

"The victorious operations, which in less than fifteen days have led the allied armies in the Orient as far as Uskub," the statement reads, "and also into the territory of the enemy, have resulted in a decision by the Bulgarian army to lay down its arms.

"At 11 p.m. on Sept. 29 the plenipotentaries delegated by the Bulgarian Government signed an armistice at Salonika. On September 30 at midday hostilities between the Bulgarians and the allies ceased.

Carried Mountain Barriers.

"The operations began when a Serbian division moved forward and carried by assault the formidable mountain barriers of Vetrenik, Dobro Polje and Sokol. By September 22 they had succeeded in cutting the communications of the First Bulgarian Army operating along the Vardar, and those of the Bulgarian Second Army and the Germans north of Monastir. Displaying extraordinary endurance, courage and a spirit of sacrifice, all the allied forces joined in the attack on September 18 against the enemy positions at Doiran, capturing this region from important Bulgarian forces.

"Beginning Sept. 21, the Italian, Greek and French troops in the region of Monastir moved forward in their turn. On the 22nd a general pursuit began. It was conducted with ardor and splendid energy.

Crossed the Vardar.

"On the 23rd the Serbians and French crossed the Vardar in the direction of Krivolak. On the 24th French cavalary entered Prilep. On the 25th Ishtib and the formidable barriers to Veles were captured. The British opened up the road to Strumitsa which they entered on September 26. The same day the Serbians reached Kochana and Veles, and the Italians, French and Greeks were marching on Kilchiero.

"On the evening of Sept. 26 the Bulgarians asked that hostilities be suspended, announcing they were sending plenipotentiaries.

"In the course of these glorious operations which the hurried sending of German reinforcements could not check, the allied armies took a great number of prisoners and an immense quantity of war material.

Aviators Took Part.

"Allied aviators took a most active part and gave very great help in the fighting. They constantly sent back information to the command and without cessation they attacked enemy troops and convoys with machine guns, causing disorder among the enemy forces and preventing them from escaping from the advancing infantry."

FROM A WAR GARDENER.

J. Frost, tarry just a while—
For a little keep away!
Mercy, for the cosmos sweet,
Marigolds so bravely gay,
Respite for my cabbages,
Beans and peppers still, I pray!

See, the clematis yet frames
Fragrantly the great house-door!
There's a white rose coming out—
Stay your coming, I implore!
Let my squash vines, full of buds,
Grow unscathed, a few days more!

If you must have work to do,
Paint more brilliantly the trees—
Make the forests glow and flame
With their Autumn tapestries!
But my garden still reprieve—
Have a heart, dear J. Frost, please!

SANGUINE YOUTH

CHAPTER II.

It was not only in house furnishings that Ruth reveled; she loved also dainty, soft fabrics to wear. Her house gown she fashioned herself, often out of odd Oriental fabrics, and her underwear was always of sheerest soft lawn or silk.

Her street clothes were always simple, as is always the case with people with taste. She had little use for evening or party dresses, as the town was small, and her aunt mixed with few of the people.

Strangely, Ruth had never seemed to mind this. There were two or three girls quite near to her own age with whom she was intimate, after a fashion, and a few young men, whom she condescended to talk to, if it were unavoidable. But mostly she and her aunt were together, each seemingly satisfied to have it so—until Brian Hackett came to visit his relatives.

Brian's uncle happened to be the father of one of the girls whom Ruth visited. She met Brian. He was a college man—even if he had worked his way—he was different from the slow-going Southern boys in whom she had no particle of interest.

Brian Hackett was twenty-five years old when Ruth met him. He was tall, straight and broad shouldered. His finely shaped head, brown hair and eyes, white teeth and winning smile, where partly what had attracted the beauty-loving Ruth. For no one could deny that Brian Hackett was handsome. Yet there was nothing in the least effeminate about him.

It was on the occasion of his second visit that he proposed to Ruth and was accepted. In the meantime they had corresponded. It probably would have made no difference to Ruth, feeling as she then did toward him, had she known that he had hesitated to make the second visit because of the expence involved. But had Mrs Clayborne known it, she would have even more urgently begged Ruth to remain with her.

AUNT LAURA'S ULTIMATUM

"It isn't all selfishness, dear," she had said when she and Ruth discussed the matter, "although I am selfish where you are concerned. But I know you never will be happy as a poor man's wife. That it is so, is probably my fault in a great measure. Yet I imagine the love for beauty is so ingrained in your nature that you never would have been contented in meager surroundings, even had you not been so indulged." Then after a long look in which amusement struggled with something else, somethnig very much like disappointment, she added: "How would you look washing dishes in that?" she indicated by a gesture, a soft, trailing house robe of creamy silk, fastened at the waist by a heavy cord, with long flowing sleeves open at the shoulder. The silk stockings and slippers she wore were of the best.

"Perhaps I shan't have to wash dishes," Ruth answered, looking down at her robe. "Perhaps"—

"No, Ruth, it won't do." Her aunt would try every means to show the wilfull girl that she was doing something that would mean unhappiness for both herself and Brian. "You have had servants to wait on you, to do everything for you. Old Mammy has been like a slave in her devotion to you and you never hesitate to call upon the others whenever you need them. You have had your horses, now your motor car. I have denied you nothing. Brian Hackett does not earn in a year what I spend on you in a month—I was going to say in a week! But if you marry him or any man, until I know he can take care of you decently, I shall not give you one penny as long as I live. I do not mean to be cruel, Ruth, But"—

"Brian won't be poor long."

"What reason have you to believe that he will not?"

"Oh—because—he's smart. He has had a college education"—

"It does not follow that he will be a business success. I have known many college men who have nearly starved to death and whose wives were simply kitchen drudges, and nurses for a family of children."

"But he is different."

RUTH IS ADAMANT

"In what way?" He is handsome, good to look at. I warant if he had been a plain looking fellow, you wouldn't have looked at him. But his handsome face caught you. It won't look quite so good to you when there is nothing else about you to appeal to you—nothig to satisfy your artistic taste and love of beauty."

Oh, but aunt Laura! I will make our home lovely. I can do it you know."

"Yes, you can," dryly responded Mrs. Clayborne, "I do not deny you ability. But do you remember what the bills were for decorating and furnishing your sitting room and bedroom?"

"Yes—about four thousand dollars."

"Um—and a lawyer's clerk earns, how much?"

"I don't know exactly, but Brian said he could give me a comfortable home."

"I can shut my eyes and imagine what He means by a comfortable home, and I mean no disparagement to him either. I can see a four or five room flat, furnished very cheaply if the things are paid for; cheaply and garishly if bought on the installment plan. I can fairly see the look on your face when he introduces you to the home he calls "comfortable."

STUDIED WHILE A PRISONER.

Highest Musical Honor Won Under Unusual Circumstances.

Completion of his studies for the degree of Doctor of Music by Mr Ernest MacMillan, of Toronto, while interned in the notorious Ruhleben prison camp in Germany has been rewarded by the grant of the high honor by Oxford University. Held captive since the outbreak of the war, this young University of Toronto man has displayed rare pluck and devotion to his art and reports are that he has made remarkable progress as composer and conductor.

Dr. MacMillan, son of Rev. Alexander MacMillan, of Toronto, went to Paris for summer musical studies in 1914 after completing his third year in the course in Modern History. Attending the Wagner Festival at Bayreuth, Bavaria, that July, he remained to aid a friend who had fallen ill. The war intervened and, after a short confinement in Nuremberg Castle, he was sent to Ruhleben, where he remains with the civilian prisoners. In 1915 he was graduated with first-class honors as a Bachelor of Arts by the University of Toronto the news being forwarded to him.

During the past four years occasional reports have come through of his studies in Russian and of his generous activities in relieving the depression of his comrades. But the word now comes from England that in his squalid confinement he has prepared for, and passed, the regular examination papers which were sent out to him from Oxford. During confinement the doctor has, incidentally, prepared the orchestral parts for musicians who possessed various instruments when interned.

Mr. MacMillan has had an unusual career. At thirteen he was an Associate of the Royal College of Organists and that in 1910 he became a Fellow, heading the list of nineteen successful candidates out of 113, and winning the Cart Lafontaine prize as the candidate most distinguished in the theatrical and practical branches. In 1907 he was medallist in Advanced Harmony in the University of Edinburgh, while but thirteen years of age. His latest honor is the highest academic distinction in music that is given in the British Empire. While at university he was the Convocation Hall organist and choir conductor.

The Morning After The Big Night

The Wise Precaution of a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet After the Banquet Brings Pleasant Memories with the Morning Coffee.

If it hadn't been for Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets like as not I'd have a Headache this morning.

If you ever feel distressed after eating be sure to take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. For no matter what you eat there will be no gas, no sour risings, no lump in your throat, no biliousness, no dark brown taste in the morning. And should you now be troubled, eat a tablet as soon as possible and relief will come promptly. These tablets correct at once the faults of a weak or overworked stomach; they do the work while the stomach rests and recovers itself. Particularly effective are they for banqueters, and those whose environment brings them in contact with the rich food most apt to cause stomach derangement. Relief in these cases always brings the glad smile. Get a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, 50 cents, in any drug store. Be good to your stomach.

GOLD NUGGETS.

They Will Blister and Explode When Heated In a Bunsen Flame.

By what process is a nugget of gold compacted into form in which it is found? Sometimes a mass worth more than $5,000 is found. In answer to the question there is cited the attempt of an investigator in Australia to ascertain the workings of nature in this respect. This investigator, says the Science Siftings, cut and sliced and polished gold nuggets with the sole purpose of ascertaining just what was their structure.

The first thing he discovered was that there is one curious point of resemblance between nuggets and meteorites. Both when polished and etched with chlorine water exhibit a crystalline structure.

In the case of meteorites the lines thus exhibited on the etched surface are called Widmanstatten figures, and their presence is held to be one of the most invariable characteristics of those metallic bodies that fall from the sky to the earth. But it is not meant to be implied that gold nuggets have fallen from the sky because they exhibit a crystalline structure recalling that of meteorites. The resemblance is apparently only superficial, and the crystals of the nuggets differ in form from those of the meteorites.

Another curious fact is that when a nugget is heated in a Bunsen flame explosions take place on its surface. Blisters are formed which continue to swell until they burst with a sharp report, and bits of gold are violently scattered about. It is evident that the nuggets contain either gases or some liquids or solids which are easily converted into the gaseous form, the expansion of which produces the explosions.

MANY GOLDEN WEDDINGS.

Old Couples In Ontario Celebrat Half a Century Together.

Jubilee celebrations of early August weddings of half a century ago were very numerous in Ontario this year.

At Dixie a few days ago Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lynn celebrated with many friends their golden wedding. Both celebrants were born in Simcoe County, where their parents were among the earliest settlers in the bushland north of Barrie. Mr. Lynn is now seventy-three and his wife sixty-eight years of age. After farming for a number of years they removed to Toronto in 1880, and there after until his retirement Mr. Lynn has engaged in business there. Their home is now at Dixie.

The celebration took the form of a reception to members of the family and old friends. Eleven children greeted the bride and groom of fifty years ago; among them being their sons, G. S., M. and A. C. Lynn the latter of whom was with the C.M.R. in France and wounded, and Pte. H. P. Lynn, of the 19th Battalion, C.E.F., wounded at Vimy Ridge, discharged and invalided home.

Mrs. Lynn has knitted more than two hundred pairs of socks for the soldiers within the last four years.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meade, of the Third Concession, Chatham Township, also received the congratulation of a large circle of friends, following the observance of their golden wedding anniversary. Six of their nine children are living, only three of whom were able, however, to be present on the occasion of the anniversary, one son, Fred, being at present on active service in France.

On August 7th, the fiftieth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. N. Quilty's marriage occurred, the occasion being duly celebrated at their home at Mount St. Patrick and Douglas. In the morning the bridal couple of fifty years ago with their children and grandchildren, attended high mass in their old parish church of Mount St Patrick. The celebrant of the golden wedding mass was their son, Rev. Father Quilty, of Douglas, while another son, Sylvester, served in the sanctuary.

Mr. and Mrs. Quilty have had a family of seven sons and four daughters, all of whom are living save Joseph, who fell at Vimy Ridge. Another son, James, is at present with the engineers somewhere in France. The other sons are Rev. J. Quilty, P.P.; Thomas, of Admaston; Nicholas, at Cobalt; and "Silver," in the Ottawa civil service. The daughters are Mesdames James Whelan, Minnesota; Gorman, Parry Sound; Marchand, Ottawa, and H. Legris, of Dacre.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey, of Brockville, received the congratulations of many friends recently on the occasion of the fiftieth annual celebration of their marriage, which was celebrated at Carthage, N.Y., in August, 1868.

Peterboro also has its golden wedding celebration, the bridal couple being Mr. and Mrs. T. Cavanagh, of 409 Aylmer street, in that city, where they have spent the greater part of their lives together.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Colwell, was celebrated at their home on Duncan street, Wallaceburg recently.

In order to reach a conclusion as to what constitutes pure food it becomes necessary to inspect the statutes and the supreme court decisions as well as the labels.

The decision of the department of commerce that all flying machines are "boats" should make it perfectly legitimate to finish the round the world flight by water if necessary.

Since England has abandoned her naval maneuvers because they cost too much, her ancient battle hymn may have to be revised. She've got the ships and she've got the men, but ain't she got the money too?

English women who marry must still promise to "obey," the bishops having taken no action to modify the marriage service. But it is still possible for British wives to go on domestic hunger strikes or adopt other militant methods.

HELPING THE WOUNDED

Our Canadian nurses are needed "over there" now as never before. This is the time to learn how to take care of the wounded, the sick—or any emergency. You can learn a great deal by obtaining the "Medical Adviser" from your nearest druggist, a book of 1,000 pages, bound in cloth, containing chapters on First Aid, Bandaging, Anatomy, Hygiene, Marriage, Mother and Babe; or send 50c to Dr. Pierce, Courtwright St., Bridgeburg, Ont.

Thousands of women in Canada have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of woman's ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Fainting spells, chills or great pain at regular or irregular intervals should be corrected, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce's. Send ten cents for trial package to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch, Bridgeburg, Ont., or write for free confidential medical advice.

Toronto, Ont.—"As a tonic and builder I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to tired and run-down women. I am the mother of eight children and have frequently had need of such a tonic but did not know what to take until my sister gave me some of the 'Favorite Prescription' which she herself had found to be good. It was exactly the tonic my system required and one bottle did wonders for me, so I take pleasure in telling others, hoping that they will give the 'Prescription' a trial and be benefited just as I have been."—Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, 254 Ontario St.

GOLD NUGGETS.

They Will Blister and Explode When Heated in a Bunsen Flame.

By what process is a nugget of gold compacted into form in which it is found? Sometimes a mass worth more than $5,000 is found. In answer to the question there is cited the attempt of an investigator in Australia to ascertain the workings of nature in this respect. This investigator, says the Science Siftings, cut and sliced and polished gold nuggets with the sole purpose of ascertaining just what was their structure.

The first thing he discovered was that there is one curious point of resemblance between nuggets and meteorites. Both when polished and etched with chlorine water exhibit a crystalline structure.

In the case of meteorites the lines thus exhibited on the etched surface are called Widmanstatten figures, and their presence is held to be one of the most invariable characteristics of those metallic bodies that fall from the sky to the earth. But it is not meant to be implied that gold nuggets have fallen from the sky because they exhibit a crystalline structure recalling that of meteorites. The resemblance is apparently only superficial, and the crystals of the nuggets differ in form from those of the meteorites.

Another curious fact is that when a nugget is heated in a Bunsen flame explosions take place on its surface. Blisters are formed which continue to swell until they burst with a sharp report, and bits of gold are violently scattered about. It is evident that the nuggets contain either gases or some liquids or solids which are easily converted into the gaseous form, the expansion of which produces the explosions.

HELPING THE WOUNDED

Our Canadian nurses are needed "over there" now as never before. This is the time to learn how to take care of the wounded, the sick—or any emergency. You can learn a great deal by obtaining the "Medical Adviser" from your nearest druggist, a book of 1,000 pages, bound in cloth, containing chapters on First Aid, Bandaging, Anatomy, Hygiene, Marriage, Mother and Babe; or send 50c to Dr. Pierce, Courtwright St., Bridgeburg, Ont.

Thousands of women in Canada have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of woman's ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Fainting spells, chills or great pain at regular or irregular intervals should be corrected, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce's. Send ten cents for trial package to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch, Bridgeburg, Ont., or write for free confidential medical advice.

Toronto, Ont.—"As a tonic and builder I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to tired and run-down women. I am the mother of eight children and have frequently had need of such a tonic but did not know what to take until my sister gave me some of the 'Favorite Prescription' which she herself had found to be good. It was exactly the tonic my system required and one bottle did wonders for me, so I take pleasure in telling others, hoping that they will give the 'Prescription' a trial and be benefited just as I have been."—Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, 254 Ontario St.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Youthful Croesus

By ALMA BLANCHE WARNER

"I am very sorry, Mr. Barker. I esteem you as a good friend, but I cannot consider your proposal."

"At least we must remain friends," he said as steadily as he could. "I shall not offend again, dear lady, but my life's service is yours."

It was well that just then Irene's little brother called to her, or she would have broken down utterly. She had ever admired a man as she had this sterling, open-hearted young fellow.

It was the next day that his sister Blanche came to where he was swinging idly in a hammock.

"Neal, dear," she spoke gently, "I have a fancy that you have been falling in love with our pretty next-door neighbor."

"It is more than a fancy," replied Neal—"it is a fact. Did Miss Ainslee indicate it to you?"

"Oh, not at all!" Blanche hastened to say. "But it has not been difficult for me to surmise that you were attracted by her. Then, today she let drop a few vague words that told me of the situation. She has declined to marry you, Neal?"

"Yes, sister."

"But she loves you."

Neal's face became a glow of sudden joyfulness. "Oh, you cannot know that!" he cried, but hopefully.

"The knowledge should not encourage you to press your attentions," spoke Blanche gravely. "I can read the heart of Irene, as well as your own. You know that she is proud of her independence and ability to care for the two children left to her charge when her widowed stepmother died. The little home was left to Irene by her father, who had married twice. When his second wife died there was Nettie, who is now sixteen, and Teddy, your little favorite. Like the loyal, true-hearted being that she is, Irene promised her stepmother to care for these helpless orphans.

"In a year Nettie will graduate and be able to support herself as a teacher. Until the last five hundred dollars is paid that carries her through with her education, Irene says she must allow nothing to divert her from that purpose."

"How gladly would I furnish the money—" began Neal.

"Irene is too proud to accept it," reminded Blanche.

Neal next day made little Teddy a toy wagon he had promised him. He acted without constraint with Irene and made no reference to his proposal.

Teddy essayed a trip with his wagon. He was two squares away from home when an active, sleek-looking young man came around the corner in a great hurry. He stooped down over the wagon, thrust a package out of view in the sand it carried, and Teddy kept on his way, all unconscious of the fact that his load had suddenly become very precious.

The young man lowered his pace and looked surprised when two men on the run came up with him and seized him by the arms.

"What's this?" he inquired, in a seemingly bewildered way.

"You were in the bank a few minutes since?" demanded one of the men.

"Why, yes, I changed a ten-dollar bill there.

"And immediately after you left a ten-thousand-dollar money package was found missing from the teller's desk."

"The mischief!" ejaculated the smooth young man. "Who took it?"

"That's what we want to find out. If you are an honest man you will have no objection to our searching you."

"Not the least in the world."

They found no ten-thousand-dollar package on him and hurried back to look up others who had been in the bank. The young man started to get a trace of the boy with the wagon, who had disappeared.

Just about dusk Irene, coming into the sitting room with Teddy, found the young man in question just climbing in through the open window.

"Don't get scared," he spoke. "I accidentally dropped a package into the wagon of your little fellow here. Did you find it?"

"I did," answered Irene truthfully.

"Well, I want it."

"You must prove your ownership first," said Irene. "I opened it and found it to contain a large amount of money."

"Young lady," said her visitor, producing a revolver and placing it on the window sill, "you get that package within two minutes, or I'll make you!"

Just at that moment Neal Barker passed the window. The intruder reached out to get the weapon. It had disappeared, for Neal had secured it. As the amazed visitor leaned out to see what had become of it, Neal seized him by the shoulders and pulled him into the open air.

"The thief is in jail," reported Neal two hours later to Irene. "The bank will send you a reward in the morning of a thousand dollars. Irene, dear, just think of it—that gives you the money to pay for the rest of Nettie's education!"

"And a nice surplus for myself," said Irene.

"Enough to buy a wedding trousseau?" suggested Neal, softly.

"I'll think of it," whispered Irene, her lips so close to him that he kissed her then and there.

A Chance Acquaintance

By Florence Lillian Henderson

Nellie Morse had seen the young man only twice, but she was pleased when he lifted his hat, and she smilingly replied to his courtesy. The first time was when, crossing the street, the handle of the little basket she was carrying parted and some supplies from the delicatessen store were scattered far and wide.

The young man had gathered up the various articles, both had laughed merrily over the mishap, betraying Nellie's fondness for Swiss cheese, rye bread and pickles. Now they met again, and both were glad to pass the salutation of something more than strangers.

"I see you have struck up an acquaintance with our neighbor, Mr. Philip Dexter, the art engraver!" spoke a pleasant voice—that of Mrs. Rhoades, landlady of the house where Nellie and numerous other young women earning their living as stenographers and clerks had their abode.

"Oh, is that his name?" said Nellie, a trifle flushed.

"Yes, he rooms across the court, directly opposite your apartment."

Nellie got her own supper on her little gas stove that evening. Then she went into her bedroom adjoining the little closet that did for a kitchen, and did not turn on the light. She sat down by the window, half-frosted over, and looked across the court.

"How strange, how near and almost romantic!" soliloquized Nellie, smiling at the folly of a passing fancy. "That must be Mr. Dexter's room, but the frost on the window obscures all view. Yes, that must be the brave rescuer of my delicatessen dainties," added Nellie, as a shadow fell across the windowpane. "Why, he is drawing."

She held her breath with a strange sensation as, across the broad frosted upper pane a quick, deft hand, manipulating tool or pencil, began sketching the profile of a human face.

"Why!" exclaimed Nellie, "It's me!"

Yes, Nellie had a saucy, unreformable stray lock that always came out of place across her forehead. She had a retrousse chin, as well. There could be no doubt that the artistic hand at work was dimming faithfully from memory her own features.

And then the room across the court evidently warmed up, and slowly, but effectually, the fair face drawn vanished into nothingness, and, with a slight sigh, Nellie sentimentally wondered if the fleeting interest of the young man had likewise faded into thin air.

Life had been stern and hard to Nellie. Left an orphan, she had been compelled to work for a living. More latterly, too, she had contributed to the partial support of a married and deserted sister. That sister was now seeking a legal separation from a more than unworthy husband, who had persecuted her sorely, who was even now being sought for by the police for his crimes, and who was a haunting menace to the two loyal sisters, and Winifred Allen was practically in hiding until the law gave her husband no further claim upon her.

Nellie came home one evening about a week later. The room was cold and damp, the heat having been shut off since morning, and the windows were coated with steam. She had just taken off her wraps when the door of the room opened quickly, closed and was locked with a click, and Richard Allen stood glaring at her.

"Didn't expect me?" sneered Allen. "Well, I've located you. Now, for the other one. Where is my wife hiding?"

"How dare you intrude?" began Nellie; but the other faced her with a murderous gleam in his evil eyes.

"No dramatics!" he said, sharply. "I'm hunted and I'm desperate. I want to see Winifred and I'm going to. I'll give you just five minutes to decide to take me to her, or I'll slit that pretty white throat of yours, and hers afterwards, if I find her. Do some thinking, and do it quick, for I'm in dead earnest."

Nellie shuddered and thrilled. She knew the reckless, cruel nature of the man. She shrank to the window and leaned her forehead against the sash, trying to think of some way to baffle this refugee from justice. Nellie gasped as she lifted her eyes. The upper sash was partially clear. She saw, seated near the window in his room across the way, Philip Dexter. She moved her hand to attract his attention. Then, deftly, rapidly, on the lower, steam-clouded sash she traced with her finger the words:

"Come—come quick!"

"What are you up to there?" grated out Allen harshly, springing forward, bristling with suspicion.

Nellie darted for the little kitchen closet. She slammed its door shut against the furious visitor, and clung to it as he endeavored to pull it open. He went flat on the floor as Nellie let go of the inside knob. At that moment Philip Dexter burst into the room.

There was a fierce struggle between the two men, but Nellie ran out and shrieked for help. Richard Allen went into the hands of the police, where he belonged, and out of harm's way.

Comedy—the chance meeting on the street. Near tragedy—Nellie's rescue, and after that—sweet romance, and love, and two earnest young souls merged into one.

Quit Laxatives, Purges; Try NR

NR Tonight—Tomorrow Feel Right

It is a mistake to continually dose yourself with so-called laxative pills, calomel, oil, purges and cathartics and force bowel action. It weakens the bowels and liver and makes constant dosing necessary.

Why don't you begin right today to overcome your constipation and get your system in such shape that daily purging will be unnecessary? You can do so if you get a 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and take one each night for a week or so.

NR Tablets do much more than merely cause pleasant easy bowel action. This medicine acts upon the digestive as well as eliminative organs—promotes good digestion, causes the body to get the nourishment from all the food you eat, gives you a good, hearty appetite, strengthens the liver, overcomes biliousness, regulates kidney and bowel action and gives the whole body a thorough cleaning out. This accomplished you will not have to take medicine every day. An occasional NR tablet will keep your body in condition and you can always feel your best.

Try Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and prove this. It is the best bowel medicine that you can use and costs only 25c per box, containing enough to last twenty-five days. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

ANTICS OF TUMBLEWEED.

This Curious Bushy Growth Is the Clown of Vegetation.

Though Mark Twain tells about coyotes and prairie dogs, animals which I looked for, but regret to say I did not see, he ignores the tumbleweed, the most curious thing—animal, vegetable or mineral—that crossed my vision as I crossed the plain. I cannot understand why Mark Twain did not mention this weed, because he must have seen it and it must have delighted him with its comical gyrations.

Tumbleweed is a bushy plant which grows to a height of perhaps three feet and has a mass of little twigs and branches which make its shape almost perfectly round. Fortunately for the amusement of mankind it has a weak stalk, so that when the plant dries the wind breaks it off at the bottom and then proceeds to roll it over and over across the land. I well remember the first tumbleweed we saw.

"What on earth is that thing?" cried my companion suddenly, pointing out through the car window. I looked. Some distance away a strange buff colored shape was making a swift, uncanny progress toward the east. It wasn't crawling, it wasn't running, but it was traveling fast with a rolling, tossing, careening motion like a barrel half full of whisky going down hill. Now it tilted one way, now another; now it shot swiftly into some slight depression in the plain, but only to come bounding lightly out again with an air indescribably gay, abandoned and inane.

Soon we saw another and another. They became more and more common as we went along until presently they were everywhere, careening in their maudlin course across the prairie and piled high against the fences along the railroad's right of way like great concealing snowdrifts.

Tumbleweed is the clown of vegetation, and it has the air as it rolls along of being conscious of its comicality, like the smart caniche in the dog show which goes and overturns the basket behind the trainer's back or the circus clown who runs about with a rolling gait, tripping, turning double and triple somersaults, rising, running on, tripping, falling and turning over and over again.—Julian Street in Collier's Weekly.

Money In Live Stock.

In three weeks the United Farmers around Tweed sent out six carloads of hogs totalling 327 animals. Kerr and Coulter brought in hogs as well from the surrounding township, sending them out from there. The United Farmers are also sending out lambs, sheep, calves and cattle, for those who wish to handle these.

The buyer weighs each man's stock and takes notes of the markings, according to the list sent him, as each man's animals are marked before leaving and an account of the marking sent ahead of the stock.

Five spring lambs averaging 73 pounds each at Toronto, brought a cheque for $77.69, after paying expenses.

When Mr. Gladstone was at the height of his fame a sturdy old Tory Scotchwoman, who detested his principles, but who was curious concerning his oratory, decided to attend a political meeting for the sake of hearing him. But "that something gude micht come o' twa hours spent in sic company," she took her knitting along. When, the next day, a friend asked her opinion of the great liberal leader, she gave it honestly:

SAYS VETERANS ARE NOT KEEN TO FARM

MOST WILL PREFER TO ENTER INDUSTRIAL WORLD, SAYS MR. T. B. KIDNER.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 25.—Speakers before the convention of the American Hospital Association in session here, declared that soldiers returning from the battle fronts at the conclusion of the war would not be so favorable to "back to the soil" movements as is generally believed, despite their months in the open. The mind training along with vigorous bodies, they said, would create a desire to enter the commercial world, and technical work.

"It is a widely prevalent misconception that these men who have roughed it in the open will never go back to inside work," declared T. B. Kidner, Vocational Secretary of the Invalided Soldiers' Commission of Canada, who is in this country, assisting the United States Vocational Board prepare for the permanently injured soldiers.

"Most of them have had enough of the soil to last them the rest of their lives."

Mr. Kidner said that crippled soldiers should be made to feel themselves capable of earning their own way.

"The problem is not that of limbless and blinded men," he said. Of the 28,000 soldiers sent back to Canada, he added, but 1400 had undergone major amputations and only 60 were blind. Canada is offering training in 200 occupations for such veterans, and America will give more than that, the speaker said.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $2, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made, and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Development of Fire Arms

The rifling principle in the making of muskets was invented as early as 1520, but was not generally applied until centuries later.

The American colonists were among the first to apply it. These colonists developed a long flintlock muzzle-loading rifle, which was rendered still more effective by the use of a "patch." The patch was a piece of linen soaked in oil which was laid over the muzzle and the bullet then placed over it and rammed down into the barrel. The patch acted as a lubricant and also held the charge firmly in place. The barrels of these rifles were often as much as six feet long and they had an accurate range up to one hundred yards.

In 1807 a Scotch clergyman, the Rev. Alexander John Forsythe, obtained a patent for priming with a fulminating power which exploded by concussion, but this important improvement was not recognized and adopted by the English military authorities until more than thirty years later. In the meantime it was gradually developed and the copper percussion cap invented. It was not until the introduction of the copper cap that the percussion gun could be considered in every way superior to the flint.

Cartridges were probably invented by the French, who used to wrap up powder and bullet in paper to enable the soldier to load quickly and dispense with the cumbrous powder-horn. Military cartridges were tied around with tape and the end that contained the powder had to be bitten off before loading. The paper then served as a wad or patch.

In 1836 Lefaucheux produced a cartridge and a breech-loading gun. The cartridge contained within itself all the requisites for the gun's discharge. From this dates the success of the modern breech-loading rifle and shotgun. The earliest efficient modern cartridge case was the pin-fire, patented by Houiller, a Paris gunsmith, in 1847, with a thin, weak shell which expanded by the force of the explosion, fitted perfectly into the barrel, and thus formed an efficient gas check. The central-fire cartridge, practically as now in use, was introduced into England in 1861 by Daw.

Samuel Colt produced and patented the first practical revolver in 1835. This became a very popular weapon with U. S. Army officers, and was first used extensively in the Seminole War in Florida and other Indian wars. It was also used by British officers during the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny.

At the outbreak of the Mexican War the United States troops were equipped with Sharp's breech-loading carbine, which could be fired ten times a minute. This gun was used with great success against the Mexicans and later in the American Civil War.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

A cool and fresh looking shirtwaist dress to slip into on summer mornings is pictured in No. 8852. The sketch shows an attractive and simple way to cut striped material to give contrast. The waist is in regulation shirtwaist style, with closing at centre front by means of acorn buttons and loops. A neat roll collar of white is scalloped in a color to match the stripe in the material. The long, close-fitting sleeves have turned back cuffs to match the collar. A well fitting hip yoke is cut so that the stripes run the opposite way from those in the three gored lower section.

The lady's dress pattern No. 8852 is cut in six sizes—34 to 44 inches bust measure. Width at lower edge of skirt is 2¾ yards. The 36-inch size requires 4¼ yards 36-inch material, with ¼ yard 36-inch contrasting material.

Never lose courage when success is slow in coming. Remember that it is not always the swiftest horse that wins the race but the one that keeps going.

Emerson once said that "Power ceases upon the instant of repose; it resides in the moment of transition from the past to a new state."

"Hitch your wagon to a star," and then keep your gaze turned toward that star as a pilot keeps his mind upon the port toward which he directs his ship.

Then learn to be self-sufficient. Some one has said "Welcome evermore to gods and men is the self-helping man; for him all doors are flung wide, him all tongues greet, all honors crown. All eyes follow with desire. Our love goes out to him and embraces him because he does not need it. We solicitiously and apologetically caress and celebrate him because he held his way and scorned our misapprobation."

Nothing is so gratifying as success, and nothing so much to be admired.

I think the person whom I most admire is a woman who once filled a basket with artificial flowers as a decoration for her home. A friend gave her an order for a similar one. Then another and another, and the result is that today this courageous persevering yet frail little worker is the owner of one of the largest and most profitable wholesale and retail shops in America. And she will tell you with a smile that "It was all due to grit and perseverance."

Suppose you have reached the meridian of life without having attained success. What of it? I know a man who was penniless at the age of forty-eigh', and through hard work and the the will to do or die, he is now one of our best American writers.

Remember that in orer to keep a pot-boiling, you must add fuel to the fire, and that success never yet came to a human being without continuous effort.

So when you are inclined to give up, don't do it. Said Zoroaster: "To the persevering mortal, the blessed Immortals are swift."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We Eat Too Much Meat which Clogs Kidneys, then Back Hurts and Bladder Bothers You.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys, and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless, inexpensive, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

QUESTIONS FOR SOLDIERS

Is Marching Easier at Head of Column Than at Tail?

Here is a statement made on seemingly competent authority, that our boys in camp should report on. Major Wardent Denniss says: "For some reason which I have never been able to fathom, it is more of a strain to march at the tail of a column than at its head."

The only suggestion the officer can make is that perhaps it is because the rear of the column marches through the exhalations of those in front.

This theory is quite obviously incorrect, for while it might be true in marching through a deep trench, sunken road, or even in in an unventilated armory building, in the open the least side breeze would upset the assumption. First of all, is it true? Does the soldier in the rear ranks grow fatigued more quickly? In the experience of the race course, in foot races, bicycle races and even on the equine turf, the very opposite is noted. We all can recall the astonishing shatter of records there was in the cycle world when pacemakers were introduced. The men who went out in front and set the pace rode a short distance only and then "blew up," giving place to others ready to take over the task. Meanwhile the rider behind, the record maker, was keeping up all the time the fearful pace without severe strain.

Of course, the fact was, the rider behind was passing through a rarefied atmosphere split, as it were, by the pacemaking machines, but that did not account for the entire phenomenon. The man in front had to do his best all the time without knowing what that best should be. What fatigued was not merely the muscular action, but even more the mental strain, the anxiety and the doubt in what proportion at each moment he should expend his strength. The other man merely had a routine task to perform, namely that of keeping in touch with the first fellow

We know too, that it is only the greatly superior runner in any foot race who can 'get out in front and show the way from bell to tape," or as sporting parlance has it a "long odds" bet that the man who dashes to the front at the beginning of the contest will exhaust his nerve power before the home stretch is reached, and will see his rivals pass him with ease and finish well ahead.

Here we believe the phenomenon again is a mental one, due to the man's inability to guage his speed, and his anxiety lest he make a miscalculation

With these well established facts in mind it would seem that the front rank men should be quickest fatigued, and that those further back, with only the tread of the soldier ahead to duplicate, should be able to hang on with far less effort.

In any case this is the most interesting problem, and as an experienced marcher and commander of men, Major Dennies' belief must be given weight. Perhaps there is some quite different scientific or psychological reason that some of our boys will be able to work out.

It has long been known that to intensify the rhythm of the march by singing, band music, or by merely repeating the old injunction, "hay-foot, straw-foot," will help on the line and it is just possible that the improvement is due not so much to rhythm itself as to distraction of the attention from the anxiety of effort What do our soldiers think of this matter?—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

The Jest of Dummy Ships

The sinking of two 'dreadnoughts' by Great Britain to form a breakwater, brings up more evidence of what disposition is being made of the dummy fleet of fourteen battleships with which Great Britain fooled Germany for fifteen months during the earlier part of the war.

This titanic war jest, which was recently exposed by Lieutenant Henry Clay Foster, with the consent of the British Admiralty, completely deceived not only the Germans, but the English people themselves. No one in England was able to explain how the Germans could claim to have sank the Agamemnon at the Dardanelles, when the Admiralty had admitted officially the sinking of only the Goliath and "some supply ships."

Germany rejoiced over this supposed sinking of the Agamemnon. But they must have wondered why the turrets and "guns" of the sunken dreadnought floated for days in the Dardanelles.

Lieut Foster states that the dummy battleships were converted from old third-class passenger ships of the of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, which were enrolled in the English navy.

In an Irish port, says Lieutenant Foster, the dummy battleships were painted in exactly the same hue as the vessels of which they were counterfeits. Canvas was stretched over the decks and painted grey and the upper decks and equipments finished in every detail to resemble the Grand Fleet ships so that any foreign aviator—or any British one for that matter—flying overhead, would never suspect that he was looking down upon any other than a member of the Grand Fleet.

Turrets and guns were all made of wood, with a careful exactitude in their outer color and finish. There was nothing real about the ships, so far as war purposes were concerned, except the brass trimmings, which were kept shining as on a battleship, and some lifeboats, in which the crew were required to drill. The ships had neither speed nor defences. Not one carried a real gun.

Face An Awful Sight Healed By Cuticura

Rough and Itchy With Eczema. Came in Pimples and Blisters. Kept From Sleeping.

"My face got rough and itchy, and I was told I had eczema. It came in pimples, then water blisters, and my skin was sore and red. My face itched and I had to scratch, and it kept me from sleeping. The skin was dry and scaly, and would bleed. My face was an awful sight.

"I saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I sent for a free sample. I afterwards bought more, and it was not over a week when I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Annie Forgue, Alderson, Alta., Aug. 28, 1917.

If your skin is already healthy and clear keep it so by using Cuticura Soap for toilet purposes assisted by touches of Cuticura Ointment to soothe and heal any tendency to irritation, redness or roughness of the skin or scalp.

THIS WEAK, NERVOUS MOTHER

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness."—Mrs. J. WORTHLINE, 2842 North Taylor St., Philadelphia Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down, nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal healthy condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthline.

MANUFACTURE OF CIDER

Winter Rhubarb Can be Produced Cheaply and Conveniently.

Turnips Grown on Dairy Farm Best Fed to Dry Cows. Young Stock and Pigs.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

SWEET cider is unfermented apple juice, and hard cider is fermented apple juice. To get the juice the apples are either crushed or ground in a cider mill and the juice expressed from the pulp.

The fermentation of apple juice, or any other fruit juice, is brought about by the development in it of yeast. Yeast cells are microscopic plants invisible to the naked eye and are always present on the surface of fruit. When the fruit is crushed to get the juice many of these yeast cells get into the juice and if these are not destroyed they will induce fermentation.

Consequently, in the manufacture of sweet cider we must destroy the yeast cells that are present and prevent others from getting in. The surest way of doing this is to pasteurize the juice immediately after it is obtained from the fruit and store away in well-sealed containers. In the case of cider the pasteurization process means heating the juice to 170F. for ten minutes and then filling into containers that have been scalded and can be tightly corked. Care should be taken not to let the temperature get above 170F. during pasteurization or the character of the juice will be injured. The juice is then stored away at a low temperature to allow it to clear.

Hard cider is produced by allowing the fresh apple juice to ferment in the cask. The fermentation is naturally induced by the activties of the yeast cells that get into the juice from the surface of the apples. As, however, there are various kinds of yeast cells, and also many mold spores liable to be on the fruit which may injure the quality of the cider, spoiling the flavor, it is a good plan to control the fermentation either by first pasteurizing the juice and then adding a good yeast or simply by adding a good yeast to the raw juice as soon as obtained from the apples. —Prof. D. H. JonesG, O. A. College, Guelph.

How Winter Rhubarb Is Produced.

The production of rhubarb in winter has become of considerable value among gardeners. It is easy to do if certain methods are followed. If one is making a permanent business of rhubarb forcing, it is necessary, each year, to set out a new bed as plants once forced are of no further value. In the spring large roots should be dug, split in one bud sections and replaced in rich moist ground. During the growing season they are kept cultivated and free from weeds. In the fall they are covered with manure. Next spring a second bed is planted as before. That fall a large part of the first bed is taken up leaving sufficient to replant another bed the next spring. The roots are taken up the last thing in the fall before the hard, freezing weather comes and are placed in piles in a shed where they can easily be got at during the winter, but will remain frozen. About Dec. 1st take in a sufficient number of roots, place these bud side up on the floor of a warm cellar—about 68 to 70 degrees—and cover with an inch of sand. Be sure to fill in all interspaces. Keep this sand moist. About a week later the buds will begin to swell, and in from four to six weeks, depending upon the heat of the room, the cooler the slower growth starts—you should have rhubarb ready for market. After these roots are exhausted throw them away and put in more. If a constant supply is required make a new bed every two or three weeks during the winter. Be sure to keep all lights dimmed. Put burlap or brown paper over the windows to get the bright pink color so much desired.—A. H. MacLennan, B.S.A., Ontario Vegetable Specialist.

Should Cows Be Fed Turnips?

This is an old question about which considerable difference of opinion exists. If my reader is Scoteh, he or she will likely answer the question by saying, "Yes," as Scotsmen, turnips, and good farming are three things usually found together on farms in Ontario.

There was a time when butter buyers were not so particular about the flavor of butter as they are at present. It is common to hear women purchasers on city markets, say to farm butter-makers, "Your butter is turnipy," which is sufficient to cause a loss of the sale. Creamerymen object very strongly to "turnipy cream." While it is doubtless true that some careful feeders are able to feed quite large quantities of turnips to cows giving milk, without causing any serious trouble, there is always danger, which can best be avoided by not feeding these to milking cows. If they are grown on the dairy farm they are best fed to dry cows, fattening cattle, young stock, pigs, etc. However, if they are fed in the stable where cows are milking, and more especially where the root house opens into the stable and where the turnips are pulped in the stable or in a feed-room adjoining, the odor of the turnips fills the air, which is carried into the milk pail at the time of milking and thus the milk, cream, and butter become tainted from the stable air, even though the milk cows may not be fed any of the turnips.

The safest plan is not to grow turnips on a dairy farm. Grow mangels, or sugar beets, and corn for silage. These crops will give as good returns as turnips, are no more expensive to grow, and are much safer.

"Safety first" is a good motto on a dairy farm.—Prof. H. H. Dean, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

NOBODY CAN TELL WHEN YOU DARKEN GRAY, FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and atttractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. When ever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound,' you will get a large bottle of this old time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. It's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw, it through you hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

More Trouble Ahead.

(Hamilton Herald.)

That Ontario farmers are about to establish a daily newspaper to represent their special interests, is bad news for the ultimate consumer. By and by the ultimate consumer will have to pay more for his farm stuff in order to recoup the farmers for their losses.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1918

The French and Belgian Troops Have Made Fresh Progress on Belgian Front

Wide Gaps Have Been Torn in the German Line at Various Points —Many Prisoners Taken.

OFFICIAL REPORTS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON (Official), Oct 2.—The British are pushing further into the German positions between St. Quentin and Le-Catelet. The Australians have finished the work of clearing out German defences south of Le-Catelet and Gouy, and have freed Jenocurt just to the south of the enemy troops.

Wide gaps have been torn in the German line between St. Quentin and Le-Catelet by Field Marshal Haig's forces. The British commander reported to-day the breaking of the German line on the Fonsommes-Beaurevoir front. Beaurevoir is two and a half miles east of Le-Catelet, and Fonsommes is nearly five miles northwest of St. Quentin. Sequehart, four and a half miles southeast of Bellicourt, has been captured. Also the hamlet of Preselles just to the north.

South of Cambrai British troops, including Scottish and New Zealanders have occupied Crevecoeur and Rumilly.

THE STATEMENT READS.

After maintaining strong pressure on the enemy throughout the earlier part of the day, in the afternoon the 32nd Division attacked the centre of the defence line of the Germans which runs from Fonsommes to the neighbourhood of Beaurevoir. The attack was successful. The village of Sequehart and the hamlet of Preselles were captured and the Fonsommes-Beaurevoir line breached. North of this point, Joncourt was cleared of the enemy and the Australians completed the capture of the enemy's defences south of Le-Catelet and Gouy. On the sector south of Cambrai a fierce struggle all day was terminated by a successful attack at dusk as a result of which the New Zealanders and Anglo-Scottish troops drove the enemy from Crevecoeur and Rumilly and established themselves on high ground east and north of those villages. Several hundred prisoners were taken by us in the operations.

French and Belgian troops have made fresh progress in the direction of Hooglege and Roulers, and the British have seized Lodeghem on the Roulers-Menin railway. A British detachment, the statement says, has crossed the Lys between Warvicq and Commines.

Have Crossed Line.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—French troops have now passed beyond St. Quentin, northeast, east and southeast of the town, according to a Havas agency. They hold a line running along the Somme from Tronquoy to Rouvroy and then along the St. Quentin-La-Fere Road to the River Oise.

West and north of Rheims the French have made further important gains. The entire Massif of St. Thierry is now in French hands.

The French armies east and west of Rheims continue to advance to-day and the Germans are falling back more hurriedly than at any time since September 26. The French have captured five or six villages, and their advance has reached a depth of from five to six kilometres. The Americans are again hotly engaged. The Germans are moving their artillery away from the Belgian coast in front of the advancing Belgians and British.

Between Cambrai and St. Quentin the German line of defense has been broken. It is uncertain what line the enemy has in the rear.

The British advance threatens the German line of retreat in the Oise Valley, and also from the Massif of St. Gobain. Haig's forces to-day captured Rolleg-Memcapelle and advanced for a distance of three thousand yards southeast of Roulers.

Line Is Broken.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The German line through Beaurevoir and Fonsomme, northeast of St. Quentin has been broken, according to battle front despatches received here this afternoon. This threatens the enemy's line of retreat from the Oise Valley and St. Gobain Massif, if he is forced to withdraw in that region.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—(4:40 p.m.)—Violent fighting is continuing north and south of St. Quentin, battle front despatches reported to-day. French troops have passed above the canal tunnel at LeTronquoy, a mile and a half northeast of St. Quentin.

Bulgarians Are Evacuating Serbia

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Oct. 2. —Serbia is being evacuated by Bulgarian troops, who are returning to Bulgarian territory, according to the Serbian official statement of Tuesday night.

"Serbian troops entered Kumanovo, twelve miles north-east of Uskub, on Monday evening, it was announced in the Serbian War Office statements received here to-day.

"On Monday evening we entered Kumanovo, the Bulgarians returning to Bulgaria," the communique said.

PREMIER ADDRESSED BULGARIAN HOUSE ON PEACE QUESTION.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, Oct. 2.—Premier Malinoff appeared before the Bulgarian Parliament on Monday and read a speech from the throne which was postponed at the first sitting last Friday.

M. Malinoff, according to the German papers, said that the Bulgarian King and Government intend only to fulfill their duty toward the Fatherland in making an honourable peace that was worthy of the sacrifices which had been made. The reason for this step, M. Malinoff stated, was the general situation which confronted the country.

Belgian Army Not Excelled

King Albert Works Constantly With His Troops.

(United Press Service.)

(By Lowell Mellett.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Oct. 2.—An American officer who had an opportunity to study the Belgian army while the Americans held the adjoining line is authority for the statement that its organization is not excelled on the west front.

Following the days when it stood out against great German advances with disastrous results to itself, but most vital results to the Allied armies, it was quickly reorganized and took up its part in holding the line. Through the trying years since it has stood courageously at its disheartening task, in one of the worst fighting fields in the world.

All while it was perfecting its organization for the day when the tide would turn.

The day found it ready. Rain filled shell holes and almost impassable flats have not deterred King Albert who worked constantly with his army and was on hand for attack and inspired all troops who went over the top.

A Change in the Constitution

Canadian Press:

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 2.— Plans are under consideration for the re-organization of both the Imperial and Prussian ministers on the lines of a parliamentary system, according to the Berlin Tageblatt, which quotes Friedrich Von Payer, the Imperial Vice-Chancellor, to this effect. The Vice-Chancellor, the newspaper says, received leaders of all parties yesterday and discussed the contemplated parliamentarization which the Vice-Chancellor declared would extend to Prussian as well as to the Imperial Ministry. He also said that the abrogation of portions of articles nine and twenty-one of the constitution must be taken in hand as soon as possible. The representatives of the Right, also of the Independent Socialists and Poles, the Tageblatt states, have refused to co-operate in formation of a coalition government.

"Interesting Development"

(United Press.)

(Lowell Mellett.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Oct. 2. — The supporting trench behind the Hindenburg defences, known as the Beaurevoir line, has been broken.

The British ninth corps, operating in connection with Australian troops, has captured the Village of Beaurevoir, forming the northern end of the defence, as well as branches (eight miles north-east of St. Quentin and six miles east and south of Le Catelet.)

The French have been enabled to push eastward above St. Quentin cutting the latter off and compelling is evacuation.

The utter demolition of Germany's fixed defences seems to be in sight. The Hindenburg system has become a sieve, soon to be a memory. Open warfare, similar to the days when the Germans first reached France, has been made possible.

LONDON, Oct. 2.— (1.20 p.m.) — With the capture of St. Quentin, an enemy retirement on a far larger scale is being contemplated, according to battle front despatches received here this afternoon.

Military authorities hint that an "interesting development" is about to happen.

This combination map gives a good idea of the manner in which the Allies are smashing the Germans all along a 250 mile front. It shows where British warships bombarded Ostend and Zeebrugge as a preliminary to an important military move in Belgium; 2 is the point at which British and Belgians, under the personal command of King Albert, began the work of salving Belgium. (This section is shown more clearly in the large map at the right, and so rapid has been the advance that all the country as far as Roulers has been redeemed.) The figure 3 shows where Haig's army is battering away at Cambrai, which is now reported to have been set on fire by the Germans, a sure indication that they have abandened this important point. The figures 4 and 5 point to the areas where the French and Americans are sweeping back the enemy on the right of the line; and 6 is the point at which the Germans are making their last stand around Verdun. St. Quentin, which has been captured by the French, is also shown on the map.

CHEESE MADE A NEW RECORD PRICE TO-DAY

Commission's Increase of Two Cents a Pound Pushed Price to 24 9-16 Cents, Representing More Than $2,000 for Factories For To-day's Offering.

SHARP BIDDING

Cheese touched a record high price on the Peterboro Board this morning when Mr. Kerr of Belleville bought the entire offering of 1,271 boxes at 24 9-16 cents. Yesterday the cheese commission's increase in two cents, from 23 to 25 cents a pound, went into effect, and its immediate application brought at least an additional $2,000 to the factories on the local Board.

The bidding opened a 22½ cents and continued all the way to 22 9-16 cents which Mr Gillespie offered for selections. Mr. Kerr bid the same price for the entire Board and secured the first and only call taking the entire 1,271 boxes. The buyers were Messrs. Cook, Kerr, Morton, Gillespie and Flavelle.

In a resolution moved by Mr. Ed. Hawthorne and seconded by Mr. J. J. Breckenbridge the Board expressed its appreciation and thanks to the Cheese Commission for its untiring zeal and attention to every detail that affects the Canadian Dairy interests, and especially for securing the splendid increase of two cents a pound for all cheese sold after October 1. The resolution stated that this advance would prove an encouragement to the dairy industry, and would have the effect of maintaining if not increasing the production of cheese during the rest of the season and next year.

Copies will be sent to Mr James Alexander, chairman of the Commission, Montreal, and to Mr. J. A. Ruddick of the Department at Ottawa.

The factories boarded as follows: Keene, 75; Warminster, 85; Shearer, 75; Selwyn, 80; Villiers, 75; Warsaw, 110; Westwood, 130; Oakdale, 70; Young's Point, 113; Lang, 75; N. Dummer, 60; East Emily, 80; Stoney Lake 30; Norwood, 140; Killarney, 73. Total, 1,271.

The Board adjourned for three weeks.

The winter dairy show at Belleville was placed before the attention of the factory salesmen and it is expected that work of the Peterboro factories will compete for the big prizes that are offered.

The reported commandeering of creamery butter has not yet been detailed to the trade, and the results of this restriction are not yet ascertainable.

CANADIANS IN HEAVY FIGHTING

Losses Were Heavy on a Portion of the Front—Huns Use Screen of Machine Gun Positions.

OFFICERS KILLED

(By J. F. B. Livesay, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES, Sept. 30.—(Delayed.)—This morning, elements of our third and fourth divisions advanced from the line they held on the Douai-Cambrai road in a double concerted movement along the twin spurs towards Ouvillers and Ramilles, the immediate objective being to take and consolidate the line of railway. This was successfully accomplished and the defences appearing weak, a movement was pushed in some thousand yards east, the objective this time being to exploit to the utmost any disposition the enemy might have of falling back in this sector. In these operations the enemy were served by a greater number of machine guns than have yet been concentrated on the Canadian front. Our losses were correspondingly heavy and particularly regrettable were the casualties among the third regimental officers.

Officers Killed.

An Eastern British Columbia battalion had its colonel wounded and its two majors and adjutant killed. A Central Ontario battalion lost all its officers but the commander and one other. The majority of casualties are more or less light wounds from machine guns. The enemy showed the utmost resolution in their counter attacks, but could not dislodge us from the railway on our left. Eight divisions, seven Prussian and one Saxon, are opposed to the Canadian Corps, and though some of them are undoubtedly weak, it makes a very tough proposition, especially when the enemy relies mainly for his defence on the dense screen of machine gun positions which can be only overcome by intense artillery preparation. Where such defence is resolute, infantry advances can only be made at heavy cost. Our casualties since last Friday have been heavy, but in part they are offset by prisoners, not far short of 6,000.

CORPORAL WILLIAM CHARLES.

Mrs. W. J. Charles, 536 Rogers St., has received word that her husband, Corporal William Charles, infantry, has died of wounds received on Aug. 29, gunshot wounds in the thigh and ankle. Corp. Charles was employed in Matthews-Blackwell Company before enlisting. He enlisted in Peterborough with the 59th Battalion on June 29, 1915, and went overseas in March, 1916. He was wounded on April 1, 1918, and has been in the trenches since last December.

Corporal Charles gave up his sergeant's stripes in order to get to France.

DAMASCUS OCCUPIED

General Allenby's Forces Entered the Capital of Syria on Tuesday Morning.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON (Official), Oct. 2.—Damascus, the capital of Syria, was occupied by General Allenby's forces on Tuesday mornig.

Damascus is the Turkish base in Syria and Palestine, and its fall probably means the end of all Turkish resistance to General Allenby in Palestine and Syria. The city which dates back to the dawn of history, is the junction point with railroads leading to the Port of Beirut and Aleppo, 180 miles northeast. Aleppo is the most important Turkish base in this region of Asia Minor, as it is the junction point of railroads from Palestine and Mesopotamia. Damascus is the capital of Syria, and has a population of 150,000. It is one of the Holy cities of Mohammedanism and Arabs regard it as one of the four paradises on earth.

With Damascus in the hands of the British and the French approaching Beirut, the way is practically open to a march on Aleppo, two hundred miles north of Damascus, where the railways from Damascus and Bagdad to Constantinople converge. Aleppo is about 650 miles southeast of Constantinople.

GERMAN LEADERS IN CONFERENCE

A Vague Statement of Policy Enunciated.

(Special to The Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 2.—"At the request of Chancellor Von Hertling we will discuss to-day with the leaders of the parties the best way to obtain the Kaiser's goal — full recognition of the wishes of the German people."—Vice Chancellor Von Payer declared in addressing the Main Committee of the Reichstag Monday, according to advices received here to-day.

"I am confident we will find the solution of this matter, which is of the highest importance for the future of the Fatherland."

Federation Being Formed In the States

New Organization Will Represent Sixty Million People.

(United Press.)

(By Raymond Clapper.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The formation of a Mid-European Federation, to consist of a chain of small States extending from the Baltic to the Black Sea, is under way here, it was learned to-day. The United States semi-officially will sponsor the movement. Headquarters of the committee for a Mid-European Federation are to be opened here this week. Representatives of the people affected will confer tomorrow over innumerable problems presented by them. This Federation is to fight on a reconstructed eastern front and is being organized as a step in the fulfillment of President Wilson's programme of liberation for all oppressed peoples. It is said to block Germany's ambitions in the east during the war and will be incorporated into the World League of Nations in peace times. According to the present programme, Jugo Slav, Czecho Slovak, Italian, Irredentists, Poles, Ukranians, and Roumanians in America, are uniting in the move. They hope to induce their countrymen in Europe to join them. Later, Finns, Lithuanians, Esthonians, Greeks and even the Bulgarian peoples may join in the movement, it was learned.

Sixty Million Affected.

Sixty million people in Europe are affected. Ten million of their countrymen in the United States are being rallied on to start the formation of the Federation. Military participation in the war against Germany is regarded as essential to the success of the scheme. Every nationality joining the Federation must recruit its legion to fight the Central Powers according to plans now in contemplation.

Leaders in the movement include Professors Masaryk of the Czecho-Slovak National committee, Paderewski, the pianist, representing the Poles, Dr. Hinkouich, of the Jugo Slavs National committee, and Prof. Miller O'Brien is chairman of the committee for the Mid-European Federation

MEETING WILL BE HELD IN MONTREAL

Newsprint Situation is Very Acute.

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—Regarding the conference between the newspaper publishers and the members of the Government respecting the price of newsprint recently fixed by Controller Pringle, held in Ottawa yesterday, a resume of what transpired was received last night at the head office of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association in Montreal. Upon receipt of the message it was decided that the matter was so important that every member of the organization was notified by wire and a meeting of the Association was called for Saturday next in this city.

School Children Meet on Thursday

All boys and girls in every grade school of the 3rd and 4th Forms are requested to meet at St. Paul's Church, Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, to plan and detail arrangements for young people's night at the Brock Street Tabernacle on Friday night of this week in connection with the Honeywell Evangelistic Campaign. It is important that a large response is had from the schools so that they may show the vocal strength of Peterborough schools. They are requested to provide banners, school colours, and any pennants they may have to be carried on Friday night.

Hindenburg's Troops are Moving Back to the Belgian Border— Heavy Fighting at Many Points.

FOCH STAGEY

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Allies today are ten miles in the rear of the Hindenburg line between the Cambrai and St. Quentin sectors. Von Hindenburg is retiring along the direct road to Maubeuge, the strong French fortress near the Belgian border, which is the principal supply centre for German front in retreat.

The town of Le Cateau forms the base of which the Germans are now dependent for the maintenance of their communications. It is therefore, Marshal Foch's objective. The fall of Le Cateau will compel Von Hindenburg to move back with little interruption to the Belgian border. It is now more than ever probable that Von Hindenburg has been compelled to adopt his strategies to the abandonment of Northern France by this winter. Cambrai and St. Quentin are no longer landmarks for the troops of the Allies. The push is passing beyond them and Von Hindenburg has begun to turn his attention to continuing his retirement further north in the Lille sector.

Hindenburg Strategy.

It is still part of Hindenburg's strategy to attempt to inveigle Marshal Foche into developing a major offensive. This accounts for the stubbornness with which the Germans are fighting their rearguard actions. They desire to hinder the Allies as much as possible. Marshall Foch is showing no desire to fall into the trap. He is following closely on the heels of the Germans, giving them no rest and threatening to break through. But the Allied commander-in-chief is not sacrificing the lives of his men by too ardent attacks. This is why, a times, the German movement back to Belgium seems comparatively slow.

Movement Resumed.

When Von Hindenburg temporarily pauses and arranges to inflict severe losses at the advancing Allies, Marshal Foch halts his own progress and waits. Thus the Champagne drive of the French army has been slow. The movement west of Rheims at the same time has been recommenced, because Von Hindenburg shows evidences of starting once more his retreat from the Vesle. By these tactics Marshal Foch is accomplishing the universal feat of keeping his own casualties below Von Hindenburg's. Also, the Allies are on the offensive and the Germans are fighting defensively.

The Toronto Markets

Canadian Press:

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—Receipts at the Union Stock Yards this morning totalled 90 cars, containing 924 cattle, 112 calves, 1,650 hogs and 1,745 sheep and lambs. Trade was quite active although cattle were barely steady. Hogs unchanged. Good demand for milkers. Export cattle, $14 to $15; export bulls, $9.50 to $10; butcher's cattle, $10.50 to $11; butcher's cows, $9.50 to $10; butcher's bulls, $7 to $8; feeding steers, $8 to $8.50; sheep, ewes, $13 to $14.50; lambs, $16 to $16.50; hogs, $19.25; calves, $16.50 to $17.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2ND, 1918.

THE ARMY HUTS.

In every city where a campaign for the Knights of Columbus Army Huts has been held the objective has been easily passed. It is to be hoped that there will be a similar report to make in Peterboro when the local drive comes to an end on Saturday night. The cause is a most worthy one, endorsed by th eWar Veterans and supported by the Y.M.C.A. Army Huts mean many comforts for the boys in France. Comforts that our troops are badly in need of and the supplying of which means a betterment in morale that will make the Canadian Tommy an even better soldier than he is at present.

For the collectors who are engaged in the local campaign the Examiner bespeaks a hearty welcome and a liberal response. The movement is for the benefit of the boys over there who are deserving of the best that we over here can furnish.

THE NEED OF THRIFT

Canada's new Victory War Campaign will soon be launched. The citizens of the Dominion should be preparing for the campaign by exercising the greatest possible thrift and by avoiding the spending of money on anything that savours of the luxurious. In reply to the thrift campaign, inaugurated at the request of the Dominion Government many people complain that it is impossible for them to save because their expenses are so high. It is true that the cost of the bare necessities of life has risen to a rather alarming extent but even under such a condition it is easily possible to save money provided that people do not regard as essential things that are merely a matter of style or indulgence. This constant endeavour to emulate those who are in possession of a larger share of the world's goods than ourselves is the chief stumbling block in the path of thrift. "Keeping up with the Jones", plays havoc with the family exchequer and those whose income is limited have little chance of putting anything by each week out of the pay envelope if they endeavour to keep pace with more fortunate acquaintances.

Those who manage to save now and secure a surplus for wise investments have the satisfaction of knowing that the spending power of their money two and three years after the end of the war will be nearly double its present value.

THE PLATOON SYSTEM.

The platoon system for fire departments, which is recommended strongly by Chief Grange of the local brigade and which is ardently desired by all the members of the Peterborough department, is growing in popular favour throughout the continent. It is stated that there are now fifty-seven cities using the double-platoon system and of these forty-two have adopted the method since the beginning of last year. In Cleveland the system has been extended to three platoons so that the men are only on duty for eight hours each day.

Speaking of the advantages of the method the Toronto Mailand Empire says:

Surely no one will say that the firemen's petition for the establishment of the double-platoon system is unreasonable. It cannot be the desire of any right-minded citizen that the men of our fire-fighting force should be treated as the bond-servants of the public or as indentured coolies who are obliged to live in compounds. Our firemen are entitled to as large liberties, to as fair an allowance of leisure, and to as much of the happiness of home life as are other persons in the City's employment. The men are now always at the call of duty. They are practically and technically bound to hold themselves always in readiness to spring to arms, so to speak. This is not because either the public or the City Council wishes it so, nor because anybody believes or pretends it to be necessary. If the men had not been as uncomplaining and passive as they have been faithful they would long ago have taken a stand against such a condition of service. They now ask that instead of being kept all the time on the post of duty, they be permitted to work in twelve-hour shifts. Twelve hours is in all conscience long enough for the working day of any class of public servants. It cannot be in the human nature of any members of the City Council to want to chain the fireman to his post for a longer period of each day. The wishes of the men in this matter should be granted, not simply because of what is due to humanity and fairness, but also in the interest of efficiency. No other branch of the City's service has such vast responsibilities entrusted to it as has the City's fire force. If, when they have to turn out, men employed on that force are not wideawake and in the best of working trim the consequences might be disastrous for the city. The difference between firemen at 100 per cent. efficiency and the same men at 65 per cent. efficiency might at a critical moment mean a difference of scores of millions of dollars to the City and might mean many casualties. Many a railway accident in which people have been killed has been found by the coroner's jury to have been a consequence of failure of duty on the part of a telegraph operator gateman, or station agent owing to extreme weariness caused by being kept too long unrelieved at the post of duty. Citizens ruined by a conflagration might in some cases have good ground of action against the City if it could be shown that the firemen were unable to do their best because of being in a more or less exhausted state when summoned to the fire. Toronto can't afford to keep its firemen on duty 24 hours a day.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The German vice-chancellor has resigned. The rats are beginning to leave the sinking ship.

Serbia will soon be in possession of her territory again. And the Belgians are grabbing off wide sections of their invaded country from the Teutons.

Canadians will have to do without creamery butter for the next six weeks. Over in England the people are getting along on a ration of half a pound of butter or oleo margarine a month, so that Canadian sacrifice is small in comparison.

"Pass the butter" is a dinner table remark that will not be heard so frequently in Canada for the next few weeks.

REPAIRING ZEEBRUGGE CANAL.

Thousands of Labourers Try to Remove Cement-weighted Cruisers.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 30.—Thousands of labourers are now engaged in repair work on the Zeebrugge Canal, according to a frontier correspondent of the Telegraaf, in an attempt to clear the canal of the cement-weighted cruisers which were sunk there by the British.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

An Apt Comparison.

Chicago Daily News: In diplomacy Trotzky was as subtle and secretive and important looking as a dog hiding a bone.

A Kaiser-Proof Peace.

Montreal Herald: The kaiser says all he is concerned about is to get a "strong" peace for Germany. Well, he's get it, and it will be so strong that Germany will never be able to break it again.

Kingston Advice.

Kingston Whig: Peterborough citizens are writing to the newspapers complaining bitterly because the barbers of that burg intend raising the price of hair cuts to fifty cents. If they don't want to pay the price, they can get their hair grow. And think what a distinguished appearance it would give them.

A Mean Suggestion.

Detroit News: The Marine Corps has begun to enlist young women. It's a pretty uniform.

Still It is No Bargain.

Cleveland Plain-Dealer: The war is costing Great Britain $25,000 a minute, and is beginning to be worth the money.

The Advantage of Habit.

Hamilton Spectator: By-and-by, we'll become so accustomed to the duty of giving, that we'll back into the traces at the first tap, just like a fire horse.

Military Critics.

Amherst News: If we happen to be around when the next war is on we think we will qualify as a military critic. We don't know exactly what the qualifications are, but judging from our reading of the past two years a big map, a smattering of history, and a handy facility at guessing, as well as forgetting, would seem to be the most essential items of the professional critic's stock in trade.

Municipal Thrift.

Buffalo Courier: Iceland is not only up to date but somewhat ahead. A consular report says that the city council of Reykjavik is baking municipal bread with the waste heat from the gas works.

Devilish Disease Camouflaged.

Laymen will be inclined to believe in the absence of positive, reliable information to the contrary, that the affliction which is called "Spanish influenza" is the grip under a new name.

The Sword For Workers.

(London Daily Mail.)

"British working men want us to prostrate ourselves before our enemies as the guilty criminals in this war. So be it. The German sword will have to bring enlightenment to the British working classes." Thus ends a review of the British labour situation in the Hamburger Nachrichten. The "German sword" is brandished particularly in the face of Arthur Henderson and his followers, who are warned that they cannot hope to escape its blow even though they advocate a peace which is not to "destroy" Germany.

Information Coming.

"There is no such thing as international law any more," exclaimed the Kaiser to Dr. Davis. Another of the little mistakes of the All-Highest which will be corrected in time.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

The war is costing Great Britain $25,000 a minute, and is beginning to be worth the money.

Serbia and Greece Announce Demands

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Serbia and Greece to-day announced their peace demands on Bulgaria. They are:

1. Reparation for all damages in occupied territory.
2. Abandonment of all plans for the domination of the Balkans.
3. Guarantees that Greeks living on Bulgarian territory shall not be exterminated.

TO FARMERS

The Government has sent out an appeal to the Canadian people to buy at home. Why? Because when we buy abroad more than we sell we have to pay a premium on the excess in addition to the price of the goods. This is known as an adverse rate of exchange. We have bought four hundred million dollars' worth more from the United States than we have sold to it. The rate of exchange is 2 per cent. against us. In other words we are paying 2 per cent. on four hundred millions of dollars, or eight million dollars, which means that if we owe a great deal of money for goods bought we have to pay extra for the privilege. If we keep this up Canada will bleed to death. Please inquire into this matter at once.

THE FALL OF GERMAN PROPAGANDA

(By Captain R. P. P. Rowe.)

The German writers who before the war propounded and defended the theories for which Prussianism is the most compendious term, left little doubt as to what they meant by truth. Truth was what they would have people believe. It should consist of statements based on expediency, and its relation to facts must depend on whether facts supported the belief which it was desirable to inculcate. This is hardly an over-statement of the case even of the theories; it is the necessary inference from the general principles of their philosophy. In practice the theory so stated has been fulfilled to the letter in German propaganda.

The term German propaganda has a wide meaning. The autocracy which governs Germany believes in propaganda as it believes in nothing else except the power of the sword. Every statement it makes, whether officially pronounced or expressed indirectly through inspired channels, is propaganda; that is to say it is desired to produce a desired impression. Throughout the war this has been so noticeable that illustration is unnecessary. But in the earlier part of the war it was also discernible that facts, though carefully selected and adapted, were largely used in support of the views disseminated. This much is at least true of official utterances; and secret service propaganda, though a travesty of the truth, had not yet become an exact and ridiculous reversal of it.

It is a sign of the condition of Germany that these earlier methods have been forsaken. A people that has been trained to shut its eyes to reality cannot be trusted with facts when those facts one and all destroy the expectations that have been raised. The rulers of Germany have been caught in their own trap. They are reduced even in their official utterances to such helplessness that they can only assert that all is "according to plan" and that somehow or other the ambitions once so loudly proclaimed will in the end be achieved. "We can't be beaten," they cry, but the reasoning that underlies the denial is merely that the ruin of their hopes is too bad to be true.

As for their loud ambitions, fortissimo has passed rapidly to pianissimo. With the direct propaganda of officialdom in such straits, it was to be expected that a greater desperation should be manifested in the propaganda disseminated through the vast network of Germanys secret service channels. The expectation is confirmed by the facts. Leaflets of instructions have been discovered which prove that the directors of this lower-class but not less influential propaganda are at their wits' ends. It may even be considered that judgment has deserted them in the hopeless situation in which they find themselves placed. They have distorted truth and can now hardly escape detection; all their efforts have been concentrated in building up beliefs which are being increasingly and relentlessly shattered. In these circumstances their only alternatives are to admit the truth and confess themselves beaten, or to attempt to bluff the situation by lies more extravagant than any that have preceded them. The latter is the course they have adopted.

Here are a few examples of the method adopted in the leaflets already mentioned. They are leaflets of instructions issued to German Propaganda Agents. The first of these (they lie before me as I write) begins with the bald and amazing statement that "England, France and Russia had a share in the Sarajevo crime." It goes on with the equally ludicrous assertion that on four occasions the Central Powers have made peace proposals to their enemies which have been contemptuously refused, and that England would not even "state the conditions under which she would grant Germany the right to exist." This after all the official declarations of the British government outlining the peace without aggrandisement and the freedom of peoples which was the Allies sole aim!

The same leaflet proceeds to accuse the Entente of every crime of which Grmany has been unanswerably convicted. By this astonishing but simple method England is declared guilty of sowing mines indiscriminately and of violating treaties, and France of being the first to adopt the wicked practice of using poison-gas. Such sentences as these find place in the instructions: "There was no treason, no cynical violation of International Law that did not find sympathy, justification and even approving articles, if only it served the interests of the Allies." (The Allies opposed to Germany) "The paper never mentions the diabolical plans for starving German women." "We see women children and invalids condemned to death by starvation. . . . We see neutral journalists, with their ink-stained fingers, assisting in the torturing of German women and children. . . . Every drop of blood shed, all the misery and madness brought about by these Devils testify to their guilt" Is is all as easy as shelling peas. What could be simpler than to accuse a man of every crime which you yourself have committed against him, provided that there were no judge or admission of evidence? But in this case is it worth it? There is evidence, and unanswerable evidence, and judgment will be forthcoming and not long delayed.

The phrases which picture Germany as suffering acutely from the British blockade are interesting in the light of another propaganda leaflet. It is headed "Failure of the Blockade of Germany by England" and attempts to prove that thesis. "The Blockade," it states, "has now been in operation for nearly four years, and nobody doubts but that it has been as great a failure as the Dardanelles expedition." There is much more to the same effect, and the submarine is proudly claimed to have created intense suffering in England. How the agent who receives both leaflets can reconcile the contradiction it is difficult to conceive. But then he is a German and understands German methods.

It would be a waste of time to illustrate further. The German propagandists are beside themselves and desperate. They can think of nothing better than to fling broadcast about the world assertions which are not only lies but a curiously exact reversal of the truth. The amazing petition published by Hindenburg in all German newspapers gives the case away. He exhorts the people of Germany to accept the voice of authority and believe nothing else that they hear. Incidenally this frenzied petition reveals a significant and undoubted fact. The German public is sick of the lies on which it has been fed and clamours for the truth. Clearly the German propagandist has lost his audience. The game is up.

Why Dominion Belting Gives Superior Service

Over fifty years of practical belt making to meet special demands and conditions of Canadian Manufacturers has given us a fund of knowledge and experience that will prove invaluable to every user of belting.

We have determined to a scientific exactness the kind of fabric and rubber that gives the best service in each size of belt—the degree of temperature and the time necessary for proper curing and the correct construction of each belt for a given purpose.

We have developed our Dominion Friction Surface Belt to a point where it gives a pulley grip that has proved, in competitive tests, to be greater than that of any other belt made.

Before shipment is made every Dominion Rubber System Belt is tested in our laboratory for pulley grip—tensile strength—weight and cohesion of the plies.

This "proving up" process is the "safety first" measure that insures each belt meeting the high standard for quality and uniformity set by the Dominion Rubber System.

The superior service rendered by Dominion Rubber System Belting in actual use is only a part of the service rendered by the Dominion Rubber System — we maintain a free advisory department in charge of belting engineers — not merely salesmen but technical experts who know belting and machinery requirements thoroughly.

Through our service branches these experts and the facilities of Canada's largest rubber organization are at your service whether you are, at present, a customer or not.

Report of the South End Red Cross Auxiliary

From Sept. 1st, 1917, to July 31st, 1918, our Society has completed the following articles:

265 pairs of socks.
260 sheets.
121 suits pyjamas.
66 flannel day shirts.
91 hip bandages.
43 many-tailed bandages.
14 pillow slips.
14 personal property bags.
1 wash cloth.

During the year the average attendance of workers has been exceedingly small, considering the fact that this auxiliary was organized with the purpose in view of providing a place where the workers of the six south end churches could unite and combine their efforts to accomplish greater things for the Red Cross Society.

But we are glad to be able to say that those who do attend the meetings are very diligent workers as the above figures will testify. We also have a few good workers who do sewing and knitting in their homes, and we are thankful to them for their support.

The Society is very grateful for several liberal donations from friends and particularly wishes to thank the Volunteer Bible Class of Knox Church for their generous donations throughout the year, amounting in all to $91.31; also the Willing Workers' Bible Class of St. James, for their donation of $10. The Society buys all the yarn used from its own funds; also the buttons, thread, tape, etc., and receives from the main rooms flannelette, towelling, flannel and sheeting.

Respectfully submitted.

German Soldiers Refuse to Fight

Two Hun Officers Were Shot to Death.

(Special to The Examiner.)

ROTTERDAM, Oct. 2.—Two German officers were killed by 100 mutinous soldiers on the Dutch-German frontier a few days ago. The troops refused to go to the front. Officers ordered them fired upon. Immediately the mutineers shot two of the officers dead.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 2.—Four German torpedo boats, whose crews mutinied and attempted to take them out of the harbour during August were pursued by cruisers and sunk, according to information received here to-day. The occurrence is said to have been confirmed by the washing ashore of 160 bodies.

Thirty-six German sailors were executed at Kiel recently as a result of a mutiny against submarine duty, it is reported.

Several mutinies occurred among German and Austrian soldiers in the Ukraine during September. At Khorhoff 6,000 Austrians are reported to have refused to go to the west front.

Catarrh Of The Stomach Is Dangerous

"Thousands Have It and don't Know It," Says Physician. Frequently Mistaken for Indigestion — How To Recognize and Treat.

Thousands of people suffer more or less constantly from furred, coated tongue, bad breath, sour burning stomach, frequent vomiting, rumbling in stomach, bitter eructations, gas, wind, and stomach acidity and call it indigestion when in reality their trouble is due to gastric catarrh of the stomach," writes a New York physician.

Catarrh of the stomach is dangerous because the mucous membrane lining of the stomach is thickened and a coating of phlegm covers the suurface so that the digestive fluids cannot mix with the food and digest them. This condition soon breeds deadly disease in the fermented, unassimilated food. The blood is poluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are apt to form and frequently an ulcer is the first sign of a deadly cancer.

In catarrh of the stomach a good and safe treatment is to take before meals a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of hot water as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water washes the mucus from the stomach walls and draws the blood to the stomach while the bisurated magnesia is an excellent solvent for mucus and increases the efficiency of the hot water treatment. Moreover the Bisurated Magnesia will serve as a powerful but harmless antiacid which will neutralize any excess hydrochloric acid that may be in your stomach and sweeten its food contents. Easy, natural digestion without distress of any kind should soon follow. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, pleasant and easy to take and can be obtained from any local druggist. Don't confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia, milks, citrates, etc, but get it in the pure bisurated form (powder or tablets), especially prepared for this purpose.

When you take out a life insurance policy you are making the biggest bank deposit you ever made at one time. Did you ever put $5,000 through the receiving teller's window and say, "Credit that to my account?" Well, when you pay the first premium on a life insurance policy for that amount, you are really paying the first instalment on your new bank account. You have actually provided that entire sum—against the day that is coming to you some time—the one on which you will never get an extension of time. That is banking in a new sense and banking with common sense and foresight.

Why not arrange for this Deposit with the Sun Life Assurance Company, the largest Canadian Life Assurance Company—Assets exceed $89,000,000.

HUN ORDER TELLS OF ARMY MUTINY

By LOWELL MELLETT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, Sept. 12. (By Mail.)—In a series of interesting documents and army orders, which have fallen into the hands of the French army, the German High Command itself furnishes the most eloquent reply to the claims of Bethmann-Hollweg and Hertling that Alsace-Lorraine is German to the core.

These documents prove beyond a doubt that the Germans are forcing the people of Alsace-Lorraine to fight against their kindred, and that Alsace-Lorraine at heart is French.

One of the captured army orders reveals the fact that over 10,000 Alsacians mutinied at the Bevedloo depot in Belgium during May. According to the order, the mutiny was "suppressed pitilessly," and all soldiers were ordered to assist in rounding up the mutineers who were trying to make their way towards Holland. In other documents, the crown prince orders that all soldiers from Alsace-Lorraine must never be employed in critical situations and are to be used in the front lines only when in company with trusted troops.

During the preparation for the great Marne offensive, the Germans became alarmed by the number of desertions of Alsacians. Gen. Buchholz issued an order that "under no pretext must they be utilized in the first line, during the present operations," and recommends that "severe measures" be taken in cases of "disloyalty."

TEXT OF HUN ORDER

The order is dated July 4, 1918, and reads as follows:

"Xth Army, No. 1182-2 42nd Division IA 162 Secret. MYT55. The Crown Prince's Group of Armies has reported that because of the number desertion of Alsacian-Lorrainians recently, they must under no pretext be utilized in the first lines during the present operations. Consequently divisions are ordered that all soldiers from Alsace-Lorraine or others whose origin does not give sufficient guarantee of their loyalty, should be, until further notice, kept out of the zone of combat. Each regiment is responsible for the loyalty of Alsace-Lorrainians remaining in the first line."

Buchholtz orders that the men removed from the lines be sent back for agricultural work and guard duty, under reliable guards. He asks each battalion to report within four days the number of Alsace-Lorrainians in each regiment, the number who can be trusted in the front lines, and an opinion of the service of these men.

Captured papers throw considerable light on the man-power situation of the German high command. They prove that the major number of divisions brought from the Russian front in the spring were second-class divisions and divisions composed of subject peoples, whose loyalty to Germany was open to doubt.

RECOMMENDS "IRON HAND."

In the confidential order issued to all officers in the early spring, Gen. Von Bohn explained that many of the divisions being brought from the east front for reinforcements were composed of a large proportion of men from Alsace-Lorraine, and that past "unhappy" experiences proved that they "were prone to infidelity desertion and treason." General Von Bohn suggests that such tendencies must "be treated with an iron hand," but that Germany could not afford to diminish her chances "by one hair's-breadth" by dispensing with the use of these men. In his order "II A, No. 84, Pers." and dated general headquarters, March 2, Von Bohn says:

"No longer must the excuse be entertained that because of the presence of parents or relatives on the French side, soldiers from Alsace-Lorraine can be withheld from the fighting lines. It must be clearly explained to them that if their parents and relatives were as scrupulous as themselves they would run no risk However, the contrary has been proved long ago. The soldiers of Alsace-Lorraine must fight against the French conquest, the same as though Alsace-Lorraine were a part of the German Empire. We can no longer keep them away from the Western front."

The order revealing the big mutiny at Beverloo reads as follows: "244 BI Nr 2044-I.-IIb Secret. In the month of May at the depot at Beverloo, there was a mutiny in which 10,000 soldiers of Alsace-Lorraine participated. The repression was pitiless. The Alsace-Lorrainians have qualified as miserable traitors to the Fatherland and have used the French language and sang French songs. Post a copy of this order in every barrack room. Dated, 13th May. Signed, Lieutenant-General Woide."

THE CITY OF LILLE BEING EVACUATED

Stronghold is Menaced by the British Advance.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The City of Lille is being evacuated by its civilian population, according to advices received to-day.

Lille, one of the chief cities in Northern France, and one of the German strongholds, is seriously menaced by the British advance at Cambrai and the Belgians' gain on the Flanders front, which are putting it in a pocket.

Plans for the evacuation of Belgium if necessary have already been prepared.

HOME TOWN FOLK ARE PROUD OF HEROIC BOY

(By United Press.)

London, Sept. 13. (By Mail.)—Sergt. J. Collins, of a Welsh regiment comes from the right kind of an old home town.

When he got home to Merthyr the mayor's wife presented him with a wad of money, just less than $1,500 in our coin, on behalf of the city council. His old employers gave him $500 more and Lord Rhondda gave another $500.

Not content with that, the people who attended the ceremony held an impromptu subscription in which they raised another $1,250, making a total gift of $3,750 for Merthyr's hero.

Former Peterboro Resident Dead

MRS. GEORGE N. OSBORNE PASSED AWAY IN THE STATES.

News has been received in this city of the death of Mrs. George N. Osborne, in Jewett City, Conn. Mrs. Osborne resided in Peterboro for a number of years and made a host of friends, who will be shocked to learn of her death. She leaves her husband to mourn her death. The latter was formerly connected with the Brinton Carpet Company of this city.

Uniform Checks; Interim Numbers

Two Important Innovations to Lighten the Routine in Canadian Banks.

the "cage," or in practically any other department of the bank has undoubtedly, if human, spent a lot of time in expressing his opinion—inwardly let us hope—of a system, whereby checks and other forms of banking paper are submitted in a crazy variety of shapes and forms for no other seeming reason than that his time and patience may be consumed in handling them. However there is now a brighter day in sight. The indications are that it will be only a short time until bank paper of the Canadian chartered institutions will be uniform in size and in other general features, so that the teller or other member of the staff in having to arrange and handle a bundle of checks will find that all are of the same shape with the name of the bank conforming a general style as well as date dines, numbers, denominations, etc. The matter has been under consideration by the committe of inter-bank routine under the Canadian Banker's Association and a recommendation along the lines indicated has been drawn up and passed along to the association. Suffering telle, et al, in the banking world may therefore look forward to the relief from some of the worries of detail

INTERIM REFERENCE NUMBERS

Another innovation with regard to bank paper in Canada which may shortly be looked for will be the general use of interim reference numbers. By this means much routine work of members of the bank staffs will be appreciately lightened. This system, which has also been favored by the inter-bank committee, involves the nes of numbers to designate banks and cities. For instance, the Bank of Montreal at Montreal would be bank number 1 and Montreal city number 1 and for use in checking purposes within the banks, a check drawn upon the Bank of Montreal at Montreal would be designated, 1-1, and a check drawn upon the same bank at Toronto 1-2, etc., with a different key to denote each bank and its location. Such a system, when adopted, will greatly simplify routine in several banking departments.

YOU CAN'T FIND ANY DANDRUFF, AND HAIR STOPS COMING OUT

SAVE YOUR HAIR! MAKE IT THICK, WAVY, GLOSSY AND BEAUTIFUL AT ONCE.

Try as you will after an application of Danderine, you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair, and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment. A small trial bottle will double the beauty of your hair.

GOOD READING FOR TOMMIE

"We Need Not Expect Revival in Peterboro Unless it Begins in the House of the Lord"

Last Night's Meeting in Brock Street Tabernacle Was of Considerable Interest to Business Men—Professing Christians Are Numerous —"People Want Power," Said Dr. Honeywell.

NOTES ON THE REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

"Belonging to a church does not make a Christian.

"I have learned by experience that it is an utter waste of time to try to preach to sinners until the church is aroused and gets right with God.

"It has been my privilege to see 7,000 souls turned to God within eight months through the old-fashioned preaching of the old-fashioned Gospel in Holy Ghost power.

"Preach your sermons if you want to upon higher criticism, sociology, astronomy, and the present topics of the day, but I am not ashamed of this old Gospel, for it "is still the power of God unto salvation."

"The fault for the lack of conversions to-day is not with God, it is not with Jesus Christ; it is not with the Holy Spirit. Wherein does the difficulty lie? You are to blame; I am to blame."

"You need not expect to see a revival in Peterboro until the Christian people of Peterboro get right with God," continued to be Dr. Honeywell's point of emphasis in his sermon last evening in the Brock St. Tabernacle. So far Dr. Honeywell is not paying any attention to the unconverted people of the city but is addressing his messages entirely to the Christian people of the city.

PROFESSING CHRISTIANS.

In pressing home the point that Christian people will live within their means and pay their debts, Dr. Honeywell stated that if Peterboro were like other cities it is probable that the merchants of Peterboro have on their books thousands of dollars in debts owned by professing Christians which have stood for years and which they have probably given up all hope of collecting. Merchants, like everybody else, despise hypocrites, and such Christians dishonor their profession and help to make the church powerless. He told of a merchant in a western city who showed him debts on his books of $33,000, much of it owed him by professing Christians, many of whom were in the habit of paying cash for goods purchased from the mail order firms. This merchant was paying 10 per cent. on the money he had to borrow from the bank, and said that if the people who owed him money would pay their debts he would be able to compete with the mail order houses.

TEXT OF SERMON.

Basing his remarks on the account in Acts of the miraculous conversion of St. Paul, who instantly yielded himself to the Lord, and had his life transformed thereby, Dr. Honeywell proceeded to show the need for a Christian living right with God and his fellow man. Peter, he said, preached one sermon and three thousand souls were converted. Now it sometimes takes three thousand sermons to produce one Christian. The fault with this condition, Dr. Honeywell showed, does not rest with God, but lies in the fact that many who are preaching the word are not filled with the Holy Ghost.

TABERNACLE ANNOUNCEMENTS.

By to-night all the little finishing touches required to make everything run smoothly and in the best of order in connection with the union Evangelistic Campaign in the Brock Street Tabernacle will be, it is hoped, complete. Last night the building was much warmer than on Monday night, all six stoves having been set going early in the afternoon. By to-night a covering of canvas or cotton will be stretched across the roof of the building below the iron beams. A number of men have been at work on this undertaking throughout the day. Its purpose is to keep the sound of the speaker's voice down in the main part of the hall so as to insure his being properly heard, and also to keep the heat where it will do the most good.

To-night's message will deal with "The Home and School Problem." It is one that should be appreciated by parents and teachers and by the children as well. Parents are invited to bring out their children this evening.

Arrangements are being made for the big Booster Choir of Children, which will sing on Saturday evening. This afternoon at 4.15 the children from 9 to 15 years of age in the Central and Queen Alexandra schools are to meet Mr. and Mrs. Dixon in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church to practice for the Booster Choir. Friday night Dr. Honeywell will speak especially for the benefit of the older boys and girls of the public schools and for the pupils of the Collegiate Institute.

The singing of the choir last evening was a marked improvement. There was a rehearsal after the meeting when some new hymns were practiced. Before long the choir promises to become a big factor in the campaign.

Music & Drama

"THE GARDEN OF ALLAH."

The big Liebler spectacular play, "The Garden of Allah," based on Robert Hitchins' famous novel of the same name, was the attraction at the Grand last night and pleased a fair-sized audience. The story of the drama is a familiar one to all fiction readers and to film play patrons as well, as it has been produced on the screen, but this was the first opportunity the people of Peterborough have had of seeing the stage version.

Naturally as this is the seventh annual tour of "The Garden of Allah," it is not produced on the same lavish scale as in the original production, but it is still a very spectacular presentation nevertheless, with elaborate and sumptuous scenic effects and with much local colour provided by a troupe of Arabs and a number of camels, ponies and [illegible] of the settings were most lavish.

The acting of a splendid caste, assisted largely in the success of the evening, Mr. Paul Gilmore, in the principal part of Boris, did admirable work in a most exacting role, despite the fact that he was under a most severe handicap, suffering from illness that necessitated the attention of a local physician during the progress of the play. Miss Edna Archer Crawford invested the chief feminine role of Domini with a realism and grace that made her work most pleasing. Mr. Walter Edwin was natural and convincing as Count Anteoni and Mr. Wm. J. Hasson was admirably cast as Father Roubier. The other parts were in good hands.

SEATS ARE NOW SELLING FOR "EVERYWOMAN"

Seats are now selling for "Everywoman" which will be at the Grand Opera House on Friday next, with special matinee at 2.30.

This play has evidently attracted widespread attention, judging from the lines at the box-office, and splendid audiences for both performances are assured.

"Everywoman," heralded as a kaleidoscope of bewildering stage picture, lavish costumes, and sumptuous scenery, is officially designated a dramatic spectacle. This pharseology is adopted by the producer to banish the lurking notion of its having an unpleasant connection with morals and preachments. As a matter of fact the Walter Browne drama is a highly up-to-date musical show, gorgeous in those ravishments which appeal to eye and ear. The action of the play is accompanied by a score of illustrative music, and interpreted by an orchestra of almost grand opera size.

"Everywoman" is strikingly presented in this superb production presented under the direction of Henry W. Savage. Here is a theatrical and musical presentation designed to please and impress all classes of society; the blase theatregoer, the tired business man, the young girl, whose amusement food must be palatable and wholesome, the man of much learning and the man who is illiterate; the person in constant pursuit of light and colour and the staid individual who seeks enlightenment or has reason to recall the ways of the world. The characters are for good or evil and each one is properly portrayed, so there is no mysticism and no doubt as to the intent of each.

In this splendid play there is a definite story. It is the quest of a young woman for love, and in panoramic form is unrolled the adventures of this fair maid—her encounter with Greed, Riches and Passion and the other happenings which befall her as she wends her tortuous, thorny path only to return to her once happy but deserted home to seek consolation at the shrine of Truth.

Not the least wonderful of this remarkable play is its superb scenic investiture, which added to a company of greater numerical strength and talent than has ever been seen here, with a special orchestra to interpret its music, invites an audience that should pack the playhouse at every performance.

Entrants in the Plowing Contest

Plowing Will Be Done On Property of Entrants.

Ten entries for the men's class, and three for the boys' have been made for the Peterborough Ploughmen's Association ploughing competition which will be held before October 20. Methodists Are Meeting in Toronto

General Conference Will Last Three Weeks.

Canadian Press:

TORONTO, Oct. 2. — Methodist delegates, both ministers and laymen, from all over Canada, gathered here to-day for the opening of the quadrennial session of the Methodist General Conference, which will last nearly three weeks. In his address, Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, general superintendent, touched on the big part Canadian Methodists had accomplished in the war. Out of the Methodist clergy alone five hundred ministers and probationers had been enrolled. Dr. Chown dwelt on the importance of the coming inter-denominational conference on "Faith and Order." The reports of all departments of the Church, he said, showed progress financially and otherwise.

Good Goods Cheap at P. Black's Sale

Shoppers will have received a copy of the handbills announcing a ten days sale at P. Black's, corner of King and George streets. The sale commenced to-day, and, judging by the list of price reductions on new fall goods, Black's store should be a busy spot for the next ten days. Mr. Black states that this sale will be different from many other sales, because it is a sale of good fall goods cheap, not a sale of cheap goods.

ALMOST ON VERGE OF QUITTING JOB

Takes Tanlac and Now Cares For Garden After Working All Day.

"My condition was so awful that if I hadn't got hold of Tanlac when I did I would have had to quit working and give up my job," said John Burns, a motorman with the Toronto Street Railway Company and living at 2038 Dundas street, west, the other day.

"For three or four years," he continued, "my system was all run down from stomach trouble and a disordered liver. I had no appetite and my food would sour and give me indigestion. My stomach and side would hurt something awful and I was so bilious that my skin and eyeball were as yellow as gold. I was badly constipated, my kidneys worried me all the time and I had such an awful pain across the small of my back that I couldn't bend over or lift anything. It hurt me to turn over in bed and my back would get so stiff that I couldn't raise myself when I tried to get up in the morning. I felt so miserable on coming home from work at night that I just couldn't do a thing about the house.

"I have taken four bottles of Tanlac now and have a splendid appetite. Nothing I eat hurts me, that constipation has been removed and the yellow colour has gone from my skin and eyes. My liver and kidneys are in fine condition, that pain in my back and sides is all gone and it does not hurt me to bend over or lift anything now. I am gaining weight and am so much stronger and better in every way that I can now do a bit in my garden every day when I come home from my regular work.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Bulgarian Army Being Disbanded

Arms and Ammunition Is Being Handed Over to the Allies.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, Oct. 2.—Bulgaria has already started the fulfilment of conditions under which she was granted an armistice. It was learned from authoritative sources to-day that the Bulgarian army is being disbanded. Arms and ammunition are being handed over to the Allies. Entente troops are taking charge of the railways.

Splendid Response by the Citizens to the Hut Fund Teams

First Day's Canvass Was Very Encouraging and Strengthens Hope That the Local Objective Will be Reached—Sympathy and Generous Support the Unanimous Report.

The first day's canvass for the Catholic Army Huts was highly encouraging and gratifying to the committee when they compared their reports at headquarters in the Barrie Building last night. The citizens had been uniformly friendly and sympathetic, and the response on the opening day strengthened the hope that the objective of $6,000 will be attained, and perhaps surpassed. Practically all the teams were at work yesterday and especially last night, and their enthusiasm found fresh inspiration in the cordial greeting that had been extended to them on all sides.

The committee intends to present a statement to-morrow of the results of the first two days' work, and will continue to bulletin their successes as the campaign proceeds.

Team workers are reminded that they should report every night at headquarters in order that a close contact may be kept with the progress of each group.

War Veterans' Approval.

Dr. F. P. McNulty, chairman of the Fund Committee, has received the following letter from Mr. Sidney Whatley, Secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association:

Dear Sir:—

On behalf of the Peterborough Branch Great War Veterans' Association, I have much pleasure in endorsing the Knights of Columbus Army Hut Campaign.

Knowing from their own experience just how much comfort and cheer Canadian Soldiers at the Front will attain from the Huts, the members of our Association realize that our "Comrades Over There" will fight the better because these centres of entertainment and brightness have been provided. There is a welcome for every soldier at these Huts as they are conducted like the Canadian Army itself, and our own Association — on non-sectarian lines.

The campaign should be supported by every citizen of Peterborough who wants to do something for our Comrades in France, and other theatres of war.

Wishing you every success in your campaign, I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

SIDNEY WHATLEY,
Secretary P.B.—G.W.V.A.

D'ESPEREY PRAISES GREEK SOLDIERS

ALLIED COMMANDER SAYS THEY COVERED THEMSELVES WITH GLORY.

Athens, October 1. — General Franchet d'Esperey, the Commander of the allied forces in the Macedonian campaign, has sent the following telegram to the Greek government:

"At the moment of the success of the offensive operations on the Macedonian front I wish to express to you my entire satisfaction with the brilliant conduct which has marked the Greek participation in the battle. I wish particularly to mention a division which attacked west of Lake Doiran over ground which was very difficult. It carried itself with new glory and carried positions which were extremely formidable and very sharply defended, capturing a large number of prisoners.

"Certain of the Greek units have added materially to the magnitude of the victory. One of these, the recently arrived 35th regiment of Infantry, united with the French in capturing the important massif of Preslap and the village of Zborsko. All of the Greek troops engaged have rivalled in endurance and spirit, and all have won new laurels."

UNKNOWN OFFICER WRITES HIS LOVE

(By United Press.)

London, Sept. 14. (By Mail.)—Who is the British artillery officer who fell in love with an American Red Cross girl and wrote the story of his love so well that it is considered literature by an english publisher?

John Lane, the publisher wants to know. He is advertising to notify the unknown artilleryman that the manuscript will be published unless some objection is made soon.

A British airman found in a deserted dugout which had been a gun position, a roll of papers, on which are written the things the writer dared not say o he woman he loved, for he did not know whether she returned his love. He had met the American girl while on leave in Paris.

There is the chance, of course, that the author may have ben killed and will not be able to come forward to claim his work. Lane feels, in that case, the dead officer's wish would surely be to have his message of love conveyed to her by whom it was inspired.

On some pages, the yellow mud is disfiguring. On such a page the unknown has shown how he half decided to tell his loved one—over the telephone!—that he adored her.

"I have only o unhook the receiver," says he, "and to telephone to you. If I did what would you say? A queer way to receive a proposal! At just midnight to be roused from sleep to hear o spectral voice saying, 'Is that Miss ——? 'This is he man who has been with you all the evening, almot every evening, in fact, of his leave in Paris. I called you up to ask if you would marry me!"

On another page, on which part of the writing is nearly obliterated by mud, he calls her his own Joan of Arc," with your pale rose beauty and your Croix Rouge Americaine—you both answered the call of duty. Your spirit is the same, though centuries divide you."

Hardly Excusable Even in a Child

IF a child were to enter one of our aeroplane factories and interrupt a workman with a request to have a kite made—the workman would smile indulgently—and proceed with his aeroplane.

You yourself would condemn the man if he stopped his vital war work to build a toy.

Condemn yourself, then, if you employ labor and material to make such goods as cater only to your self indulgence.

Every time you buy a thing you do not need, you interfere with Canada's war work.

Every dollar you spend on goods not strictly necessary, is a dollar—not merely wasted—but used to employ labor on things that have nothing to do with our efforts to win the fight for freedom.

Too many of us, in Canada, are flying the "luxury kite." Too much of the time of Canadian workmen is being purchased by us to make the things that are for show and pleasure. Too great a quantity of material that our soldiers could effectively use against the foe, goes into the making of superfluous things for us, whom they are so valiantly defending.

Stop the reckless spending. Stop acting like children. This war we are fighting calls for men and the brains of men. If you cannot fight—at least do not interrupt the war-work by buying the things you merely want and do not need.

The money you have been spending wastefully—with no result but to divert labor from war-essentials—will make a worth-while sum.

Use that money to build up a fund, that you can lend your Country, when your Country calls.

DOES IT PAY TO ADVERTISE?

Geo. Sweet, former advertising manager, and a publicity expert, who plays the part of Ambrose Peal, advertising manager for the firm of Martin & Company in Cohan and Harris' success, "It Pays to Advertise," which will be at The Grand next Monday, has this to say to business men:

Does it pay to advertise? Knowing advertising business even better than I know the theatrical profession, I say yes, absolutely yes! To the modern business man, advertising—judicious advertising—means success, regardless of how large or small his business may be, there is always room for expansion, and expansion in business comes only through advertising. I name a few of the many, who at one time started business on a small scale and whose wares to-day are known throughout the civilized world, their sales amounting to millions of dollars annually. What did it? Advertising! To you the amount spent on advertising may seem enormous, but it represents only a small part of the profits. The Ivory Soap people in magazines and newspapers alone invested $450,000 in 1915; Ansco $220,000; Eastman Kodak, $400,000; Welchs Grape Juice, $200,000; Uneeda Biscuit, $150,000; Spearmint Gum, $150,000; Colgate's Dental Cream, $250,000; Campbell's Soups, $168,000; Postum, $125,000; etc. These concerns are listed among the country's big business houses because they have developed their opportunities through advertising. Would the above amount of money be invested annually if the results were not satisfactory? Think it over. The average person, not particularly interested in advertising, sees our play. He has his laughs and then comes the realization that he has just learned why he buys certain brands of wearing apparel, or why it is that he insists upon certain trademarks in his purchase. In fact, while he has been spending more than two hours in laughter, he has been learning also that much fame has been brought into the world merely because "It Pays to Advertise."

FUNERAL ON SATURDAY LAST.

The remains of Mrs. Ann Cunningham were laid to rest in Little Lake cemetery on Saturday, September 28th. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. A. J. Thomas of George street Methodist church.

The deceased was born in County Down, Ireland, in the year 1840, coming to Canada at the age of eight years and spent her girlhood days in Belleville. In the year 1861 she married the late John M. Cunningham, of Norton, Renfrew county, who predeceased her ten years ago last August 5th. For the past 32 years she has been a resident of Peterborough, where her kindly disposition, her continual thought for the welfare of others has won for her a wide circle of friends, who will deeply mourn her loss.

She leaves two brothers and one sister, Thomas Dunnigan of Chicago, William Dunnigan of Almeda, Sask., and Mrs. Ellen Ross of this city. Six sons and two daughters also survive. Joseph F. of Toronto, Thomas E. of Orillia, Robert A. of Hamilton, William H., John J. and Bolton of this city. Mrs. T. Harrison and Mrs. E. Walton also of this city. The pall-bearers were her six sons.

Semi-ready Clothes

And not a reason why you shouldn't

The cloth is bought direct from the woollen mills that weave it.

Twenty years of continuous service and experience behind each garment.

Styles are designed that meet true artistic lines.

Inside tailoring that is as honest and open as daylight; good substantial linings do not hide lack of workmanship.

Every detail of the work is examined and every known defect is corrected at once.

Semi-ready service does not stop with your cash paid; every sale has the purpose behind it of your continued patronage.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

JIMMY WILDE GREATEST OF LITTLE FIGHTING MEN

Welshman Would Like to Beat Herman and Kilbane.

"I have no hesitation in stating that Jimmy Wilde, British fly-weight, bantamweight and featherweight champion, is one of the mightiest fighting men that ever climbed through the ropes," writes Ed. Shave, former sporting editor of the St. Paul News, but who is now in England with the Y.M.C.A.

"I saw him spot Joe Conn, British champion featherweight, 23 pounds in weight, inches in height and reach and then win in a walk in 12 rounds.

Although Conn is a tall, fairly clever, good, cool defensive boxer, and counters well, he was outclassed by the terrible Welshman. Of the 12 three-minute rounds the fight went, Conn did not have the advantage in a single round and was on the defense nearly all the way.

Every time Conn opened up and tried to fight with Wilde the diminutive battler would drive his larger adversary to cover.

Wilde has everything. He is a marvel and a freak. He might be compared to the late Fitzsimmons. He carries terrific punching power, hits with either hand and is the fastest hitter I ever saw in a ring.

Dame Nature did a unique thing with Wilde, Although she gave him a diminutive statue, 5ft. 3 in. tall, weight 105 pounds, she made up for the shortage in height and lack of weight by giving him the strength of a giant and lightning-like speed.

DOWN 12 TIMES.

In the Conn bout he sent Conn to the canvas 12 times, and the strength of his punches were such that Conn was black and blue, puffed and cut when the bout was finally stopped.

After the bout I was talking to the marvelous Welshman. I asked Wilde to show me how he landed his first knockout punch, a right hand to Conn's jaw, said Wilde. I did so at the same time throwing up my right to block a right cross, but I was far too slow. Although I stand just 6 feet little Wilde snapped his right to my jaw and I certainly saw stars, although he did not try to hit hard.

The sports of the United Kingdom are wild over the fighting Welshman and one can find many backers here that he will win three world's titles after the war.

If Wilde meets Champion Pete Herman, I am of the impression that Wilde will win. In my estimation, and I have seen all of our best fighters and managed many, Wilde will beat anything in the United States up to 120 pounds.

He is eager to visit the States and will come over as soon as he can after the war is over. He is more than anxious to meet the American champion Herman, win the world's title in the bantam class and then get a chance at Kilbane.

At present Wilde is considered the world's flyweight champion. He wants to try and add the world's bantam and featherweight titles to this, a feat never before accomplished in the ring game.

He may be able to do it.

Cheese Made A New Record

The Commissioner's increase in the price of cheese will further strengthen the butter market, and will surely keep the cheese factories operating as long as possible. This material encouragement is further evidence of the need of cheese for overseas use, and indicates the importance of the farmers' work in supplying the staple goods that are required by the soldiers and civilians alike.

Salesmen report that pasturage is excellent, but the flow of milk is not so heavy as it should be, due largely to the depleted herds.

Cheshire Cutlets.

Six ounces cold mutton or beef, two ounces bread crumbs, one ounce butter, one ounce flour, one-fourth pint of stock or water, one tablespoonful Worcestershire sauce. Cut the skin and gristle from the meat, and pass it through a mincing machine. Put it into a basin, and mix the bread crumbs with it, seasoning with pepper and salt. Now make a little sauce by melting the butter, stir in the flour smoothly, add the gravy or water, and stir until it boils. Then put in the meat and bread crumbs, mix well together, and add the sauce. Season to taste and turn onto a plate until cold. Form into even-sized cutlets, dip in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs and fry in boiling fat.

Some Coal Men Have Neglected to File Reports

Commission Sending Sharp Order For Delinquents Who Have Created Obstacle to Its Progress.

By volunteering to assume the responsibility of keeping the records of the Fuel Commission, City Clerk Armstrong has relieved the Council of a problem that was beginning to worry Mayor Duncan. Mr. Armstrong has also voluntarily accepted the position of secretary of the Commission. This in itself will make new demands on his time that is already crowded, but it is a light task compared with the work of keeping the record of all the coal deliveries made by the local dealers. It means that the City Clerk and his staff have undertaken a task that will greatly increase their work. This voluntary acceptance of increased duties was made with the object of economizing as much as possible in the operation of the Fuel Commission. Mayor Duncan stated to-day that the only condition Mr. Armstrong had made was that if he found that his department was unable to carry on the work that he would relinquish it, and His Worship did not reserve his appreciation of this willingness to assist the city in keeping down the expenses of administration.

Must Write to Secretary.

The Commission decided last night to notify the public that communication should not be delivered to them personally, but should be sent to the Secretary at 127 Simcoe street.

The Normal School will be asked to make an effort to substitute twenty-five per cent. soft coal.

The Secretary was instructed to advise the retail dealers that their reports of deliveries must be made daily. It is understood that the records are in good condition, but several of the dealers have been inclined to delay their reports. They will be asked to bring their reports up-to-date at once, and to make daily reports in future.

Obstacle to Commission.

One dealer has yet to make his first report, in fact has ignored the Government's order, and another dealer has not been heard from since May. Citizens will understand that before their applications for fuel shall be considered, the Commission must have the complete statement of all the coal delivered in the city in order that the citizens' reports of empty bins may be verified. Hence, the delinquent dealers are receiving a short notice that they must file their reports of deliveries at once.

The Commission decided not to interfere for the present with the municipal fuel reserve of 450 tons which Alderman Dobbin reported.

Newly Discovered Uses for Glue

Household Economies Made Possible by Several New Uses.

NEW YORK.—With our Government demanding all possible conservation in American households, several newly discovered uses for glue present to the thoughtful woman opportunities to prolong the life of household articles.

As every family has, or should have, on hand, a bottle or tube of good glue, the following practical suggestions can be acted upon without delay or expense.

To Put New Life in an Old Broom.

A teaspoonful of glue mixed in a basin of hot water poured over a broom and then allowed to thoroughly dry will greatly stiffen it, and prolong its usefulness and life.

When Shoes Become Barked or Scarred.

Very often a small piece of the leather is lifted or loosened. Don't cut it off and try to cover the place with blacking. Flatten the piece in place with a little glue and allow to dry. Then apply blacking and the surface will be as good as new.

For Tears or Rents in Silk.

Another piece of silk or fabric of the same colour placed under the tear with a thin coating of glue will bring the edges more firmly together than can be done with a needle. Allow to dry thoroughly and rent will be almost invisible.

A Splendid Way to Keep Rubbers from Slipping.

Rubber overshoes often become so loose that they slip off at the heels, especially in the winter and spring, when the ground is muddy or slushy. This annoying trouble can be entirely eliminated by gluing a felt band around the inside top of the rubber.

To Protect Furs and Woollens from Moths.

It is commonly known that moths very much dislike the odor of ink in old newspapers. Several thicknesses of old newspapers firmly glued together may be made into the form of a bag and the garment placed inside. After the ends and all joints are firmly sealed with glue, the bag is absolutely moth and dust proof, and your protection from moths has cost practically nothing.

Some women worry about the worries they have missed.

A circus can pull a sick boy out of bed after three doctors have failed.

Charity may cover a multitude of sins, but there are a numberof multitudes still uncovered.

INCREASE IN SALARY FOR THE PUBLIC SCHOOL JANITORS

A Bonus of Ten Dollars a Month Granted by the Board of Education—Committee Appointed to Look Around for a New School Site—List of Accounts Passed.

REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING

The janitors of the public schools in the city were given a war bonus of $10 a month, dating from September 1st, for the year by the School Board last evening at the regular monthly meeting. In view of the splendid service given by all the janitors and of the high cost of materials which they require and supply, Mr. Denne said it was wise to take this step.

A New School.

With the normal increase in population, the Board of Education, foreseeing a new school will be necessary in a few years in the South Central, appointed a committee of Dr. F. Neal, Messrs. R. Denne, A. Fowler, E. G. Patterson, G. T. Gordon, and J. M. Greene, to look around for a site. The school will not be required for some time, but as the site and arrangements will take some months, it was decided that it is not too early to begin action. The Chamberlain Estate on the boundary was suggested as a possible situation.

Generous Offer.

Cadet Corps have been started in four city schools—Queen Mary, Central, South Central and King Edward. Rifles will be provided by Mr. Breyfogle for the Queen Mary School, and at the rate of 40 cents each he offered to supply the balance of 225 rifles. The matter of ordering these was left to the Supervision Committee, with power to act, and Mr. Breyfogle thanked for his generosity.

Public School Field Day.

For the first time in the history of the Public Schools, a Field Day will be held, when inter-school competitions will be held. Towards defraying the expense of the marks of recognition which will be given, the Board voted $30. The day set for the sports was October 18.

Collegiate Field Day.

On request of Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, the usual grant of $30 was made for prizes to be awarded at the Collegiate Institute Field Day, Thursday, October 10.

Missing Rifles.

Mr. C. E. Jamieson asked that protection should be made to prevent the theft of rifles at the Collegiate Institute. The matter was left with the Property Committee.

Boiler Inspection.

The boiler inspection at the schools was reported as satisfactory.

Defective Teeth.

In the school nurse's (Miss M. J. V. Jory) report, examination of 766 pupils showed 450 cases of defective teeth, 5 of defective sight, 10 defective speech, 38 bodily defects, 12 were excluded for rashes and skin trouble, 8 were unclean, and 20 calls were made to persuade parents to have defects cared for.

In view of the fact that the school nurse has at times many miles to walk, the matter of an allowance to her for car fares was left with the Supervision Committee, with power to act.

Cadet Corps Reviewed.

A report from the Department of Education on the review of the Cadet Corps was received.

School Attendance.

The report of the Collegiate Institute attendance for September, 1918, showed an increase of 25 from the same month last year.

316 resident, 64 non-resident.

Public School Attendance.

	Enrolled.	Average Attendance
Central	519	480
Queen Alexandra	340	314
King Edward	537	488
Queen Mary	500	457
King George	324	296
South Central	423	387
Total attendance	2649	2422

Splendid Staff.

Mr. Mowat commented upon the splendid staff of teachers which have been taken on this year and invited the Board to take a look over the improvements made at the school during the summer.

Fire Prevention.

The matter of the programme for fire prevention day, which will be held early this month, was left to the discretion of the Inspector.

Sporting Comment

Mike Brady, the golf pro, on a furlough from the navy, travelled across the continent to Boston and did a 71 on a course there. Which represents fairly well the amount of injury time spent in the service will inflict on and now he is a fat healthy boy." The ander, a Mike Brady, a Norrie Williams or whoever has a reasonable amount of youth on his side.

"Fred Fulton," writes an expert on pugilism, "knows how to order a fine dainty dinner and eat one like a classy clubman." A clearer idea could be had of Fulton's epicurean accomplishments were it known just what a classy clubman is and just how he eats.

An anecdote of John Evers has him taking a fancy to Larry Doyle when the latter first reported to the Giants and advising him thus: "I have played the second bag quite a while, and I think I am right when I tell you can never make good with that overhand throw to first base. you've got to shoot it up underhand to get 'em by that step." Yet Doyle has retained his overhand throw all through his career and has thrown out as many men as the next. Nobody ever could get a ball to the plate quicker or equal him in the double play that consists of tagging a runner on the line and then nipping the batter at first.

FIRE PREVENTION

Extracts from

PROCLAMATION

Whereas next to the care of those who are offering their lives on the front line of battle, the conservation of all our energies and substance is our most important problem;

And whereas the saving of human life, thrift, and the prevention of loss of property through destruction by fire, is an aid which every one should give willingly to the community at large;

And whereas the reckless and impoverishing fire waste that confronts the people of our Province is appalling;

* * * *

Therefore, believing that the loss can be minimized only by awakening in the public mind a universal watchfulness against carelessness, accumulation of rubbish and unsanitary conditions;

* * * * and

Because of this great need and in order to arouse a sense of watchfulness, carefulness and cleanliness, and to create a greater personal responsibility in reducing the number of preventable fires;

We have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council for Our Province of Ontario, to name, and do hereby name Wednesday, the

9th DAY OF OCTOBER, 1918

FIRE PREVENTION DAY

And We do hereby urge that on this day, throughout our Province of Ontario, attention be called in schools and public places to the conditions that exist and to the need of immediate action and co-operation on the part of everyone; and special exercises, addresses and other means be employed to impress on the public mind lessons of Fire Prevention.

To insure the success of this great Clean-up Campaign it will be necessary to have the hearty and harmonious co-operation of all * * * who have for their objects civic, social and industrial betterment. * * *

The Proclamation should be read in all Schools and at Public Gatherings.

A general canvass is being made this week for subscriptions for the dependants of the Sailors of the Merchant Marine, and so far the collectors are well pleased.

Soldiers' Aid Society.

The Soldiers' Aid Society have made arrangements for the appearance of the "Drum Major" to be given in Coronation Hall early in October. This operetta is given entirely by local Millbrook talent, about fifty taking part.

Red Cross Corn Roast.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr.. Milton Sherin last week, the affair being a Red Cross corn roast and pumpkin pie social. The lawn was highly lighted with lanterns and two large bon-fires, and a jolly crowd of merry-makers were there. The programme was short but A1. Rev. Mr. Lewis and Rev. Mr. Herrington gave a few minutes' talk. Mr. Will Howden gave a comic reading as did also Miss Johnson please the audience with two difficult recitations; Mrs. Herrington sang a solo in a very pleasing voice. The programme closed by singing "God Save the King," and "God Save Our men." Several gramaphone selections were given throughout the evening. Abundance and corn, sandwiches, pumpkin pie and tea were served, and needless to say no one went away hungry.

GRAIN MARKET

The option grain markets are still acting very much under the influence of the sensational war news, and seem to argue therefrom that the war may come to a sudden and immediate ending. Corn in particular continues weak, and oats are more or less influenced the same way. The cash grain markets continue very quiet, with but little coming out. There is quite a strong demand for barley.

BUT WILL KAISER BE IN SHAPE TO SAY IT?

(By United Press.)

London, Sept. 8. (By Mail.)—Out of hundreds of songs written expressly for the "Wacs," this is the one they've adopted:

We are the Woman's Army,
The W.A.A.C.;
We cannot shoot, we cannot fight—
Of what earthly use are we?
But when we march to Potsdam,
The Kaiser he will say,
"Hoch, Hoch! Mein Gott, what a jolly fine lot
Are the W.A.A.C.
It isn't remarkable for its poetry—but the girls like it.

On Wednesday evening last a very enjoyable time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Deyell, the occasion being a miscellaneous shower for their son, Mr. David Deyell, and his bride, nee Miss N. Ford. The gentlemen of the gathering presented a beautiful fumed oak chair with leather upholstering, to Mr. Deyell, while Mrs. Deyell received many costly pieces of china, silverware, etc. There were about 60 young people present and a very pleasant evening was spent in music and cards, after which a dainty lunch was served.

LAKEFIELD MADE A GENEROUS RESPONSE TO HUT CAMPAIGN

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 2.—The collection for the Catholic Army Huts campaign from Lakefield and Young's Point on Sunday amounted to $87.50. This was a generous response to this appeal, which deserves the support of Catholic and Protestant alike. It is more than likely that further contributions will be handed in. Capt. Johnson and Dr. Gibson are in charge of the fund in Lakefield.

When the weather is very hot sponge the baby with tepid water twice a day and use talcum powder freely.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 100 cars, with 924 cattle, 162 calves, 1,650 hogs, and 1,745 sheep and lambs.

The market continues dull and draggy for the inferior quality of cattle now coming in. Prices are weak and fully 75c. lower than Monday for the bulk of the offerings. Very few choice butcher are available. The heavy steers shipped in earlier in the week were still unsold. Some of them have been shipped to Buffalo.

Calves were weaker, except for very choice.

Hogs quoted at $19.25, fed and watered.

THE WIFE

By JANE PHELPS

ENGAGEMENT DAYS

CHAPTER III

But talk as she might, Ruth still remained unconvinced. She loved Brian Hackett; she would marry him and be poor—for a little while—if necessary.

Not that Ruth was unfeeling, or that she did not love her aunt, the only mother she had ever known; but she loved Brian better—so she thought. At least she loved him in a different way. But all her coaxing her wheedling woul dnot change her aunt's decision.

"You must choose between us," was her invariable reply.

If Mrs. Clayborne had stormed and been cross and disagreeable, as people were in the novels Ruth had read, it would have been much easier in a way. But Aunt Laura was just as kind and gentle as she always had been save when they were talking of Brian—then she simply gave Ruth an ultimatum. She was even gentle and kind when Brian called. But it was a cold, calm kindness which held him off so thoroughly that he remarked to Ruth:

"Mrs. Clayborne, your aunt, does not like me."

"Why do you say that? She doesn't dislike you, she told me so."

"What is it then? Does she freeze me out because I am poor?" For freeze me she does."

"It is because of me, Brian. She is fearful that I will be unhappy when I get away from her,—this lovely home."

"It is lovely, but—Oh, a beautiful home doesn't make people happy! I have known lots of people who had lovely homes who fought like cats and dogs."

BRIAN MAKES A PROMISE.

"You don't quite understand, Brian," Ruth was anxious that her lover should like Mrs. Clayborne, "Aunt Laura has been very indulgent to. I can't remember her ever denying me anything money could buy, and"—

"Why should she? Uncle says she is as rich as mud. She is old and you are young and I guess she'd have a hard time getting anyone else to stick as close to her and her place as you have. You told me, yourself, that you never had been away from here."

"No, but Brian, I didn't have a penny. My father was poor. Aunt Laura was his sister, and her money came from her husband, not from our side of the family. So you see it was awfully good of her to take me in and treat me as she has."

"She has had value received," Brian answered, with all the lover's confidence in the virtues if the girl he loves.

"Silly, I have given her nothing but love. And oh, Brian! Mammy wants to know if she can 'go north' with us. You know she has taken care of me ever since I was ten years old."

"Why, Ruth—" Brian looked distressed for a moment, then brightened at a thought, "she won't perhaps be able to come right away, but after a while we will sent for her—that is if your aunt can spare her."

"Why, Mammy is mine! She belongs to me!" Ruth had imbibed all the southerner's ideas of a colored servant. She calls me 'her baby' yet."

"You're my baby now," Brian gathered her in his arms and kissed her.

"You think I can have her soon?" Ruth was still thinking of Mammy's swollen eyes and her lamentations when Mrs. Clayborne had told her, Ruth would not be able to take her, when she left to marry a poor man.

"Yes, very soon, my baby." Brian had all kinds of faith in his quick success. In a way he was mercurial. He believed fully that because he was rather smart, perhaps clever in some things, and attractive in appearance, he was bound to 'get there quickly,' as he expressed it when talking of his prospects. That those very things he valued so highly were of little or no use in the fight for financial emoluments, he had yet to learn. So with the hopefulness of youth, he promised Ruth that she should have her old Mammy, as well as many other things very soon.

There was one trait Brian Hackett possessed, of which Ruth knew nothing—because she had never seen him under the conditions to call for its expression; Brian was of an intensely jealous disposition. But he could easily see that the young men of the town held no attraction for Ruth, and there was nothing else of which he could be jealous at this period.

AUNT LAURA'S STIPULATION.

When Ruth told her aunt that Brian had promised that she should soon have Mammy Rachel, if she could spare her, Mrs. Clayborne said:

"I'll let her go to you any time you can assure me she will have a good home. I cannot prevent your marrying whom you wish; I shall not attempt to, beyond letting you know my wishes and the consequences, if you go against them. But I can and will prevent any of my old servants leaving the only home they have ever know until I am positive that they will be comfortable. And nowadays an extra one in the family is something of a hardship for a poor man. Remember Mammy was born a slave, right here on this plantation. Of course she is free. Mr. Clayborne freed them all. But she is still a child—still looks to someone to take care of her while she lives. No she cannot go unless I know she will be comfortable. But she can come to you if you still insist in marrying before Brian has shown himself capable of supporting you."

"He can support me, auntie! The very idea of thinking he would ask me to marry him if he couldn't! He have, right away, but he soon will be able to; then I'll send for Mammy."

3,000,000 People Annually Take Nuxated Iron In This Country Alone For Red Blood Strength and Endurance

"To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of the weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. It is conservatively estimated that Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually, and it has been used and endorsed by such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury and ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential Nominee Chas. A. Towne; General John L. Clem (Retired), the drummer boy of Shiloh, who was Sergeant in the U. S. Army when only 12 years of age; also United States Judge G. W. Atkinson of the Court of Claims of Washington, and others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.

"Advertise NOW, and never let up."

WITT K. COCHRANE, the well-known Advertisement Agent, thus cleverly "sizes up" the advertising situation:—

"It is inconceivable that any merchant or manufacturer should cease—or even curtail—his advertising just when the country is on the threshold of a tremendous double harvest—the NATURAL harvest of our own unprecedented crops and the LOGICAL harvest consequent on the war in Europe.

"It is under such conditions as these that advertising reaches the zenith of its power. The man who listens to the yellow pessimist and sits back to 'wait for things to settle down,' is yielding his common sense and enterprise to the baleful influence of idle sentiment, and actually starving the goose that lays the golden egg.

"Keep the columns of the daily newspapers bristling with your announcements and thus open wide your doors for the flood of prosperity that is bound to rush in. Make hay while the sun shines. We won't have another chance like this in a hundred years."

"I have noticed with a feeling of profound disgust the conservatism and business cowardice that have set in in America since the Kaiser threw down the guage of battle. We, the very people who will logically profit by the war abroad—and profit immeasurably—are acting as though we were at war ourselves. We are talking blue things, pinching the pennies cutting down our advertising and forcing prosperity to stand back.

"As a matter of fact this is the very hour when we should rush into print to a greater extent than ever before, because, unless the earth opens and swallows us up, there will be greater prosperity in America this fall than ever in the history of the Republic.

"We are not at war. We are not likely to be. The warring world looks to us for its supplies and we can't keep posperity down no matter how hard we try.

"If my advice is worth anything to you business men, it is here conveyed to you in six words:

"ADVERTISE NOW, AND NEVER LET UP."

"Advertise NOW, and never let up" in "The Examiner."

WATER AND LIGHT.

Why One Can See Deep Into the Sea When High Above It.

The reason why one is able to see to a greater depth in water when he is at a considerable height above it than when he stands on a level with it is because of the absence of pronounced refraction by the molecules of water. One above the surface of perfectly still water, looking exactly downward toward the center of the earth, will see an object deep in the water by means of rays of light that have been reflected vertically upward. Therefore there is no refraction or bending the rays out of their straight course from object to eye.

But if you attempt to see an object at the bottom of a lake when standing on the bank the light has to traverse a much greater thickness of water, which quenches a portion, or maybe all, of the waves of light, and all not quenched are bent to quite a distance out of the original straight line. And the well known index of refraction of light of one kind from water to air is 1.336, or the ratio of the sines of angles of incidence and refraction.

Proof: Place a straight stick in a basin, and it will appear to be straight as it really is; pour in water and the stick will appear to be bent by the phenomena attending refraction. For without refraction of light by glass, for instance, we could not have telescopes and microscopes.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Patience—Will says when he kissed you last night he noticed you'd been eating onions.

Patrice—Well, all I've got to say is that a man who will notice onions on a girl's breath when he's kissing her hasn't got his mind on his business.—Yonkers Statesman.

I like the modest man. He's meek.
You seldom hear his din.
But when a man has lots of cheek
He has a lot of chin.
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The artillerist always spoke of his gun in the feminine gender.

"You see, sir, she was never yet silenced!" he explained, with glistening eyes.—Puck.

Her gauntlet cost five hundred beans;
Her turn, four dozen in a row;
Her hat removed from papa's jeans
A hundred shekels more or so—
In fact, though she's but in her teens,
She's quite the dearest girl I know.
—Judge.

He—Yes, I'm a soldier. I helped England win the Boer war.

She—Is that so? Which side were you on?—Judge.

In learning none could equal you
I think whene'er I hear you blow.
Vain braggart, if you only knew
A tenth of what you think you know.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Black Sheep

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

Religiously Jason Hall reprobated Pierce Duntley when he gave up his position as a store clerk and joined a show. Duntley did not become an actor or performer, but to the grave, strict deacon the circus was an abomination and the theater a deep pit. He bluntly informed Duntley that he was on the downward path, and intimated that he should see to it that he did not also drag his wife and child to destruction.

"Better not interfere," advised Duntley in his offhanded way. "I see a chance to make money, and I'm going to take it."

Edith, the wife and daughter, was grieved, but she accepted the situation unmurmuringly. She knew the restive spirit of this impulsive husband of hers, and hoped a brief experience would cure him of the roving taint. Each month Duntley came home for a couple of days. He dressed better and had great dreams of sometime owning a show of his own.

The dismal deacon continued to protest. He called the behavior of his son-in-law simply disgraceful. The censorious and narrow-minded father worked on poor Edith until, when Duntley came back from a long trip, he found the household effects in storage and Edith and the baby under the parental roof.

"Give up your nefarious calling, get back to honest work, and your wife will come back to you," said Jason Hall. "Otherwise, I shall see to it that there is a legal separation."

A coolness grew up between man and wife. Duntley flung away, angry, defiant, stubborn. A year went by and he did not reappear. Stories were retailed to the effect that Duntley had been seen at a picnic in the midst of a rollicking, wine-bibbing set of men and women. Another story was that Duntley had been manager for Mlle. Esturia, "the brilliant, meteoric trapeze artist." In a quiet way a divorce was secured. The deacon died, and Edith, taking her child, little Paul, with her, removed to a quiet country town.

"I'll take the baby down to my sister's, and spend the day there, if you don't object," said Mary.

Mrs. Duntley reached the next town, to find her friend away. She returned home, and went to the home of the sister of the nurse, to find them both chatting on the porch. Mary turned pale as she viewed her mistress.

"I found my friend absent," explained Mrs. Duntley, "and I thought I would come and take Paul home."

The nurse exhibited embarrassment and was trembling all over. Abruptly she burst into tears.

"Not here?" cried Edith in quick alarm. "Has anything happened to Paul?"

"No, ma'am," dissented May woefully; "but, oh! you'll never forgive me, but a gentleman has taken a great fancy to Paul, and he asked me to let him have Paul with him for today."

"Where? Where?" gasped the agitated mother.

"At the hotel."

"And you left my darling with a stranger!" cried Edith. "Wretched woman! Take me at once to my child. Who is this man?"

"He is—oh, ma'am, forgive me! forgive me! He is your husband—that was."

They made due haste to the hotel. Mary knew the room Duntley occupied. Its door was open. Pleased, prattling tones mingled with tender masculine ones. On the floor was Paul, and near to him his father. The place was littered with toys.

Into the room Edith rushed and clasped the boy in her arms, as though from the jaws of peril. Pierce Duntley regarded her gravely. His face and bearing suggested a sedateness that had not formerly existed.

"You—you have changed," spoke Edith, rather abashed at the reproachful look her husband bestowed upon her.

"Somewhat," nodded Duntley. "Not that I was ever as bad as Father Hall fancied me. That wild oracle in the woods was simply a movie scene in which I figured. Mlle. Esturia, the dashing trapezist whom I managed, was grandmother to eight children. But Father Hall was right—it was a trifling life and now I am part of a great humanitarian society, spreading education in the dark places of the earth. On that mission I leave for Hawaii next week, and I just had to see the dear little fellow here before I went away."

"Paul want good man come home with him," here cried out the little fellow, and ran back to his father and put his arms about his neck.

"No, little man; but I'm going to send all those toys home with you."

"I'm a lonesome man," said Pierce sadly. "Couldn't you forget—there isn't much to forgive, except my old, roving ways—because of the love I have always cherished for you?"

She could not resist the sincere appeal. They were remarried, and Edith became a co-partner with Pierce in his great life work.

Isn't This True?

When you "feel mean"—dull, tired, nervous, bad digestion, no appetite—

Don't you find out, afterwards, that your bowels were not acting freely and naturally?

Take two or three pills—once. After that, only one, until your're all right.

"I know exactly what is the matter with you, Jack. You have lost confidence."

"YOU were getting along fine until you had that nervous breakdown, but since then you have been worried and anxious.

"Now you have got discouraged and down-hearted, and it is no wonder you cannot make sales.

"The salesman must have lots of energy and vigor as well as confidence in himself and what he has to sell.

"But you cannot have confidence in anything so long as your nerves are weak and you spend the nights worrying instead of getting good, refreshing sleep.

"Take my advice, boy, and go straight to the drug store and get half a dozen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Then make up your mind that while you are using this you will get out into the fresh air all you can and forget to worry.

"Now, you may feel pessimistic after all the treatments you have been taking, but I know what I am talking about.

"My nerves were in a worse condition than yours ever were. I could scarcely get a wink of sleep, and did not care whether I got anything to eat or not.

"Besides, I got so irritable and down-hearted that nothing seemed to go right.

"The experience that I had enables me to sympathize with you now, and also to say that I am certain that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you.

"It is entirely different to most medicines used for the nerves, because instead of merely stimulating the tired nerves to over-exertion, it nourishes them back to health and vigor.

"Now, Jack, you must give the Nerve Food a trial, and I know you will consider me your best friend for telling you about it."

Here is an interesting letter from another business man who had a similar experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food:

Mr. W. J. Wilson, Grocer, Perth, Ont., writes: "In fitting up this building for a grocery business I worked very hard, and after putting in my stock I continued plugging away, good and hard, too. I commenced to feel myself going down—my weight went from 180 pounds down to 154 pounds. My appetite began to fail, and, of course, upon retiring I could not get a good night's rest. Sometimes after going to sleep my nerves would jerk, and I would waken up with a start, and then lie awake for hours. I remembered having used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food before, so I started in again, and took a good treatment, using about half a dozen boxes. I soon felt my appetite returning, I could sleep well, and commenced gaining in weight, until I felt like a new man. From the benefits I have received from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I cannot speak too highly of it."

LEMON JUICE TAKES OFF TAN

Girls! Make bleaching lotion if skin is sunburned, tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very, small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons, and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear, and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

WAS PRESENTED WITH EBONY CANE

Batten's Excursion Was a Big Success.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 2.—At the Bobcaygeon fair held on Thursday last, the directors of the fair called Mr. Wm. Batten into the office and presented him with a gold headed ebony cane as a token of appreciation for his efforts in bringing an excursion to the fair for ten years in succession. Mr. Batten was agreeably surprised and replied in a suitable manner. Batten's excursions are always a great success, but this year's was the most successful of all.

WHEN PEACE RETURNS

FIGHTING MEN DISCUSS THEIR PROBLEMS FRANKLY.

All Agree That a "Military Caste" Must Not Continue to Exist In Canada, But Many of Them Wonder How They Will Get Back Into Civil Life Once More.

EVEN in midst of the war much thought is being given by men of all ranks in the Canadian army in France to the return of the army to civil life. All realise the greatness of the problem and believe that even with the end of war not in sight it is still possible to develop plans for the accomplishment of this object. A proper conception of the task can only be realized by a visit to the army in France. It is only there that a knowledge of the various problems is possible and from among those in the army concerned in this matter can be gleaned the true situation. Men of all ranks are frank in discussing the problem. They realize that Canada cannot perpetuate a standing army or create a military caste, but must return to productive work the men who have fought so valiantly in France.

"Here we have in France" said a veteran colonel, "thousands of young men who have in the service of their country lost in a measure the initiative of their former civil life. They have no thought of the morrow, their clothes and food are provided, their pay is regular and assured and there is no necessity of saving or providing for a rainy day or loss of occupation. Their business is to fight and the country's business to provide for them. Many of these will immediately conform to civil conditions, but thousands must be educated in the demobilization to depend entirely on their own resources and initiative.

Another prominent officer, a brigade commander referred to another class. "We have in the army," he explained "many men of over forty who have sacrificed everything. They return home after years of service, without means, without a business and to find that in their absence competitors have captured the field. These men, many aged beyond their years through stress of conflict, will not find it an easy task to regain their former positions in civil life without capital and with their energy sapped."

There is still another class that will have difficulty in finding a place in civil life. Thousands of young Canadians enlisted from high school, college and university. They had never worked. Three and four years of their life when otherwise they would have been making their place has been spent in the army. They must find a place in civil life and theirs is a difficult task.

"What am I going to do when the war is over?" asked a young officer. He left Canada when eighteen, has been wounded three times, wears the Military Cross and bar and carries in his body several pieces of shrapnel.

"You will probably remain in the army," was suggested.

"Oh, no," he replied, "no army life in peace time for me. But what am I going to do? I never worked, have no profession and little money."

And his problem is that of hundreds of others who have given of their best years to the service of their country. Many are anxious of the future. They desire work, but fear that they may find themselves handicapped in the race by lack of training and loss of opportunity.

Much has been done in training for civilian life by the educational and vocational courses of the Vimy Ridge University. Those interested in this work believe that their great opportunity will be the demobilization period. Even under the most favorable circumstances our army could not be returned to Canada in less than eighteen months. The ruined cities of France must be rebuilt, its farms again brought under cultivation, mines reopened, forests replanted and industries revived. Men engaged in this work while in the army would be educating themselves for civil life. While in this work those whose studies were interrupted could complete their training under skilled teachers serving in the army. Men could learn trades or improve their knowledge of trades followed before the war. That is the period of opportunity in Europe.

Leaders of thought in the army favor the return of men from Europe to immediate occupation in Canada. They fear the effect on the men of a long period of idleness at home as much as the effect of army life in foreign countries. They are anxious that other fields of labor than agriculture be provided. Farming will appeal to but a small percentage of the army. Years in the turmoil of war, its excitement and association, is not the best of training for the quiet life of the prairie farm. Industrial expansion in Canada must come if the army is to be provided with occupation.

There will be the sincere co-operation by army leaders with civil authorities to solve this problem. Probably the army leaders see more clearly the difficulties of the situation. It is the men in France who have a complete knowledge of the aspirations and desires of the Canadian army. There will be no unwarrantable demands, no factious opposition. In the army has come through stress of conflict with its sacrifice and victory a wonderful national spirit. The men in France will not place personal desire before national welfare, but they believe the satisfactory return to civil life of three hundred thousand men in Europe will give a great impetus to national unity and national prosperity.

Learning French.

One difficulty that our soldiers in France have in learning to speak French like the natives is that colloquial French has so many humorous or slang synonyms for the perfectly good words that might be used, says the Outlook. A French-English dictionary, with a suggestion of Dr. Johnson's habit of interpolating the lexicographer's personality into his definitions, hits off this idea under the word centre: "Belly, abdomen; in the slang of those who never call things by their proper names, stomach."

The war has seen an astonishing list of these variations from normal words, invented by the lively fancy of the poilu (itself one of these invented substitutes, standing, of course, for the good word soldat).

Another difficulty that the Canadian soldier has in his struggle to pick up French is humorously illustrated by the remark attributed to a Tommy "over there": "These people know how to spell their language, but they don't know how to pronounce it. Here's vin, for example; do you know what they call that? Why, van. And when you've learned how to spell cat in French—they spell it with an h, chat—they pronounce it sha!"

A Real Patriot.

In the vicinity of Winnipeg, a new scheme is being tried. One of the municipalities just on the edge of the city contains a large amount of land, which has never been brought under cultivation. Just before the war part of this municipality was purchased by a land company and resold in lots running from five acres to fifty acres. It is beautiful virgin prairie soil, and adjoins the farm of the Manitoba Agricultural College. The real estate man who had the most to do with the sale of this property conceived the happy idea that it would be easily cultivated by the Agricultural College staff if a lease could be obtained, and he set himself to the task of securing the consent of the 200 odd owners of the property. The area involved is 700 acres. In less than a month's time he had the consent of all the owners, who appointed him their agent to make the lease. The land is leased to the Agricultural College for a term of three years, absolutely free, and the college has to turn into the Red Cross fund of Manitoba every dollar of the net profit derived from the crops of this land.

Precaution.

"Do you think you can support my daughter in the style to which she has been accustomed?"

"I think so," replied the earnest young man. "But maybe we'd better live with you a few years so that I can find out exactly what it's like."—Washington Star.

Turpentine.

More than 25,000,000 gallons of turpentine are produced in the world every year, the United States leading all the other nations.

A Safe Prescription.

An indestructible prescription for eyeglasses has been invented by a Chicago oculist, adding one more practical and ingenious idea to the many already born of war necessities. George M. Sturgeon was a Chicago young man who had gone to Western Canada to farm on a large scale. He enlisted in the Canadian army, and for months drove ammunition trucks nightly out to the front. One night something blew up, and the next Sturgeon knew was three weeks later, in an English hospital. The doctors there mended his bones, but no one seemed to be able to fix his eyes, which could not distinguish objects beyond fifty feet. He returned to this country to consult his former doctor, who succeeded in devising glasses which restored his vision completely.

He returned to Canada and joined the Flying Corps there. He is now on his way across.

But everything depended on his new glasses. If anything happened to them, where would he replace them? His doctor solved that difficulty by stamping the prescription on a thin piece of aluminum about four inches long. This will last a lifetime, can be carried in a box of tools without harm, and with this prescription any optician in the world can make the precious glasses, whenever it is necessary to replace them.

Eat More Fish.

Canadians are deficient as fish eaters, compared with inhabitants of foreign countries. Less than two pounds a head is the yearly consumption of salt and smoked fish in this country. For the winter's supply, salt fish can be laid in and, pound for pound, furnish much more nutriment than fresh fish. This is because curing extracts a large part of the water, and what is left is nearly all solid food.

Use Canadian Coal.

Up until a few months ago Japan supplied the islands of Hawaii with most of their supplies of coal. During the year 1916 Hawaii imported 87,939 tons of coal, exclusive of the requirements of the army and navy. The bulk of this came from Japan, no shipments having been made from Canada, and only one or two from Australia. In 1917 Japan and Australia failed to maintain their coal trade with the islands on account of shortage of cargo space. The United States, for the same reason, was unable to ship to this field. As a result of this famine the Hawaiian Islands turned to Canada for a supply of coal, and were able to buy about 50,000 tons from the Pacific coast coal companies at high prices. It is reported that nearly all the coal used on the islands now is of Canadian origin. It is to be hoped that Canadian merchants will take advantage of present conditions to retain this new business.

OUR FORESTRY CORPS.

Some Facts About Their Activities In England.

An interesting story of the work of the 126th Company, Canadian Forestry Corps in England is told by Sergt. Herman L. Porter, of the Y.M.C.A., who was stationed with the corps, in a small brochure he has published. Not only does he present a graphic description of the work of the Canadian Forestry Battalion, but he gives an idea of the way in which the United Kingdom is sacrificing her historic forests in order to supply timber for the army in France.

The 126th Company was stationed on top of a hill on the Duke of Bedford's estate overlooking the town of Ampthill. The sergeant writes of the location and the attitude of the villagers as follows:

"Here John Bunyan lived and did much of his work. From the camp doors could be seen each morning the 'Slough of Despond,' while in the dim distance the 'Delectable Mountains' arose to form a delightful background. On the left, a wooded hill-top looked down upon the spot where once a castle stood, a favorite resort of Henry VIII., and where good Queen Catherine spent her last days.

"In all of Bedfordshire no place had been better known for centuries as an ideal spot for picnics and for lovers' walks than was the noted 'Ampthill Pines.' There the people of Bedfordshire and surrounding counties had come to spend their holiday, while upon the same hill the listening pines had heard the story of love, as told by each succeeding generation of Ampthill young. It thus happened, when by the fortunes of war it became necessary to cut into many of England's great forest reserves, the beauty spots of the country, that the townsmen gave but scant welcome to the Canadians, who, under the able leadership of Major A. B. R. Kenny, of Ottawa, had come to begin the work of destruction. And who could censure them if at first their thoughts towards the Canadians were rather harsh. Had this not been their one beauty spot for years? Had they not come to regard this hill as their own personal property? But gradually they came to see that it was a noble sacrifice, worthy of making for the successful prosecution of the war. These trees were to be sent to France to help in protecting their own lads. They began to see that the Canadians were not to be blamed for their part in the destruction, while they soon learned to appreciate the skilled foresters who had come over from Canada to help them in the struggle for existence.

"As time went on, the men experienced towards the townsmen a deep bond of friendship, which tended to alleviate the feeling of loneliness bound to attack the native Canadian away from his native surroundings. The people were as keenly interested in our welfare as they were in the work that was done, which is saying very much indeed. The first operation especially was of great interest to them. It kept the men busy in defending the companies' motives, and in telling the young ladies that there was a war on. As a matter of fact, so great was the interest manifested during the first month that four policemen had to be continually on the job to chase the people from falling trees. But all this was part of the game. Gradually they opened their homes until they held such a place in the lives of the men that the good folk of Ampthill will always be remembered with kindly thoughts."

COULD NOT SLEEP.

Miss Gertrude Pratt, Wolseley St., Barrie, Ont., writes: "I was very much run down and could not sleep either day or night, and my arms and legs ached so that life was very miserable. After using six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I feel well and strong again."

PETERBOROUGH THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1918

British and French Troops Resumed Their Attacks This Morning

Heavy Enemy Counter Attacks Repulsed at Several Points—Enemy is Evacuating Portion of Line.

OFFICIAL REPORTS.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(Official.)—British troops this morning resumed their attacks north of St. Quentin. The Germans are continuing their rearward movement on the front from Lens to Armentieres. They are evacuating highly organized positions in that area along a twenty mile front. The German attack last night on the British positions north of Cambrai was repulsed. The British have reached the general line of Cite, St. Auguste, Douvrin, east of La Bassee, east of Aubere and west of Grenier Wood. The advance is continuing.

The statement reads:

The progress made by Allied offensives in Flanders and before Cambrai and St. Quentin, combined with heavy losses incurred by his troops in their endeavours to resist successful attacks, has compelled the enemy to undertake an extensive withdrawal of his line. From Lens to Armentieres the enemy is evacuating highly organized positions held by him since the commencement of trench warfare, and which he had hitherto defended with the utmost resolution. This movement, which was not unexpected, is being followed up closely by our troops, who are maintaining constant touch with the German rear guards, inflicting many casualties.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Oct. 3. — (Official.) — Heavy fighting continues in the region north of Rheims, and the French have continued their advance, capturing Loivre. The railway junction of Callerange, in the Champaigne, has been captured by Gen. Gouraud.

The statement reads:

North of the Vesle, French troops continued their advance and progressed beyond Loivre. In the region of La Neuvillette, north of Rheims, violent German counter attacks obtained no results. In the Champagne, fighting began again after noon yesterday and continued into the night. French troops captured Challerange. The Germans made strong efforts to drive the French from the wood south-east of Orfeuil which they had penetrated. Three heavy German assaults were broken up by the French who maintained their gains and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy. A number of prisoners were captured by us in the course of the fighting. The attack was resumed a daybreak to-day.

HUT FUND CASH TOTALLED $3,500 FOR 2 DAYS' WORK

The cash subscriptions to the K. of C. Army Hut Fund at the end of the first two days of the local campaign, totalled $3500 when the returns were totalled last night. Team workers reported a reception throughout the city that warmed them to the work, and strengthened the hopes of the committee that the $6000 objective will be reached before the end of the week.

There have thus far been practically no discouragements. Citizens who have given freely to the Sailor's relief and other funds stated that they were glad of this opportunity to show their sympathy toward the Knights of Columbus effort. In the shops and in the homes the greeting to the collectors has been of the same tenor, and apart from the gratifying results of the campaign, there have been the intangible but inspiring fruits of a deep co-operation that has been admirable, and which prompts the hope that it may be fostered.

Team workers are reminded that they are expected to make their returns nightly.

HUNS ARE REMOVING THE INHABITANTS

Canadian Press:

Germans Are Withdrawing

French Advanced Forces Are Progressing—Outflanking La Fere.

(By John De Ghant.)

Paris, Oct. 3. — The allied troops attacking on a 15 mile front between St. Quentin and La Fere, are nearing Brethenicourt (on the Oise, 5 miles south east of St. Quentin), and are rapidly outflanking LaFere. The latter is the northern outpost of the great St. Gobain Massif. Between Vesle and the Aisne and Aisne-Marne canal, General Berthelot has cleaned out all the Germans except in a small area south of Berry-Au-Bacc, on the bank of the Aisne (11 miles north-west of Rheims) where French advanced elements are progressing.

WEATHER CONTINUES COLD — ROADS ARE DRYING UP.

(By Frank J. Taylor.)

With the Americans west of Verdun, Oct. 3. — The Germans, it was further indicated to-day, are withdrawing from their advanced positions to the Kreimhilde-Stellung line. Their retreat is protected by strongly placed machine gun positions in the difficult territory between their advanced line and their new defences. The artillery fighting increased considerably early this morning. The weather continues cold and the roads are drying rapidly, improving the fighting conditions.

$70 A TON FOR NEWSPRINT IN STATES

New Price May Affect the Canadian Market.

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Oct. 3.—The judgment of the United States circuit court fixing $70 a ton as a fair price for newsprint in the United States against $62 a ton fixed originally by the Federal Commission, is accepted in paper trade circles here to indicate a price of $78 in the near future, with important benefits to the Canadian Pulp and Paper industries.

A. L. Dawe, secretary of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, stated last evening that the manufacturers naturally regarded the $70 a ton being an April price, and the Federal Commission would need have to take into consideration the rise in costs of manufacturing since then, amounting to about $8 a ton.

One of the interesting features of the decision handed down yesterday is that the Commission considered that the manufacturers were entitled to a return of 15 per cent. on invested capital, with a fair basis of capitalization placed at $39.50 per ton of daily output. The contentions of the publishers in the hearing before the court had been that a return of 10 per cent. was sufficient.

FUNERAL OF PTE. GEO. COLLINS

G.W.V.A. Band Headed the Cortege to the C.P.R. Station.

The funeral of Pte. Geo. Collins, former member of the 93rd Battalion, who died in the Military Hospital at Kingston, took place this morning, the remains being taken on the noon train to Norwood. A service was held at the late residence of the deceased, corner of King and Rubidge street, at 10:30 o'clock, after which the body was taken to the C.P.R. station, the funeral cortege being headed by the band of the Great War Veterans' Association playing the Dead March in Saul. At the station the Last Post was sounded. The pall-bearers, who accompanied the remains to Norwood to participate in the funeral there were six members of the Peterborough Branch of the G.W.V.A., Comrades Ringer, Coppock, Muir, Oldroyd, Scanlan and White.

THE CRISIS IN GERMANY

The Kaiser and Hohenzollernism Are on the Down Grade—Chancellorship Goes a Begging.

KAISER'S APPEAL

(By Ed L. Keen.)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—There are indications that the process of wiping out the militaristic and autocratic government of Germany, which President Wilson declared is necessary before peace can be accomplished, has already begun.

While is it not believed that the pre- a setting up of anything resembling a setting up of anyhing resembling a democratic government, it is evident from the actions of those dodging the offers of the Chancellorship that the Kaiser and Hohenzollernism are on the down grade. The Kaiser's recent appeal for a reorganization of the people's government was another appeal which is now issuing out of which no details have yet been received, and are regarded as a camouflage to fool the German public and Entente statesmen.

(Special to Examiner.)

Paris, Oct. 3. — The allies took 123,036 German prisoners in France and Belgium during September, it was officially announced to day. The captives included 120,192 men and 2,844 officers. During the same period the allies captured 1,300 cannon, and more than 10,000 machine guns.

From July 15th to Sept. 3rd, the allies took prisoners 248,494 men and 5,518 officers ,and captured 3,669 prisnon and 23,000 machine guns.

Bright Outlook for War Loan

Opening Gun Will be Fired in Winnipeg.

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Oct. 3. — Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, leaves tomorrow night for the west, where he will open the Victory Loan campaign. The opening gun will be fired at Winnipeg on Tuesday, October 8th, when the Minister will deliver his first speech. Thence he will proceed to Saskatoon and from there direct to the coast. He will speak at other important points on his way back.

Half a billion is the actual objective of the new loan campaign. The saving in Canadian banks last month reached the record figure of over a billion dollars, while the value of the present year's crop all over the Dominion is tremendous. Altogether the outlook for the success of the new loan is bright.

ALLIES STILL ADVANCING

A Few Yards Gain on Present Line is Worth More Than Gain of Miles Was Seventy-two Hours Ago.

HEAVY FIGHTING

(By Webb Miller.)

PARIS, Oct. 3.—While to the man in the street the drive of Marshal Foch's armies appears to have stopped somewhat in the last few hours, the facts are that the battle has reached a point where a gain of a few hundred yards is worth more than a gain of miles was seventy-two hours ago. And yard by yard the Allied armies are clawing their way ahead over these precious bits of soil, the loss of which is throwing consternation into the hearts of the Germans.

Straws in the winds, pointing to a further retirement at several points, are multiplying every place. Many military experts see the immediate necessity for a general enemy retirement.

There is magnificent activity miles back of the lines in the north, where the Germans are throwing temporary bridges across the rivers and canals and mining all roads and bridges.

Furious Fighting.

But all along the line the Germans are fighting with the fury of desperation in an attempt to stave off the penetration of Foch's wedges into the most vital spots of the enemy defences.

Gen. Von. Ludendorff is worrying more over the steady advance of King Albert and Gen. Plumer in between. The network of Belgium railways is swarming with troop trains rushing up every division the High Command can secure from depots in an effort to halt the Belgians and British on the Flanders plains.

The Germans have set fire to the Belgian city of Roulers. Roulers, which was one of the principal objectives of the previous British drives in Flanders, has been practically surrounded by Belgian and British troops. It is about twelve miles north east of Ypres.

WAR SUMMARY

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The Associated Press this morning issued the following summary:

Prince Maximilian of Baden, a man whose peace views are known to be opposed to those of pan-Germans, has been named German Imperial Chancellor, it is reported from Amsterdam. Prince Maximilian is recognized as the head of the Delbrueck Moderates, and is a man about whom anti-militaristic elements of the Empire may gather in an effort to bring about a negotiated peace. With their lines broken in many places and held together only by superhuman efforts at nearly every point, from the North Sea to Verdun, the Germans appear to have reached the limit of their endurance and are beginning to retreat. This withdrawal is not limited to any single sector, but evidences of it are reported at many points along the battle line, Ouflanked and imperilled by the advance of the Anglo-Belgian armies east of Ypres, the enemy is now rapidly retiring from the La Bassee sector. It is reported that Menin and Roulers are burning, that the Belgians are within two miles of Tourcoing, and that Lille is being emptied of its civilian population.

CONFLICTING REPORTS REGARDING TURKEY

(Special to the Examiner)

London, Oct. 3. — Turkey has notified Germany that she intends to propose peace to the allies, a Zurich despatch to-day declared.

Germany is said to have replied at some length, partly in a menacing, and partly in a pleading tone. Turkey believes, the despatch further says, that Germany has given up her intention of occupying Bulgaria.

A Central News despatch from Paris states, on the contrary, that the Turkish ministerial council has decided to maintain the alliance with Germany and Austria-Hungary.

Prince Maximilian Chosen as German Chancellor

Council Meeting Took Place Last Evening in Berlin—Kaiser and Hindenburg Were Present—The Appointee is Recognized as the Leader of the German Moderates.

Canadian Press:

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 3.—Prince Maximilian of Baden, has been named German Imperial Chancellor, according to the "Zeitung Ammittag" of Berlin.

The Council meeting took place at the Chancellor's palace in Berlin last evening, according to advices received here. Emperor William presided, and the meeting was attended by Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, who had come to Berlin with the Emperor. Former Chancellor Von Hertling, Vice Chancellor Von Payer and several State Secretaries were in attendance. Prince Maximilian is heir to the throne of the Grand Duchy of Baden.

He was born July tenth, 1867. For some years he has been recognized as a leader of the Delbrueck group of German Moderates, and upon the fall of Imperial Chancellor Michaelis, Nov. 1, 1917, he was put forward as the Moderates candidate for the Chancellorship. His name, however, did not go before the Emperor, as Prince Maximilian objected for dynastic reasons. At that time there were vague rumours concerning Prince Maximilian to the effect that in Moderate circles there was under way a movement having for its ultimate objective the dethronement of Emperor William and the choice of Prince Maximilian as his successor.

Russians Will Find a Way to Win Back Territory

Promise Made by President of Petrograde Trade Union.

THE PEACE TREATY

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, (Via Stockholm), Oct. 3.—Russians will find a way to win back the territory controlled by Germany, President Zinovieff, of the Petrograd Trade Union, promised to-day.

"The Germans must evacuate Pskov," said Zinovieff. "We will find a way of retaking all territory Germany has so outrageously devoured. There is no reason to notice the Brest-Litovsk and other supplementary treaties, which are only of a provisional character. Comrade Lenine won't even take time to discuss them."

Thanksgiving Service Will be Held To-night at All Saints' Church

Rev. Canon Dixon, of Toronto, Will be the Preacher.

CHEQUES FOR THE PRIZE WINNERS AT PETERBOROUGH FAIR

Mr. F. J. A. Hall, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, will be in Mr. R. Denne's store on Saturday afternoon, October 5th, for the purpose of paying over the balance of the prize money to the winners.

Those who have not already called for their cheques are asked to do so Saturday afternoon.

U-BOATS OFF THE COAST

Two Merchant Vessels Received S.O.S. Calls Which Told of the Shellings.

POSITION NOT KNOWN

Special to The Examiner:

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Oct. 3.—Reports of a German U-boat in operation 100 miles off the Atlantic coast were brought here to-day by two merchant vessels. Both vessels reported they received S.O.S. calls, which told of shellings by a U-boat, but neither was able to catch the position or name the vessel under attack.

No Recourse for Consumer

Exhorbitant Profits Exacted in Ottawa.

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—The fact that Attorney General Lucas has declined to take any action in connection with the report of Dr. McFall, which charged by them, while the lowest profit making exorbitant profits on beef, bacon, pork and toast, has caused considerable comment here. It is alleged that the profits of some Ottawa restaurants and hotels run up as high as 1200 per cent. on certain food served to them, while the lowest profit recorded in nine cases is 100 per cent. The usual or average profit is 900 per cent. on bacon and roast beef, veal and pork. The Attorney General's contention is that the order in council dealing with the cost of living does not, in his opinion, apply to eating houses. It would then appear that there is no recourse for the consumer.

BUSINESS FOR THE MUNITION PLANTS

Good Volume of Business in Sight for Canadian Manufacturers.

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—That the Canadian manufacturing plants are fairly well assured of a goodly volume of munition orders during the coming year is the opinion here. It is considered quite certain that the Imperial Munitions Board orders will be sustained and that contracts, both British and otherwise will continue to be placed with Canadian plants. In fact, no impairment of industrial prosperity is anticipated.

Contracts during the year have averaged about thirty million dollars a month, which is just about equal to the Dominion's war expenditure, now approximately a million dollars a day.

The intensive fighting which it is now expected will be continued until the power of the enemy is shattered, will entail a heavy outlay of projectiles on all fronts.

Officers Elected by the Peterboro Lawn Bowlers

The Peterborough Lawn Bowlers' Association met last night and elected their officers for the coming year:

President—Dr. A. E. Hammond.
Vice-President—W. J. Oke.
Secretary-Treasurer—E. Walton.
Executive—Dr. A. E. Hammond, W. J. Oke, E. Walton, Thomas Brightman and T. C. Elliott.
Green Committee—W. J. Oke, chairman.

Compulsory Coal Rationing in Quebec

Inspection of Private Dwellings is to be Made.

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Oct. 3.—Coal rationing in the Province of Quebec is compulsory not voluntary, according to Mr. H. M. Marly, the Fuel Controller for the province. To see that the provisions of the Board are carried out, an inspection of both private dwellings and public places will shortly be undertaken and those found with more than their share on hand will be compelled to return their surplus to the dealers or suffer the consequences.

...THE BOARD OF TRADE.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY.

...Whatever may be the programme ...opted for the civic recognition of ...ober 9th as fire prevention day, in ...cordance with the proclamation of ...e Lieutenant-Governor, every house... ...lder in Peterborough should adopt ...programme of his own in connection ...th the event. A clean city means a ...y in which the first danger is mini... ...ed. There can be no doubt that ...ny of the disastrous fires that have ...curred in Canada have been due to ...e accumulation of rubbish in the ...ck yards, cellars and attics of pri... ...e's homes and mercantile houses. ...les of packing boxes and waste pa... ...are fire breeders and a menace ...at should be removed. Every citizen ...ld take a part in the observance of ...e prevention day by seeing that his ...emises are thoroughly clean. And ...re are a few warnings to remember: ...Don't allow children to play with ...atches.

...Don't throw away lighted matches, ...ars or cigarettes.

...Don't go into dark closets, bedrooms ... cellars, using matches or candles ... light your way.

...Don't use kerosene or gasoline in ...ting fires to quicken a slow fire—...may result in death.

...Don't use gasoline or benzine to ...an clothing near an open flame, ...ght or fire.

...Don't fill any lamp or stove with ...asoline, or coal oil while they are ...ghted. Keep the burners of all lamps ...d stoves thoroughly clean. Fill them ...ring the day time.

...Don't put ashes in wooden boxes or ...rrels. Keep ashes away from boards. ...Hot ashes will take fire by themselves, as frequently they have small bits of coal mixed in with them.

...Don't accumulate rubbish in premises, cellars or workshops, and don't deposit such materials in boxes or barrels unless it is to be removed at once; while awaiting removal, keep such material in covered metal receptacles.

...Don't use candles on Christmas trees.

...Don't keep matches in anything but a closed metal receptacle. Use safety matches.

...Don't have storage closets under stairways. Fires in these places cut off your main exit.

...Don't store oils, paints, grease or fats in the house. Keep them outside if possible. If you must have such things on hand, put them in a metal box with a lid on it.

...Don't put in the ash barrel such articles as greasy paper, oily rags or waste which has been used to wipe machinery. Such articles cause many fires. Burn these things immediately after use.

...Dont have lace curtains in vicinity of gas jets.

...Don't leave holes in the flooring, walls or ceiling. These enable fires to travel throughout the building when once started.

...Don't use celluloid or similar substances near any flame, gaslight or match. They are dangerously inflammable and likely to cause fatal fires.

...Don't have short gas brackets or place them close to woodwork or near curtains. Every gas jet should be protected by a glass globe or wire cage. Swinging or folding brackets are never safe.

...Don't pour gasoline or naphtha down the drain. Pour it on the ground if you must get rid of it. One pint of gasoline, naphtha or benzine makes two hundred feet of explosive vapour. One gallon of gasoline has substantially the power equal to 88 2-3 lbs. of dynamite.

...Don't set kitchen or heating stoves close to woodwork. Put a metal shield behind the stove. Leave a little air space behind the shield. Bright tin is the best protector if not placed right up against the woodwork.

...Don't use small gas stoves on wooden tables. Place metal protector under them. Be careful in using gas stoves, especially in lighting the oven, and, if the meat or grease takes fire shut off the gas and throw salt, not water, on the flames.

...Don't look for a gas leak with a lighted match or candle. You might suddenly find it—to your sorrow.

...Don't leave doors of heaters or kitchen stoves open unless you provide a wire screen or net to catch live coals which may drop out.

...Don't tamper with or extend electric wires; employ an electrician.

GETTING AFTER THE PACKERS.

"The Canada Food Board has seized and forced the sale of 392,800 pounds of creamery butter stored by the Dominion Fish and Fruit Company, Limited, of Quebec. The Dominion Fish and Fruit Company, Limited, without permission and in spite of remonstrance from the Canada Food Board, held a greater quantity of butter than was reasonably necessary to supply its own Canadian requirements, based on last year's sales to the ordinary trade"—commencement of a statement by the Canada Food Board.

One applauds. One has been paying 50 and 54 cents a pound for butter and 60 or 70 cents a dozen for eggs believing it to be submission to extortion. For it is still summer, the season of maximum production. One knows that when he is thus creating a gaping void in his pocketbook thousands of hens are merrily cackling in the barnyards, fattening on the drippings from the harvest wagons; that the chill rain which, here in the city, is necessitating heartbreaking inroads on the bin of precious coal, out in the country is keeping the luscious pasture grass up around the bulging udders of the kine.

Following the reasoning of the common people, one concludes that the cause of these cruel prices is that the packers and the cold-storers are about their reprehensible business of gathering in the eggs and the butter for the purpose of doling them out later, according to inter-storage agreement at multiplied winter prices. So one reads the opening paragraph of the statement of the Canada Food Board and applauds, for at one and the same time it confirms the able deduction as to the cause of the imposition under which one has been suffering and promises that the Shylock talons of the cold-hearted cold-storer are to be despoiled of their prey. The packers are to be punished, and an example given to others, by having their illegally stored butter taken away from them.

But alas for the elation and hope of the first paragraph! If the Canada Food Board's statement had only ended there! But it doesn't. The packer punished and an example set to others of his ilk? One had forgotten the quality of mercy in the hearts of the gentlemen of the Food Board—towards the cold-storers. The Food Board explains:

"Under the waste order, the Canada Food Board seized 392,800 pounds the company had in its possession, and gave it the option of having the excess butter confiscated or sold to the Dairy Produce Commission for shipment to Great Britain and her Allies. The company chose the latter alternative, and the butter is now on its way to Britain."

Instead of the Dominion Fish and Fruit Company, Limited, being made to suffer for its illegality, it is given a handy market for the goods it has been gathering in. One supposes that the Dairy Produce Commission is paying market prices for the butter it ships to England and so, that the storage firm will get its money back and a profit with it.

The purchasing agents of Great Britain and her Allies, in seeking supplies for overseas shipment naturally have been instrumental in having prices advanced to the Canadian consumer. One does not complain. But the cold-storers, by going out and buying more than they had a right to buy, ran the prices up on both Great Britain's agents and the Canadian public. And for having done so, their punishment is being compelled to sell their surplus stores to Great Britain's agents, presumably at the enhanced prices they have created! Pity the poor storage men!

One picks up the old market basket, takes one last mournful look at the remnant of the weekly honorarium, and sets out for By Ward for the half a pound of butter and the six eggs—taking along, of course, the morning paper containing the bright literature of the Canada Food Board for patriotic deposit in the receptacles of the Daughters of the Empire. — Ottawa Journal.

THE GOOD ROADS SYSTEM.

The attention of the members of the Peterborough County Council is respectfully called to the letter in this issue of The Examiner from Mr. Jas. Thompson, member for East Peterborough in the Ontario Legislature, upon the subject of good roads. At present Peterborough County occupies the unique if hardly enviable position of being the only county in Ontario that has not adopted the County Good Road System of the Ontario Government.

Mr. Thompson goes into the whole subject at length and even the members of the County Council will have to admit has made a very strong case for the good roads system. "Peterborough County is in the same rut it was in eleven years ago," points out Mr. Thompson, "and yet the advance in transportation and road construction in Canada and the United States equals the advance of the previous generation." There is no disputing this statement of the member for East Peterborough. The roads of Peterborough County are not in a condition to justify any boasting as to the superiority of the methods used under the present system. Any motorist can testify as to the need of improvement and yet thousands of dollars are being spent on the roads of the county each year. Surely the old method has been tried often and long enough to justify a change, and when every county but ours in the province has adopted the county system, it is self-evident that the latter must be giving satisfaction wherever it is in operation.

Mr. Thompson's communication covers the whole case thoroughly and will undoubtedly be endorsed by the vast majority of people who have occasion to do much travelling throughout the county.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Help the huts and hit the Hun.

The Hindenburg line is about as badly shattered as the Hindenburg reputation.

Why should firemen have to be on duty twenty-four hours a day? No other men are required to accept such conditions.

Some of the coal dealers have failed to tell the Fuel Commission where their supplies of coal went. There are at least one thousand householders who are prepared to tell where the coal did not go.

Even the hoarder is beginning to feel the pinch of war. His cellar is so full of fire water fuel and other things that he has no room to store the creamery butter that he would like to stow away.

Some of these days there will be coming along letters from the Canadian Siberian force saying, "it's cold here but you don't feel it" just like they tell you out west.

The Toronto police force is very modest in telling of its exploits. No one seems to want to claim the honour of having battered down disabled soldiered or innocent civilians.

Toronto raised $39,000 in the first three hours of the Catholic Army Hut Campaign yesterday. Peterboro people ought to give in proportion.

If there was some way of communicating the Toronto Star war summary to General Foch every day he would known just what his next move should be.

The Canadians have taken nearly 30,000 prisoners since August 8th. General Currie's men have played a noble part in the world's greatest battle.

It is said that the Turks have decided to "Stick to the end." They won't have long to wait.

AN UNDIGNIFIED NAME.

Why should it not be "La Grippe" again instead of "The Flu"? How can anyone "take" with due dignity a disease having such a name?

TO FARMERS

The Government has sent out an appeal to the Canadian people to buy at home. Why? Because when we buy abroad more than we sell we have to pay a premium on the excess, in addition to the price of the goods. This is known as an adverse rate of exchange. We have bought four hundred million dollars' worth more from the United States than we have sold to it. The rate of exchange is 2 per cent. against us. In other words, we are paying 2 per cent. on four hundred millions of dollars, or eight million dollars, which means that if we owe a great deal of money for goods bought we have to pay extra for the privilege. If we keep this up Canada will bleed to death. Please inquire into this matter at once.

With the news of General Allenby's great victory in Palestine, where the Turks have been surrounded and driven away in utter rout, comes the story of the wonderful part played by the horse. Once more the cavalry looms large in warfare, for it was only due to the mounted troops that this great victory has been made possible.

The British yeomanry, Australian light horse and Indian cavalry, all in magnificient condition, have demonstrated to the critics who declared the day of the cavalry is over that they should eat their words. The mounted men under General Allenby have just performed a feat that undoubtedly will take a leading place in military text books. The cavalry, in capturing Nazareth, covered over fifty miles in twenty-four hours, with interruptions of fighting at several stages of this journey. It took trained horses as well as trained men to accomplish such a feat.

Fortunately some of the wise heads in army affairs in the United States have come to realize the importance of the horse, and the men at the head of the remount division have come to the race track, the proving ground of the thorobred, to get the best of blood for the government breeding bureaus, which have been established. It is racing that gives the test that is so necessary, and, recognizing this, England France and others of our allies have never discontinued this branch of sport. Even Germany has continued its race meetings during the four years of fighting.

The best of thorobred blood has been brought from England and France in recent years to be mingled with that of America's best, and the improvement of the breed of horses in this country already is seen. Without racing this improvement would not be possible, and that is one good reason why racing should continue and thrive in the United States

Voice of The People

To the Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir: As a soldier's wife I would like to say a few words concerning the letters which have been appearing in your paper, from Mr. Gordon and Mr. Burnham. With all due respect to these gentlemen, I would ask them if they realize how they are bringing our names into publicity? I believe that they both have good intentions towards us — but must it be made to look (and through the press) as though we, who have given our all, have to ask for charity? I, for one, always had a habit before the war, yes, and since, of trying to pay up and look big; and have we got to ask for our bills to be cut down, because we are the wives of men who are fighting and suffering to keep our flag flying? I would ask, Do munition workers or others, have to ask for their bills to be reduced? No; and surely our men should be worth as much as they. It seems rather hard if we have to ask for cold charity. Our pay, with a struggle,takes us through from month to month (barring luxuries) but when it comes to doctors' bills, etc., I know as well as any that it is a pretty hard proposition —and I can speak from experience, for I have faced the music since I let my husband go "Over there." But I have pulled through alone, and am doing it still. I have quite a family, and therefore am drawing patriotic money; but even so, we with families have a pretty hard time to get along when there are extra expenses. I don't want Mr. Gordon—to think I resent his kindness towards us—far from it. We know he is acting with the best of motives, and I feel sure that any one going to him would get the courtesy due from a gentleman to a lady. But some of the public, who don't understand, will turn this thing if they can to their own advantage, and just think it is one more thing they have against us. Of course such people are not worth bothering about really, and perhaps I am sensitive; but I will give an instance of how many impressions are created.

One evening, some two or three months back, at a church meeting, during a lull in business matters, a member made reference to a dance which had been held on the previous Saturday evening in her locality, and which, as is usual, went on into the early hours of Sunday morning, she naturally and rightly resented. One man among our number looked up and said, "Soldiers' wives, I suppose!" I gave him one look, and all conversation for fully a moment ceased. Now, Mr. Editor, that man did not really mean to cast a slur upon us; he was just repeating an ordinary saying, and spoke without thinking. But are we supposed to put up with that kind of thing? If anything is done that is not just so there is a certain clique who put it down to "Soldiers' wives," while in reality they are in the minority.

If there are some among them who are inclined to be gay; then I say that their natures surely didn't change suddenly when their husbands enlisted. Those who were good, quiet and steady before, are the same now; being soldiers' wives cannot alter people's natures.

Then, again, I would mention that if there should happen (as I believe there has in the past) to be one who has gone wrong, and the case has required the publicity of the press, if it need, or must, go into the papers at all, if she deserves that, then, why not let the name be published? Don't put it in as a "Soldier's wife," and thus put us all under a ban. We are soldiers' wives, and I think we can speak for all when I say, "We are proud of it." I was proud of my husband when he enlisted; now he has been wounded twice, and I am prouder of him than ever. He has done his bit, and I've done mine, and if I consider that we have a right to be proud.

As I said before, I have faced trouble, sickness and worse since the children and I have been alone.

And now I want to ask Mr. Gordon not to take this in the wrong light. I know that he would do anything to assist any of us who went to him in trouble, and that what he says he means; but I have written this letter to correct just a few of the civilian citizens, who may not understand.

In conclusion, I would say that Mr. Dobbin has always been polite to me. I have never asked for anything out of the ordinary, but if I had to do so, I certainly would go to Mr. Dobbin, and I know that I would get courtesy from him.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I am, yours truly,
A Soldier's Wife.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: Our annual tag day will soon be here as it falls due on the Saturday before Thanksgiving Day, October 12th, and if the people only understood the need of funds to carry on our work there would be a large increase in the peoples' yearly contributions. Our Superintendent at the Shelter, Mrs. Reid, has been very careful in her expenditure, but there will be a considerable number of boys and girls that will have to be cared for even before the winter is on us. There is not much poverty in Peterboro, but still there are quite a number of neglected children in our midst that must be cared for by some one.

Your Agent has found his work steadily increasing every month, and if he could only tell the people more about the cases he has to deal with, they would better understand, but as he has to deal in secrets, and sometimes in scandals, he cannot reveal much. A large number of people know the Agent, and will accept his statement that from present appearance there will be a much larger number to be cared for in the Shelter this winter than usual; and therefore more funds will be needed.

Your Agent has done everything in his power this year to keep the children still in their homes, but in some cases after trying the mother out, the children had to be taken.

There will be a meeting of ladies on Saturday of this week to arrange for tag day, in the Y. M. C. A.

Geo. W. Powell,
Agent, C.A.S.

How to Rid the Skin of Objectionable Hair

(Aids to Beauty.)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of hairy or fuzzy growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every hair has vanished. This simple treatment can not cause injury, but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

LEFT FRANCE TWO WEEKS AGO

Peterboro Soldier Had a Fast Trip Home.

Private John Loudoun Patterson Smith is home after three years service overseas. It is two weeks since Private Smith left France to come to Peterboro. This remarkably quick trip home includes a delay of a day or two here and there on the journey. Three years ago Pte Smith left Peterboro for Montreal where he joined the 73rd Royal Highlanders Prior to enlisting Pte. Smith was associated with Mr. A. W. Archibald of this city as a plumber and steamfitter. After a short leave he will leave for Siberia on the general staff of the Siberian expeditionary force.

LOOK AT A CHILD'S TONGUE WHEN CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

THE ALTAR OF HUMANITY

The Altar of Humanity! On that the lives, the hopes, the happiness, of millions have been offered in this war. Here in Canada, 3,000 miles from war's fierce flame—that flame which has scorched and seared and devoured so many of our bravest, our brightest and our best—what are we offering on that Altar? What can we, what should we, offer on it?

At least we can do more than many of us are doing, forego more than many of us are foregoing. Too many of us, by far, are going our ways just as though no war were on — as though the Altar of Humanity asked no sacrifice from us.

But it does—and we must make it or be forever shamed. It asks of us the sacrifice—small enough it is—of ease, pleasure, luxury, extravagance.

What are you doing about it all? With the world in travail, you must cease pleasuring—cease from much of pleasure save in sternest self-denial. Live sparingly, simply, savingly. So only can you live nobly. The reward will come. Victory!

Norwegians Elated By Allied Victories

Christiania, Sept. 27.—The Norwegian public is following with outspoken delight the victorious advance of the Allies "Splendid news, today," means as a matter of course an Allied victory. The press no longer pretends to be neutral, as the Germans long ago violated Norwegian neutrality, by murdering Norwegian sailors, by bomb explosions and by fire.

In the first days of the war the "Marsellaise" was sung demonstratively in the music halls and British victories were cheered by the public until it was forbidden. Most Germans have now left the country, feeling that the ground is too hot for them and the remaining ones try to speak English in the buses and in the railways and restaurants. On the National Day the annual flag procession of all the schoolchildren, when passing the British Consulate, burst out in cheers and the teachers were unable to stop them.

It is proof of the solid sympathy for the Allies that Norwegians have been able to withstand the overwhelming propaganda from the German side. The German newspapers and press correspondence from Berlin arrive here in two days, while the British newspapers and letters from London journalists do not arrive here until three, four or five weeks after they have been posted. The German propaganda had actually succeeded in making the people here believe that the Americans could not arrive in time to prevent the defeat of the Allies. The marvellous sight of an American army carried across the Atlantic undisturbed by the U-boat war has raised a new spirit of enthusiasm.

The Norwegian people, generally, have suffered much during the war. It is true some people have gained millions, and wages have been raised for all classes, but the prices of living have raised correspondingly.

Norway may claim to have done two great things for the Allies. She was at first a great help in keeping Sweden from joining Germany, and she has, at the most critical time of the U-boat war, when even America stopped her ships from leaving the harbors placed about 2,000,000 tons of shipping at the service of the Allies. Almost all of Norway's products, consisting of fish, minerals and nitrates are exported for the Allies in return for coal and food.

Many people here think that Norway in this way has served the right cause, better than if she had joined the war, as that might have complicated the situation.

Half the original Norwegian fleet, with 1,100 sailors have been sunk by German submarines. The press says openly that the purpose of Germany in torpedoing neutral ships, regardless of their cargo and destination is not the starvation of England, as alleged, but the direct destruction of neutral tonnage to make her own mercantile fleet more valuable after the war. It is felt here that stronger measures should now be taken for the self-defence of Norway against the willful destruction of her mercantile fleet by the German U-boats.

In mending bric-a-brac, if possible get a piece of paper of the same shade and paste it over the crack to be mended. This will make it doubly strong.

Sufficient Steel For Automobiles?

CHARLES M. SCHWAB MAKES STATEMENT TO EFFECT THAT ENOUGH WILL BE PRODUCED

It is generally to be hoped that the statement made by Charles M. Schwab to the effect that sufficient steel will be available to enable automobile manufacturers to continue the making of cars is correct.

The term "pleasure cars" is entirely a misnomer. It would be just as accurate to call all wagons and buggies "pleasure" vehicles. The auto is as much a necessity as a wagon and more of a necessity than a buggy or carriage. It would cause a wild laugh if anybody termed a railroad an affair of pleasure as comparisoned with the old stage coach just because it hapens to move more swiftly.

Modern life has been largely constructed around the railroad and business has modeled itself on the faster transportation afforded by the railroad as compared wih the coach, canal boat and steam boat. The railroad is an absolute necessity in these days as compared with other methods of rapid transportation, and it will continue to be such until some better method of carriage appears. Then the railroad will go the way of thecoach and other vehicles which it has displaced.

Nobody expects to see the day when there will be no use for wagons, but their use is constantly diminishing and stranger things than their ultimate disappearance have happened during the last ten years. As for carriages, they are no more, comparatively speaking. On any of the great popular thoroughfares of the States, such as Fifth avenue, in New york, Michigan avenue, in Chicago, Euclid avenue in Cleveland, and Woodward and Jefferson avenue in Detroit, there is not one carriage in evidence, where there are ten thousand automobiles. When such a proportion is reached it may safely be said that the automobile has become a necessity of modern life, and should be judged as such.

The term "pleasure cars" that is so generally applied to any thing that is not a delivery wagon or a truck, is most emphatically inaccurate. For city and country transportation the automobile has long since passed out of the "pleasure" class. It is a pleasure to ride in them as compared with carriages and wagons, but there the description ceases to be applicable. They are not primarily for pleasure.

The country will suffer greatly in many branches of business and in the speed with which it is able to accomplish its work if there is to be a stoppage in the output of automobiles.

Labour to Consider Placing Candidates in the Field at the January Elections

Unions Will be Asked to Present Suggestions and Their Council Will be Guided Thereby—Coal for Suburban Neighbors Discussed Last Night.

DELEGATES SHOULD ATTEND

Through their delegates on the Trades and Labour Council, the local unions will be asked to suggest prospective candidates for the approaching municipal elections. It was proposed at the regular meeting of the Labour Council last night that the question of placing representatives in the civic contest should be first discussed by the unions, and their attitude will be reported to the Council at its first meeting in November. If organized labour decides to endorse any candidate, it was stated that he should be recognized, that is 'straight' labour man. Several of the members believed that the next elections offered the workingmen an excellent opportunity of securing a representation of which they have long talked. During the past year the labour sentiment has flourished, the unions have developed new confidence and strength, and it was pointed out that the present chance should not be passed up. However, it is for the individual unions to decide, and their suggestions will be received by the Labour Council one month hence.

Delegates Must Attend.

It was drawn to the attention of the Council that some of the delegates from certain Unions were not attending as regularly as they should. The secretary was instructed to write all locals urging that they be fully represented at the meetings of the Council, and that credentials be officially and regularly forwarded.

A Coal Question.

Out of Mr. Alex. Murray's report of the deliberations of the Fuel Commission arose the question of supplying coal to the residents of the suburban districts across the city's boundaries. Mr. Murray explained that there was only one copy of the Fuel Regulations for the Commission, and while others have been recently applied for, he had not had an opportunity of fully acquainting himself with the provisions of the Act. Hence, he had asked Mayor Duncan what action should be taken, and the latter had informed him that the Reeves provided for their own people.

Several members of the Council who live in Monaghan argued that the coal allowance for Peterborough was based on last year's shipments, and since local dealers had supplied the homes in Monaghan last year they were entitled to their share of the official allotment to this city. One delegate had purchased his coal in Peterborough for seven years, and another for thirteen, and they stated that the Commission should consider their needs to any temporary regulations of delivery that may be enforced.

Mr. Murray assured the delegates that the Commission had not yet dealt with this question, and had in fact only begun their work. He flung out a criticism of Ald. Edgar's administration as Commissioner, stating that the latter had failed to secure from the dealers the daily reports of their deliveries. As a result the work of the new Commission was held up until this information has been obtained. Mr. Murray's report was accepted, but he did not escape a mild criticism to the effect that he had shown a little weakness in asking the Mayor for direction.

"Is the Mayor going to dictate to the Commission," was one question directed to the Council's representative on the Fuel Board, but he had previously explained that the procedure was new to him and that he had not yet been able to obtain a copy of the Controller's Act, and digest its contents.

The consensus of delegates' comments was in favour of sharing the coal supplies with the suburban neighbours, but Mr. Murray remarked that they would be doubly assured of getting coal if they joined the city. They were paying no taxes to this municipality, but the city had to maintain its fuel yard and other facilities which the Monaghan residents on the city's outskirts accepted and expected.

"Woman Hath Her Reasons, Which Reason Cannot Know"

Ask a woman why she prefers Lipton's Tea, and the probability is she will answer "because" and let it go at that.

There are, however, cogent reasons for this preference.

The first is that Lipton's is the only Tea sold in Canada the quality and flavor of which is guaranteed.

We guarantee it because we grow it on our own plantations. We know the quality of our leaf, and we blend it, and pack it ourselves.

No other firm selling Tea in Canada can give this guarantee.

LUCKY HUN STARTLES PATROL BOAT LISTENER

(By United Press.)

London, Sept. 8. (By Mail.)—Cruising in the Mediterranean for some evidence to confirm a report that a German submarine had been destroyed, a British patrol boat obtained the confirmation in an unusual manner.

A listener, stationed below deck with a listening helmet clamped on his head, heard a loud scraping against the side of the ship.

He rushed to the deck and looked over the side.

Climbing hand over hand a German sailor was coming up the side, clinging to the hydraphone apparatus

Soft for Hun on English Farms

(By United Press.)

London, Sept. 11. (By Mail.) The Hun prisoner in Great Britain has a soft lot.

There's no worry about the high cost of living bothering this captured Fritz, and he has the rich harvest fields of England to utilize his idleness.

Great Britain employs on farms 22,000 Germans, practically all of whom were captured on the western front.

Of these, 800 live on the farms, their jobs ranking with those of the American farmer's "hired man."

The others are kept in clean camps under guard. Fritz is well pleased with his present lot and is content to abide on his present "job" until the fighting's all over. There's plenty of opportunity for the Hun to escape, but records show a comparatively small number of attempts.

Great Britain put the scheme of employing Germans on the land into effect in June, 1917. In the north, 15 agricultural camps were established, with 100 Huns to each camp.

Since then the number of camps has increased to more than 300 with a population of 20,000 and in addition, there is a considerable number employed on drainage and other work.

The leniency with which Britain deals with the prisoners is illustrated at Cheshire; 26 guards take 200 prisoners from the camp for distribution among the farms within a distance of three miles. As a mail carrier drops his letters, the guards drop a prisoner here and there, may be two, three or four at the next farm, and so on until all of the prisoners are disposed of. If there is more than three prisoners left at one farm, a guard remains with them. In the evening the guards return and collect the prisoners.

A first, the scheme of placing Huns on farms, met with a storm of protest, by women land workers, and as a result officials instructed county committees not to allow prisoners and women to work on the same farm. Where farms employing land girls, adjoin farms employing Huns, inspectors are stationed to prevent communication between the prisoners and the farmerettes.

At one place, a prisoner working unguarded in a field jumped over a fence and forced a girl, who was driving a baker's cart, along the land to sell loaves to him.

However, on the whole, the German war prisoner is content to let well enough alone and "play straight."

As a contrast to the generous treatment of the Germans in this country, recent reports from authentic sources show that Allied prisoners in Germany are being badly treated.

Towards the later part of May and at the beginning of June, several thousand Tommies, prisonered by the Germans, before and during the German offensive, arrived at Stnedal camp, suffering from dysentry, septic poisoning and hunger typhus. They had been forced to work behind the German lines on railways and shell dumps, under British artillery fire Many of them suffering from lack of food had to march six or eight miles to their work every day. Two hundred of these died at Stendal, soon after their arrival.

This is but one instance of thousands of cases of ill-treatment of prisoners by the Hune.

A Navy League Formed in Havelock

HAVELOCK, Oct. 3.—Havelock now has a branch of the Navy League as the result of Lieut. Carnegie's address in the I.O.D.E. Hall.

The attendance at the meeting was far from what it should have been, but those who were present were enthusiastic. The League will be given a charter and steps will be taken in the near future to solicit memberships at $2,000 per year.

Chairman—Dr. Thompson.
Secretary—Rev. Chas. Adams.
Treasurer—Mrs. F. Watson.
Executive Committee—Mrs. Vance, Mrs. Geo. Smith, Mrs. Wm. Hitchins, Mrs. W. Drinkwater. Others to be selected later.

Lieut. Carnegie's address was exceedingly interesting and convinced one that no branch of the service is more worthy of support than the navy, which has done and is doing such valiant work for the Empire, and which is our insurance against disaster and directly affects every class of the community, merchants, mechanics, professional men, farmers, everybody. The finances of the League are devoted almost entirely to the men and their dependents of the merchants marine, who are in receipt of small wages and who are not receiving government assistance or patriotic funds, like the men of the navy or the army.

IT DOES FRITZ GOOD TO SEE YANKEE ARMY

(By United Press.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 10. (By Mail.)—Getting captured is an eye-opener for most Germans. Prisoners admit it frankly.

In Fismette, the Americans took some prisoners, among them a Prussian lieutenant, who, as he came over American roads under guard, viewed everything with amazement.

He explained his bewilderment to an intelligence officer some miles behind Fismette by saying: "We thought the U-boats had practically cut America off from Europe. I thought there were almost no Americans in Europe, but I have seen nothing but Americans, American guns, American cannons and wagons all the way back. Does it continue that way?"

He was assured he would see Americans all the way to the prison camp, more than a hundred miles away.

"Well, it is too bad they do not know it over in Germany," replied the Prussian, "they would know, as I do now, that there is no use fighting longer."

Perfume Going Up On Account of War

(By United Press.)

Rome, Sept. 8. (By Mail.)—AS a result of the war Milady's perfume next year is to cost more than ever before.

Be that as it may, Bulgaria is the world's centre for the cultivation of roses for perfume purposes. The essence of roses from Bulgaria constitutes the basis of the great bulk of all genuine flower perfumes the world over. The cultivation of these roses is one of the chief industries of the Bulgarian peasant when he is not engaged in massacring his Serbian neighbors or performing other non-essential attrocities.

This year, owing to the fact that the great bulk of the Bulgarian peasant population is mobilized in the cause of Germany, the roses have not been given the cultivation and attention they need.

The entire production of essence of roses in Bulgaria this year has been only about 4,800 pounds. In ordinary times it averages 11,000 pounds. On account of the poor quality of roses this year it requuired about 60 pounds of roses to produce 5 grams of essence. If the roses had been properly attended to this quantity would have ben secured from 35 pounds of roses.

The women of the Allied countries are thus to have brought home to them a realizatioin of what it means to make war against Germany and her allies.

THREE DAYS' OUTING FOR LAKEFIELD AGENT

A Reward For Good Salesmanship.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 2.—As a reward for his success in a salesmanship contest, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Batten were the guests of the company with which he is employed for three days of the first Toronto Exhibition week. They stayed at the Carls-Rite hotel in Toronto and were given a splendid time.

On the first day the party went across the lake and visited Niagara Falls, returning via Queenston, where they dined. On the second day they were entertained at the Exhibition grounds with one of the best grandstand performances ever produced as the grand finale to a splendid day. On the third day the whole party were taken on two of the large sight-seeing coaches of the Provincial Motor Co. and were shown the sights of the city and suburbs.

In the evening they were entertained on their return to the Carls-Rite at a reception given by the company and the hostesses. A feature of the trip was a photograph of the agents and their wives and part of the office staff of the company.

Tomatoes Have Had a Hard Time Ripening This Year

reen Tomatoes Are Piled Up on Window Sills in Unprecedented Numbers.

Tomatoes have had a hard time pening this year with sunshine ore or less of an evanescent quality d showers of almost daily occurce. The result is that green tomaes are piled up in window sills in precedented numbers, turning eir faces yearningly towards Old Sol om whom they derive but little comrt.

Something must be done immediate to take care of the tomatoes which have failed to ripen properly. One of the best methods of hastening their ripening is to wrap each tomato in paper, and place it in a closed box or drawer located in a warm room. Another method is to pull up the vine before there are any signs of injury from frost and suspend it from the ceiling of a warm room or the cellar. In some cases, if conditions are suitable, the fruit will go on ripening until Christmas. A dark place is preferable, with the temperature ranging from 50 to 65 degrees.

SALT YOUR TOMATOES

Another good plan is to salt down your tomatoes. The process is exceedingly simple, and the only equipment needed is good, water-tight kegs. Salted green tomatoes may be made in to green tomato stew, stuffed tomatoes, salad and pie, or converted into mincemeat or chutney Green tomatoes packed in a solution of salt and vinegar are goods for salads and relishes. When taken from brine, they will be slightly disclored, but firm and of godd quality. Soak in cold water for two hours before using. For the brine allow 1 2-3 cups of salt to 1 gallon of water. This makes a 10 per cent salt solution, allow 3-4 of a cup of vinegar to 1 gallon of the salt solution.

STUFFED GREEN TOMATOES

Soak salted green tomatoes for two hours. Remove a thin slice from the top of each. Take out the seeds and fill the cavity with a mixture of boiled rice seasoned with onion, paprika and ground peanuts. Place the tomatoes in a baking dish and add sufficient stock to almost cover them. Cover the dish and bake slowly until the tomatoes are tender.

GREEN TOMATO PIE

2 cups salted green tomatoes.
2-3 of a cup of syrup.
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons butter substitute.
1 teaspoonful grated lemon rind.
2 teaspoons lemon juice.

Soak the tomatoes for two hours. Cut them in small pieces and cook until tender. Add the other ingredients and cooks the mixture until it is thick and clear

RIPE TOMATOES

Select medium ripe tomatoes, free from cracks or bruises, and pack in brine solution. Follow direction and your tomatoes will be firm and of good color when removed either from the brine or the salt and vinegar solution.

Ripe tomatoes preserved in the salt solution generally require soaking for two hours before being used. After this soaking the skins slip off easily and the tomatoes can be used as though fresh.

Ripe tomatoes preserved in the salt and vinegar solution require soaking for about thirty minutes. When used with fresh vegetables, they need not be soaked at all

"It Pays to Advertise"

Breathes there a man with soul so dead who never to himself has said "It Pays to Advertise?" His presence is invited at the engagement of New York's latest farce hit "It Pays to Advertise" due at The Grand next Monday, Oct 7. This is the farce that was the talk of the country last year, and comes to the city with several well known actors.

There's not the slightest question but that this farce has given the country one of its biggest laughs. If there is such a thing as a real laugh after all the possible laughs have been exhausted, "It Pays to Advertise" is the process through which this unusual formula is derived.

The latest farce hit is a business play and therefore appeals strongly to men. But the plot is also romantic enough to win enthusiastic approval from the feminine portion of the audience. The farce is from the pens of Roi Cooper Megrue and Walter Hackett, who have brought fourth one of the most laughable plays presented in recent years.

The play is the funniest combination of circumstances ever staged, but it is a practical lesson to those who do not believe it teaches the truth. Cyrus Martin quarrelled with his son and the latter goes into business in the new way, determined to succeed through advertising. He scores a big business, as any energetic young man is bound to do if he advertises carefully, and his skeptical father is glad to buy into the new firm.

"It Pays to Advertise" is one of those plays which cannot be told about in cold type. It must be seen to be appreciated, and that its local engagement may be considered highly important.

Home Problems Discussed by Dr. Honeywell at Last Night's Tabernacle Meeting

"It Is in the Homes of the Land That the Criminals Are Trained," Said the Speaker—Big Crowd at the Meeting—The Announcements.

The saddest criticism of any father is that a teacher in school should have any difficulty with that father's child.

A child who does not learn to obey his father and mother in the home, will not obey the teacher when he is sent to school. He will not obey the laws of society when he goes out into the world. He will not obey the laws of the land or of God.

It is in the homes of the land that the criminals are trained.

It's a pitiable sight to see a great big 225 pound man being bossed around by a little bit of a four year old boy.

You boys in Peterboro need most of all a real daddy to rule the household.

The parent or teacher who governs best punishes least; he who punishes most governs least.

If you are compelled to speak twice to your child you have lost your authority.

Authority and piety go hand in hand.

The greatest battle in the world is the battle of the nursery.

Your boy and girl will play "papa and mamma" in more ways than one. You will lead your child either to Heaven or to Hell.

King David may come to preach to you and an angel choir may sing your choruses, but you cannot drag a boy or girl into the church over a dissipated worldly father and a society dame of a mother.

Too many mothers in Peterboro are spending more time at card games and social functions than they are spending in prayer for their boys and girls to be saved from hell.

The time of life comes when each boy thinks he knows more than his father, mother or anyone else.

No home is a true home where the parents do not obey and fear God.

The large audience in the Brock Street Tabernacle last evening, which filled the main floor almost to the doors, there being possibly 1600 or 1700 in attendance, gave clear indications that the Dr. J. E. Honeywell evangelistic campaign is beginning to grip the citizens of Peterboro. The message was one which reached to the roots of our modern civilization. It dealt with the Home Problem or the Home and School Problem. In the audience were teachers from the staffs of the Normal School and the Collegiate Institute, and the public schools, several of whom at the conclusion of the address were heard to speak most highly of the points that have been made by the speaker, and to express the wish that they could be brought home to the people at large. Before the meeting closed the large audience stood and practically all present held up their hands, indicating a desire that they might benefit in their own homes in such ways as had been mentioned by Dr. Honeywell.

THE SONG SERVICE.

During the song service which preceded the sermon Dr. Honeywell asked different portions of the audience to sing the chorus in turn. First he asked all those under 25 to sing, then all those over 25; all those over 35, all those over 45; all those over 60, and finally all those over 70. The audience listened with breathless interest to see who at this age would undertake to sing in such a large hall, and were delighted with the lusty manner in which Mr. T. W. Robinson sang, apparently all by himself in the south part of the hall, and broke into applause when he completed the chorus. In this the choir joined.

THE SERMON.

Basing his remarks on Genesis 18: 19: "For I know Him, that He will command His children, and His household after Him," Dr. Honeywell launched into the discussion of the home problem. Possessing considerable dramatic power he succeeded in touching the deepest chords of the human heart, and made a deep impression on the audience. While all those present might not have agreed with all that he said everyone felt that that there was a reason behind all his remarks, and it seemed evident that the vast majority of those present agreed with him fully.

The child who does not obey his father and mother will obey neither social, civil nor divine laws. When God said, "Children obey your parents," he told the world where obedience originated.

HOW SHE DID IT.

George Stuart ,the great Southern evangelist, tells in one of his sermons of a lady who had raised seven noble Christian sons, with not a black sheep in the flock, and was asked how she did it. She replied: "I did it with much prayer and a good hickory.' Two better instruments were never coupled together.

He told this on one occasion down in Virginia, and a gentleman came to him at the close and gripped his hand and said, with tears in his eyes: 'Don't fail wherever you go to impress on the people that old woman's prayer and hickory method." He said: "I was the indulgent father of an only son. I was sitting by my fire one night after my boy had been sent home for insubordination to college authority for the second time. Wife said: 'Why don't you come to bed?' I replied: 'I cannot sleep.' 'Why?' she asked. I said: 'I am thinking about my boy.' She replied 'It is your fault; you have never controlled him and how could you expect others to do so" The words were like a dagger to my heart, but I knew that they were true. I sank down by my knees by my chair and said: 'Oh, God, if you will forgive me the past, I will control that boy in the future.' I slept but little that night. The next morning after breakfast I said to the boy: 'Come and go with me.' He was 15 years old. We walked out into the woodland together near the house. I cut a good switch and rehearsed to the boy his course of disobedience, and explained to him my own mistakes, and told him I had brought him out there to correct him for his disobedience. I told him to take off his coat. He replied: 'I won't do it!' I looked him in the face and said: 'My boy, I am your father; you are my son. I promised God Almighty on my knees last night that I would control you, and I will whip you here this morning or you and I will die in this woodland. Take off your coat, sir.' He saw in my eyes for the first time the spirit of authority. He drew his coat in a moment, and I gave him a sound thrashing, at the conclusion of which I said: 'Now kneel down with me.' We knelt together, and I told God of my own neglect and of my boy's wayward conduct, and promised God in the hearing of my boy to be faithful to my duty the remainder of my life, and prayed God's blessing on my wayward child. When we arose from our knees he put his arms around my neck and his head on my bosom. We wept together for a long time. Then he looked up and said: 'Father I will be an obedient boy from this time forth.' And from that day to this I have never had a care about him: he has been the most obedient child a father ever had. He is married now, an official in the church, and no truer, nobler Christian man walks the earth than my precious son."

O how many of our wayward boys and girls might have been saved from lives of sin and shame by Christian home training.

My closing exhortation to you is to get right with God and get right in your homes.

THE ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The announcements last evening were that at 3 o'clock this afternoon Dr. Honeywell would address a special meeting in St. Paul's church lasting until four o'clock. From 4 to 5, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon will meet all the boys and girls of the third and fourth forms of the public schools in St. Paul's church for a practice for the Booster choir. At 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon a special prayer service will be conducted in Trinity Methodist church. On Friday evening Dr. Honeywell will give his special sermon and lecture on the subject of "Achieving Success." A special invitation is extended to all the pupils of the Collegiate Institute and of the fourth forms of the public schools, to attend this lecture. It is understood that some of the teachers who heard last night's address are planning to use their influence to have a large attendance.

Rev. Mr. Webb, who is on the Allocation Committee, announced that on Sunday morning Dr. Honeywell will speak in the Mark street Methodist church, Dr. Dixon in Knox Presbyterian, Mrs. Dixon in Salvation Army, and Mrs. Russell in St. Andrew's Presbyterian.

The collection on Tuesday evening amounted to $25.64. As previously announced, as soon as the collections meet the expenditures the taking of collections will be discontinued.

American Food Administrators

Washington, D. C., Sept 27.—Increases in the cost of food during the last year have been greatly over estimated by laying too much emphasis on special cases, said an announcement by the Food Administration, which gave comparative wholesale costs of various articles of food for different periods of 1917 and and 1918. The actual wholesale cost of foodstuffs per capita during the second quarter of 1918—April, May and June—was $15.59, the statement said. This was an increase of 3.5 per cent over the per capita cost during the same period the year before.

No difference between the wholesale and retail prices was given, the statement dealing entirely with wholesale costs. A statement tonight, by the Department of Labor, however, said the investigations made over the country by its division of statistics showed that retail prices of food increased on an average of two per cent from July to August, and that during the year ending last August, retail prices advanced fifteen per cent

The Food Administration placed the total wholesale cost of all foodstuffs consumed in the United States during the second quarter of this year at $2,693,751,871, compared with $2,563,000,904 in the same period of 1917.

LOCAL VARIATIONS POSSIBLE

"While this is the nation's whole expenditure at the wholsale prices and thus clearly indicates the nation el trend," the statement said, "it does not follow that there are no food variations. In those sections where there has been great local increases in population there has been a disturbance of distribution and prices have increased to a larger per cent. On the other hand there are corresponding sections of the community where actual decreases or no increases have taken place.

"The cost of rent, transportation, clothing and other items of living have advanced several times as much as the aggregate in costs of foodstuffs. There has been more than a thirty five per cent increase in prices paid to the farmer, but also a reduction of speculation and profiteering and narrowed margins between farmer and wholesale prices under food regulation."

In its comparative lists of costs, the Food Administration placed the per capita cost of breadstuffs during the second quarter of 1918 at $3.32, or 9.3 per cent greater than during the same period in 1917. Meals, the largest item, cost per capita $8.91 or 20.8 per cent greater than in 1917. Dairy products, which cost per capita $5.88 were 6.3 per cent greater and poultry and eggs, at $2.49, per capita, cost 16.5 per cent more.

SOME DECREASES CITED

Balancing these, the statement said that vegetables per capita cost only $1.17 during the quarter, a decrease of 63.1 per cent, and sugar, at $1.79, decreased 7.4 per cent. A third decrease was shown by the smallest item in the bill of fare, fish, which at 23 cents per capita, was 6.0 per cent below the 1917 level.

Almost all kinds of fruit can be cooked together and made into very good marmalade. A little orange peel should be added.

"The Bird of Paradise"

The only play on the American stage to-day that deals with life on the Hawaiian Islands, those beautiful Pacific Ocean possessions of Uncle Sam, namely "The Bird of Paradise," will come to "The Grand" next Wednesday, Oct. 9, for matinee and night.

It was produced eight years ago by Oliver Morosco. The story is by Richard Walton Tully, the author of "The Rose of the Rancho," "Omar, the Tentmaker" and "The Flame," his latest effort. Mr. Tully lived for many years on the islands, and in "The Bird of Paradise" he has brought his audience in close touch with matters pertaining to them just before the annexation. He tells a story of love and intrigue, and although he brings the note of tragedy into the life of the little Hawaiian girl, Luana, who makes her mistake like many others of her sisters before her, yet redeems her error by her own self-sacrifice, also he shows many flashes of humour both native and American.

Laurette Taylor, Bessie Barriscale, Lenore Ulrich, Carlotta Monterey and Muriel Starr have been seen as Luana, and Mr. Morosco will now offer Miss Rita Romilly, his most recent "find," whose personality and talent fit her admirably for this famous role. She is considered the equal to any who have been seen in the part before. She is surrounded with a carefully selected cast of over twenty acting people, including a quintette of native Hawaiian singers and players, whose music is one of the chief charms of the piece. The stage settings are lavish in the tropical settings and colorings, especially the last act showing Mt. Kilauea, Hawaii's dreaded volcano in violent eruption.

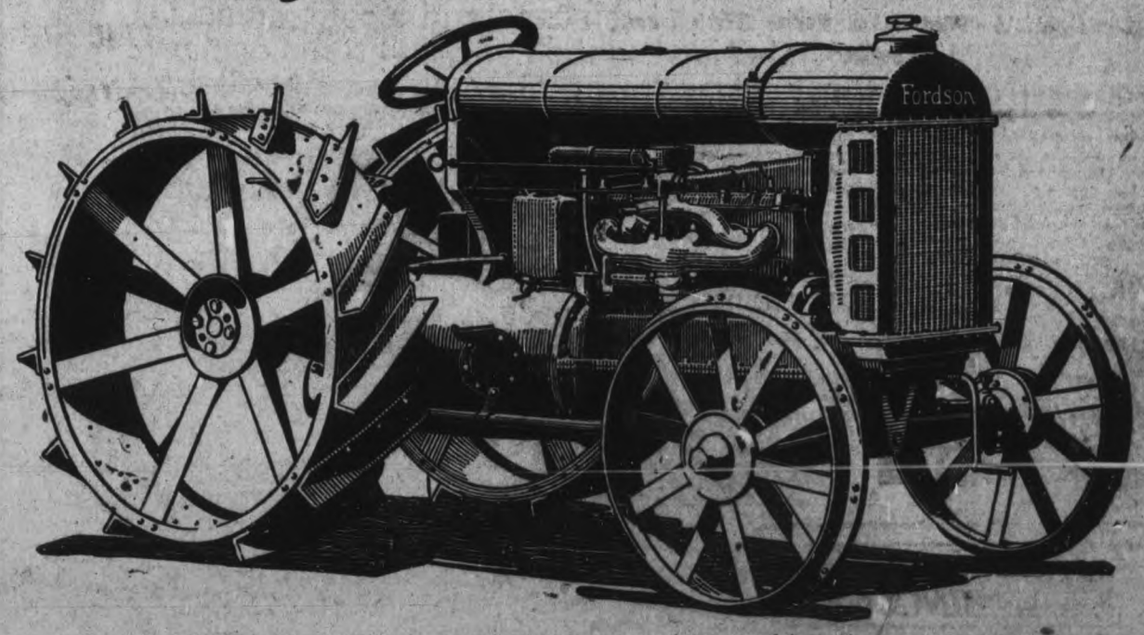
THE FORDSON TRACTOR

Doing Good Work on Local Farms



The above is a cut of the Fordson tractor which has recently created an unusual amount of interest amongst the farmers for farm work. This tractor came in for numerous favorable comments at the Ford tractor demonstration at Cobourg, and it has recently been demonstrated on several local farms by the Duffus Garage. Two of these worked on the farm of Sid Bailey, one mile south of Fowler's Corners, in Emily and on the farm of Mr. Fred Bent, immediately north of Omemee.

On Monday and Tuesday there were so many Ford Cars on the farm of Sid Bailey that in company with the tractors there was as much activity as is usually seen in the yards of the Duffus Garage on a busy Saturday. Those who attended the demonstration were agreeably surprised with the performance of the Fordson Tractor. Having regard to the fact that the handling of the tractor is more or less new to the operators, it is marvellous the quality of work that was accomplished. The land on the farm of Mr. Bailey has a liberal amount of stones, and it was surprising the excellent manner in which the tractor handled the plough under such conditions, and the excellent manner in which the plough did its work.

One tractor was operated by Ex-Mayor Duffus, who with his knowledge of motors, and being an expert ploughman—having taken several prizes at ploughing matches, the first at the age of 12 years—made an excellent showing with the tractor.

The Fordson tractor, which is operated almost identical to the Ford car, is remarkable for its simplicity and means of operation, and it is reported that it has ample power to do any kind of farm work. After completing the demonstration at Omemee, these tractors will be demonstrated near Peterborough.

FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE WEEK THE TRACTOR WILL WORK ON THE FARM OF JOHN T. O'CONNELL'S, OTONABEE, NEAR WHERE THE G.T.R. CROSSES THE KEENE ROAD, ABOUT 4 1-2 MILES FROM PETERBOROUGH.

SPORTING COMMENT

No sport makes a fetish of right-handedness as does golf. It seems that in golf anybody not in the dexter division cannot hope for better than mediocrity. There have been too many left side examples of the highest grade of expertness in other lines of sport for any particular worship to be attached to the right hander in preference to the southpaw. Baseball has had its Vaughn, Schupp, Waddell, Ruth, Cobb, Speaker and others too numerous to mention to establish the undoubted equality of the left hander in pretty much all departments of usefulness. Boxing has its Tendler; billiards has had De Oro and Cure to prove that left handers can reach the top rank; Murray and Wrenn have proved the class of the left hander in tennis; Heer, one of the best trap shots in the country, is a left hander and one of the best kickers football ever has had, Sam Felton, Harvard kicked with the left foot. The golf world, chained to its tenets more securely than any other sport, will be rocked to its foundations when a southpaw does win the championship.

The winning of the three-mile walk at the Great Lakes meet by Louis Labowitz, of the Pastime Athletic Club, New York, recalls memories long ago to old timers. It seems a generation ago, in any event there were nearly as many bridges across the East River as now, when Sam Louis Liebgold, wearing the historic Blue Brazilian Cross, the same club emblem, as Labowitz wears, were the cocks of the walk in heel and toe contests.

THEY NEED YOUR HELP!

If it were possible to take every Canadian out into the heart of this bloody struggle, and there, for one month let him experience the deprivation, sacrifice and suffering our dear boys are enduring in their great battle for the freedom of the world, this fund of $500,000 for their relief would be many times over-subscribed.

Have you ever missed a meal, been caught in a cold, drenching rain, fatigued, weary and chilled to the bone, and some one gave you a cup of hot coffee? Have you ever been in a strange place for hours and hours, in the broiling sun, sleepy, hungry, aching for rest, and some one took you in, gave you a place to sit, something to eat and a chance to sleep? Have you ever been homesick, lonely and "blue," and cheered up, "made over" by some old familiar music?----Then you know in a small way what "army huts" do for our brave heroes.

United States Vessel Lost

Canadian Press:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3. — U. S. S. Tampa, former coast guard cutter in the naval service, was lost off the English coast on September 26 with all on board, while on convoy duty. Ten officers and 102 enlisted men of the crew, one British officer and five civilian employees lost their lives.

The Tampa was sunk at night in the Bristol Channel and that reports indicate that she was struck by a torpedo while escorting a convoy.

SMALL DAILY SAVINGS SOON BECOME LARGE

A dime a day is $36.50 per year—get the habit and join Canada's Army of Savers.

Take ten cents a day, which means a deposit of three dollars every month. In ten years you will have saved $365, which will have earned $80.39 interest making a total of $445.36. This is the result of simply saving a single ten cent piece per day. As you increase the sum saved each day the value of steady saving is only strongly impressed. Fifteen cents a day, or four dollars and a half saved each month and compounded will amount to $668.18 in ten years. Of this sum $120.66 is interest earned. Twenty cents a day or six dollars a month will amount to $890.99, of which $160.99 is interest. These sums saved would scarcely be missed from the purse of the average man. If you are able to put aside twenty-five cents a day or seven dollars and a half a month, at the end of ten years you will find $1,113.75 to your credit. If you are able to make the daily saving thirty cents or nine dollars a month you will be worth $1,336.09. Forty cents a day or twelve dollars a month will roll up the tidy sum of $1,782.10, of which $222.10 is interest; while fifty cents a day or fifteen dollars a month will amount to $2,227.72, of which $402.73 is interest. Hence it is much to your profit to "despise not" the saving of small sums.

Now let us see what the systematic or rather progressive saving of dollar a week can do. In one year the fifty-two dollars saved will earn, at four per cent., seventy-eight cents in interest, making a working principal of $52.78 at the start of the second year. At the close of the second year you will have $107.07; at the end of the fifth year $285.86; at the close of the tenth year $633.65. In fifteen years this steady saving of a dollar a week would show a total result of $1,056.79. At four per cent. this alone would yield a return of $42.27. At the end of twenty years this kind of saving would total $1,671.69, while the first quarter-century would find you worth $2,197.92. This sum, if you then stopped saving, at four per cent. would earn $87.91 a year. If you kept up the saving of a dollar each week for fifty years you would accumulate $8,057.16.—Saturday Evening Post.

THE PRICE

There is a beating in the air these days; it is the beating of the wings of the Angel of Death. Hard beside us another beating, that of the heart of this nation in great sympathy with those who mourn. It is a grief and a sympathy that knows no creed, no caste, no necessity of personal acquaintance.

Canadians in general are a quiet people. Those left at home read and try to realize the truly wonderful part which their own men are taking in Armageddon. It is right that we should try to realize it. It is recorded that the British troops who relieved the Canadians who held the awful trenches during the first gas attack came on with the cry of "Canadians! Canadians!" That stand of our men has been repeated again and again. It is being repeated now. It can never be exceeded. Yet even as we throb with pride at the knowledge that these our own men have proven true to their British breeding, that they have placed the flag of Canada where the glory of the maple leaves forever enshrine it; that it twines its folds on the equality won of service with the meteor flags of our kindred, yet even at that moment of exaltation, a whisper comes. "The price, what of price?" The price is the casualty lists.

Shall the casualty lists do for those who wait what the foe never can do to our men at the front? Do we mourn as those without hope? It is not exactly for the golden youths that we sorrow. We haltingly realize that in their inheritance of the "vastly halls of death," they have come through a great life in that they pass everything for a great ideal, and their passing is more glorious than anything perhaps that the narrow confines of the common round can offer.

Our men had their day of counting the cost. They had also the vision of the entities of freedom and of righteousness which they were to be permitted to buy. And their decision was swift and true. So is the decision of those who wait. No little peace shall dishonor this Canada, whose enduring fame has been bought at an inestimable price.

Mistake not our grief. We would not have our men less heroes. We would grope forward rather and touch their warm, ever-living hands reached out to us from the intimate new eternity. It is but in the frail hours that we cry, "Absolom, my son Absolom, would God I had died for thee." The rush of the winds of dawn brings the message that they went ahead trusting us.

Canada carries on.—Manitoba Free Press.

Thrift of time will do more to give you an education than all the colleges.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

WRONG HORSE WAS SENT OVER THE TELEGRAPH WIRES

Not long ago you heard of a "wire-tapping" swindle every day.

Now you seldom hear of the "wire-tappers" and the crowd who used to make a business of fleecing the poolrooms.

It is not known what has become of them, but that they have given the rooms all over the country many a twist admits of no discussion.

Nearly all their coups have been told at one time or another, but there was one that so far as is known has never been repeated outside a select circle. It was several years and the plan was arranged in Chicago.

It was to be a killing and such it appeared in more ways than one.

It was not a case of "wire tapping" exactly, but the result was the same, and the poolrooms were the sufferers.

If you don't think this to be true, remember that at a rough estimate, over $220,000 was taken out of the place where they do business on the races.

And it was all done by bribing a telegraph operator. He simply had to report the winning of a certain horse, that did not win, as a matter of fact, and the rest was done by the gang.

It was during the winter and New Orleans was enjoying its annual winter racing season.

The scheme was hatched in Chicago and the animal selected was Royal Nettie.

Saturday was the day set and the men with the commissions were sent to every poolroom in the country. The opening price was taken and the only thing remaining was to get the news of the race.

It was not to be supported that the gang would overlook Chicago, and the two rooms run by Smith and Perry and Powers and O'Brien lost in the neighborhood of $50,000 apiece.

PRICE QUICKLY CUT

In the big Smith and Perry room on State St., in Chicago, a certain young man walked anxiously around until the odds were posted.

When the race came along the price was 20 to 1. He bet a hundred at that figure and a cut of 10 to 1 was the result.

"Give me another hundred at that price," he said and this also was accepted. The next minute the price had gone down 6 to 1, at which figure he bet another century.

This caused another cut in the price and 4 to 1 was the best now obtainable. But any price was a good one for this race, it seemed, and the young man continued to bet a hundred at a time, until the book would "Here comes the second betting," said the operator.

Royal Nettie was at 40 to 1. At this odds the man with the sure money wanted to bet another bunch, but he was told that if he desired he coud take it at the old figure of 4 to 1. This he accepted and was followed by the crowd of pikers, who would put their last dollad on the bottom price. It is needless to say the excitement ran high.

The race was called. Royal Nettie was nowhere until the stretch, when the operator shouted: "Royal Nettie fourth and coming fast."

THEN CAME THE EXPOSE

Then came the last call that Royal Nettie had won, then the operator called the place horses.

It was not a warm afternoon, but the young man was the first at the pay-off window, with perspiration rolling down his face. Evidently he had a few anxious moments.

From back of the screen came a voice saying: "Before we pay off this race, we will wait for the all-right call."

It was some time before the welcome news was received. It took some time to pay off the young man and it did seem as if the cashier endeavored to find all the small bills in the box.

In fact he needed more pockets in which to store his winnings, but he evidently found them, for in five minutes he was gone.

Ten minutes later it was discovered that both the first message, which reported Royal Nettie had won and the "All right" signal which followed were fakes.

At the same time it was learned that Royal Nettie had finished among the also rans.

Many were the investigations that were started by the telegraph company, but all failed to locate the offending operator.

The man at New Orleans got the sack, although entirely innocent. He had nothing to do with the sending out of the fictitious report, it being changed somewhere along the line.

It was after the Royal Nettie race that the telegraph companies got busy and established a system to prevent forever another occurrence of the Royal Nettie kind.

Few know what that system is, but one thing is a matter of fact, and that is that since the Royal Nettie stilling, no attempt has been made to tap wires or otherwise do injury to the poolrooms outside the ordinary course of business, which few find profitable on the odds furnished.

SPORTING COMMENT

No sport makes a fetish of right-handedness as does golf. It seems that in golf anybody not in the dexter division cannot hope for better than mediocrity. There have been too many left side examples of the highest grade of expertness in other lines of sport for any particular worship to be attached to the right hander in preference to the southpaw. Baseball has had its Vaughn, Schupp, Waddell, Ruth, Cobb, Speaker and others too numerous to mention to establish the undoubted equality of the left hander in pretty much all departments of usefulness. Only at other infield positions than first base and back of the plate would left handedness be a bar sinister. Boxing has its Tendler, billiards has had De Oro and Cure to prove that left handers can reach the top rank; Murray and Wrenn have proved the class of the left hander in tennis; Heer, one of the best trap shots in the country, is a left hander and one of the best kickers football ever has had, Sam Felton, Harvard, kicked with the left foot. The golf world, chained to its tenets more securely than any other sport, will be rocked to its foundations when a southpaw does win the championship.

The winning of the three-mile walk at the Great Lakes meet by Louis Labowitz, of the Pastime Athletic Club, New York, recalls memories of long ago to old timers. It seems a generation ago, in any event there weren't nearly as many bridges across the East River as now, when Sam and Louis Liebgold, wearing the historic Blue Brazilian Cross, the same club emblem, as Labowitz wears, were the cocks of the walk in heel and toe competition.

Alfred von Kolnitz, who used to play the infield for the Reds, is probably the first professional baseball player to win the rank of Major in the United States Army. There are two Majors among the magnates, the most noted being the widely known and immensely popular "Cap" Huston, of the Yanks, and the other is Percy Haughton, who headed the Braves before he resigned to go into the chemical warfare service. Incidentally, the number of professional ball players in the service, and, who, too, were in before the work or fight edict became operative, exceeds by a big majority the number who flopped to ship yards.

The nucleus of numerous varsity football elevens this season consists mostly of faded chalk marks, a rule book and the lingering perfume of last year's arnica.

Also on numerous gridirons fall styles in noises will not include the college cheer.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE A GREAT SUCCESS

For the second time the St. Peter's Dramatic Club played their "Nationality Minstrels" in aid of the Army Hut Fund campaign to a crowded house. The T. A. S. hall was filled to overflowing last evening and many were at the doors unable to enter, but willing to peak over the display of millinery in the room in order to get a view of the pretty girls and comical clowns. An entire new array of jokes were produced. Verne Morphet and Dan White especially made a hit in their coon roles. The songs were one of the strongest parts of the performance and "The Red Bordered Flag at the Window," sung by Robert Leonard, was especially enjoyed by the audience. The camp scene in the first part was very realistic with its camp fire, its big tent and rustic seats. The view into the Red Cross tent showing one of the Sisters of Mercy binding the wounds of an Allied soldier; the ghoul scene in which the hotel proprietor and the genial but shaking negro were unexpectedly interrupted by a ghost in the middle of a theatrical rehearsal were also greatly enjoyed by the audience. But the scene that brought the most applause was a tableaux. Each of the Allies was represented and a small light flashed on the flag as a sonnet telling of the deeds and virtues of that nation was recited. Then Britannia was shown in all of her wonderful glory, dressed in the crosses of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick, with the shield of Justice.

This is the fourth performance of the Nationality Minstrels. Bannizmore Hastings and Campbellford have been able to hear, see and pass judgment on the performance. Next week Cobourg will be able to hear the minstrels, which have drawn capacity houses wherever they go.

The proceeds of the Minstrels will be donated to the $500,000 Ontario objective of the Knights of Columbus campaign.

A GOOD COMBINATION.

(Wichita Beacon.)

General Horne was the first British commander to butt a hole in the Hindenburg line. General Horne and General Byng ought to make a pretty good combination.

PRODICAL WASTE BY BIG EARNERS

War Prosperity Has Led to Injudicious Spending—No Thought to Lean Years Ahead.

Side by side with a good deal of it is the same in other places, unthrift ness among us, just now. In the writer's immediate neighborhood in the East end of Toronto, and no doubt it is th esame in other places, unthrift is quite as much in evidence as is thrift.

It is surprising that this should be the case in this neighborhood, for it is one in which, only the year before the first year of the war, the people very many of them, experienced the pinch of dire poverty. Work was scarce. Many who had bought their houses could not keep up the instalments, or pay the taxes due on them. Many who lived in rented houses could not pay their rent. Yet although this was only between four and five years ago, many of the people who suffered most have already forgotten that then they went hungry, and, in most cases, almost starving. They don't realize that what then was may be again. They don't believe it. They think that the present boom—for wages are quite abnormally high—will last for ever.

BOUGHT TWO CARS

Here is a concrete case. A certain man who, four or five years ago lacked food and all the necessaries of life, is to-day making big money at munitions. He is not putting by a cent. In the three years and more during which he has been working on munitions, he has brought himself two cars. His first car didn't last long. He gave the poor thing no rest. When it was "all in" he bought another. Yet this man will cadge for clothes for his children, and send his children to the school dentist.

Now when the call is for economy, many women, whose husbands are making big money, are outrageously extravagant in clothes. One of them in the same locality is so in love with fine clothes that she was seen wearing a silk dress when scrubbing the floor. Until her husband got his present $50 a week job, they never had more than $20 a week to get along on. They have nothing saved (as she admits) and if the man was out of a job tomorrow, all they would have to show as resultant from their present prosperity would be a quantity of partly-worn fine clothes.

EATING THEIR EARNINGS.

Many families are literally eating up their big earnings. One that I know will give $9.50 for a leg of lamb for Sunday dinner. The father takes to work for his lunch, sliced ham bought cooked at a store, for which a big price is paid. The butcher who serves them says he could not begin to afford the expensive food they consume in large quantities.

War-time prosperity is just giving them a good time—for a time. What of the "lean years" that may be ahead? In cases mentioned, and they are typical of very many in this one neighborhood, no provision whatever is being made for then.

The Hohenzollerns are beginning to realize that it is one thing to start a war and quite another thing to stop it.

ONE-MAN POWER.

(Hamilton Times.)

It is seen that a single command on the war front means all the difference between victory and defeat. Under the old system Germany could move her armies to meet whatever blow was struck. Now she has to face united attacks from all quarters. For this change the allied world has to thank Lloyd George, who had the sense to see the need for the change and the courage to make it. One wonders now how a man like General Sir William Robertson could have opposed the change. It is a credit to Lloyd George that he had the nerve to dismiss Sir William when he stood in the way.

POLITICAL SANITATION NEEDED.

(Kansas City Star.)

The working conditions under which the German Imperial Chancellors are compelled to operate, must sooner or later become the cause of a scandal. Every man who has held that position since 1914 has been compelled to resign because of "failing health." Shorter hours, better housing, and more sanitary surroundings for Imperial Chancellors must be insisted upon in the peace negotiations.

KILLEN—MURPHY.

On Tuesday morning, Oct. 1st, at St. Martin's church, Ennismore, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Florence Evelyn Murphy became the bridge of John J. Killen, Rev. Fr. McAuley, parish priest, officiating.

LaPLANTE—KELLY.

Quietly yesterday morning in St. Peter's Cathedral at 6 o'clock the wedding was solemnized of Genevieve (Dot), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Kelly, Brock street, to Charles Frederic Laplante, son of Mrs. Thomas LaPlante, Rubidge street. Rev. Father Phelan performed the ceremony. The bride, who was unattended looked charming in a tailored suit of moose French charmeuse with a small hat to match, and carried roses. She was given away by her father.

After the wedding the bridal party returned to 206 Brock street where a wedding breakfast was served after which Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante left by the C.P.R. 7.45 for a short trip in the West. On their return they will reside on Charlotte street.

BROOKLYN PIERS, BIGGEST IN WORLD, OPEN OCTOBER 15

WASHINGTON, D.C.— Announcement was made by the construction division of the army that the big Brooklyn Dock and Terminal, which will be the largest in the world, is nearing completion. This huge terminal, which will cost approximately $40,000,000, was started May 17. About one-half of the warehouse space, one of the slips and one of the piers will be ready for use October 15.

This is one of the many permanent dock and terminal facilities which the government is constructing throughout the country to handle the immense war traffic and to furnish facilities for the American merchant marine after the war.

The Brooklyn terminal covers 60,123,400 square feet, of which 3,850,000 square feet is actual warehouse area. Each of the two buildings devoted to warehousing is 200 by 960 feet in dimensions and each of the buildings nine stories in height. In all there are four piers and five slips. The railroad yards terminals will accommodate 1,480 cars.

Berlin Admits Two New Evacuations

Berlin, via London, Oct. 3. — Lens was evacuated by the Germans on Tuesday night, the war office announced to-day. Armentieres was evacuated the same evening.

OBJECTIONABLE METHODS.

(Arizona Ace.)

The miserable miscreant, who assaulted us in the dark last night, using a club, naturally failed of his dastardly purpose. His work was entirely rudimentary, vulgar and coarse. We are indifferent as to whether we die with our boots on or off, but as we are living the intellectual life—and making money at it, too—we have a pardonable pride in wishing to shuffle off—if the shuffle is squarely up to us—with our brain block pristinely intact.

Peterboro Casualties

Son of Rev. W. L. H. Rowand Reported Wounded.

Rev. W. L. H. Rowand, of St. Andrew's Church, has received a cablegram informing him that his son, Lieut. Elmer McLeod Rowand, of the 20th Battery, C.F.A., was slightly wounded on September 2nd, but was remaining on duty.

DRIVER H. J. DEVEY GASSED.

Driver Harold James Devey has been admitted to No. 32 Stationary Hospital, Wimereux, suffering from shell gas. Driver Devey is the son of Mr. R. J. Devey, organist of St. John's Church. He enlisted when only 18 years of age in the 33rd Battery in Kingston, and landed in France in July 1916. In October, 1916, he was wounded at the battle of the Somme, and since then has been on active service.

PTE. WILLIAMS GASSED.

Mrs. Christina Williams, 549 Elm street, received word this morning that her husband, Pte. Jas. Williams, has been admitted to No. 2 Western General Hospital, Manchester, England, on September 22, suffering from shell gas. Private Williams enlisted in the 99th Essex County Battalion.

Fire Engine Was Hauled by Truck

Residents on Water street this afternoon were surprised to see the big fire brigade machine hauling the steam engine up Water street at a tremendous rate, with the siren blowing loud enough to wake the dead. Chief Grange thinks the time has come when horses can be dispensed with altogether and this afternoon's tryout was in the nature of an experimnt. Chief Grange reports that the experiment was a grand success and Peterboro will soon see the day when the old grays are put on the market.

GERMANS BEGIN TO "STRAFE" BULGARS

(Special to the Examiner.)

Amsterdam, Oct. 3. — The news of Bulgaria's unconditional surrender is now being published in the German press. It was admittedly withheld intentionally from public knowledge for a time because the German official world refused to credit it until the last moment.

"We are betrayed," is a sentence that conseqquently frequently appears in the newspaper articles. The Frankfort Gazette is the first to admit that the surrender is a direct consequence of developments on the western front and it describes King Ferdinand's reported messages of loyalty to German and Austrian emperors as constituting a psychological riddle.

The Cologne Volks Zeitung is deeply pessimistic regarding the future. "It would be unwise," it says, "to place any hopes on counter movements."

Late Despatches

2,000 Prisoners.

Canadian Press:

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Oct. 3. — Field Marshal Haig's forces are reported to have captured Ramicourt, Gouy, Le Catelet and Sequehart. More than 2,000 Germans taken prisoners to-day by the British.

In Palestine.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Oct. 3. — Australian mounted troops, operating in the region north-east of Damascus, in Syria, on Wednesday charged and captured a Turkish column. Fifteen hundred prisoners were taken and two guns and forty machine guns were captured.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT DEVELOPING OIL FIELDS.

Edmonton, Alberta. —To help meet the world shortage of petroleum products the Canadian government has undertaken a speeding up of the development of the Peace River valley oil fields where recent discoveries indicate commercial values on a huge scale. The matter has been placed in the hands of the reconstruction committee of the federal cabinet with power to act, and it is investigating through experts.

In the Peace River field at the present time fifteen rigs are drilling; one well at a depth of 900 feet is producing 200 barrels of oil daily, and another well of about the same depth is producing 105 barrels a day.

It is stated on the authority of the Dominion geological survey that there is something like a cubic mile of bitumen in the valley of the Peace, the presence of which indicates, according to the geologists, that there is a vast petroleum field somewhere along the Dakota formation.

Austrian Naval Base Destroyed by the Allies

Hospital Ship Was Allowed to Withdraw—Enamy's Second Line in France Is Being Opened Up—British Attack on Eight Mile Front.

ONLY SEVEN MILES FROM LILLE

Friday Morning Bulletins—

Rome, Oct. 4. — Britsh, Italian and American warships destroyed the Austrian naval base at Durazzo, on the Albanian coast. They allowed an hospital ship to withdraw.

FURTHER RETIREMENT.

British Army in France, Oct. 4. — Fires and explosions are reported from various sections in Flanders, indicating further retirement of the enemy.

ENEMY'S SECOND LINE.

French Headquarters, Oct. 4. —The capture of Challerange, to the northwest of the Argonne Forest, is opening up the enemy's second line.

FRENCH TAKE 2800 PRISONERS.

Paris, Oct. 4. — War Office reports say the French yesterday captured a total of two thousand eight hundred prisoners.

ADMIT WITHDRAWAL.

London, Oct. 4. — An Austrian statement says that Austrian troops have been withdrawn from Albania, and Berat has been evacuated without a fight.

ENTIRELY SUCCESSFUL.

London, Oct. 4. — An attack by British infantry and tanks on eight mile front north of Bony, was entirely successful, is the report of General Haig.

SEVEN MILES FROM LILLE.

London, Oct. 4. — General Plumer's army is reported to be only 7 miles from Lille.

Thursday Evening Bulletins:

IMPORTANT GROUND GAINED

With the British army in France, Oct. 3. — The British this morning launched fresh attacks on a six mile front between Sequehart and Bony, north east of St. Quentin. Ground of most important nature has been gained in this area. Further progress and substantial gains have been made in Flanders.

ENEMY OFFER RESISTANCE.

French Headquarters near St.Quentin, Oct. 3. — The Germans in retiring removed all the inhabitants from St. Quentin. The Germans continue to shell St. Quentin. Germans have brought up fresh troops between the Somme and the Oise in an attempt to stay the French progress. Their artillery fire is becoming more violent.

FALLEN BACK THREE MILES.

London, Oct. 3. — The Germans have fallen back three miles on their retreat along the Lens-Armentieres line.

60,000 IN WEEK.

London, Oct. 3. — For the week ending to-day, the allies have captured 60,000 prisoners and one thousand guns.

ORDERED TO LEAVE.

Washington, Oct. 3. — A report to the State Department to-day from Teheran says the Turkish forces in Persia have been ordered by Constantinople to leave there.

SMASH HINDENBURG LINE.

With the French Army, Oct. 3. — General Debeney's troops in the region of St. Quentin began a smash through the Hindenburg line over the entire length opposite that army.

WHAT WEBSTER SAYS

People talk about tones and half tones, when they mean steps and half steps. A tone is a musical sound. An interval between two tones is the difference between their vibratory values. To call that a tone is absurd. Yet it persists in musical literature. It only needs the rebuke of musicians to do it. BBut if musicians themselves countenance it, it will persist. Webster has this to ay::

"The use of the word "tone," both for a sound and for the interval between two sounds or tones is confusing, and "step" is preferred in careful usage."

"Usage" is a matter to be decided entirely by musicians in this. But common sense ought to dictate the proper use of words.

A relic of one of the most extraordinary surgical cases ever heard of is preserved in the Military Hospital at Plymouth. This is the heart of one Samuel Evans, a private grenadier in the 2nd Regiment of Foot, who died in the above hospital sixteen days after he had been shot through the heart.

GERMANS ARE HORRIFIED TO OBSERVE THAT THE ALLIES AIM AT GERMAN DISASTER

Enemy Military Critic Admits the Seriousness of the Situation—German Armies Are in a Dangerous Position.

LONDON, Oct. 4.— Writing in the Berliner Tageblatt, the well-known German military critic, General Ardenne, admits the seriouaness of the situation. He describes the strategy of General Foch as demoniacal and as aiming, not merely at the encircling of the German armies in all sectors, but to break through in every one. He says the most dangerous point is between the Scarpe and St. Quentin, and even here the situation might be satisfactory but for the sudden Anglo-Belgian attack on the coastal front.

Ardenne compares Marshal Foch's present operations to boring holes at five points preparatory to blasting with dynamite.

Allied correspondents describe the fighting, especially in the Cambrai sector, as the most severe and the most critical of the whole war. The allied victory is undoubted, the critics concede, but has been gained at great sacrifice. The Germans, it is reported, yesterday flung nine divisions between Cambrai and the Sensee, a portion of which front is held by the Canadians, and, in addition, their special marksmen detachments and machine guns every ten yards. Every attack was met by a German counter-attack.

The breaching of the rearmost positions of the Hindenburg line being Cambrai and St. Quentin seems to render a retreat from that line inevitable. It is described by experts as one of the greatest feats in the war. Praise is lavished on Field Marshal Haig's achievements, not merely in capturing a colossal number of prisoners, but in triumphing over the series of strongest defences and contributing largest of any of the allied army to make Marshal Foch's strategy a success.

To enumerate the benefits of thrift would be equivalent to enumerating the benefits of a sound body, for all that health is to the physical man thrift is to the temperamental and the material.

Thrift is all of prudence, economy frugality and industry—and "then some." Thrift is that instinct of the dog that buries the bone he doesn't want for to-morrow's want's; the instinct of the squirrel that knows nutting is out of season in winter.

Collided With an Automobile

Mother and Baby Were Thrown Out of Buggy at Bridgenorth.

BRIDGENORTH, Oct. 3.—Mr. Earnest McManus and his wife and baby were driving into the village on Tuesday night about 9 o'clock when they met an automobile without any lights lit. The two vehicles collided and the horse was badly cut and will be laid up for some time. Mrs. McManus and baby was thrown out and the baby was found lying on the engine of the car none the worse apparently. The buggy was turned upside down. The number of the car was taken and action will be taken.

A GOOD CROP

Mr. Aron Mann, a resident of the village, has the second crop of potatoes grown on the same ground. He took twenty-seven potatoes out of one hill from the size of a hen egg down to a large marble. They are a fine sample of potatoes of the White Star variety.

SILO FILLING.

The farmers around here are busy cutting their corn and filling their silos but the rainy weather is delaying operations.

COTTAGERS REMAIN

There are a number of cottages still in the Park Mr. Harry Wolf and Mrs. Wolf from New York intend to remain for a week or two duck-shooting.

Mr and Mrs. Eckle from Erie are still in their cottage and will remain for a part of October.

Mr. and Mrs. Felderman from Toronto, intend returning in about two weeks.

Mrs. McElhenny and family are still at Chemong.

SEWING DAY.

The Ladies of the Methodist Church have a day every week patching and quilting quilts which they find a ready sale for.

Mrs. Wm Ford of Toronto is visiting at the home of Mrs. J. N. Telford.

Mrs. Wm. Udy and daughter Lillie is on an extended visit to Mr. Morton Udy of London.

SCHOOL FAIR

The school fair was held in the pavilion in the park and was a great success. There were four schools represented and a fine selection of potatoes and vegetables of all kinds also some fine fowl and calves of different breeds. It was a day for the young folks to be long remembered.

Mr Andy Jobe has returned home from Owen Sound having attended the funeral of his father.

Gladstone Telford of Haileybury, was home on a visit to his parents for a short time.

GRAIN MARKET

The tone of the market continues to be swayed by the war news, with an occasional rally based on rumours that buyers for export were in the market. In the cash market there is still very little business doing, for the reason chiefly that there is little to do business with, the movements of the crops being so slow. The fine weather is expected to favour a freer movement in the country.

CATTLE MARKET

The market was again very dull and draggy, the commission men finding it very difficult to dispose of the poor quality cattle which have this week practically flooded the market. Prices are still decidedly easier than for the beginning of the week, and even at further concessions, many cattle were still left over.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS.
"I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Mr. W. R. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years old, had bronchitis and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for her and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

A TRIP IN NEW YORK

CHAPTER IV

Ruth Maddon was not abeautiful girl, as many consider beauty; her features were too irregular. She was tall and gracefull, with reddish hair (Brian called it Titian) and a face sporkling with intelligence and animation.

While Huth's education had been almost entirely conducted at home, she was better equipped than most girls. She spoke French and Italian fluently, was thoroughly conversant with the history and literature of her own country as well as as of other countries, and was almost an authority on the textiles and decorations used in famous buildings, as well as architecture of different vriod—a different education, erhaps, than that given most girls, yet a practical one in many ways.

Ruth also rode and danced, she drove her own car and could, if necessary, put on a tire. But she knew abcolutely nothing of housework, and less than nothing of economy.

"It would have been beter if I had sent her to a boarding school, perhaps," her aunt said to herself in the days after Ruth had promised to marry Brian. "She might have seen other attractive young men, and then not have been to easily won by Brian Hacket."

Thinking, perhaps, that if was not too late even yet, Mrs. Clayborne planned a trip to New ork, pretending that business called her. Ruth was delighted with the big town and all she saw, but Mrs. Clayborne, because of her long absence had lost track of most of her old friends and found very little chance to introduce Ruth to anyone who would take her thoughts from Brian. She did impres upon Ruth, however the need of money in a city. She purposely took her to the most expensive places, then, by contrast, to the cheaped ones. BBut Ruth's ideas regarding money were peculiar to her up-bringing, and these things her aunt did, hoping to impress her were liittle value.

THE CHIEF ATTRACTION

What Ruth DID enjoy, and fairly revelled in, was the shops—not the crowded floors, where women congregated around the bargain counters, or shoved and pushed each other to see hat was on sale that partiocular day; but the art galleries, and perhaps even more than the galleries, the interior decorating departments of some of the larger stores.

"Some of it is lovely!" she said in criticism, "but so much more could be accomplished if they would do thus and so." Then, I'd like to be in such a place. It would be lovely to be always handling new and exquisite things—to have some room to decorate in a different way, day after day—some house of different architecture to consider, and"—

"Come, dear," her aunt interrupted. This was not what she had hoped to do. And she did not like to see Ruth so enthusiastic over an occupation that took women from their homes. She had all the old-time southerner's dislike for a woman doing anything that brought her into to life of the great public. Home was made for women, and women for housekeepers, was one of her theories.

Ruth talked often of what she had seen in New York, but beyond that, few young men she had met emfy wshe was not impressed. She thought the few young men she had met, vapid and silly. She had not seen one as handsome as Brian. Her aunt had given her carte-blanche in buying and had made no attenmpt to direct her purchases. The result was that Ruth had taken homea trunkful of new clothes. Dainty, expensive negligees, fit only for her boudoir. Soft lace and silk underwear, which Mrs. Clayborne's laundress, with years of experience in doing such things, washed carefully between her hands; and one or two street gowns, which plain, were of the finest material, the most fashionable cut. Things were out of place, all of them, for the wife of a poor man.

AN UNVOICED PREDECTION

It was liks Mrs. Clayborne to allow Ruth to do as she pdeased about her clothes. She would not scrimp the child, not meddle in any way with what she spent. She had not, since Ruth was eighteen, and she had given her permission to buy what she pleased. Up to the last minute, she would pamper and indulge her. Then, if they did not get along, her child, as she always thought of Ruth, would come at once to her. Sh ewould part part from her kindly; she would even treat Brian well. But if the married, she would abcolutely eliminate herself, her support.

If Mrs. Clayborne hoped they would not get along; if she really thought this would hasten the time when Ruth would return to her, she gave it no expression, not even to old Rachel, who bemoaned her young mistress' leaving.

"Dis house'll be lak the grave when she is done gone," she wailed, "wid out no young thing lak her in it."

"There, Rachel! you must not go on so. It is natural for young folks to marry, and Miss Ruth will come home to visit, perhaps."

"I reckon she's mightily in love with him, to leave we uns," she moaned. "I don' know what old Rachel gawn to do wid'out her baby."

"I reckon I won't know what to do either," Mrs. Clayborne said, with a sad smile. "But we'll have to get along some way, Rachel."

"Yes, Ma'am, but we all gawn o ge mighty lonesome."

After Rachel hell cupsed, sighing, Mrs. Clayborne said o herself:

"Yes, we all will be mighty lonesome—until she comes back."

TRIBUTE TO OUR MEN.

Behaviour While Overseas Has Been Highly Praised.

The following has been received by the Militia Department at Ottawa from Sir Edward Kemp, Minister of Overseas Military Forces of Canada:

"The finest behaved soldiers that we have to deal with." This is the reply of an Imperial authority responsible for the conduct of all soldiers in London to the question "How do the Canadian soldiers conduct themselves in London?"

From time to time statements are circulated in Canada which tend to give the impression that all is not well with our troops overseas. One time it takes the form of criticizing the Pay Corps; another time it is Argyll House; still another time it involves the behaviour of the troops at the front, or in London or elsewhere. They are always at variance with the fact. It is a coincidence that those who start such tales are usually men who have failed to make good, and who desire to pull the rest of the world down to their level.

The Imperial authorities are not only unanimous about the splendid conduct of the Canadian men, but pay equal homage to the administration of the Canadian overseas forces. "We could not ask for better, abler, and straighter men to work with. The Canadian headquarters do everything possible to assist us, and, of course, we reciprocate, the results of co-operation working out most successfully."

Regarding the conduct of the Canadian troops in both England and France, it will be reassuring to know that the percentage of crime is less than it is in the army in Canada, and than it was in towns in the Dominion before the war.

A very senior British officer just returned from long service in France ,and now connected with the Provost Marshal's staff in London, in reply to a question regarding the conduct of troops, said: "I don't know much about your men here, but they are without doubt the best troops we have in France—best behaved, smartest and keenest."

The Canadian Provost Marshal and his staff have the reputation for being an exceedingly able and efficient force. They work on the basis that a man is innocent until the evidence proves him guilty. An old offender fares hard with them, but a boy gone wrong is given a sharp jerk up. He is shown the error of his ways and the right course is pointed out to him.

But the number of criminals and wrong-doers in the Canadian force is remarkably small—smaller according to the Imperial authorities than in any other force—even the Guards. This, it is said, is largely due to the splendid moral standard pertaining in our army, but the work done by the provost marshal's department is also an important factor.

Major G. S. Clifford, of Calgary, Alta., A.P.M.; Capt. R. Corbett, of Victoria, B.C.; Capt. J. F. Wandless, of Toronto, Ont., and Major F. C. Turner (temporary attached), of British Columbia.

All members of the staff (with the exception of two clerks), who are not physically fit, had overseas service. Some of them have as many as four "wound" stripes.

Canadian Nurses Two First Citizens.

The first women to win American citizenship under the new law granting immediate naturalization to army nurses are two Canadians, Miss Laura Master, a native of New Hamburg, Ont., and Miss Leola Colquhoun, of Morrisburg, Ont. They received their citizenship papers at Camp Dix along with a class of almost 1,000 foreigners called into the American nation at the close of the ceremony conducted in the Liberty Theatre by Federal Judge J. Warren Davis.

"The Government is granting you this honor because Americans believe there is no more noble work than that in which you and your associates are engaged. We are glad that you are going to do this work under the Stars and Stripes and as Americans," Judge Davis told the nurses.

The young women while training at Chicago Hospital enlisted as American nurses and were assigned to the base hospital here. Miss Master decided to become a nurse after seeing every able-bodied man among her relatives, to the number of fifty, enlist in Canadian or American forces.

The Disconsolate Bard.

Within his attic, cold and bare,
A poet labored at his lay.
He ran his fingers through his hair
And often paused awhile to stare
At something that seemed far away.
His face was deeply lined with care.
He toiled for little pay.

No piece of gold or silver gleamed
Within his flabby little purse.
No sunlight through his window streamed
What time he smoked his pipe and dreamed
The dreams from which he wove his verse.
At last he heaved a sigh that seemed
To be almost a curse.

He munched his crust regretfully.
A frown o'erspread his pallid face.
"Beshrew the bitter fates," said he,
"That in their anger sentenced me
To labor in this dismal place!
Oh, that I had the skill to be
A star at second base!"

—Chicago Record-Herald.

Then He Went.

The young man who never knew when to go home was silent. So was the young woman.

"You should say 'A penny for your thoughts,'" suggested the delayer.

The young woman bid a yawn.

"I should say a mouseng," she corrected.

"A mouseng! What's a mouseng?"

"It's a Japanese coin," she replied. "It takes 224 of them to equal a penny."

Then he went.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Canada's Debt.

Canada's net debt at the end of June amounted to $340,975,167., a increase during June of $12,179,39. Revenue on consolidated fund account during June amounted to $23,469,304, as compared with $21,828,580 in June last year.

War expenditure for June, 1918 on capital account was $14,391,523 as compared with $9,250,611 in June last year. In this regard, however it is pointed out that the totals are merely those of accounts which have actually passed through the books during the period.

For the first three months of the fiscal year ending June 30 the revenue totalled $67,070,724, as compared with $68,322,589 for the same period last year.

The economical man spends judiciously, buys wisely and wastes nothing. The industrious man works hard and saves hard; the miser hoards; but the man of thrift earns largely, spends wisely, plans carefully, manages economically and saves consistently.

"Advertise NOW, and never let up."

WITT K. COCHRANE, the well-known Advertisement Agent, thus cleverly "sizes up" the advertising situation:—

"It is inconceivable that any merchant or manufacturer should cease—or even curtail—his advertising just when the country is on the threshold of a tremendous double harvest—the NATURAL harvest of our own unprecedented crops and the LOGICAL harvest consequent on the war in Europe.

"It is under such conditions as these that advertising reaches the zenith of its power. The man who listens to the yellow pessimist and sits back to 'wait for things to settle down,' is yielding his common sense and enterprise to the baleful influence of idle sentiment, and actually starving the goose that lays the golden egg.

"Keep the columns of the daily newspapers bristling with your announcements and thus open wide your doors for the flood of prosperity that is bound to rush in. Make hay while the sun shines. We won't have another chance like this in a hundred years."

"I have noticed with a feeling of profound disgust the conservatism and business cowardice that have set in in America since the Kaiser threw down the guage of battle. We, the very people who will logically profit by the war abroad—and profit immeasurably—are acting as though we were at war ourselves. We are talking blue things, pinching the pennies cutting down our advertising and forcing prosperity to stand back.

"As a matter of fact this is the very hour when we should rush into print to a greater extent than ever before, because, unless the earth opens and swallows us up, there will be greater prosperity in America this fall than ever in the history of the Republic.

"We are not at war. We are not likely to be. The warring world looks to us for its supplies and we can't keep posperity down no matter how hard we try.

"If my advice is worth anything to you business men, it is here conveyed to you in six words:

"ADVERTISE NOW, AND NEVER LET UP."

"Advertise NOW, and never let up" in "The Examiner."

Covering capacity and Durability furnish the Correct Measure of Paint Cost

This White Lead is invariably used in the manufacture of B-H "English" Paints

TO arrive at true painting economy, you must base your calculations upon "how much will it cover" and "how long will it last"—rather than on "what is the price."

There is a certain retired merchant of a Western Ontario city who owns a Summer hotel in Muskoka. A friend asked him last Spring if he was contemplating repainting his hotel for this season.

"Well, no," was the reply, "I did think of giving it a coat because it is eight years since it was painted—but when I came to look it over, I found it unnecessary. You see, I used B.B. on that—so it looks almost as good as the day it was painted."

The B.B. he referred to is Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead.

This accurate report of an actual conversation is the strongest way we know of to emphasize the durability of Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead. As to its fineness, its whiteness, ask any painter of experience. They all know B.B. to be the pure article—absolutely unrivalled for covering capacity and durability—therefore, the lead to buy for true economy.

IIVEN A FARCICAL TRIAL

ry Has Now Come Out of Russia elling of the Death of Czar Nicho- as — The Cynical Bolsheviki Pretended to Give Him a Hearing Before He Was Finally Ordered to Be Shot.

WHAT is said to be an authentic report of the last moments of Nicholas Romanoff, ill-fated ex-Czar Russia, is being circulated in a mber of American newspapers. e account is from the pen of Fath- John, of the Uspensky Cathedral. o through influence with a cer- powerful Bolshevik, was permit- to attend Nicholas after he had en removed from the monastery at bolsk, where his family remained, d placed in closer confinement at other place whose name is not entioned. As spiritual adviser to e former head of the Russian urch, Father John attended Nicho- at the trial that preceded his exe- tion and stood near him after hear- his last words, when the execu- ners fired their volley into his al- dy senseless body. It is said that ther John later offended the Bol- eviki by denouncing their tyranny, d had to flee to Siberia, where he now in hiding. His report of the ar's end was smuggled out of the untry, and eventually reached the nd of a priest in New York.

The Czar was roused from his bed one o'clock on the morning of July by a Bolshevik messenger and told at he was required to attend a urt being held in the town hall. icholas had a premonition that he as on his way to his death and was eatly agitated. Nevertheless he essed himself, and, accompanied by e guard, entered the judgment hall. e tribunal before whom he appear- consisted of seven judges, the pre- iding officer being Comrade Kyrill, former stable boy at the Imperial lace who was banished because he istook the monk Rasputin for a afer and insulted him. Associate atices were a saloonkeeper, a for- er laborer, a lumber dealer, and a ormer student who had spent six ars in exile. The prisoner was aced in the dock, and the Chief ustice said: "Mr. Nicholas Alexan- rovitch Romanoff, you are accused having plotted to overthrow the ee Government of the people of ussia now prevailing, and having ade efforts to establish a rule of error as before."

To this Nicholas replied in a embling voice: "The charge is a e. I have never plotted against the eople of my country, never. I've ved always, since my abdication, nder your guards." Here the pris- ner's emotion overcame him, and he ould say no more. Then one of the udges, glancing over the court-room, enerally enquired: 'Does any one f you, comrades, wish to act as a awyer for Mr. Nicholas Romanoff?" t this there was a chorus of hoots, nd one learned brother shouted: The former autocrat knows the law nd can defend himself without a awyer." The prisoner, having no more to say, there was a whispered onsultation among the judges, and hen, after a short interval, it was announced that he had been tried and ound guilty, and that the sentence of the court was that he should be hot. The crowd cheered at this, and the judges, who had been having unch, lit their cigarettes and the proceedings were over.

The fainting Nicholas was taken n charge by two guards and thrust nto a carriage. Father John was able to accompany him, and the vehicle set out into the country. Although Nicholas was handcuffed he contrived to get a jeweled cross from his neck, and begged one of his warders to see that it was given to his son, and that his last greetings should be sent to all his children. The cross was taken, but whether it ever reached the Czar's son is extremely unlikely. After a long drive the carriage turned off the main road and stopped on a hill surrounded by pine trees. Here the judges had gathered, and with them a considerable company of Bolsheviki officials. A post had been driven into the ground. Near it was a wooden bench upon which the prisoner sank. He was given a cup of water and told that sentence was to be carried out immediately. He begged for a few moments to speak with Father John, and this slight boon was granted.

With his last words the former Czar implored Father John to give his blessing to his family. The fate of his children tortured him. He called God to witness that he had done the best he could for his country, but said that he had been cheated and abused by those upon whom he relied. He predicted that Russia would never thrive under a democracy, least of all under Bolshevikism, but that a free, intelligent monarchy was necessary for his country. "Have mercy on my wife and children. God help Russia," was his last words. He was seized by four guards and carried to the post, where he was tied. Then on a signal, the Red Guards fired a volley into his body, and twenty bullets pierced him. So endeth the chapter, according to the veracious chronicle of Father John. Whether there is such a person as Father John or such a cathedral as Uspensky we do not profess to certify, and must confess to a certain robust incredulity concerning about ninety-nine per cent. of the stories that have come from Russia in the past century. However, there is nothing inherently improbable in this account of the Czar's last moments, and so we give it for what it may be worth.

A ROYAL GRAFTER.

Court Appointment Brought Much Cash to German Empress.

Some piquant revelations of the Kaiser's efforts to raise money for himself are given by Miss Edith Keen, who spent seven years at the German Court.

Miss Keen was engaged eight years as a dresser to Princess Leopold of Prussia, the German Empress' sister, and during her service she met many great personages of the court, including the All-Highest himself. She only returned to England after great difficulty. "You know too much!" she was told.

In 1908, writes Miss Keen, the Kaiser was getting into financial difficulties. Many of the household accounts had not been paid for some years. The Kaiser had a heavy personal overdraft at his bankers.

"Ultimately, the Kaiser relieved himself of all his pecuniary embarrassments by the sale of some of the royal estates at Potsdam.

"It was at this time that the habit sprang up at the German Court of very wealthy people paying large sums to obtain for their daughters some sort of a position about the court either as a maid-of-honor or lady-in-waiting to the Empress. I heard that in the season of 1910 four court appointments brought $175,000 for the Empress.

"I was told by the Princess Leopold that one lady paid the German Empress $50,000 to be allowed to accompany the Kaiserin to the British Court on the occasion of the last visit of the Emperor and Empress to Windsor Castle.

"Royal warrants were sold at high figures, as much as $5,000 being paid by some tradesmen for a warrant, though some of them never, as a matter of fact, got any royal custom.

"Invitations to great court functions and ceremonies could be bought almost by anyone who cared to pay the price for this honor. A thousand pounds was the usual fee for an invitation."—Tit-Bits.

The Elephant's Legs.

The legs of the elephant differ from those of the more familiar large animals in the fact that the ankle and the wrist — the so-called knee of the horse's foreleg — are not far above the sole of the hind foot and forefoot — resembling man's joints in that respect — while the true knee-joint, called "the stifle" in horses, instead of being, as in horses, high up, close against the body, strongly flexed even when at rest, and obscured by the skin, is far below the body, free and obvious enough. In fact the elephant keeps the thigh and the upper arm perpendicular, and in line with the lower segment of the limb when he is standing, so that the legs are pillar-like. But he bends the joints amply when in quick movement. The hind legs seen in action, resemble, in the proportions of thigh, foreleg, and foot, and the bending at the knee and ankle, very closely those of a man walking "on all fours." — Family Herald.

CAVE-DWELLERS.

During their sojourn along the Aisne, before their expulsion last year, the Germans at certain points of their line sought to make themselves comfortable in huge caves and quarries. Some of these they fitted with furniture and even with elaborate wall decorations, in their endeavor to make things homelike. After the French advance had swept the unwelcome guests many miles eastward, the French soldiers, as well as civilians, explored the caves and quarries, to which, in some cases, names have been given recalling the temporary occupation by the enemy. Among such strange dwellings are the "Caverns of von Kluck," in the Aisne region, a visit to which is described in an article published in a recent issue of the French magazine La Renaissance.

With his guides the author of the article groped his way forward from the dark entrance into the caves, keeping his hand on a rope which, fastened outside the entrance, assured the return of the explorers to daylight provided they did not let go of it. They went very slowly, trying not to arouse the rats which all through these former German "homes" were far too plentiful for comfort. As they proceeded they swept the walls with lights, making visible numerous inscriptions and pictures which the departed tenants had left there.

Some of the inscriptions related to the rules and regulations formerly in force in these subterranean dwellings. "Only for officers" was one calculated to keep the common soldier away from the domain of his haughty Prussian overlords. Outside of one set of dark chambers hollowed out from the rock, was the forbidding sign "Munition room," coupled with explicit orders to regrain from smoking in the "danger zone" beyond the entrance, leading to storerooms of grenades and gunpowder. When the French explorer penetrated into these recesses there was still a strong smell of saltpetre about, and boxes were piled up on every hand. Prudence advised them to grope their way back along their guide-rope to caverns less suggestive of sudden death.

They saw a police station and a prison, each appropriately labelled in German, and bearing on the walls elaborate inscriptions made by the prisoners, expiating in these cells far from the light of day offenses against Prussian discipline. They also found a part of the caves given over to a field hospital, with a neat sign on the wall setting forth that "Dr. Ruediger Stoss, Wound Physician," had his office thereabout. On other parts of the walls were scribbled joking allusions to each other from German soldiers, among them one describing Pte. So-and-So as a "poacher."

One Teutonic artist who signed his name with a great flourish whiled away the hours underground before the French ousted him and his comrades by drawing the German battle fleet proceeding under full steam to—London!

"The Isle of Britain," remarks the French writer who discovered this masterpiece, "looked like an infinitesimal point compared to the gigantic armored ships of the Kaiser."

Another marine artist left behind pictures of equally formidable German squadrons overwhelming Havre, Cherbourg, Bordeaux, and other French ports. Scattered among these productions were pompous inscriptions alluding to "The German Sea," etc.

At some places signs announced, "No loud talking"—presumably because of the proximity of officers' quarters. "Deutschland, Deutschland uber alles" was inscribed nearby beneath a picture of a musketeer waving a gigantic German flag over the universe.

Often the explorers stumbled over empty bottles—there were any number of them in the caverns—showing that the invaders had not hesitated to make free with the wine of France.

Among the many boches besides von Kluck who at different times sojourned in these cave dwellings were the Grand Duke of Meckenburg and Gen. von Freytag, who later devastated the region about Noyon and Ham.

The passage by which the visitors returned to the upper world bore the name "Road to Heaven."—New York Times.

"Does a Hen Sit or Set."

"Does a hen sit or set?" That question was the cause of a heated argument between a young man and his fiancee.

"She sets," was the reply. "How do you know? What makes you sure of it?" she asked. "Well, a hen sets and you sit," he said with some pride.

But the girl wasn't satisfied. She wanted to know why. "Because, sitting is an act of motion," he explained. "Yes, yes," she answered quickly, "and setting?" "Why, that's different; that's what a hen does," he told her. "Why can't a hen sit and a man set if they want to?" she wanted to know. "Because," he explained, "set is an intransitive verb."

She said a hen didn't know anything about an intransitive verb, so it couldn't be possible. So he threw up his hands. "Ask the hen and be convinced," he said with some heat. And now they are on the outs.

TO FARMERS

The Government has sent out an appeal to the Canadian people to buy at home. Why? Because when we buy abroad more than we sell we have to pay a premium on the excess, in addition to the price of the goods. This is known as an adverse rate of exchange. We have bought four hundred million dollars' worth more from the United States than we have sold to it. The rate of exchange is 2 per cent. against us. In other words, we are paying 2 per cent. on four hundred millions of dollars, or eight million dollars, which means that if we owe a great deal of money for goods bought we have to pay extra for the privilege. If we keep this up Canada will bleed to death. Please inquire into this matter at once.

Travelling on a Narrow Gauge in France and Belgium

British Official Photograph—Crown Copyright Reserved.

THE light railway has contributed greatly to the success of the Allies' operations in France and Belgium.

The narrow-gauge is the "friend" of the tired soldiers coming out of the front line trenches after a long time knee-deep in mud and slime.

The narrow-gauge, in the building of which many Canadian Pacific Railway engineers and "gangers" have contributed, has been a real boon to the armies on the western front.

Every returned soldier speaks in terms of praise of the work carried out by the Canadian railroad troops.

I remember well one particular night travelling over the narrow-gauge because my horse could not be located, to reach the battalion billets. I had been acting as adjutant this trip, and the medical officer and I decided to "go out" of the line after the departure of the men who were to be relieved early in the evening by another battalion of our brigade. Well, we had planned that our horses be at a certain point at the foot of Vimy Ridge at a certain hour. But the Quartermaster's orders to the grooms miscarried—unknown to us.

About two o'clock in the morning we, the medical officer and I, left the trench system and made for the point decided upon, and where our horses were to be waiting for us. But we could find no trace of horses belonging to our battalion.

After waiting around under shell fire for half an hour or so, we decided to "carry on"—to walk to the billets, some 10 miles away.

Well, we dragged our weary limbs along and climbed to the top of Vimy Ridge, hoping to find our horses the other side. But we were surely out of luck that night. Every other battalion had horses there waiting for the battalion staff, but ours could not be located.

There was but one thing to do then—walk! We did not at all relish the idea and curses long and strong were showered on the missing grooms.

But after a time, down in the valley, we struck that wonderful little road—the narrow-gauge. My, our hearts were cheered somewhat, but was there any train running at that hour of the morning? we asked one another.

So, instead of striking the road again, we took a chance and continued along the narrow-gauge tracks towards the junction. After a time we heard voices and a party of men, marching on the road, struck the track and were soon hurrying along towards the junction we were heading for.

We hailed the officer in charge and we ascertained that they were late for their train, but hoped that a train had been held up. Well, the medical officer and I hurried along behind the party and half an hour's tramp along the track brought us to the junction, and what did our hearts good was the sight of a miniature train still alongside the platform—ready to pull out!

We did not think any more about the horses gone astray, but climbed immediately into the rear truck, where we found some of our own men who had reached the junction after the main body of the battalion had "pulled out" for billets.

We sure did bless the narrow-gauge that night, for a tramp of another eight miles after a tiresome tour in the line with little sleep would not have improved our already very ruffled tempers.

Soon we were away, the little engine "puff-puffing" away in great style along the valley—to rest!

I did not take long to settle down in the truck. All the trucks on these narrow-gauge roads are open, as they carry troops and munitions, and supplies. But a Standard Sleeper on the C. P. R. could not have been more inviting under the circumstances. The night was cold and I was overheated by the tramp over the ridge with all kinds of paraphenalia strapped on to me, but, notwithstanding, I curled up in a corner of the truck and soon was fast asleep! Tired, but happy, and dreaming of loved ones far away across the Atlantic.

When I woke, day was breaking, and I was cold and stiff, but the engine was still puffing away. We were out of the valley and rumbling along familiar spots which made us feel good, for we were nearing our place of rest.

At last a dry spot to stretch our legs! All due to the narrow-gauge—built by Canadian railwaymen!—E. C. R.

The Difference.

Two negroes, one in heaven and the other in hell, held a discourse. Said the one in heaven: "What do you do down dere, Sambo?" "Oh," replied Sambo, "I shovels coal for 'bout an hour, sticks my horns through a steel helmet and loafs around. What do you do up dere, Mose?" "Well," answered Mose, "we polish up de harps, den we push down de sun, hang out de moon and put up de stars." "How long does you work, Mose?" "'Bout eighteen hours a day." "Ain't dat pretty long?" "It is dat, Sambo, but you see we is so short o' help up here!"

Mother Goose.

Perhaps the most famous woman that ever lived was Mother Goose. Other women, particularly a few bad ones, have enjoyed celebrity, but she achieved immortality.

She is called Mother Goose because that was her name. For she was a real person, and dwelt in the city of Boston. She lived in a little one-story house with a roof that sloped almost to the ground — just such a house as one might expect Mother Goose to occupy — not far from the Common.

The house vanished long ago, but the church in which she was accustomed regularly to worship still stands. It is the famous Old South Church.

Her maiden name was Elizabeth Foster. In fact, she was an old maid, twenty-eight years of age — quite elderly for an unmarried woman in those days—when, in 1665, she met and became the wife of Isaac Goose.

She had children and grandchildren, and it was for the latter that she wrote her rhymes, which were first published by Thomas Fleet, her son-in-law, in Boston, in 1716.

Mother Goose died in 1757, aged ninety-two.

YOUNG PRINCESS BECOMES MARTYR

Rupprecht of Bavaria Selects Another Wife.

REASONS ARE DIPLOMATIC

Princess Antoinette Is to Be Married Into the Half-mad Reigning House of Bavaria, and the Wedding Is Expected to Cement Luxemburg to the German Empire.

THE unhappy little country of Luxemburg, which offered no resistance to German arms because it had none to offer, sees itself treated as feudal property in the marriage of Rupprecht of Bavaria to a sister of the reigning grand duchess. But Germany makes one more psychological miscalculation. The German family of Nassau, which came to the throne of Luxemburg in 1890, has never been popular there, and the young grand duchess, clerical, reactionary, Germanophile, is tolerated by her subjects only until such time as the retirement of the German army of occupation shall leave them free to drive her from the throne and establish a republic under French protection.

With the exception of a small aristocratic and clerical court party the people of Luxemburg are politically progressive and violently anti-German. They observed with dislike and alarm the cunning infiltration from their great neighbor into their own small country, fostered by a pro-German Government which preceded the world war by many years. Once the war broke out they fled in large numbers to France and England, there to live in exile or enlist in the Allied armies rather than to work at home as slaves for the benefit of the German conqueror.

From Aug. 1, 1914, when the first German force crossed the Luxemburg boundary, the mind of the people of the grand duchy was made up as to the rights of the present struggle. Clear as sunlight was the course to pursue when once they should be rid of the Germans. The grand duchess and the court party they now tolerate because they must. When the Germans go those will go too, along with all the undesirable furniture of the invader. As a wife for Prince Rupprecht the Princess Antoinette may do as well as any other girl who marries into the half-mad reigning family of Bavaria, but as a link between the people of Germany and of Luxemburg the marriage contract will prove no stronger than many another scrap of paper.

An Old Law Discarded.

The old law of "every man for himself" seems to have been tumbled into the discard, and men work and die now, not for themselves, but for democracy—the right of the other fellow to live his life. To this end the rich and poor, the exalted and the humble labor together, performing all things needful. No longer is any necessary thing labelled "menial," and every man is for the time at least "his brother's keeper." Who would have imagined a year ago that so much could have been so quietly accomplished in a single twelvemonth?

So far we have gone along the highway of progress and toward a new world — so much for having been scared stiff and for once in our lives brought face to face with fundamental realities. — The Country Gentleman.

"I SUFFERED SEVEN YEARS"

Was Eventually Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I suffered for seven long years with a lame back, irregularities and pain. I had one physician after another but they did me no good. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and gave it a trial and in a short time I felt benefited and am now feeling fine, and without weakness or pain. Many of my friends have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and been helped by it."—Mrs. MARGARET NESS, 1846 E. Hazzard St., Philadelphia., Pa.

Women who suffer from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, sideache, headaches or "the blues" should not rest until they have given this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

"Rally the Moderates"

"RALLY the Moderates" is the political motto of a veteran in the war for human progress—John Morley. For four years he has been in retirement and has put a bridle on his tongue. Even in the much-admired recollections, which he published in the interval, he was silent about the war and about world-movements. But the proposed governmental reforms for India have called him from his retreat and led him to speak out again. He recently attended a meeting at the National Liberal Club, in support of the Montagu plans for a larger measure of home rule in India, and made an address which, to judge by the fragmentary reports in the press, was full of John Morley's old wisdom and passion for liberty.

What summoned him back to the fray was undoubtedly the violent attack which had been made upon the projected Indian reforms. They had been denounced by Conservatives and damned with faint praise by too many Liberals. The London Spectator had pronounced judgment against them in its finest ex-cathedra manner; and the Saturday Review had poured out its scorn upon amateur and faddist tinkerers with the Empire. The press in general was apathetic or cold. The public was indifferent, or absorbed in other things. So John Morley listened to the call to leave his study and utter a word in favor of the principles in which is rooted the promise of a wide extension of self-government in India. He himself has a record as an Indian reformer. When Secretary for India, he put down open sedition with as stern a hand as any Tory, but was ever seeking to conciliate native opinion and give it fuller expression. In 1909 he brought about the representation of India on the Executive Council by an Indian, and introduced other reforms which were then as stiffly opposed by the high and drys in England as the Montagu proposals are to-day. But no one would undo at present what Lord Morley did for India; and he himself declares that the plans of 1918 are the direct descendants of the achievements of 1909. "Not being in the list of Millenarians," he said drily, "I never said that our reforms would put a stop to agitation. We never said we should satisfy the political hunger of India."

John Morley did not, apparently, commit himself, except in principle, to the Montagu scheme for India. The details he was content to leave to time. He foresaw the possibility of an Indian Parliament, though when it would come and what would be its form and powers, he declined to predict. But of the irresistible sweep and assured progress of the movement for human enfranchisement, in India and everywhere else, John Morley is just as confident in his sagacious old age as he was in his salad days of radicalism. "Nobody could believe," he said, "that all the great tides of feeling and passion now sweeping over the world were never going to pass over India." The most irrational thing which could be imagined would be India saying: "We are out of this; we don't want anything." No datum for the British statesman could be more positive than the fact that there were powerful bodies of Indians with a political hunger which it was the business of the Government to satisfy.

This did not mean that John Morley was ready to go with any rash extremist who came along. He declared that his constant cry, when he and the Viceroy of India, Lord Minto, were putting reforms into execution, was: "Rally the moderates." That would be his advice now and always. There could be no certainty or security in change unless it commanded the support of moderate men. This is obviously just as true of Russia as it is of India. Lord Morley made no specific reference to what has been going on in Russia, but he might have found in it striking confirmation of his doctrine. There is a folly of impatient radicalism, just as there is a stupidity of dogmatic negatives on all innovation. The safe way of the true reformer lies somewhere between the extremes. In Russia, the Bolsheviki would not have it so. Instead of rallying the moderates, they massacred them. The result, which is now declaring itself in the failure of unwinking and ferocious extremists, was inevitable from the beginning, to any one who knew anything about human nature and history.

Gen. Foch and the Bible.

The great Gen. Foch, in a letter to Dr. Geo. W. Carter, general secretary of the New York Bible Society, expresses appreciation of the Testaments sent to soldiers by saying that "the Bible is certainly the best preparation that you can give to an American soldier about going into battle to sustain his magnificent ideal and his faith." The society had given nearly 250,000 copies of the Scriptures to our soldiers and sailors. —Boston Transcript.

SINGING AS IMPORTANT AS COMPOSING AND WE ALL CAN SING.

The famous Henry Ward Beecher said of Charles Wesley's hymn "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "I would rather have written that than to have all the fame of all the kings that ever sat upon the earth." Such is a commendable wish. It puts the right value upon things. And yet thousands of people who never can nor ever will write a song that will influence people even to any moderate extent could give pleasure and do untold good to their fellowmen by singing the songs others have composed.

Singing, that is the actual interpretation of a song is equally important as the composing of it. A little Welsh boy went to London, got on well and became a man of affairs. One evening he went to hear a great singer. Her singing seemed to him a living echo of each person's inmost thoughts and feelings. The liquid notes not only filled the air with melody but spoke to the soul of every man and woman. To the selfish it seemed to say 'drop pour self-seeking"; to the untruthful, "be true"; to the sorrowful it whispered "be comforted" and to the impure it said "be pure." The great man felt himself strangely moved. It carried him back to the days of his childhood. It spoke to him of the sea, of the crags, of nature in all her freshness. It reminded him of Mifanwy his sweetheart when a little girl in a ragged blue dress and bare feet. But the words of the song died away. The singer left the platform, yet this man in the audience still and rigid, filled with old memories and a desire to live a better life.

Yes, the singing of a song is just as helpful as the composing of it. A dispirited young man was walking along a village street one quiet summer evening. There came to his ears the full rich voice of a girl singing "Come, Thou Fount of Every Blessing" Robert Robinson's great hymn. The voice compelled him to stop. The words came to him with a powerful appeal. Try as he would the sweet voice haunted him and the words kept coming back to his mind. As a result a complete change took place in his life.

The influence of a voice aised in song is not confined to our foremost vocalists. Many on ordinary singer does more than he or she ever dreams of in dispensing cheer and comfort to those around them. Isn't it worth while to take up singing? Isn't it a worthy aim to want to have Canada a nation of singing people? In these days of anxiety and strain let us each say with Clinton Scollard the words of his little poem noticed recently in Life:

Give me to sing a valiant song, I pray,
Without a note that shall its cadence mar;
One that shall mount to greet the sun by day,
By night the listening star!

A song with courage keyed in every chord,
A flaming song to kindle and inspire;
One that shall stir the hearts of men, O Lord,
With patriotic fire!

One to be like a trumpet in the dawn,
Or one of sacrifice, should need be,
If so it lift the soul, and bear it on
To heights of victory!

Women Keep Lighthouses.

Women are entering in this time of war many occupations hitherto monopolized by men. Miss C. Dixon, of Rosseau, Ont., and Mrs. Leo Melanson, of Church Point, N.S., are the first in Canada, however, to enter the lighthouse service. Miss Dixon, who is 21 years of age, has just been selected by the Civil Service Commission to succeed her father as lightkeeper at Rousseau. Mrs. Melanson, who is a widow, has been appointed lightkeeper at Church Point, N.S. It was found by the Civil Service Commission that the salaries paid in these positions were not large enough to attract men applicants in the present time of labor shortage.

Crooks Worked Scheme.

A brand new get-rich-quick scheme unfolded at Vancouver called for a carpet sweeper as the principal prop. Canvassers represented that for $2 they would transform any ordinary carpet sweeper into a vacuum cleaner. The sweepers were taken away, returned freshly varnished, and the money collected. The injunction was given not to use them for a few days "until the glue had well set." In the two or three days the gang had fled. The vacuum is in the pocketbook of the trustful ones.

FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up, and the skin is left soft and velvety.

CENSOR PROVED VERY POPULAR

Lord Decies' Very Unusual Experience.

HE HAS PROVED IMPARTIAL

Lady Decies Who Was Known Before the War for Her Charm and Her Tact, Is Sharing the Popularity of Her Gifted Husband In Both England and Ireland.

LADY DECIES is sharing just now something of the popularity that has come to her husband in the Old Country. She has been well known for a long time as a possessor of charm and tact, but came into the limelight more than even when Lord Decies became chief censor of Ireland. Seldom can a person burdened with the duties of an important censorship lay claim to any considerable degree of popularity, but Ireland possesses a press censor who is really popular even with the men whose writings he is compelled to blue-pencil and criticize. The Irish press censor is Lord Decies, and all classes of Irish newspapermen appear to be agreed that he is the right man for the place.

Lord Decies' censorship office is located on two upper floors in a building on Grafton street, Dublin—above a barber shop and a billiard-room. Irishmen hate ceremony and unnecessary formality and Lord Decies is not in the least pompous or ceremonious. He is always ready to meet and talk with the men whose "copy" he censors, and when the business of the moment is finished, he is ready to chat with them for a few minutes on the favorite Irish topics of sport and horses, on both of which subjects he is an expert.

The key to Lord Decies' success as a censor, however, is probably that he has succeeded in convincing all classes of Irishmen, whether Sinn Fein or Orangeman, of his absolute impartiality and fairness to both sides. One of the best tributes to his popularity is that he is occasionally made the subject of newspaper jokes. He has pasted on the walls of his office some of the extraordinary letters and clippings which have reached him. In several of them he is jocularly addressed as "His Royal Highness, the Lord High Executioner of Copy, Dublin."

Effect of War on Pulpit

FROM seventy-five to ninety per cent. of the future ministry are wearing khaki, handling guns or carrying stretchers. This is the estimate of George E. Robins in the Christian Guardian, restricting his survey to Canadian Methodists, but implying something of a wider-spread application. The question naturally arising is, "What new contribution will these soldier-preachers make to the college, church, city and country?" Methodism, which speaks in this case, is recalled as a faith that has "always emphasized personal experience," and the writer in the Guardian easily forsees that "the unique personal experiences of the boys during this war will prove an inexhaustible collection." He also sees that "Prof. James' 'Varieties' will be greatly augmented." Thus:

"St. Paul's account of his perils will be paralleled, possibly written with additions. Shipwrecked, torpedoed, dangers from mines and airships, gassed, taken prisoner, escaped, recaptured, punished, with many a sleepless night, in hunger and thirst, in frequent fastings, in cold and with insufficient clothing—these things are the lot of our military ministers. Such modern apostles of freedom, bearing on their body the marks of wounds, exhibiting by their physical disability their willingness to suffer for righteousness' sake, will surely make a dramatic appeal to the future congregations. They, indeed, gave their bodies to be burned, gassed, wounded, to be served out to the hungry jaws of the merciless instruments of destruction used in modern warfare. And because they had love it will profit them much. One factor in deciding the contribution they will make is the opportunity they are getting to test the theories of the lecture-room in the areas of the Great War. The theories of the atonement will be viewed in the light of the noble sacrifices of the tens of thousands of young men, throbbing with the hope of a useful life, who willingly gave their lives for the world's good and salvation. The question of total depravity will be dealt with as they bear in mind the reappearance of elemental virtues in the hell of war. Christian perfection and entire sanctification will not have the theological confectionery flavor that some protected lives have often associated with these ideas. The problem of suffering will present new aspects to those whose bodies have had to be repaired. The subject of death will be interpreted by those who have had to face it many times, and who have witnessed the grim reaper's operations on a colossal scale."

New points of view cannot fail to be a contribution of the war to life: "A criticism often made of the ministers is that they are too bookish and impractical, out of touch with the business and industrial world. But this massing of men from all stations of life, standardizing their dress and drill, linking lawyer and laborers, teacher and trainman, farmer and salesman, preacher and pressman, what result will it have? Outward uniformity there is, but it is impossible to standardize the conversation in barracks, tent, and trench. What an opportunity to hear views representative of all phases of life! Crude and cultured conceptions given with equal candor. The untrained mind's solution of moral problems competing with that of the trained thinker. Each social doctor advertising his remedy for all ills, educational and religious, political and industrial.

"The warring probationers will give valuable aid in representing the soldiers' ideas of the post-bellum reforms and reconstruction policies which should emerge out of this fight. No one expects that events will run like a well-oiled machine when peace is declared and demobilization commences. Prussianism, tyranny, discontent, and intolerance will not die when the hatchet is buried and the pipe of peace is lit. The declaration of peace with Germany will mean starting another offensive against all forms of social injustice. The religious and social leaders who have proved themselves 'over there' will be the ones to go 'over the top' in the fight against all the unprogressive and undesirable elements 'over here.'

"From the trench-trained ministers we can expect unconventional methods and—language. The pungent phrases of the boys will be brought into action and used as watchwords and battle-cries. The petty bickerings which unfortunately have characterized some church meetings will be dealt with drastically, for such smallnesses will be intolerable to those who were members of the Allied forces.

"The spirit of adventure which has characterized the soldiers will be gloriously used by those who 'continue on trial.' Those who had a tendency in pre-war days to become ideal divines will, by the process of war, be humanized. Is it too much to hope that our fighting parsons will become leaders of a new crusade, mercilessly attacking evil whether it is veiled or seen, challenging the 'Turkish' forces of retrogression and oppression that attempt to make Canada other than a Holy Land?"

TOBACCO CHECKS PLAGUE.

Fumes of the Plant Overcome Disease-carrying Fleas.

Tobacco, first introduced into Europe by Sir Walter Raleigh, proclaimed accursed by James the First of England, against which he wrote a tract, fought for years as harmful to mankind by reformers everywhere, is at last coming into its own. Strangely enough, prohibition campaigns and the crusades against morphine, cocaine, opium and other drugs are indirectly keeping tobacco among the necessities of mankind.

Man seems to crave either a stimulant or a sedative. He will find it in alcohol, drugs, or patent medicines. Coffee and tobacco also satisfy in a normal and fairly harmless degree this craving. So with the throwing overboard of the really vicious habits, mankind finds in substitutes some of the satisfaction and little of the reaction of long-favored excitants and narcotics.

The war also has done its part in removing the curse from tobacco. Its value to the nerve-strained soldier on the firing line is recognized even by those who frown upon its use in civil life. Its use among the soldiers is even encouraged by these self-abstainers. Thus, tobacco is gaining a tremendous hold in the earth. It is scarcely probable that its use can ever be discouraged by any subsequent wave of reaction. Tobacco's place is becoming too well recognized.

Now comes a word that tobacco is proving a positive blessing to far-away India. It is helping to stem the course of the plague ever prevalent, in greater or less severity, in that vast peninsula.

As has been proved time and again, the flea is the disseminator of the bubonic plague. The rat is his host and thus the pesky flea, and hence the plague, go wherever the rat goes. But the flea may be discouraged by the scientific use of tobacco. This is what has been done in India.

The British officials found that tobacco kills almost instantaneously the flea. The leaves, scattered on the floor of rooms worked havoc against the jumpers, almost as deadly as machine-guns in the hands of Canadian soldiers did against the Germans. As the fleas enter the rooms so fortified, the fumes of the plant overcome them. Consequently, the inmates are not bitten by fleas and not being bitten, they do not take into their blood the germs of plague which the flea has in his power to deposit. This is particularly important to sleeping people who are easy prey for biting fleas.

In carrying on experiments to prove the efficiency of the tobacco process, 52 houses were thus treated. A piece of matting was used in each case. To this the tobacco leaves were stitched. This matting was then laid on the floor. As a contrast to prove or disprove the theory concerning tobacco, the same number of houses of the same type and in the immediate neighborhood were left untouched. Only one house that had been subjected to the tobacco treatment became infected. Out of the others, seven became infected. The comparison is certainly significant.—Leslie Will in Illustrated World.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—it costs but a few cents—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you can not find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small stand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries it.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR BLACK

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of his famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Those Old Days.

In days of old,
When knights were bold,
They clanked around in armor.
Though they were bold,
They never told
Of dresses of the charmer.

But nowadays
They sing their lays
And let them with a bang go,
And drain a glass
To that brave lass
Who wears the trouser tango.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Hester Proves Her Theory

By JANE OSBORN

Canadian women are right behind the Canadian troops in the trenches. Women nurses are now installed in hospitals 8 miles in the rear of the actual fighting line.

Many of our Canadian women are unable to take up the duties of nursing at the front, but they should know how to take care of their own at home and for this purpose no better book was ever printed than the Medical Adviser—a book containing 1,008 pages, and bound in cloth, with chapters on First Aid, Bandaging and care of Fractures, Taking care of the Sick, Physiology, Hygiene, Mother and Babe, which can be had at most drug stores, or send 50 cents to Dr. Pierce, Courtwright St., Bridgeburg, Ont.

The women at home, who are worn out, should take that reliable temperance, herbal tonic, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Woodstock, Ont.—"For womanly ailments I have found Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to be excellent. It strengthened and built me up several years ago when I was suffering with a chronic trouble and it also proved to be a splendid tonic during expectancy. I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to all sufferers from woman's weakness."

—Mrs. Annie Strickler, 21 Arthur St.

Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

To be quite honest Hester was staring shamelessly at the man opposite her and the predominant sentiment in her mind as she stared was one of admiration. The man sat in a posture of dejection—his shoulders slouched forward and his chin sunk down on his chest. This was not the remarkable thing for it was a natural posture for a man begrimed and smudged from his day's work at the Kingdon foundry. The remarkable thing to Hester's keen insight was that the young man did not look as if he were mentally slouching at all. His rather large, ruddy face, unshaven and blackened grotesquely, showed alertness and none of the set lines that came from long, sense-deadening drudgery in the foundry.

That night after dinner Hester sought her father, the owner and manager of the foundry, in his study. He held an open magazine in his hand, but his far-away, determined expression showed to Hester at a glance that his mind was not in the magazine but on the foundry.

"No fair having troubles you don't tell me about," she began, drawing her low chair up to his and folding the magazine that rested lightly in his hands. "If you must think about business, think out loud. I'm enormously interested—always."

Mr. Kingdon little by little admitted to his daughter that the greatest source of worry in the management of his business was more or less of a psychological nature. "It isn't flaws in the metal or shortage of fuel or transportation troubles that give me my greatest trouble. It's finding men I can trust. Sometimes, Hester, I mistrust them all. They are pulling away from me, and the man I feel the most confidence in is always the man that shows the telling weakness. If there were only a way to test the quality of men as there is to test metal then I might find men to help shoulder the responsibilities."

Hester's animated expression showed the interest she felt. She told her father that this remark led up directly to the very thing she had in mind to ask him. Her only hobby outside of her beds of spring flowers was the study of faces. She had worked up for herself a system by which she thought she could interpret men's and women's natures and characters through their facial contour. To be sure in her twenty-two years of life in a restricted circle of associates in the town where her father's large foundry was located she had but little chance to test her theories, but though not extensive her study had been intensive. Now she asked her father for an opportunity to try it out. She told him that she could help him to find the right man for the right place in his work if she could be permitted to study the men in the factory and to test them by the standards she had worked out.

"Let me have a job as time-keeper—something so that I can see the men every day when they come to work. They won't know who I am and they will be off their guard. I know there are men there that have the ability needed to take the positions of trust, but because you have no way of discovering them they are wasted. They remain in the rut, doing something that is not big enough for their abilities, and other men without so much ability, through some accident or a more pushing nature, take the bigger positions. That is why they so often prove a disappointment. Why, this very afternoon I got on a crowded street car at closing time just to study the men's faces. There was one young man—shabby enough and apparently doing the crudest sort of work—but any one could see that he had ability. There was an expression about his mouth—a rugged determination—that showed me what sort of a man he was. I know I'll be able to help you. Won't you let me try?"

During the two months that followed Hester's assumption of the job of time-keeper in the foundry there were several surprising promotions and more than one enforced resignation. All that Mr. Kingdon would say when asked for an explanation was that he had been advised by an authority on personal efficiency to make the changes, and that it was due to no prejudice of his own whatever, save, of course, a perfect confidence in the ability of the efficiency expert.

Who was the efficiency expert? It was admitted that he must be a man of some shrewdness. More than one of the underlings in the office knew that the young bookkeeper who was dismissed at the time of the first change had been padding the pay roll for weeks. Apparently the dismissal was made without any knowledge of this bit of high finance, but merely as the result of the studies in personality on the part of the mysterious efficiency expert.

Most remarkable of all the changes had been the rapid rise of Peter Norgen. At the time the upheaval began he had been employed for two weeks as a fireman down in the boiler room, and a not especially capable fireman had he been.

Then suddenly he had been promoted. Within three weeks he was foreman of one of the departments, and now, at the expiration of two months, he had a responsible position in the private office of Mr. Kingdon himself. And this in spite of the fact that young Norgen had apparently resisted all promotion, and had shown an utter lack of schooling. He had even proved his inability to write figures and for this reason had a special stenographer to take all his dictation for him. Moreover, he doggedly refused to dress as a man in Mr. Kingdon's private office should dress and came and went in a flannel shirt and overalls, and insisted on eating lunch with the other men in the courtyard at noon and consorting with them at closing time rather than with the men in the office departments.

No one was more puzzled than Norgen himself at his rapid rise. If he was at all pleased he did not show it. And this was disappointing, if not to Mr. Kingdon, who had taken a fancy to the young man, then at least to the daughter on whose persistent advice Norgen had received his repeated promotions. Already in his dogged, almost surly way, he had relieved Kingdon of a great deal of worry. In spite of himself he was proving the rightness of the advice of the efficiency adviser.

One day Norgen came abruptly to Mr. Kingdon with his question: "Who is responsible for my promotion?" he demanded. "If there is something behind this, I ought to know." You might have supposed that he was complaining about a plot to keep him forever working as fireman rather than because of repeated promotions. "I've heard you employ an efficiency adviser. Well, I want to know on what the expert bases his conclusions." He spoke slowly and at times with broken English, though it would have been hard to determine the nationality that his accent indicated. "If you don't want to tell me, at least you ought to let me see this expert myself. It is very important."

"You have seen the expert," Mr. Kingdon said slowly and almost solemnly. "You see the expert every day—four times a day and if I am not much mistaken you usually stop and chat with the expert for a few minutes when you come in at noon. In fact," Mr. Kingdon was looking straight into the young man's face, "I have reason to believe that the expert occasionally meets you after hours and allows you to escort her part way home."

Norgen's face showed first annoyance and then something akin to amusement. "A curious choice for an efficiency adviser—what does she know of men's abilities?" he asked.

"She picked you from the rest," was Mr. Kingdon's answer, "and you have made good. I should never have noticed you even in a dozen years. She seems to know her men and she is learning more every day. She is becoming invaluable. It's a rare gift—a sort of second sight."

"She might have found out," the young man who went by the name of Norgen said, and then he made a clean breast of the situation. As a son of a large factory owner and sure sometime to derive a large income through the operation of his own inherited plants, he had started out intent on learning at first hand the point of view of the men whose labor made possible the running of such factories. The theory that he especially wanted to prove to himself was that the men who worked for his father's plant had no show and were ground down as mere machines. He even entertained some high-flown idea of renouncing all claim to the inheritance if he could justify himself in the belief that such was the case. He had really wished to remain in the Kingdon factory. He took a grim pleasure in the grimness of it. And then in spite of himself, and in spite of his pretense of illiteracy his promotions had begun. Instead of being able to go back to his father with an account of the oppression of labor he would show him the rare proof of his abilities. For he was now holding down a very important position for Mr. Kingdon and had thoroughly mastered some of the most important phases of the large plant.

"I'm a little inclined to be angry with you," he told the girl who had been responsible for his promotions. "Still perhaps you have done me more good than harm. You have shown me that I have, in spite of myself, a great taste for the management of this sort of plant. It has become absorbingly interesting. I couldn't give up the idea now of taking over my father's plant some day—and I had thought of giving it all up. I have learned to look at things quite differently now than would have been possible if I had remained in the boiler room as a man."

During the weeks that had passed when Hester had supposed him to be only one of the laborers in her father's plant she had permitted a friendship to rise between them that seldom consisted of more than a stroll homeward together at night. They never went more than five blocks together, as neither wanted the other to know where home really was. "And now that you know who I am," he said, "you aren't going to despise me? We are none the less dear to each other, are we? I had always dreamed of marrying a girl like yourself—a girl who knows hard work, a girl of the people whose world is not bounded by the narrow conventions of leisured society."

"I'm Hester Kingdon," she said. "What a dreadful disappointment. Still, we might have met at any one of a dozen house parties and never should have cared a straw for each other. If I can forgive you for not being a brawny, unschooled stoker you'll have to forgive me for not being a nice little working girl."

And of course he did.

Mother's Pet Needs a Cascaret

Baby is mad! Doesn't want the favorite dolly, or the horn, or the picture books—but don't scold! Look at the tongue! Then hurry! Give candy Cascarets to work the nasty bile, souring food and constipation poison from the little liver and bowels.

MOTHERS! Clean the clogged-up places. Do away with the bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison which is keeping your little one cross, feverish and sick. Children love Cascarets, because to them it is like eating candy. Cascarets act better than castor oil, calomel or pills on the tender stomach, liver and bowels. Cascarets never gripe, never injure, and do not disappoint the worried mother. Give harmless Cascarets to children one year old and upwards. Each ten cent box contains full directions.

Must Respect Mosques.

No infidel—it does seem strange to be classed as an infidel—is allowed to enter a mosque in Bagdad or any other holy Mohammedan city, and so scrupulously is this Moslem principle respected by the British that they post Mohammedan Indian sentries outside all mosque entrances in order to discourage any Tommy who in a moment of exuberance might be tempted to break in for a glimpse of the so carefully guarded mysteries. They say the British soldiers have some to-do to restrain themselves.

If the mosques were wide open and free to anyone who might wish to enter there would be no temptation at all. But forbidden ground!

What normal man is not familiar with the insistent temptation to trespass on forbidden ground?

And one day a Tommy actually did get into the most sacred of all the sacred mosques of Bagdad — the mosque of Abdul Gilahin Quadhir. He went in disguised as an Arab, with aba, kuffiyeh, sandals and everything. But his disguise was not perfect in all its details—one can imagine a young Britisher trying to act like an Arab!—and he was seized and dealt with severely. It is a wonder he escaped with his life. But they let him go. Then he was imprisoned for disregarding regulations and was afterward sent out of the country in disgrace, while the British officers offered courteous apologies to the Moslem elders, who were graciously pleased to accept them.

No story I think better illustrates the methods of the British with subject peoples whose faiths are different from their own. And no story serves better to emphasize why with peoples of alien beliefs the British are always a success—Elenor Franklin Egan in Saturday Evening Post.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends the Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead, get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation, and there is no soreness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Effect of One Letter.

A printer once made a prospectus for a gold mine speak the truth by accident, for it read: "Issue of one hundred thousand snares at one pound each." The writer meant "shares," of course, but it was truer as it stood.

An Irish paper some time ago in the course of a very laudatory article on the late Mr. John Redmond described him as "the greatest thief Ireland had known since O'Connell." The compositor had lifted a "t" for a "c," that was all.

In the days before the Liberal and Tory truce, the Conservative organ of a big provincial paper got a nasty strangle-hold on the chances of the Liberal candidate at the bye-election, and all through a single letter of the alphabet! The Liberal paper was describing a Tory meeting, and in the course of the article it said: "The arrival of the candidate on the platform was greeted by the great uplifted snouts of the entire audience, the ladies making themselves particularly prominent."

But probably the climax is reached in the case of the archbishop who was credited with saying "he had been on the drink for a month," when he only said "brink."—Tit-Bits.

STORY FROM THE ARCHANGEL FRONT OF ATTACK REPULSED

Tale of an Armored Car That Cruises Up and Down and Pounds Bolsheviki—American Soldiers in the Fight.

OBOZERSKAYA, Russia, Through a continuous stunted forest of coniferae, aspen, and silver birch, like Canada in its richness of autumn tints but with sumach instead of maple to be dappled gold with crimson; through a fair region of peace and prettiness, I have come half a day's rail journey from Archangel. This was to overtake the khaki line which, armed with bullets, bayonets and bully beef, confronts the miscellaneous armed hordes representing the huge contingents of a lawless and predominant element, trained and organized by the Germans.

It is a strange, picturesque and romantic sort of war. Let me tell about two days, which if unique in interest on national grounds, are typical for an incident of first note. The enemy has artillery and airplanes, besides plenty of men and ammunition, courage and tenacity.

Thus the place of advantage along this sector of the north Russian front is not determined merely by the time occupied. Considerable of this necessarily is spent in relaying rails and rebuilding the bridges, which the foe destroys as he is slowly forced back.

Arriving on Saturday evening I happened upon a commander who after losing an arm at Zeebrugge came here to become skipper of an armored train. He had extemporized and camouflaged a beauty, carrying makeshift plating and britling with guns, heavily sandbagged fore and aft. He took me on board for a short southward voyage.

In trenches on a train was a queer sensation. I peered over the parapet at shell holes, bombed and overturned trucks, tangled telegraph wires, dead horses, and glorious sunset.

Anon we were stopped by a blown-up bridge which our men were rebuilding, and finally, having seen notoes, we returned in the dim light of a richly bespangled sky. The north star was visible almost directly overhead.

Next day I cruised in the same craft over the same ground, with the difference that the bridge, being rebuilt, we steamed cautiously on to the new length of track, there uncoupling the train sections as isolated forts, and proceeded to bombard a likely place for Bolsheviki.

AN AIRPLANE CAME AND FELL.

A preliminary incident was an enemy airplane which, after missing us with three bombs, came planing down, passed over No Man's raile, and abruptly descended out of sight—a proceeding we did not understand until a little later when we went within a hair of our foremost outpost whither the acting commander, an enterprising Scots Colonel, with plenty of trench experience, had made his way earlier in the day and had interesting tidings.

It seemed that engine trouble brought the airplane to earth within the Colonel's range of vision, but when he and his companions arrived breathless beside it the pilot and observer already had disappeared amid the trees.

The next day we spent in neighboring villages where we learned of wholesale robberies and various outrages suffered ten days before by the inhabitants when under the dominion of the Bolsheviki. Through the forest of the village came broken waves of heavy gun fire, and returning in the evening to regimental headquarters we learned that our brilliant South African pilot, with a handful of men, had retrieved the fallen airplane amid a flight of bullets from our foes who balked in the hope of recovering the machine, were presently joined with several hundred of their associates in a surprise attack on the principal advanced post, lightly held by Michigan men, never previously under fire.

There followed a brisk little battle in the forest, in which time the armored train exchanged thunderbolts with an enemy's armored train, hidden beyond a curve miles ahead.

When the infantry action was over and the enemy had retired, carrying his wounded, eleven Bolsheviki and three Americans lay dead on the mossy bogland.

Next morning I paid an interesting visit to that post, destined to be of historic significance as the ground the free and enlightened United States had made their first sacrifice of human life on behalf of free and enlightened Russia.

A clearing beside the railway post confronts wild natude wti htrenches and stockades, breathing the romantic spirit of Robinson Crusoe and reminding one of the wolves, which no doubt will come prowling across the deep snows in the dark Winter months, now near at hand.

Marveling citizens of Detroit showed me shattered rifles, perforated shrapnel helmets, bullet holes in their tunics, and other evidence of narrow hazards. Stretcher bearers arrived with a wounded Bolsheviki officer, just found, who had lain all night in the forest.

Scarcely had he been placed in a shelter beside their than artillery awoke the echoes, livly black clouds brok overhead, and the Yankees had their first sustained experience of shrapnel. That was less trying, however, than the succeeding period of silence and the developments associated with this telephone message:

"The enemy is advancing rapidly in strong force."

Half the force promptly shed their superfluous accouterments, loaded themselves with cartridges and, bearing two machine guns, went forth under the command of a keen young lieutenant Meanwhile the armored train began to hurl formidable missiles in the path of the foe, who disappeared.

Nor had anything further been seen of him when I returned to headquarters and heard that the Bolsheviki had recaptured village which was situated forty miles away in the flanks and had been left with a garrison of some half a dozen Scotchmen.

There was nothing for it but to dispatch a little relief expedition, following upon nice calculations as to the minimum number of men required for the job and the abbreviated length of railway which, with the troops remaining to us, we must be content at present to take as an addition to the formidable mileage already won and held.

A SOLEMN NIGHT CEREMONY

Meanwhile in a solemn little ceremony on the forest fringe we have temporarily forgotten not merely current and pending flappenings, but the great part which we scarcely can fail to play in the regeneration of Russia if those at home realize the position here and send the necessary forces.

Darkness had fallen on the surrounding groups of khaki figures, dimly visible as rifles fired their final volley and the bugle rang clear on the frosty air. Then the moon issued from behind a screen of cloud and shed its slivery rays on the drapery of the Stars and Stripes, laying beside three newly dug graves.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Sir:—

In a recent instalment of the interesting reminiscences being attributed to your columns there appeared the following:

"Our city let a contract to build the Auburn concrete bridge and when it was partly built, the contractor, Bogue, came to the council and demanded his pay. The Works Committee said to him, "My dear fellow, we are ready to pay you, but would it not be well for you finish the bridge before asking for payment?" Mr. Bogue replied, "My contract is completed." The Works Committee replied, "Mr. Bogue, the roadway has to be built up; the approaches are not finished; ther is no ballistrade or railing, etc," and Mr Bogue replied, "Here is my contract, read it." They read it, sent for the specifications, etc., the city engineer and all concerned and found that Mr. Bogue was right."

I do not know how your contributor made these mistakes, but must have depended upon memory and gossip. The council did not biuld a bridge at Auburn and Mr. Bogue did not have a contract from the Council to build any concrete bridge.

No doubt the writer had the Smith Stree bridge in mind. The contractors for this bridge were Messrs. E and F. Conroy. There was a misunderstanding in the committee as to what the contract covered and what it did not cover. The Board of Works received the tenders at a meeting held on August 30th, 1909. Two paragraphs in the minutes of that meeting are as follows:

"The specifications for the bridge over the river at Smith street were read."

"The following tenders were received for the construction of the Smith Street Bridge, except coping, handrail, spandril filling, and sidewalks."

It is perfectly clear that the specifications were read and understood. The payments to the contractors were made as the work progressed upon certificates from the engineer, and the story about the flurry in the committee—is only a story.

It is possible that some member of the Council not on the Board of Works, or a new member of the Council, might have asked to see the contract, and thus have given rise to the story that reached he ears of your contributor in the fanciful form in which he has given it.

I write this because the story as given might be taken by some as a reflection on one who is no longer with us to furnish an explanation, and to whom the Smith Street Bridge is a lasting monument of engineering skill and whose memory is dear to all who were associated with him.

Yours Truly
S. R. ARMSTRONG.

AMERICANS ADVANCING

American Troops East of Rheims Have Advanced Nearly Three Miles—Germans Surprised.

PRISONERS TAKEN

(Special to The Examiner.)
(By Frank J. Taylor.)

WITH THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY, Oct. 4.—American troops, attacking east of Rheims in conjunction with the French, have advanced nearly three miles. The battle is continuing.

The assault began at 5.30 yesterday morning without any artillery preparation. The Germans were completely surprised.

Following a barrage for four kilometres (two and a half miles), up hill, the Franco-Americans gained the day's objectives before noon, despite determined resistance from the enemy, who occupied a series of machine gun nests.

A great number of prisoners, guns, mitrailleuses and supplies were captured.

COLLECTORS HAD NEARLY $5,100 IN CASH YESTERDAY

Success of the K. of C. Huts Fund Drive Was Assured by Yesterday's Response.

The objective of the K. of C. Army Huts campaign loomed into view last night when the teams showed a total of nearly $5,000 in cash. It is confidently believed the to-day's collections will bring the $6,000 mark within easy reach for the last day. While most of the subscribers have made their contributions in cash, others have promised donations that are regarded as good as the yellow metal itself.

The collectors have specially mentioned the generosity of the employees of the factories, and also the splendid response from the merchants in the business district.

Yesterday's reception was of the same fine flavour of the first days of the campaign, and the success of the local effort was practically assured by the early returns yesterday.

NEW POSITIONS CAPTURED

French and Americans Have Made Substantial Gains on West Front.

GUNS CAPTURED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 4. — French forces in the Champagne district have captured Orfeuil and Bemont Chateau, northeast of Somme-Py, Mont Blanc, a position of considerable tactical importance, has been taken from the Germans by American forces.

Advanced Three Miles.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY, Oct. 4.—American troops attacking east of Rheims in conjunction with the French, have advanced nearly three miles. The battle is continuing. The assault began at 5.30 yesterday morning without any artillery preparations. The Germans were completely surprised. Following a rolling barrage for four kilometres, two and a half miles, up hill, Franco-Americans gained the day's objectives before noon, despite the determined resistance from the enemy who occupies a series of machine-gun nests. A great number of prisoners, guns, mitrailleuses and supplies were captured.

Peaches Are Cheap For This Week End

The peach market is heavy for this week end and prices will be entirely in favour of the consumer. Prices have dropped somewhat below last week's figures, and the temporary oversupply should result in a big sale to-morrow. It is stated that to-day's prices actually represent a loss of nearly fifteen cents a basket to the local importers.

Sees Great Future For Japan's Ships

(By United Press.)

Tokio, Sept. 3. (By Mail.)—For several years after the war, shipping on the Pacific will be mostly in the hands of Asiatic nations, with Japan unquestionably in the front rank, predicts the official report of the probable future development of Shanhgai harbor. The report has just been made for the Whangpoo conservation board, by a firm of consulting engineers at Stockholm.

The reptrt does not ignore the existence of the American merchant marine. For some years the United States will find that the most profitable traffic for its boats lies on the Atlantic, it states. The need for shipping will cause a strong development of the Chinese merchant fleet.

"The day of the shallow draught steamer is rapidly passing," the report continues. "The longer the distance that the modern ship has to travel the more does an increase in the size conduce to comparative cheapness of operation. It logically follows that future years will see the largest ships in the world on the Pacific."

British Cavalry Pouring Through Breach in German Defences Northeast of St. Quentin

The Country in Which the Horsemen are Operating is Ideal for Manoeuvring—Last of Enemy Trench System—German Counter Attacks.

OFFICIAL REPORTS.

(By William Philip Simms.)

PARIS, Oct. 4. — British cavalry, pouring through the breach in the German defences northeast of St. Quentin, are said to have entered Fresny-Le-Grand. Air planes, flying almost at will above the avancing British, are reported to have wirelessed headquarters that their own horsemen were seen in Fresny-Le-Grand, which is about seven miles north east of St. Quentin ,and four miles beyond the last German wire and trench stronghold in this region. It is known as the Beaurevoir line, and stretches from that village to Fensomme. The country in which the country is reported operating is ideal for manoeuvring, as the Beaurevoir is the last real trench system, and the enemy will not be able to build another, except far in the rear of the present shattered lines.

(United Press.)
(By Webb Miller.)

PARIS, Oct. 4. — The battle has been resumed in strength along the western battle front, with new attacks launched at various points. Continued progress is reported in the Champagne. Indications are that the Germans will attempt to make a stand in Flanders and the Haute Beale canal, which winds from eight to ten kilometres east of the Lens-Armentiers line northward to Lille.

BEAT OFF COUNTER-ATTACKS.

British troops held the high ground northwest of Soquehart in close fighting yesterday and beat off counter attacks on Gouy and Le Catelet, Field Marshal Haig reported to-day. North of St. Quentin more than four thousand prisoners were taken yesterday.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Oct. 4.— (Official.) — German forces last night delivered counter attacks at Gouy and Le Catelet, midway between Cambrai and St. Quentin. The assaults have been repulsed.

The statement reads:

At the end of the fighting yesterday we held the high ground one mile north-east of Sequehart, and had successfully beaten off the enemy's counter attacks at Gouy and Le Catelet. A second hostile counter attack at Sequehart also was repulsed. The number of prisoners captured by us in yesterday's operations north of St. Quentin exceeded 4,000.

During the night local fighting took place to our advantage southwest of Beaurevoir and in the southern outskirts of Cambrai. We advanced our posts slightly north-east of Epinoy and repulsed a hostile attack on one of our posts south of Biaches-St. Vaast, between Lens and Arleux.

North of the Scarpe we progressed between Oppy and Mericourt. Further north our advanced troops reached the railway east of Lens and the general line of Vendin-Le-Vieil, Wingles, Borciau, Fournen and Houplines.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, Oct. 4. — (Official.) — French troops in the St. Quentin region have advanced east of Leedine. American and French troops in the Champagne have made further advances north-west of Blanch Mont and Medeah Farm, North and north-west of Rheims the French have increased their gains somewhat and improved their positions in the region of Betheny.

The statement reads:

During the night we made an advance east of Lesdines in the region of St. Quentin. North and north-west of Rheims detail operations enabled the French to enlarge their bridgehead east of the canal and to improve their positions in the region of Betheny. One hundred prisoners remained in our hands. In the Champagne the Franco-Americans increased their gains north-west of Mont Blanc and Medeah Farm.

REACHED HIGH GROUND.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Oct. 4.— British forces pursuing the retreating Germans in the Lens region have reached the railway east of Lens,. To the south-east the British have made progress between Oppy and Mericourt. More than 4,000 prisoners were taken yesterday by the British in their operations north of St. Quentin. The point of the British wedge in the region north of St. Quentin had been pushed at end of yesterday's fighting to the high ground a mile north-east of Sequehart. The British are holding this ground, having repulsed counter attacks.

AROUND ST. QUENTIN.—The occupation of ruined St. Quentin does not by any means end the fighting around that city. Both British and French commanders report steady successes at various points, but at a fearful price in casualties on both sides. This map will be useful for some days to come as the battle waxes to the east of St. Quentin.

Canadian Line Reported to be Abnormally Quiet

Heavy Punishment Inflicted on the Germans—Enemy Reserves Used Up.

LOCAL FIGHTING

Canadian Press:
(By J. F. B. Livesay, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES, Oct. 2—(Delayed.)—Our line was abnormally quiet to-day till 3 o'clock this afternoon when enemy artillery started to strafe Stolle, but nothing further came of it. Early this evening a counter attack, local in character, developed against our Tilloy posts, but was easily put down by our artillery and infantry. We took prisoners. It becomes increasingly doubtful whether the enemy is in any shape to launch a powerful thrust against our positions so severe was the punishment he received yesterday, when he threw in no fewer than thirty-three battalions. He cannot have more than nine in reserve, unless he can draw from new elements. Five possible reserve divisions he had for the battle front have been moved since September 27 to the Flanders battle field, and the only other he has immediately available is the 15th reserve division south of Lens.

If, however, a general retirement in that sector is under way, it is certain be carried out almost entirely by his during such difficult operations. To sum up whatever counter attacks he may have in store for this front must be carried dout almost entirely by his existing elements, which are tired and greatly weakened by heavy losses inflicted by Canadian Corps. Since the Canal Du Nord was passed he is more likely to be content with the zone of manoeuvre he still retains west of Canal Descaut.

WAR SUMMARY

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Associated Press to-day issues the following summary:

Northeast of St. Quentin the British to-day are reported fighting their way forward in the open country between the Hindenburg line after having pushed ahead five miles since Monday. From Lens northward and from Rheims eastward to the Argonne the Allies continue to bend back the German flanks in smashing attacks. The German resistance is bitter, but there has been no let up in the strong Allied pressure. With the British in the open country east of St. Quentin and cavalry and tanks pouring through the breach, the German positions about Cambrai and Laon will become most precarious. Through the opening in the line Marshal Foch would be able to throw troops to take both Cambrai and Laon in the rear.

SOCIALISTS AND DEMOCRATS INCLUDED

Prince Maximilian Has Been Named Prussian Foreign Secretary.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4.—In officially announcing to-day that Prince Maximilian has been appointed German Chancellor the German government also announces that Deputies Groeber, Centrist, and Scheidemann, majority Social Democrat, have been appointed Secretaries of State without portfolio.

The official statement adds that Prince Maximilian also has been named Prussian Foreign Secretary. He will announce his programme at a full meeting of the Reichstag on Oct. 5th. The inclusion of the Centrists and Socialists in the government indicated a strong tendency towards peace terms that are nearly acceptable to all.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S NIGHT AT THE BROCK ST. RINK

To-night at the Brock street rink will be young people's night. Delegations are planning to attend from the Collegiate, the Normal, the Business College and the third and fourth forms of all the Public schools. A strong interest is being manifested by the pupils of these schools and they will be present in good numbers with their enthusiasm, their banners, school colours, songs and yells. The pupils of the Public schools will assemble at 7 o'clock sharp at St. Paul's church. The Collegiate will meet at Murray street Baptist church at the same hour and the delegates will march in bodies to the tabernacle, occupying special reservations for each group. The public generally will be welcomed as there will be seats for all. Come and enjoy the young people's enthusiastic service.

SITUATION IS SERIOUS

Factions in Austria Demand Peace With Restoration of Stricken Countries and Other Concessions.

CONFERENCE HELD

(By Raymond Clapper.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Significant developments are impending in Austria, according to a strong diplomatic belief here to-day. The evacuation of Albania and the loss of the naval base at Durazzo have precipitated a crisis in that rocking empire. Czech and Socialist deputies outspokenly demand a peace with the restoration of Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro and the formation of a league of nations in accordance with President Wilson's war aims. Emperor Karl is holding hurried conferences, first with his Chief of Staff and then with Foreign Minister Burian and Premier Von Hussarek. That Austria might follow the course of Bulgaria shortly was not put beyond the bounds of a possibility in well informed quarters.

Becoming Desperate.

Emperor Karl's situation is rapidly becoming desperate, all reports agree, and he will shortly be at a point where he must yield to clamours for peace. Only forehanded action by Germany can avert this, diplomats say. Socialists deputies, seeking peace, have made radical demands on the government, according to a report here today. These include the "Creation of a league of nations, no economic warfare, and annexations, the restoration of Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro, the revision of the treaties of Bucharest and Brest Litovsk; settlement of eastern questions along the lines of nationalities; settlement of the Polish question by Polish people; autonomy for all people in Austria-Hungary." A demand that an international peace conference be called was made during the sitting, the reports declared. Added to political troubles are the approaching hardships of winter.

General Breakdown.

Reliable data here shows a general breakdown of health in the Empire due to insufficient food and shelter. The province of Salsburg, in Southern Austria, is actually reported starving. Meat is forbidden to hotels, and visitors have been ordered to leave so that there may be food for residents. For weeks the population has been entirely without eggs, butter, or fats. There has been no bread for as long as a week, according to one statement. Sickness has increased ten per cent. over last year. This increase in the number of serious cases of illness lasting over seven days has increased nearly eight per cent., according to statistics of the Provincial Sick Fund Bureaus. Rains have ruined the harvests in many districts, and as winter approaches, fuel shortage becomes more acute. General unrest is being aggravated by leaders of the Jugo-Slavs, Poles and Czecho-Slovaks both in Austria and in Allied countries. They are conducting a persistent and effective campaign throughout Austria and leaders here report that results of this work will shortly become clear to the entire world.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—A desperate effort by the Kaiser and his advisers to hoodwink the Allies and the German people into a belief in the democratization of Germany is seen by observers here in the appointment of Prince Maximilian as Imperial Chancellor, and Scheidemann, Socialist, and Groeber, Centrist, as members of the Cabinet without portfolio. It is suspected that Germany is about to make a new peace proposal disguised under the most attractive democratic reform. With these new names on the rostro of rulers of Germany the Kaiser might point to them as the realization of his recently announced policy of popular rule.

WHAT THE GERMANS WERE TAUGHT.

With the Allies smashing the Central Powers on many fronts, and Bulgarians, Turks and Austrians calling for peace, there only remains Germany's opposition as the main obstacle to peace negotiations.

From certain quarters we hear it said that the German people desire peace, and that they are totally unlike the War Lords who dominate the country. In the early days of the war it was a popular saying that we were "not fighting the German people, but German militarism as represented by the Prussian Junkers." Four years of struggle and the careful examination of German prisoners, the writings of German editors and authors, the teachings of her professors and teachers have shown the world that the German people are thoroughly in sympathy with the militaristic aims of the Prussian War Lords. This should not be forgotten now, when the prospects for peace look brighter.

In the past 50 years Germany has waged three successful wars, struggles which paid her from territorial, monetary and military standpoints. In every German school and college, the rising generation, and this has been so thoroughly ground into them that the whole war and the glories of fighting were taught German people are filled with the militaristic spirit.

Lest we forget what these teachings are, it is well to enumerate them from time to time. The following extracts from German papers, writers and the leaders of thought well show that the German people are as much into this struggle and hope to gain as much by it as the Prussian War Lords. The extracts follow:

Stirner said—"What does right matter to me? I have no need of it. I have the right to do what I have the power to do."

The Kaiser said: "Woe and death to all who oppose my will. Woe and death to those who do not believe in my mission."

Von Gottberg said: "War is the most august and sacred of human activities."—And again: "Let us laugh with all our lungs at the old women in trousers who are afraid of war, and therefore complain that it is cruel and hideous. No! war is beautiful."

Pastor Lehmann said: "Germany is the centre of God's plans for the world."

Bernhardi said: "Might is the supreme right."

Tannenberg said: "War must leave nothing to the vanquished but their eyes to weep with."

The German troops have bettered that instruction. They have in many cases not left even eyes to weep with.

And having taught the people to accept those standards, listen to this:—

Kuhn said: "Must culture build its cathedrals upon hills of corpses, seas of tears, and the death rattle of the vanquished? Yes, it must."

Heine said: "Not only Alsace-Lorraine but all France and all Europe as well as the whole world will belong to us."

Chamberlain, the renegade Englishman, said: "He who does not believe in the Divine Mission of Germany had better go hang himself, and rather to-day than to-morrow."

Frederick said: "All written Constitutions are scraps of paper."—Journal of Commerce.

FIRE INSURANCE RATES TOO HIGH

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 3—The Commission of Conservation in its monthly bulletin foreshadows the possibility of legislation designed to reduce the cost of conducting fire insurance business in Canada. It states that it is understood at least two provincial Governments are considering the advisability of enacting legislation to deal with the matter if the companies do not act with promptitude. The Commission of Conservation in a recent report on "Fire Waste in Canada," declared that the root of evil of the insurance business in Canada and one of the greatest factors in the excessive fire waste is the method of compensation agents by the payment of commissions. The report stated that agents receive greater compensation for insuring risks at a high premium than at a low premium.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of mother, Mrs. Hugh Cruickshank, who passed away October 4th, 1917.

A precious one from us has gone,
The voice we loved is still.
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

We had our darling mother,
But we cannot see her now,
As she lives in a snowy garden
With glory on her brow.

We know that she is safe
Yes safe for ever more,
Our loved one is not lost at all
But only gone before.

For God in his wisdom hath recalled
The boon his love had given,
And though the body moulders here
The soul is safe in heaven.
—Inserted by Her Daughter, Mrs. Ballantyne.

HOUGHTON—In memory of Pte. George Houghton, Orpington Road, who was killed in action on October 4, 1916.
We little thought his death so near,
And only those who loved can tell
The pain at not saying
The last farewell.

Harvest Festival Service Was Held in All Saints' Church

Major, the Rev. Canon Dixon, Was the Speaker for the Occasion —Canada's Part in the World's War.

SPECIAL MUSIC

Major, the Rev. Canon Dixon, of Toronto, who has been ministering to the wounded in the hospitals overseas for over four years, preached at the special Thanksgiving Harvest Festival held at All Saints' church last evening. Great interest was taken in the service by the citizens generally and many from the other churches of the city were present. The church was appropriately decorated with the grains of the field and the fruits of the vine. Special music was provided by the choir.

Major Dixon exhorted the people to give their heart, body and soul to the service of the Lord. His text was taken from the eleventh verse of the 65th Psalm.

Thou crownest the year with thy goodness, and thy paths drop fatness.

The Sermon.

We have crowning mercies calling for crowning thanksgiving, said Major Dixon. Every day, every hour throughout the whole year, God has been richly blessing us. His mercy ever waited upon us. The joyous seasons of harvest? Then if we don't, you in your 'this we should not forget. Every field of grain, every leaping brook seems to echo that statement. What would have occurred if the crops were a total failure. All classes would be starved and even the very throne itself would be clothed in sack cloth and ashes. But now, in fact of what our Saviour has done for us, should not our hearts go out in praise of Him. Let us worship and bow down before Him and worship our God. We should worship him with a warm and sincere heart. If we enter into the true spirit of Thanksgiving we cannot help it. Shall we who are Christians do less than the Jew?

Expectation.

The husbandman expects a harvest. He sows in expectation of a harvest. Gets the binder and everything ready in expectation of a harvest. But shall the Church of God not expect a harvest? Then if we don't you in your church and [illegible] should bow our heads in humble supplication. Can we not expect the blessing to descend upon us. If we have not true thankfulness in our hearts then we are not in a position to let the bright light shine out over the troubled waters of our disappointments.

Who is there can make food? Not one of us. We can help its growth, nourish it or hamper it, but we can't make it. Yet we are not thankful enough to our Maker who makes this food.

Major Dixon spoke of the magnificent elain and esprit de corps of the Canadians. "There is not any among the whole of His Majesty's troops to surpass the Canadians," was his tribute to our boys over there. He then showed of Canada's effort in the factory and field. Of such magnitude that our minds are totally unable to grasp the enormity and magnificance of it.

Large Products.

In the fiscal year ending March 31, 1917, our agricultural and products were valued at $320,000,000, but at the end of the fiscal year March 31, 1918, they had risen to $140,000,000, the largest this country has ever seen, and in time of war. Our exported merchandise at the end of the fiscal year 1917, was valued at $85,000,000, while at the end of March 31, 1918, it had risen to a value of $636,000,000, an increase of 648 per cent. True, the entire farming community benefitted as no other, but still the manufacturer did not suffer. Four hundred manufacturers are at present engaged in the manufacture of munitions. Our manufactures in 1918 to the end of June were worth $60,000,000 and we also produced 60,000,000 shells, 74,000,000 pounds of powder and 50,000,000 high explosives. One million, six hundred and forty thousand tons of steel were needed by the British Empire for shells in 1918, and Canada produced 1,400,000 tons of this. We have built 90 steamships in 1918 with a dead weight of 575,000 tons, bringing in a revenue of $71,000,000 to the country.

How are we going to show God our gratefulness? What do we know about the sufferings of Belgium and France? I'm glad that Peterborough has done so magnificently in the sending of men overseas. Sixty-seven thousand soldiers have left the city of Toronto. Now I ask you to-night, what are you going to do? We can't all go to the battlefield, but we can all at least do our part.

No matter what our past life may have been, let us dedicate ourselves to God, to be His loving, faithful children in the church. Let us do our part.

The New Musical Phonograph

IN this remarkable instrument the phonograph principle has been brought to such high perfection that every reproduced tone has true musical quality and value.

This is the reason that the Vocalion is attracting people who never before have cared for phonographs. Perfection of tone control obtained by means of the Graduola—the distinctive Vocalion feature—is the added touch which makes the Vocalion the most universally interesting of all modern musical instruments.

American Baseball Makes Hit In England

(By United Press.)

London, Sept. 7. (By Mail.)—American baseball in Great Britain is a paying proposition.

When the Anglo-American Baseball league closed its season here, a net profit of nearly $15,000 was turned over to British war charities.

So confident are the promoters of baseball's future in Great Britain, that they have begun plans for an English-Scottish League, similar to the American and National leagues in the United States.

H. E. Booker, who once ran a roller skating rink in San Francisco, has engineered baseball operations in this country, and after a review of this season's history, he is confident that after the war baseball will be a paying enterprise here.

Booker is general manager of the league, but what he doesn't know about baseball, Arlie Latham, who used to cavort along the paths in the States can tell him.

Our Criffle Dresses are Individual, Beautiful and Smart

The designers of The Criffle dresses have a reputation that extends from Paris clear across to the Pacific Ocean. A service department is maintained to follow closely the style tendencies, to carefully observe all conditions. Only a large firm can do this. Only large firms could employ designers of The Criffle dresses. And remember that while thousands of a style may be made at one time, only one of these will be seen in this city, because we are the exclusive agents in this city. Naturally, making up such a large quantity of one style brings about a saving, and while everything is done on a large scale, this reflects itself in the splendid values obtainable here.

New Fall Coats $39.50

Of splendid wool velours, having collar and cuffs of fur. The same designs also to be had in Bolivia cloth, burella and oxford cloths. Each coat portrays some particular style tendency and in many of the coats several new features the combined with clever results.

An Attractive Fall Coat $19

Made in loose-fitting style, with buckled belt. The back is particularly interesting — developed in plaites. Large patch pockets are an effective trimming. Has high military collar. A very effective model for winter.

New Plush Coat $35

This is in the most favored of all the coat styles. Has a very odd combination belt with beaver collar and large cape effect. A few more weeks, when colder weather makes its appearance, you will see these in abundance. Why not be first and have that added pleasure?

Special Offering of Women's Fall Coats Trimmed with Fur $49.50

The coats are made of fine kersey, in the very newest models; collar and cuffs trimmed with fur, and splendidly tailored. We consider these coats the very best possible value in the store to-day.

Girls' School Stockings 49c pair

Superior Quality Union, Close Ribbed

The wise mother buys school stockings for her girl in lots of half dozen or dozens, because it becomes quite annoying and aggrevating at any time to find that the stockings have not been darned and not ready for use. Fashion, Becomingness and Beauty Are Combined in the NEW FALL HATS

It is well to remember that it is not always necessary to trim a hat in the most expensive trimming and to use an over-abundance of such trimming to make a hat beautiful, desirable and becoming—as well as fashionable.

The ability to place a flower, or some ornament just in the right spot to make the shape in such manner so as to have the brim at the right angle, possibly drooping, possibly straight or some other angle, provides the means for making a hat fashionable, becoming and beautiful, and these are just the kind of hats you will find in our millinery department.

Your Fall hat must be becoming before it can be beautiful and fashionable. Remember that. Prices—

Items of Interest Round the Store

Stunning Sweater $6.50

In the slipover style. Come belt slightly below the waist-line. Tight fitting and this form fitting feature is followed in the sleeves and cuffs. A small sailor collar embellishes the neck. All wool. Several shades.

A New Skirt $14.00

This skirt is made of satin. Has a series of tunic panels varying in length and finished with silk fringe—also has a wide crushed girdle.

Silk Stockings $1.25

This is not the first time we have mentioned these silk stockings in our ads. As a result, the sale of this hosiery is increasing each week because all that was necessary to convince women of the unusualness of the value was to bring to their attention the splendid quality of the silk.

New Dress $20.00

Of the favorite combination — serge and satin. You will be delighted when you see it. Has a panel of serge which is smartly embroidered, both front and back; and we want to add that the striking part about this dress is that it is equally effective front and back as well as at the sides. Sleeves are of black satin, and the panels are held together with a satin belt. Finished with fringe.

Untrimmed Velvet Millinery

Just as women are turning to greater activity at homesewing, the identical is being followed in trimming millinery. These may be had in a wide range of shapes, including all the favored new types. PETERBORO HARDWARE CO. LIMITED

FUEL COMMISSION EXPECT DELAY FROM INCOMPLETE RECORDS

Service of Extra Clerks May be Needed to File the Dealers' Reports When They Are All Received.

ALD. EDGAR'S REPLY

Mr. Joseph Wearing, chairman of the Fuel Commission, stated this morning that the complete records of the coal deliveries in Peterboro could not be compiled within at least six weeks or two months, and that to obtain the statistics given by that time two or three clerks will required to assist the City Clerk's staff. The situation was discussed by Mayor Duncan and several of the Aldermen with Mr. Wearing this morning, and the latter was advised to propose to the Commission that it forward a recommendation to the Council on Monday night next. The Commission will hold a meeting tonight, and it is likely that this action will be taken.

WITHHOLD INFORMATION

Several citizens have reported to Mr Wearing their suspicions that they have seen recent deliveries of coal going to neighbours who they assert have already received their lawful allotment. But these citizens carried their neighborliness to the extent of refusing to divulge names.

"We can't be expected to investigate if we haven't complete information, or at least the names of the persons," Mr. Wearing remarked.

There has been some suggestion that the Commission if unable to receive the applications for coal and designate them to dealers, because of the detailed work involved, may be able to examine the daily orders placed with the dealers and investigate them. Then the orders from citizens who have not yet obtained coal will be approved and the deliveries officially sanctioned.

ALD. EDGAR'S REJOINDER.

Ald. Edgar takes exception to Mr. Murray's criticism at the Trades and Labour Council of his administration as Commissioner. Al. Edgar points out that he resigned on July 2nd, and in his short term of office did not have sufficient opportunity to enforce the regulations. He wrote several times to the dealers who had failed to forward their daily statements of deliveries, but his letters were ignored, and he din't have time to follow them up. The office was then vacant for three months.

BOWLING ALLEY NEWS

It will be seen by reference to the advertisement on the sporting spage that Mr. W. Sharpe has taken over the George street bowling alley of Yeates Bros. Mr. Sharpe has been managing this alley for some time and has given good service. The attendance is increasing and the game has become quite lively and interesting. With four alleys and busy helpers at each end, patrons can enjoy a lot of hearty exercise knocking down the pins.

REVERSED THE USUAL

Don't be money out of pocket on your fall and winter shoe buying, when you can save a good big slice of what you expected to pay by buying at the Peterboro Shoe Store's October Sale. This unusual offering opens the season with real genuine money saving bargains in all lines of footwear, for Men, Women, Boys, Misses and Children, instead of waiting till the end of the season before reducing prices to effect a clean-up. Their large ad. in yesterday's paper told the story. Come to 291 George street, nearly opposite the Opera House, and see the proof of it.

Annual Business Meeting of the Women Teachers' Guild

Members Have Knit 228 Pairs of Socks—Officers Elected for the Year.

The annual business meeting of the Women Teacher's Guild was held at the Central School on Thursday. The Secretary's report showed that the Guild had enjoyed a successful and prosperous year. "Midsummer Night's Dream," which had been systematically studied at the regular monthly meetings had been not only a source of pleasure to the members but had through public presentation helped materially to augment the wool fund of the Society, as $140.75 was realized at the open meeting. The interest of the Peterboro Women Teacher's Guild was appreciably widened this season by the sending of delegates, one to the annual luncheon of the London Women Teacher's Guild and one to the Ontario Round Table Conference held in Toronto at Easter.

WOOL COMMITTEE

The convenor of the Wool Committee reported that since January 1st 1918 eleven spindles of wool had been purchased and 228 pairs of socks had been knitted by the members Of these 106 pairs had been sent to the 57th Chapter I. O. D. E. and 122 pairs to the C. W. C. A.

The treasurer gave a most satisfactory report of the Society's finances. The total receipts for the year were shown to be $211.33, the expenditures $183.40 leaving a balance on hand of $27.93. The principal items of expenditure were $71.90 for wool and $50 as a donation to the Prisoners of War Fund.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The officers of the Guild elected for the ensuing year are:—President, Miss Lapp, 1st Vice President, Miss Wallace, 2nd Vice President, Miss McVannel, Secretary, Miss Rutherford, Treasurer, Miss Nichol.

MARY MILES MINTER AT THE EMPIRE

No Grewsome Ghosts in Her Play, "The Ghost of Rosy Taylor."

Mary Miles Minter hits a new angle of pictorial comedy and pathos in her new American-Mutual photoplay, "The Ghost of Rosy Taylor."

A play with a ghost in it might easily be supposed to possess a gruesome touch, but nothing could be farther from the fact. Rhoda Sayles (Miss Minter), who is believed by her employers to be Rosy Taylor, a charwoman, is in reality a very beautiful young orphan whose father has just died in Paris leaving her without knowledge of her American relatives. Of course the fact that Rhoda's rich uncle Joseph is searching everywhere for her and finds her at last puts the correct final touch to a very delightful series of adventures.

Mr. Geo. Macdonald Chairman of the Advisory Board

At a meeting of the Advisory Board of the Red Cross Society, Mr. George A. Macdonald was elected chairman, succeeding Mr. Roland Denne. During the past year the assistance the Board has rendered the Society has been invaluable, and the ladies who are so anxious for the success of the Red Cross, may rest assured that under Mr. Macdonald's supervision the Board will continue its splendid service. This year's canvas for the Red Cross will be made on October 22nd, 23rd and 24th. The committees for this work have already been drawn up and plans completed for a thorough canvas of the city.

Butter Situation as Viewed by the Peterboro Merchants

Oleo Margarine Will be a Useful Adjunct in Keeping the Price of Butter Down.

Fearing a butterless winter or rapid raise in price as a result of the government order commandeering the creamy supply, the grocers report that they have been kept busy answering insistent calls for large quantities from their customers. The situation, if it develops as the grocers expect, into a real shortage of butter, will have a reaction in popularizing oleomargarine, which during the summer had practically no sale, and in this way the grocers hope to keep prices down to present levels.

"The public like it, all but the name,' a merchant declared." Generally the public have not done any panicky buying in any line, and stored only their usual supply of winter goods. One grocer said this morning that the patriotism of Peterboro women can be measured more easily by the grocery order than in any other way. This was especially proved by the way they took the sugar restrictions. Those who had the interests of the country at heart were willing to abide by conditions, while others reviled the merchant in no hesitating manner, declaring that the shortage was caused by the merchants themselves trying to hold up stocks to raise the prices.

Little Fruit.

The fruit dealers say that to say the housekeepers have put up three-quarters of the usual supply of jams and preserves would be a broad estimate. The sugar situation cut down the consumption during the entire season more than one-quarter. Vegetables, however were sold in such unexpected quantities the merchants anticipate a reduction in price of canned goods during the winter.

Harvest Thanksgiving at St. Alban's

Harvest Thanksgiving services will be held at St. Alban's, Browntown on Sunday next at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. The Ven Archdeacon Warren will be the preacher. A special offering will be taken up for the Building Fund, and those who have received envelopes for that purpose will please bring them on Sunday or if unable to be present send them by Saturday evening addressed to the Church wardens of St Alban's Browntown, P.O. Those who have not received the special envelope but are anxious to contribute, of whom there must be many, are requested to follow the same procedure only using an ordinary plain envelope. The congregation of St. Alban's are requested to meet the Archdeacon at the Mission room on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock to discuss plans re the building of the new church.

GOVERNMENT GIVES $175,000 FOR HAMILTON TECHNICAL SCHOOL

HAMILTON, Oct. 3.—F. R. Close, Chairman of the Technical Committee of the Board of Education, to-night informed the Internal Management Committee that he had been informed that the Government had appropriated $175,000 for a unit of the new Technical School that will be used for vocational training of soldiers. The announcement was greeted with cheers.

FIVE-PIN LEAGUE AT WATER ST. ALLEYS

Great interest is being taken in the five-pin game at the Water Street Alleys. It has been found necessary to run an "A" and "B" league. Four teams compose the "A" league—Grocers, C.G.E., High Rollers and the Maple Leafs. For the "B" league six teams are expected to enter. There will be a meeting of the league to-morrow night at the alleys at 8 o'clock, when the captains and all interested are requested to be present.

500 "FLU" CASES IN RENFREW, TEN PERSONS DEAD

Appeal to Provincial Health Authorities for Nurses and Doctor to Fight the Epidemic—One Nurse Going

A SERIOUS OUTBREAK

In response to the appeal of the Health Department of Renfrew for volunteer nurses and doctors to fight a severe outbreak of influenza, Miss Laura O'Brien is leaving at once, and it is expected that other Peterboro nurses will be available. The Medical Association at their meeting in the Public Library last night received a telegram from Dr. John S. McCullough, chairman of the Provincial Board of Health, announcing that there are five hundred cases of influenza in Renfrew, and ten deaths have already been reported. An urgent message was sent to the Provincial authorities asking for aid, and the Provincial Secretary wired many of the towns and cities in search of doctors and nurses who could be spared to meet this outbreak in the east.

None of the local doctors can leave their work here at present, but if there are any other nurses who can arrange to go they are requested to communicate with Dr. Maloney the district officer of Health at Cornwall and also notify Dr. Buchanan here.

APPEAL FROM BOSTON

This is the second summons within a week for aid against the rapidly spreading "grippe." Boston's appeal was forwarded here, but none of the nurses were available.

Dr. Archibald, Associate Professor of Surgery gave a lecture on "Brain Injuries" at last night's meeting of the Medical Association.

A Peterboro War Garden

A VICTORIA HEIGHTS WAR GARDEN

Tribute From German Officer

Canadian Press:

PARIS, Oct 4.— A tribute to the skill and courage of an adversary was given in the last few days by a mortally wounded German officer, who exclaimed to a French officer: "You have fought magnificently. You will be in my country by Christmas. As a soldier I congratulate you."

NEW GREENHOUSE FOR CEMETERY

FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS WILL BE EXPENDED ON THE WORK

The Little Lake Cemetery Company is adding a $500 greenhouse to the cemetery property. The new house will be practically the same size as the one recently torn down.

Mrs. Dixon at Temple on Sunday Morning

Mrs. Dixon of the Honeywell evangelistic organization will conduct the Sunday morning service at the Salvation Army Temple. The special harvest festival will be held to-morrow with an altar service in the morning, and a Sunday school rally in the afternoon.

Major Buchanan Here To-Night

Major Buchanan, chief travelling representative of the Pensions Board, did not arrive in the city last night in time to give an address to returned soldiers as intended, but met the Pensions committee of the G.W.V.A. at the latter's headquarters. Major Buchanan remained over in the city and will be at the G.W.V.A. rooms at 7.30 o'clock to-night to discuss the Pensions system. All returned soldiers are invited to be present to-night.

THE TIME HAS BEEN EXTENDED

The Peterboro Plowmen's Association have extended the time for entries for the five acre plowing contest until October 10, and the date for finishing the work until October 25. The unfavorable weather has probably deterred some farmers from entering. This will give a further opportunity to compete.

This is Not the Time For Criticism, Says Dr. Honeywell at Last Night's Tabernacle Meeting

"It is No Easy Task for an Evangelist When You Get a Whole Crowd of Worldly Preoccupied Church Members in the Gospel Wagon and the Evangelist Out in the Shafts Trying to Pull the Thing Through to Glory."

If the Peterboro leaders in the Union Evangelistic Campaign that is now under way in the city had any impression when they invited Rev. Dr. L. E. Honeywell to the city, that he would devote his main attention to urging the unconverted to become converted, they have had plenty of opportunity this week to find that that is not Dr. Honeywell's idea of conducting a campaign. From his opening address Sunday night up to the present he has devoted his main attention to impressing upon the Christian people of Peterboro that if there is to be a revival in this city it must commence with the Christian people themselves. Sunday night he impressed upon his hearers the absolute necessity of Christians being in constant prayer for the success of the campaign. Tuesday night he pointed out that is Christian people are continuing in sin, such as by maintaining an unforgiving spirit neglecting to live honestly before the world, being covetous and careless in regard to the payment of their debts, their attitude will be certain to block the outpouring of the Holy Spirit for which prayer is being made. Christian people, therefore, he contended must get right with God.

More Positive.

Last night Dr. Honeywell was even more positive in his stand. Christians must not only get right with God, but he contended they must take an active part in the campaign. He stated that when they invited him to Peterboro they made it their campaign, not his, as he considers himself only the invited guest of the Christian people of Peterboro. If the Christian people of the city are in earnest in their desire for a revival then God can be depended upon to do His part. If, however, any considerable number of people are sitting back, hoping that somebody else will do the work, then their indifference will affect others, and the great blessing which the city may have may be denied. "I want to tell you," he said, "it is no easy task for a preacher or an evangelist, when you get a whole crowd of worldly preoccupied church members in the gospel wagon laughing and playing cards and dancing and the poor preacher or evangelist out in the shafts trying to pull the thing through to glory.

"Now I want to place upon your hearts with emphasis this fact: that the drawing of the crowd depends just as much upon you as upon the evangelist. This drawing is up to the Christian people of Peterboro. These meetings must have absolute right of way. Everything but work for the boys overseas must be sidetracked if we want to win.

"With you Christian business men the lodge must be given up for the next few weeks; you must deny yourself the club, the golf links, and the pleasure of your auto, if this interferes with the work of the campaign. Even your business must be arranged so as to give these meetings as much of your time, your energy and your strength as possible."

Must be Prepared.

Dr. Honeywell also told the Christian women of the city that they must be prepared to let their Ladies' Aid, Missionary Societies, W. C. T. U., and everything but work for the soldiers, stand over during the next few weeks, in order that they might unite in prayer meetings and other work of the campaign. Unless the Christian people of the city take the campaign in earnest no one else can be expected to do so.

"If you Christian people mean business," said Dr. Honeywell, "then you must clearly understand that your place of duty is the tabernacle, and that you must get into the choir and services and do your best to make the thing go. You owe it to your pastor, you owe it to the community, you owe it to me, you owe it to the lost souls of the city, you owe it to God, who loves you, and you owe it to Christ, who died for you, that you be in the cottage prayer meetings, the afternoon services, and the night meetings, if it is at all within your power to be present."

No Time to Criticize.

Dr. Honeywell stated that he had not been hearing any criticism, but that he desired to impress that this is not the time for criticism. Any person can criticize but it requires a good man to boost. "I think Billy Sunday is the greatest living revivalist in the world," stated Dr. Honeywell. "His sermons do more good, and reach more persons than those of any other evangelist. A good deal of this is due to the language of the street which he uses. It catches the street loafers, men with big hearts, but unguided in purpose, by speaking to them in a language which they are able to understand. If we are to reach the people outside of our churches we must use methods that will appeal to them, as otherwise they will not listen."

Dr. Honeywell said that he had no thought of boasting when he said he had taken a college course in one of the best universities of the land, and that he believed he knew how to use the King's English, but he hoped that the Christian people of the city would realize that if he used expressions in appealing to the sinning and lost humanity in an effort to save them it took neither sense nor religion to be a knocker of such methods. "The critic is a perpetual annoyance—the knocker a constant thorn of the flesh. He has no great capacity himself but he keeps up a constant buzzing. Write a book he caricatures it; plan a union revival campaign and he condemns it. We trust that we are big enough, and broad enough and fair enough to give every man in town, whether he agrees with us or not the squarest deal and should we fail, it will be a mistake of our head and not of our heart."

Dr. Honeywell also emphasized the fact that the Christian people of Peterboro should be prepared to do individual work. The evangelist may shake the tree but the Christian workers must gather the fruit. The Christian people of Peterboro must be praying themselves to become soul winners. When they realize their part in the campaign, and all look to God for help and strength and guidance, a wonderful blessing may be expected in the city before the campaign is over.

Campaign Notes.

The committee in charge of the campaign are leaving no stones unturned to ensure its success. Constant improvements are being made in the building as the need for these is realized or anticipated. All the openings in the windows have been stopped to guard against drafts. Additional stoves are being put in. Paper has been stretched over the iron beams which has improved the the accoustic properties of the hall. A small sounding board was hung above the speaker's desk a few days ago, but as some people still complain of difficulty of hearing the speaker, plans are now being perfected for the erection of a much larger, and probably curved sounding board to be erected in a way that while it will not hide the view of the choir, will serve to throw the speaker's voice to all parts of the hall. More saw dust has been placed on the floor to deaden the sound of people entering or leaving the hall. A policeman has been on guard at the door of late to see that small boys would not interfere with the service by making often unintentional noises at the back of the hall. These changes are making decided improvements.

The work of organizing the campaign along the lines that have proved so successful in the campaigns in the United States, is proving a bigger undertaking than most of the local men realized would be the case, but they are taking hold of the work loyally. Plans for bringing the work into close touch with all classes of the community are being developed, and are expected to be in full running order by early next week. Arrangements are being made to have congregations attend from outside points on nights that are being specified. Delegations are also being planned from various city institutions for certain nights in the same way. Before long everything should be moving along with a splendid swing.

In his address to-night Dr. Honeywell is going to speak on the Achievement of Success. As it will be an address that will be of special value to the young, it is understood that arrangements have been made for a large attendance of pupils and students from the Collegiate, Normal School and Business College, who have been given permission to carry their pennants, etc.

Sunday evening a number of the churches will close, while a few others may open at a quarter to 7 closing in time to permit their members to reach the Tabernacle at about 7.30, when the union service will commence sharp on time.

Shortly after 4 Sunday afternoon there will be a special meeting for Christian workers in the Tabernacle. Those engaged in Sunday school work will be able to go direct from the schools to this meeting. It will be over in good time to let them be back in time for their church services. Announcements for next week's services will be made to-morrow.

FORMER PETERBORO HOCKEY PLAYER IS TO BE MARRIED

The announcement has been made of the wedding of Joe Dwyer formerly of Peterboro to Miss Clara Cook at Sarnia this month, and the Sarnia hockey fans have a surprise in store for the popular custodian of the nets. They will make him the presentation of a purse of gold as a token of their appreciation of his excellent work while a member of the above team.

"Joe" Dwyer will turn out with Niagara Falls his winter. He has a job with the Hydro-Electric in that city.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRED TAYLOR.

The sudden death took place yesterday morning at 6:20 o'clock of a well known resident of Lindsay in the person of Amanda Fidelia Van Alstine, beloved wife of Mr. Fred Taylor.

The deceased had been in ill-health for about a year, but was only confined to her room for the last few days. Her unexpected passing came, therefore, as a shock to her relatives and friends.

The late Mrs. Taylor was in her 63rd year. She was born in Lindsay, being a daughter of the late Cyrinne Van Alstine, and is survived by her husband, one son, Fred, two daughters, Mrs. Fred Martin, and Mrs. George Bell of Lindsay; also two sisters, Mrs. Wm. Flemming, Peterboro, and Mrs. George Campbell, Lindsay.

The funeral will leave the family residence, Saturday, Oct. 5th at 2.30 p.m., and proceed to Riverside Cemetery. Service at the house at 2.00 p.m.

WEDDING BELLS

LYNCH—McCARNEY

Quietly in Halifax on Monday, September 30th., in St. Marys' Cathedral the wedding was solemnized of Frank J. Lynch son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lynch, Park street and Cathrine McCarney, matron of Aldershot Hospital, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McCarney, Bethune street. Reverend Father Quinan preformed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will reside in Halifax for a short time.

PETERBORO BOY IN AERIAL CRASH

Friends of Cadet W. Derry will regret to learn that owing to the results of a recent crash at Camp Leaside, he is unable to finish his course in the Royal Air Force. The accident occurred at a very inopportune time as his training was about completed. It will be remembered that nine months ago Cadet Derry transferred from the Artillery, Kingston, in which he had been serving for the past two years.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Canon Dixon, Toronto, who preached last evening at All Saint's Church was a guest at the Empress.

Dr A. Robertson was in Buffalo yesterday to meet his daughter Miss Phyllis Robertson, who returned last night.

Mrs. W. H. Hill returned yesterday from a short visit at Niagara and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs Davis, Stewart street, are spending their holidays at White Mountains.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., is in the city, the guest of his daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) H. A. Frost, 166 Dublin street.

Major (Rev.) H. A. Frost, who has been overseas for the past four years on chaplain service, is in the city and has taken up residence at 166 Dublin street, with his wife and child.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, Walton street, have returned from a week's visit to Toronto.

U. S. MEN REJOICE OVER BULGARIA'S SURRENDER; SHOUT IT TO HUN LINES.

American Headquarters in France, (Reuter).—News of the Bulgarian armistice had been received with rejoicings by the troops, who shouted it across to the enemy lines where the lines were near enough.

The change of the weather to cold and dry has made the roads again available for traffic. The enemy opposition continues but there are indications that the fighting is of a covering character and that he contemplates a withdrawal to a more distant line of defence.

Conserving Washrags

(By United Press.)

NAPLES, ITALY, Sept. 10. — (By Mail.)—What's the use of a wash-rag when there isn't any water?

Countess Caselli, who was an American girl, now directing the American Red Cross sewing room at Naples, discovered the answer.

Wash-rags are being converted into bonnets by hundreds of refugee women under her direction. Face-cloths are useful at the front, but make a useful addition to the layettes of refugee mothers behind the lines.

The knitted squares are also made into baby jackets. One cloth folded in one place and gathered in another makes the cap; two of them put together, according to a combination invented by Countess Caselli, make the jacket. The small garments are tied with pink and blue bows made from the tapes that tie bolts of material as they come from the manufacturer.

The Naples workrooms are also making "shoo-flys" out of scraps and cuttings. A dozen long narrow strips of mualin are fastened with a bit of red, white and blue ribbon at the end of a ten or twelve inch bamboo stick. "Shoo-flys" are used in children's hospitals.

METHODISTS REFUSE TO TAKE PROPOSAL VERY SERIOUSLY

Suggestion Was Advanced by Bay of Quinte Conference.

(Special to The Examiner.)

HAMILTON, Oct. 4.—Fasting is a thing of the past as far as Methodism is concerned. The General Conference now in session here refuses to take seriously the suggestion sent on by the Bay of Quinte Conference that the delegates spend three days in fasting, prayer and humiliation before God in order to help bring peace to the world. Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, who presides over the conference just smiled when the reporter asked his view of it to-day.

"Do you think the conference could fast for three days and carry on its work at the same time?" he was asked.

"Oh I think we will go on as usual," he replied.

"There is a great deal of work to be done."

The matter was mentioned in one of the communiques this morning and did not meet with any enthusiastic support.

"I move that the fastings be postponed until the rise of the conference," said one waggish delegate.

If that were done it would not worry anybody. In the meantime the ladies of the First Methodist Church were very busy feeding some 500 delegates and their friends in the spacious basement dining hall of the church at 65 cents for luncheon and 50 cents for dinner. There was an incident somewhat out of the ordinary this morning. As the delegates were trooping into the church a Hamilton lady stood on the steps handing out millenial dawn tracts, proclaiming the immediate coming of Christ to this world.

"This is what you should preach," she said to the preachers. "If you would preach this Christ would come to the world at once."

"Well, lady," replied a Northern Ontario cleric, "handing out leaflets won't bring Him, but if you and I and all the rest of us get busy and make the world fit for His coming, He will come sure."

The morning was spent by the various committees going over the work to get it ready for the main conference session. There were about a score of committees in session all over the big church building.

NO PUBLIC MEETINGS.

Lodges, Schools, Theatres closed in Ingersoll.

Ingersoll, Oct. 3. — As a precautionary measure because of the influenza epidemic, the Board of Health at a special session this afternoon, after discussing the situation with the doctors, passed a resolution directing that all meetings of lodges, Red Cross and other societies, as well as schools, churches, theatres, etc., be prohibited until further notice.

A SQUARE DEAL

Are you giving your country a square deal? Canada's effort in this war has roused the admiration of the entire world. Thousands of Canada's sons have made the supreme sacrifice. What has been your part?

Has it just been that of making money out of war prosperity,—and then squandering it? Yes or No? You must make the answer to your own conscience.

If the answer is "Yes," you are not giving Canada a square deal. You are, in truth, giving her the lowest kind of a deal. Sacrifices cannot be equal; but honour and conscience demand that everyone make some measure of sacrifice. The lightest that can be asked is the giving up of waste and extravagance,—aye, even harmless tastes, in order to save. Canadians must Save in order to Lend. Canadians must Lend if Canada is to win and to thrive in the future. Give Canada a square deal. Sacrifice to Save; Save to Lend!

New Industry For Canada

Sir Sam Hughes is Interested in Present Concern

OTTAWA, Oct. 6. —The establishment in Canada of a plant of the British Catulose Company is an immediate probability. The company has a plant in process of erection in New Jersey and as result of a conference between General Sir Sam Hughes and J. D. McCurdy, the aviation expert in Ottawa this week, steps, it is stated are to be taken at once for the erection of a similar plant in the Dominion. The capital, it is said, has already been raised for the enterprise, which only awaits some further negotiations, before becoming an accomplished fact.

The British Catulose Company manufactures particularly a non-inflammable composition for the covering of aeroplanes. The composition, it is stated, may also be used for the manufacture of Cinematograph films, window panes, trays, tables, chairs, etc. It may also be used in the manufacture of silk. The plant therefore will be easily transformed from a war to a peace industry at the conclusion of hostilities.

Teach Children to Use Cuticura Soap

Because it is best for their tender skins. Help it now and then with touches of Cuticura Ointment applied to first signs of redness, roughness, pimples or dandruff. If mothers would only use these super-creamy emollients for every-day toilet purposes how much suffering might be avoided by preventing little skin and scalp troubles becoming serious.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address postcard: "Cuticura, Dept. N, Boston, U. S. A." Sold by dealers throughout the world.

Changes in The Grocery Market

Not Much Change in the Sugar Situation—Canned Goods

Wholesalers are to be held down to 80 per cent. of their 1917 purchases of sugar for the last four months of this year, according to latest advices available. Figures giving 1917 purchases have been submitted to the Food Board, and the allotment for the balance of the year will, it is hoped, run up to 80 per cent. for this period. There is no guarantee that this amount will be forthcoming, but this figure will not be exceeded, and should any wholesaler use up his four months' allotment in two months, his dealings automatically cease as far as sugar is concerned. The coupon system is replacing the certificate and will, it is thought, prove a much more satisfactory basis of operating for all concerned. Supplies generally are still rather light, and no immediate improvement is expected.

Information secured on prunes last week is confirmed in latest reports, and the outlook is that Canada will have to be content with goods which may now be on hand or rolling. There seems little prospect of new crop prunes reaching this country.

A Good Crop of Raisins.

Sales of raisins have been heavy, and wholesalers are still buying freely. There is a good crop of these, and indications are that all orders will be permitted to come through.

Some offerings of Comadre figs are being made, subject to securing export license and import license to Canada. Prices are about 150 per cent. higher than opening quotations last year. It is indicated that the cheapest grade in mats couldn't very well retail under 20-25c. per pound.

Declines are made in the price of Crisco, barley feeds, and some substitute flours are easier. Cornmeal is a trifle easier also, and barley products are reflecting an easier tendency for this grain.

Canned Goods.

Canned tomatoes and corn will not be as abundant as it was thought they would be a few weeks ago, due to unfavourable weather. Estimates are still undergoing revision. The bean outlook is not so favourable, but it is expected there will be plenty for all needs. Honey is active and trade generally is very favourable.

A general advance of about 2c. in walnuts and almonds, and 6c. in filberts in the shell is provided for in quotations issued to the trade this week. Shelled nuts are holding very firm, and a heavy volume of orders is now going forward.

Higher levels are noted in new prices issued on lobsters Sardines are also very firm at recent changes, and salmon rules with a very firm undertone. No further advice in regard to Government commandeering of salmon pack has been received. Latest figures as to amount United States Food Administration will require shows a very slight modification, hardly an appreciable factor.

A general stiffening of jam prices is in evidence. Last week it was strawberry; this week it is black currant; cheap jams are becoming an unknown quantity on the market to-day.

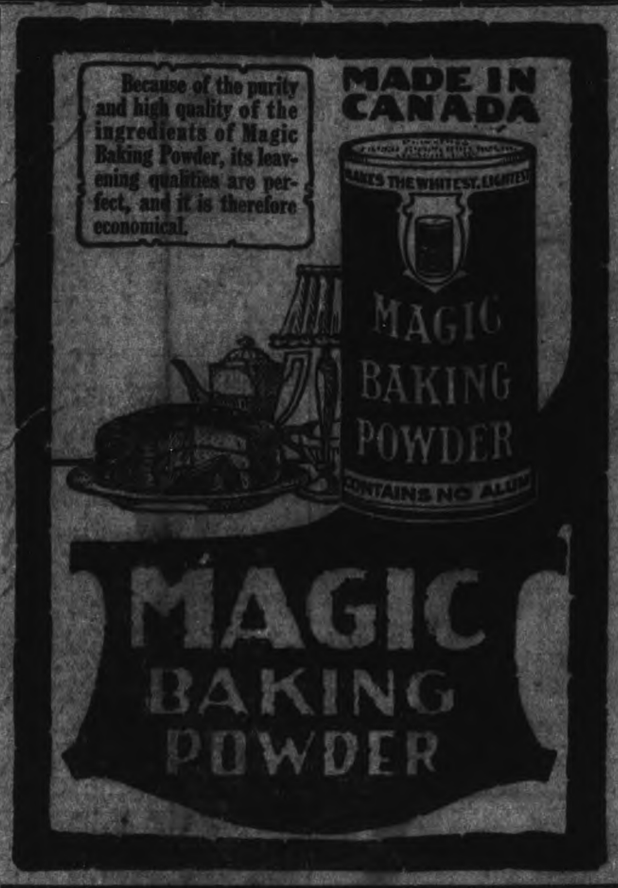
Decline in Cornmeal.

A sharp decline in cornmeal has become effective following easing away of corn markets in the States. This amounts to 40c. for one grade and 75c. for another, packed in 98s. Oatmeal has also dropped 20c. for 98s. Shredded wheat biscuit, 36s, regular, is up 25c. case.

Sales of spices show a substantial improvement during the past few days. It is stated that peppers are not so strong, but all other lines rule with a very firm undertone.

Coffee is in good demand, and the market strong. Supplies, though not heavy, will, it is thought, carry the trade along for some little time yet. A little more interest in teas is apparent, and greens particularly show considerable activity. Cocoa is becoming in more active demand, and the question of output is causing some more or less worry.

An advance is macaroni has been made, and other lines to go higher include sal soda, shoe polish, stove polish and toilet paper. Crisco has declined 50c. case.



THE SALVATION ARMY YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK IN PETERBORO'

When the Salvation Army first came to Peterborough, a Sunday School was started in connection with the senior corps.

For a considerable time Mrs. George Comstock had charge of this work and laboured faithfully with the children. When the present Superintendent, Sgt.-Major R. C. Braund came to this city twenty-six years ago, three rooms were occupied in the basement of the building by the eight classes comprising the Sunday School with a total attendance of fifty-five. For the past twenty-two years Mr. Braund has had charge of this work, and at the present time the Young People's branch of the corps is equalled by no other similar branch in Canada.

When Commandant McElhiney took charge of the local branch of the Salvation Army the record attendance for the Sunday School was 217. He, recognizing the value of the child, promptly instituted a scheme of visitation in the interests of the boys and girls of the city. To-day, largely through his efforts, the record attendance is 411.

The increase in the attendance soon overtaxed the capacity of the Temple Sunday School and a branch was opened in Brownton, and a little later a fine brick building was erected. This is now a separate senior and junior corps, known as Peterborough No. 2. A little later another branch was opened at Brailley's schoolhouse west of the city, which at the present time is composed of six classes. About a year ago, in view of the fact that a good number of Salvationists live in the east part of the city, it was deemed wise to open a Sunday School over there, and at the present time there are fice classes which are rapidly increasing. The parent Sunday School at the Simcoe Street Temple has thirty-one classes under the direct supervision of Sgt.-Major Braund.

Connected with the regular Sunday School work are the Corps Cadets, a special class where young people who intend to become Salvation Army officers are given a primary training towards that end. There is also a troop of Boy Scouts and one of Girl Guards, and a Junior Band. Many members of the latter have been absorbed into the Senior Band, thus taking the place of those who have enlisted for military service.

The Sunday School has received only two donations of any size since its inception. The first was a bequest of $500 from the estate of the late Mrs. Nicholls which was used to buy equipment, enlarge the Sunday School rooms and provide a library. The second was a donation from the Nicholls estate through Mr. Richard Hall, which was used to purchase a new library outright and also new cupboards which Mr. Hall inspected and pronounced splendid.

A yearly feature of the work is a Rally Day which takes place this year on Sunday next, October 6th. All the children are pledged to do their best to bring at least one new member. The gathering will take place at Central Park from which point the procession will march to the Temple where a special programme of music and gospel story will be given solely by the young people. Those taking part in the procession will be as follows:

1. Three boys carrying flags.
2. Senior Band.
3. Cradle Roll — Bus drawn by classes 18, 7, 23, 19, 22.
4. Primary Class—holding to ropes to be managed my class No. 9.
5. Bugle Band.
6. East City, Brailey and Brownton Classes.
7. Classes 28, 29, 10, 11, 13 and 8.
8. Classes 18, 21, 25, 26, 5, 6, 3, 12, 16.
9. Songsters.
10. Mrs. Badley and Girls Guards.
11. Veterans drawn in bus.

A great deal of credit is due to Sgt.-Major Braund for his untiring interest and faithful labour in the Sunday School under his supervision, and it is to this that the Peterborough S. A. Young People's work owes a goodly portion of its success to-day.

GRAIN MARKET

Millfeeds were advanced yesterday 85c. per ton. Manitoba flour also goes up 30c. per barrel. Ontario flour for ket is very firm. The option grain market is very rm. The option grain markets developed a little strength yesterday, re-acting somewhat from the bearish sentiment which has prevailed for some days on account of the favourable war news. Aside from the influence which peace talk invariably has, the market conditions are essentially strong.

Manitoba wheat — No. 1 northern, $2.34 1-2; No. 2, $2.21 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.11 1-2, not including tax, in store, Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 84 7-8c., in store, Fort William; No. 3, 81 5-8c.; extra No. 1 feed, 81 5-8c.; No. 1 feed, 79 5-8c.

OATTLE MARKET

A very heavy run of cattle offering for the opening market on Monday of this week, and telegraphic despatches at the same time telling of large supplies at Buffalo and all other outside markets, was the signal for a re- the week before, and the statements course, to lower levels. The result was soon seen in the lower bidding for the heavyweight steers, of which there was a larger supply on hand than usual of late, in part due to the keen demand for this class of cattle he week before, and the statements of the packers that they could take all the heavy stuff coming. When the shippers brought their heavy cattle in and were met by a 50c. cut in the previous week's prices there was much indignant protesting on the part of the shippers, accompanied by many threats that they would take their cattle to the Buffalo market, and take their losses there, if they had to take them at all. Several shippers, acting on this impulse, took their cattle to Buffalo, only to find conditions there much the same as in the Toronto market ,and that, as a matter of fact they would have come out better had they stayed with the home market. It was evidently a case of over-supplies, with the inevitable consequence that all the markets were weaker. This condition applied with even more force to the lower grades of cattle, for declining prices became the order of the day, and continued so for the remainder of the week, each succeeding day bringing still lower prices, the average decline for the week being anywhere from a dollar to a dollar and a half.

The only exception to the general rule was in the case of feeders, a good steady demand for choice quality feeders persisting all through the week.

Choice veal calves held steady and firm, but the heavy calves met a poor demand at lower prices.

Sheep and lambs steadily weakened under the heavy runs all week.

The hog situation afforded, as usual, the big guessing contest for the week. Again the quotations as given out by the packers, came reports thick and fast from all quarters, that no one seemed able to either verify or to deny, that much higher prices were in fact being paid by the same packers at country points. The total results at the end of the week seemed to be that no general price still remained at $19.35 to $19.60, fed and watered.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts this week: 520 cars, with 9,014 cattle, 624 calves, 5,300 hogs and 6,700 sheep and lambs.

City Cattle Market—40 cars, with 450 cattle, 1,352 sheep and lambs, 474 hogs, and 97 calves.

FIRE PREVENTION

Extracts from PROCLAMATION

Issued by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario.

Whereas next to the care of those who are offering their lives on the front line of battle, the conservation of all our energies and substance is our most important problem;

And whereas the saving of human life, thrift, and the prevention of loss of property through destruction by fire, is an aid which every one should give willingly to the community at large;

And whereas the reckless and impoverishing fire waste that confronts the people of our Province is appalling;

* * *

Therefore, believing that the loss can be minimized only by awakening in the public mind a universal watchfulness against carelessness, accumulation of rubbish and unsanitary conditions;

* * * and

Because of this great need and in order to arouse a sense of watchfulness, carefulness and cleanliness, and to create a greater personal responsibility in reducing the number of preventable fires;

We have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council for Our Province of Ontario, to name, and do hereby name Wednesday, the

FIRE PREVENTION DAY

And We do hereby urge that on this day, throughout our Province of Ontario, attention be called in schools and public places to the conditions that exist and to the need of immediate action and co-operation on the part of everyone; and special exercises, addresses and other means be employed to impress on the public mind lessons of Fire Prevention.

* * *

To insure the success of this great Clean-up Campaign it will be necessary to have the hearty and harmonious co-operation of all

* * * who have for their objects civic, social and industrial * * * betterment.

The Proclamation should be read in all Schools and at Public Gatherings.

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

THE WEDDING DA

CHAPTER V.

The day Ruth and Brian were married dawned bright and beautiful. Awake with the first peep of day, Ruth ran to the window, and, leaning out, said happily:

"Hapy is the bride the sun shines on!" then called Mammy to draw her bath.

"What for yo up so early!" the old woman grumbled, coming in with her cap all awry, "I done thought yo was sick, callin me befo I had my cap on."

"No Rachel! I'm not sick, I'm boing to be married to the man I love and I am very happy! I want to get dressed quickly and get out of doors. month but October! See the sun on the golden trees, Rachel, isn't it lovely?"

"What you call them trees gold for? They ain't no gold. They is just gittin ready to die, them trees is, just like old Rachel will when her baby goes away."

"Nonsens! Hasn't Brian said I could send for you, soon? Come, don't look so distressed. One would think you w ere never going to see me again!" And taking hold of the nurse, Ruth danced her around the room, until she was out of breath.

"Dar, child! What yo all tryin' to do? Kill yo ole mammy?"

"No, make you stop grumbling so that I can have my bath."

Rachel went into the bathroom to prepare everything for her young mistress' morning bath, as she had ever seen Ruth a child of ten, had come to "The Terrace" (as the place was named) to live. The running water drowned her grumbling, bbut it could not prevent her giving her thoughts expression:

FOR THE LAST TIME

"Who gwan to get her bath ready, lak I does? She ain't no call to go away up thar along with him wid out me, that she ain't. Wht he thinkin' of, anyway. Thar ain't no niggers up thar, only poor white trash niggers. They ain't worth nothin', them kind. I reckon she'll be eendin' fer old Rachel mighty soon when she gets one of them awaitin' on her." Then, "Come, missy Ruth, yo bath am ready."

"All right" The clear voice answered, "Are you good-natured again, Mammy If you're not, I'll put you in with your clothes on, you see if I don't!"

"Yes, Ise' good-natured. I was jes thinkin' about them pore white trash kind of niggers yo will get up north to wait on yo all. Yo will be a sendin' for old Rachel mighty soon, so you needn't be making threats to throw me in dat tub."

"It isn't a threat, it's a promise!" Ruth said gayly, giving Rachel a hug and a resounding kiss, before she got into the tubb jrepared for her. "I want my coffee quick! I wont to have an hour out of dors before breakfost."

"All right honey, it'll be ready when yo is," and the old woman hustled away too quickly to hear Ruth say:

"I wonder if I will have to get my own coffee, or go without?" Then, "I must ask cook to tell me how."

"Isn't he handsome, Rachel?" she asked, as she sipped he coffee.

"Who, missy Ruth?"

"Why, Brian, of course. Who else could I mean?" Ruth had had scarcely a thought she had not shared with her old mammy. It was perfecly natural that she should take over her lover with her.

"Beauty's only skin deep, eo missy Clairbon' say once."

"But he IS handsome, isn't he?" persisted Ruth.

"Yes' missy, he mighty handsome fer a man. Yo all gwan to mak a mighty fine lokin' couple, i reckon."

"I only wish I was as handsome as he is."

"Go long wid' you, honey, yo is mighty purty. Yo ain't no wax doll purty, lak that Sutton gal wid' her yallar hair and blue eyes; bbu yo has de REAL look, yo has."

DEW AND DREAMS

"There! now get me my cape. I won't be cold if I take that." She had read disapproval in Rachel's eyes.

"Be sure yo wears it," the nurse said as she gave it to her young mistress. Ruth had a way of roaming around the gardens in the arly morning, gathering flowers or, now that most of the fiflowers were gone, great sprays of autumn leaves with which she decorated the breakfast tabble. "It is necessary that the table where one eats, be artistic, pleasing to the eye, if the food is to taste good," she often said, when reproved by Rachel for getting her feet wet in the early dew.

This morning, the morning of her wedding day, she went about her task with a gay, lilting song upon her lips. She sang for pure happiness. BBut so had she sung many other mornings, before she knew Brian Hackettt. Why shouldn't she? Loved, indulged, she had everything to make her happy, nothing to make her unhappy.

"I wonder if you will have a garden," she said aloud, as sh turnd toward the house, her arms filled with leaves of rd and brown and gold. "Of cours we won't!" she laughed quickly, "we are going to live in an apartment—for a little while." But she held the leaves a little closer and before she arranged them, she burried her face in their fresh, dewy beauty, and smiled ever so little.

GROUP COLONIES.

A Social Danger That Our Young Nation Must Face.

What will be our attitude towards the foreigner when the war is over? Will we continue to encourage the establishment of colonies of foreigners, or will we profit by the experience of the United States and our country? If we continue the policy Canada will assuredly see the day of remorse and regret.

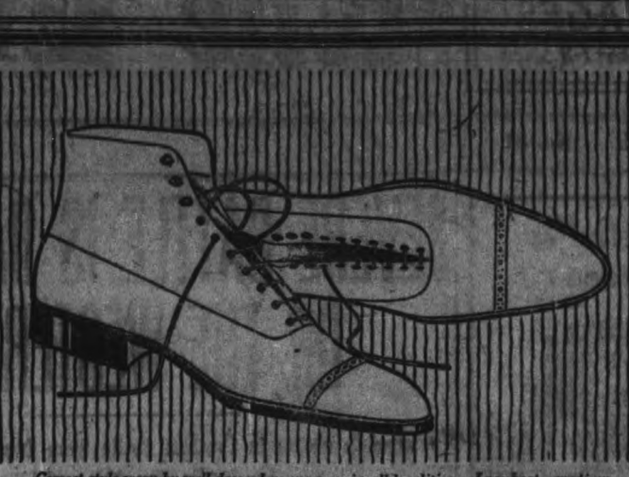
Hark back to the time before the war. Immigrants poured in by the hundreds of thousands annually, and we paid slight heed to them after they came. We did not care whether they lived in colonies, speaking their native language to the exclusion of English, or whether they sunk themselves in the slums of cities, or mingled with the English-speaking peoples.

Our governments, both Liberal and Conservative, encouraged the policy of segregation, and thus over the western prairies we find whole sections of country, the population of which scarce know a word of English. Their schools were employed to perpetuate the traditions and language of the land of their parents. Canada to them meant nothing except a place where they could have free what they could not acquire in their home land in a hundred years—land and the freedom to earn a living unhampered by back-breaking taxes and rents.

The Government or, rather, the politicians making up the Government, encouraged this condition, because each settlement was a pocket of votes for the party in power in that particular province and also for that party's candidates in Federal elections. The foreigner was a sure bet for the politicians, and battles raged around and in those colonies for possession of the vote. The same condition prevailed in the United States, and one section of lovers of a foreign land caused that country the deepest concern and had its politicians on the jump until the true American asserting himself forever put the danger of foreign domination on the scrap heap. The German sympathizers, by every possible means at their command, tried to seize the political fate of the United States and thus give their Fatherland virtual control of the country, for that is what it would have meant had the conspiracy succeeded. But fortunately for the country and the world at large the scheme was not a success.

We do not have to go far from home to bring back recollections of the struggles put forth by politicians to secure the block vote of foreign residents who had been naturalized by the hundreds on the eve of an election. Possibly the danger attending such a condition did not strike us as it will now, when there is cause to consider the situation as it presents itself in war time. One thing is certain: Whatever our immigration policy may be, one of its features should certainly be discouragement of the plan of segregation. There are men and women of foreign birth in Canada who are so closely akin to the native and British-born that they take up their full share of citizenship at the earliest possible moment. They do not nest together, but acquiring the language of the country, hasten to become a part of the life of the nation. Such men and women readily and rapidly absorb the national aims and views, nor lend themselves to forward the personal ambitions of politicians.

Whether the politicians will have learned a lesson and are ready to apply it remains to be seen. — Pat Arthur, News Chronicle.



Correct style worn by well dressed young men in all localities. Lace boot—medium narrow recede toe, low heel—made in black, tan or patent calf. Price, $7.00 to $10.00.

Style—Plus Service at a Fair Price

THE style illustrated above is one that is largely preferred by Canadian business men—especially young men. It has the medium long vamp and narrow, somewhat pointed toe which gives the foot a slim and "dressy" appearance, without being extreme in style. Those who like this type of shoe will find it thoroughly satisfactory in fitting qualities and a comfortable easy shoe to walk in.

This style can be obtained in several grades of black and tan. The price range—$7 to $10—considering the present leather market, is extremely moderate.

Next spring a shoe of the same wearing qualities will cost from ten to twenty per cent more. It would cost more now except for the fact that the resources of this company enable us to cover our needs well in advance.

SAVED BIG-GUN BATTERY.

Brilliant Exploit Credited to Major Brock.

An eye-witness' account has come to hand of how Major F. Freer Brock, R.G.A., a Winnipeg officer saved a battery of British heavies in sensational fashion during the spring retreat. Personal gallantry and ingenuity combined to make the feat the talk of an army corps, according to the British officer who told the story to a Winnipeg man in England. Major Brock is a nephew of the late Mr. W. R. Brock, of Toronto, a grandson of the late Rev. John Gillespie, rector of the Church of the Messiah, Toronto.

For four hours after the infantry had retreated, leaving his gun emplacements as the outposts of the British front, Major Brock kept all his command in position. Then he sent to the rear all but the gunners, and with them kept firing for another eight hours, until 6 p.m., his guns being the only British pieces in action on that front during the afternoon. A gunner and an officer were shot in turn after this hour in going back to search for a locomotive. Major Brock then proceeded to the rear, got safely to his destination, and came back with an engine.

"But the Germans had meanwhile cut the railway line behind the guns, so the Canadian sent away his remaining men and got some engineers to rebuild the line," continues the narrator. "Then the engine was found too light to move a gun, so he went back and got two locomotives, and the last one moved both guns out. On the way an attempt was made to rescue an abandoned howitzer, but it had to be blown up."

Next day the Winnipeg major was in Peronne, calling on English friends in billets and wearing only a tin helmet, a pair of thigh boots, and a coat down to his knees. The next day an officer of another battery reminded Major Brock that his guns would be useless for two months until steel cribs could be got from England.

"He gathered a gang of men and had them cut railway ties into the proper shape for cribs and, of course, there was a lot of betting that the improvised cribs would let the guns topple over at the first shot," says the brother officer. "All the artillery officers of the division came to watch. The first charge which the major fired was a one-eight, which was all right, and then he blazed away with full charges all the time. Finally, he shoved the guns around at right angles and fired a full charge, which is a pretty severe test, and again it was all right."

The officer comments: "He ought to have a medal for getting his guns away, but the wooden cribs created a much greater sensation. We had every famous artilleryman, from generals downwards, come to see and they are all asking to have wood substituted for steel. With the steel ones it was impossible to get the guns into position to fire in less than 48 hours."

Major Brock is a son of the late Mr. J. H. Brock, founder of the Great West Life Assurance Company, and was himself manager of the investment department until going overseas as a captain in the 184th Battalion. He has two brothers in the British navy and one in the Royal Air Force, all having been in action.

The Member for East Peterboro Discusses Question of Good Roads

Havelock, Ontario,
Sept. 24th, 1918.

To the Editor of the Examiner,
Peterborough, Ontario.
Dear Sir:—

In an issue of the "Examiner" in August, you refer to rumors which have reached you. Then you proceed to make a statement as to what Peterboro County Provincial Representatives have decided to do in forcing the issue of good roads.

In reply to this statement, I would say that good roads, as it relates to Peterboro county has not been discussed by Mr. Gillespie or myself during the past six months, and never on any occasion have we discussed the question of making any move to interfere with the election of any member of the present Council I have been an advocate of the County Good Road System for the past six or seven years. Previous to that time I had not travelled through many of the counties or their highways and was not in a position to come to an intelligent decision.

In 1907, my first year in the County Council we were waited on by the late Wm. Anderson my predecessor in the Legislature, who, in addressing us, spoke strongly and earnestly on behalf of the Good Roads System, pointing out its advantages and calling our attention particularly to the great saving to the county in in the construction of permanent bridges and culverts on our main highways. We listened to Mr Anderson with the usual attention, thanking him for his address and immediately proceeded to forget all about it. In making this admission, I realize that the Council of 1907 has nothing on the subsequent or present County Council.

Peterboro County is in the same rut it was in eleven years ago and yet the advance of transportation and road construction in Canada and the United States equals the advance of the previous generation.

We are living in the age of tractors, automobiles and airoplanes. I was asked in 1906 to vote the automobiles off the highways. In refusing to do so, I pointed out that in a few years many farmers would be using automobiles. At the present time 23,000 automobiles are owned by farmers on the province of Ontario, and I believe that pratcically every up-to-date farmer of old Ontario will own an automobile or an auto-truck within five years.

In these days of high wages and scarcity of labor, the farmer cannot afford to sacrifice the time that can be saved by their use I believe the present era of prosprity for the farmer will continue and that in the future he will to a large extent be in a position to dictate the prices of his products.

SYSTEM OF TRANSPORTATION

We hear much of the problem of keeping boys and girls on the farm. To my mind an auto and good roads will do more to keep boys and girls on the farm than any other one influence. With good roads and an automobile the boys and girls on the farm no longer feel isolated and compared with old system of transportation it makes them practical residents of the city suburbs.

I am in favor of the county adopting the County System now because Peterboro County will eventually line up with the rest of the province. It may not be this year and it may not be within five years, but it is bound to come and in the meantime we are spending thousands of dollars on temporary work on a system that is, to put it mildly, very unsatisfactory.

We probably have two hundred road builders in the county of Peterboro. Some of them are good and have the right idea of road construction. Others ability as road builders, I do not wish to express an opinion. The patronage system does not admit the continued employment of the good road builder as favors must be passed around. The Township Council are not to be censured for this, as they inherited the system and no doubt will pass it on to their successors. It is a system that everybody knows is unsatisfactory It creates variety without uniformity, and the only remedy is to adopt a system which is apparently giving satisfaction to every other county in the province.

The County Good Road System was created by the Ross government in 1901 and one million dollars was set aside to assist the counties in constructing the roads.

The proportions contributed for construction were 33 1-3 per cent by the province and 66 2-3 per cent by the counties. No contribution by the province for maintenance. Under these arrangements many counties adopted the County Road System and over two thousand miles of roads were constructed.

NEW ARRANGEMENT

In 1916 a new arrangement became operative; the province raising their contribution to 40 per cent for construction and 20 per cent for maintenance, on what is known as "Market or Main Roads" within the county leading to villages, towns and cities, the traffic on which would originate largely within the county. Provision was also made for county provincial and provincial roads. The county provincial roads are usually roads leading across the county and also central roads running north and south through the counties, connecting up with other county provincial roads. They Provincial Good Roads System. These, in turn connecting up with the roads take care of traffic originating outside of the county as well as in the county. The Province contributes 60 per cent of construction and 60 per cent maintenance.

The county and county provincial roads are selected, constructed by and are, under the supervision of the county. The provincial roads are constructed and maintained by the province Thirty per cent being charged to the counties for construction and maintenance, seventy per cent being paid to the province. The first provincial road was designated by the province in August 1917. The work has been extended since that time and within a year it is expected that several hundred miles will be under provincial supervision and within five years a complitte system of provincial roads will be planned and under preliminary construcion. Eighteen counties, including Northumberland-Durham and Hastings have already selected county provincial roads. The Hastings road begins at Belleville and runs north to Manooth, a distance of about one hundred miles. Northumberland-Durham county have selected the Port Hope and Peterboro road from Port Hope north to the Peterboro boundary. I have the assurance of the minister that Peterboro can have anything that Hastings County is getting. Peterboro county, with its natural advantages,should be the hub of central Ontario. It is now the centre of the Hydro System, and has the largest city between Toronto and Ottawa, with industrial possibilities only limited by the views and actions of the press and the county and city governing bodies. At a meeting of the Eastern Ontario Good Roads Association was practicaly promised by the government, four provincial highways through eastern Ontario, one of hese to be constructed from Kingston via Perth and Smith Falls to Ottawa. The logical route would appear to be via Peterboro, Norwood, Havelock, Marmora, Madoc and Tweed.

The Good Road's Co-operative System has the support of 90 per cent of the farmers in the province of Ontario township representation in county councils predominate at least four to one, and yet every county save one is co-operating with the Highways Department.

BECOMING MORE POPULAR

This system of co-operation is becoming more popular every year, as was demonstrated at the Eastern Ontario Good Road Association, held at Ottawa on September 11th, when a petition of over 8,000 names principaly from rural districts was presented to the Premier and his colleagues, asking them to extend the Provincial System as rapidly as possible. The Premier, in speaking on the Good Road question said "Our government is fully and absolutely committed to a policy of good road construction and we intend to continue til it is an accomplished fact." The Provincial Treasurer, in speaking on the same question, said "The province would eventually have a system of well connected provincial highways with arteries stretching throughout the different counties and townships." Speaking further, he said, "Millions would be held in reserve for road consruction after the war as soon as labor conditions would warrant it. Speaking at the same convention, Hon. Mr. Duffy, Commissioner of Highways for N. Y. State, said, "Ten or twelve years ago there was opposition to expenditure for state roads, but to-day there was a demand from every nook and corner of the state for road construction. The state had built 8,000 miles and the counties and townships had built connecting roads to the extent of 17,000 miles and that a money by-law for roda construction was the most popular by-law that could be presented."

Ontario's position is far more favorable than New York. Money raised for road construction in New York is raised by direct taxation, while Ontario gets millions from its mines and forests, part of which will be used to supplement its auto tax.

The government does not ask, and does not want the counties to undertake heavy expenditure on road construction during the war and until the counties are relieved to a large extent of the taxes for patriotic purposes.

MARKET ROADS

The government, through the Highways Department, comes to us and asks to be allowed to co-operate with us in the construction of our highways. They ask us to select our market roads, our county provincial roads and agree to pay us 40 and 60 per cent on construction, which includes all preliminary construction, such as, cutting out brush or trees, opening up drains, building culverts and bridges, etc They say to us, if you build a $100.00 culvert, we will pay you $40. or $60.00 If you build a $6,000.00 bridge, we will pay you $2,400.00 or $3,600.00, according to the class of road you are constructing. Under the regulation, the county engages a road superintendant of their own choice, the province paying 40 per cent of his salary and expenses. The province pays 40 per cent on both the purchase and repair of all road machinery. The regulations do not dictate the amount the county shall spend on its roads. The county has the advice and assistance of the provinsial engineers, free of charge. The opposition and indifference to the County System is largely on account of lack of investigation as to conditions, some of the opponents of the County System ask us to believe that the different builder for each mile of road in the county would give better results than a practical road builder supervising the whole system. They ask us to believe that $6,000.00 provided by the townships and expended by them in small amounts would build more and better roads than $10,000.00 provided by the county and province and expended under favorable conditions with proper equipment. They try to make us believe that the auto tax, if returned to the townships, would solve he problem and give us good roads. The total number of cars in Peterboro county in 1917 was 1133, divided as follows: City, 532, Incorporated Villages about 200. The Townships about 400 or $4,000 to be divided among fourteen Townships or less than $300. for each Township. The Townships are now receiving about $5,000.00 in annual grants from the Province. Let us play the game in the interest of our County and not play the City against the County the village against the townships, would solve the problem against the main road, but let us all pull together and bring Peterboro County up to the front where she belongs. I believe the Public and the Press are practically unanimous in their desire to be included in the system of Provincial and Co., Provincial roads which will be under construction within five years.

You rightly say that this is not a political question. It is bigger than any Political Party and will outlast any Government and is a question on which we can all unite and if all the conditions do not suit us, we can go to the Government as a united Province and if they have the money our demands for larger grants will be met. Let me say in conclusion that one of the reasons why I am strong for County Good Roads is because all the money raised by the County for roads is expended in the County by the County together with thousands from the Province and I am confident that our County Council will expend it honestly, economically and with good results.

Yours truly,
JAMES THOMPSON.

An Advertisement by Charles Dickens

CHARLES DICKENS is one of the world's great teachers. Here is what he has to say in one of his books:

"My other piece of advice, Copperfield," said Mr. Micawber, "you know. Annual income £20, annual expenditure £19.19.6—result, happiness. Annual income £20, annual expenditure £20.0.6—result misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is withered, the God of Day goes down upon the dreary scene, and—and in short, you are forever floored. As I am."

Prudent men and women have always maintained a margin of saving.

But to-day we must go farther in our efforts to save than ever before.

To-day it is a matter of the gravest importance that each Canadian seek ways and means to economize by cutting down expenditures for unnecessary things, saving the money he spends on things he could do without, so that when the Nation needs to borrow money he will be in a position to do his full duty.

There is war-shortening work waiting for every dollar that can be saved.

If CHARLES DICKENS were writing to Canadians to-day he would probably give us advice to this effect:

"My other piece of advice, Canadians, you know. No matter what percentage of your annual income you have previously saved, your efforts to-day should be to save more. The advantage of so doing is threefold: By the practice of economy you conserve the material and labor which must be devoted to the grim task before us; you cultivate the priceless habit of thrift; you gather more and more money to lend to the Nation for the prosecution of the war to a quick and certain Victory."

A Lovely Lake on the Pacific Slope

Okanagan Lake and Kettle Valley Railway. Inserted is a C. P. R. steamer at Penticton, on the Okanagan Lake.

Okanagan Lake!

What an alluring, suggestive place name it is.

First locate it on the map. Down in Southern British Columbia; due south from Sicamous, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway; due south too from picturesque Vernon; due north from Penticton, is the boundary county of British Columbia. Between Vernon and Penticton lies the lake known as Okanagan.

Okanagan is a lake of rarest beauty, even in a land of lakes of rarest beauty. Each mile of its length a mile of scenic loveliness, each league of its bank a league of varied charm.

The journey over the long and winding lake is a day's journey of unique interest from the moment the steamer is boarded at Okanagan Landing till it ties up for the night at Penticton. A comfortable boat it is, and a comfortable day of travel follows as the panorama of ports passes by.

The nature picture is complete. The shimmering waters that reflect every passing sun ray or caressing, fleecy cloud, are bordered by green-garbed mountains. At their base rest tier on tier of bench lands that spell rich fertility, for they bear the fruits that have spread the fame and name of Okanagan far afield. How the eye feasts on smiling orchards and vineyards, as the mouth feasts on their luscious crops. Down the steep slopes come the leashed waters that irrigate when and where irrigation is needed, the life-giving streams being trained on tree and vine and garden with wonderful results.

Fields of grain and patches of grass make a checker-board of color, while the water-side towns add their note of human communism. Their very place names are musical and attractive: such as Kelowna, Peachland, Summerland, with many a charming in-between settlement.

Then there fits in to the landscape frame the cosy, picturesque bungalow of the rancher farmer or fruit grower, set in a garden and facing an incomparable view.

Down at the wharves, the steamer receives its freightage of crated fruit that will feed many mouths in many a distant home, for the great west is an eager customer for the peaches and pears, the apples and the grapes of this favored fruitland country.

So one drinks in the beauty of the Okanagan from the deck of the steamer during a journey that takes most of the lighted hours of a day. And so one may travel above the lake over a wonderful stretch of railway, for the Kettle Valley Line, defying nature's obstacles, makes its sinuous way near the crests of the mountains. A thrilling scene greets the eye in a bird's eye view of the entire lake hundreds of feet below, nestling like a crystal gem in its granite basin, and taking on a silver hue as the setting sun lays its carpet of sheen on the waters. Each cluster of human stands out clearly against its background of foliage or forest, motor-craft speed along, looking very small in the wide space of waters, and glimpses of shore roadways show that the traveller could circle the lake by land if he so desired.

Finally, the train dips from the heights to the lower levels, from the hill crests to Penticton town. The sun has done its day's work, the shades are swallowing up the beautiful world of water and town and mountain, and the Lake of the Okanagan sleeps, like all nature and some humans.

ITALY DRAWS UP LAWS OF THE AIR

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Rome, Sept. 9. (By Mail.)—The Italian government has just completed the draft of a series of laws covering aerial navigation.

The proposed statute is the result of over a year of study by a government commission and the law as now completed ready to be submitted to the Italian parliament consists of 41 articles. This is the first project of the kind that any parliamentshrdluumf kind that any government has perfected, and indicates the initiative Italy expects to take in aerial transportation following the war.

In a general way the new aerial law is similar to those governing sea navigation. For the present the law is for application for Italy alone, but it is expected to serve later as a basis for similar laws in other European countries and finally as the foundation for international laws governing aerial navigation, which must inevitably follow with the development of this means of transportation.

ALL ARE AEROMOBILES

The new Italian law fixes, first of all, the technical names to be used in designating the more important aspects of aerial navigation. All aircraft, whether airplanes or dirigibles, will be known under the general name of aeromobiles. Aerial ports will be the name applied to the regular places for landing and departing, while refuge ports, will be the name applied to those places where the aerial craft can put in in case of accident.

The law provides that regular aersion of parliament. e ial ports are to be equipped with very much the same facilities as are to be found in any great sea port for the landing, unloading, repairing and taking on of cargoes.

Special articles provide for what an aeromobile must do if it is obliged to land in other than the regular or refuge aerial port.

Special provisions govern the zones of altitude in which the aeromobiles must navigate to prevent collisions no other accidents.

The proposition to limit the height at which the aeromobiles might navigate in order to render more easy their surveillance from the ground, was stricken out, and no limit was placed on the altitude of flight.

MUST AVOID FORTS

On the other hand, for reasons of national defence, there is an article prohibiting aeromobiles from flying over forts and other military and naval defenses.

The proposed laws would prohibit transportation by aeromobiles of inflammable matter, explosives and other kinds of merchandise that might endanger the aircraft and other property in case of accident.

Other articles provide that aeroplanes must be registered in the national registry of aircraft; that each aeromobile must have a government certificate of its navigability; that there must be no officers of recognized competance aboard; and that each aircraft must carry certain official documents.

The proposed code in all probability will be made law at the coming ses-

Lost Effect.

A certain Canadian officer was often teased about a short talk he gave his men one night that did not turn out to his liking. In his little talk he outlined the lives of some well-known men who had risen from the ranks solely by their perseverance and determination. He urged his own men to put more life in their work. He said to them:

"Boys, what you all need is just that little four-lettered word that is on the door you entered by. If you possess that you will succeed. Do you know the word I mean? That's right, 'Push.' Put lots of 'push' in your work, and you are bound to rise."

The boys took the little talk to heart and adopted the word "Push" for their motto, until an observant fellow noticed one day that the door referred to opened in the opposite direction, and consequently the four-lettered word it bore was "Pull." And the captain's little talk was wasted.

MEN WHO LEAD OUR FIGHTERS

Names of Some of the Canadian Generals.

SHOULD BE BETTER KNOWN

Few Canadians Know Anything About These Leaders Except That Gen. Currie Is the Commander of the Canadian Corps and One of the Outstanding Men of the Great War.

THE names of the Canadian generals who are doing great work in France are too little known in Canada. Beyond the fact that Gen Currie is the now famous commander of the Canadian corps, and one of the outstanding generals of the war, few Canadians know who the others are. The censorship of the war correspondence prevents anything like intelligible reporting of battles being given by the press. The performances of particular divisions and brigades and battalions, and the fine work done on special occasions by generals and brigadiers and colonels are not allowed to be mentioned. On one occasion a Toronto paper endeavored to compile for publication a complete list of the Canadian command on active service, but were unable to complete it from their own records, and were unable to procure any such list on application to the Department at Ottawa.

The suggestion that all this suppression serves any useful purpose in so far as the enemy is concerned does not wash. It is merely a case of rules being carried beyond all necessity or reason. It is to be hoped that a new and more enlightened policy is foreshadowed by the action of one Cabinet Minister who recently named the generals who are in command of several different services in France—Lieut.-Gen. Currie in command of the corps, Brig.-Gen. Patterson in command of the cavalry brigade, Brig.-Gen. J. W. Stewart in command of the railway troops, while the forestry corps is under the immediate command of Col. White and the general command of Brig.-Gen. McDougall. Now that the ice has been broken and names named publicly, why not, in a democratic country like this, shake off the restraining notion that the reputations of temporary generals in a temporary war like this are too incidental to be worth considering?

Huns and Throne-broking.

From throne-breaking to throne-broking is not so very long a step for the Hun, but trafficking in crowns for German princelets whose chief claim to publicity is their gross immorality does not please every one, even in Germany. Thus the Chemnitz Volksstimme says:—

"The traffic in thrones and coronets appears to be brisk once more, now that Count Burian has taken it in hand. The Austro-Polish agreement, the Saxon-Lithuanian agreement, and all the other agreements are made full use of by busy middlemen, and the times recall heated boom days on the stock exchange.

"To throw light on the situation is all the more necessary as an excellent opportunity is afforded by the new German-Russian negotiations to put right everything that was messed up.

"To-day, even the Reichstag must see that, on the occasion of the Brest peace treaty, it allowed itself to be overcome by a cleverly handled annexation 'offensive.' Let it now take the opportunity to rid itself of the shackles fastened around it, and to bring again to honor the thoughts of a peace by mutual understanding, and of the peace resolution of July 19, 1917."—London Express.

Parrots' Humor.

Parrots seem to possess a sense of humor, if one is to judge by the remarks they make which are usually humorous and apropos. The following incident occurred at a home recently. Polly was decidedly out-of-sorts. Her dinner had been delayed. An old lady had called when dinner was half over, and had been invited to partake. "Won't you have another piece of pie, grandma?" inquired the hostess. This was too much for Polly who had already waited what seemed an interminable length of time, and she called out, "Ha! ha! She's had two already!"

Pickups.

She dropped her handkerchief; he stooped
And picked it up for her.
She dropped her purse; he picked it up,
And likewise with her fur.

So gentlemanly was he that
She put him to the test.
She dropped a gentle hint, and then—
Well, you may guess the rest.
—Lawrence American.

Her Habit.

"Did you hear how the telephone operator broke off her engagement?"

"No. How did she do it?"

"Just held out her hand to her fiance and coldly remarked, 'Ring off.'"—Baltimore American.

His Opinion.

A certain Canadian battalion was under orders to proceed overseas, and one of its members, whom we will call Private Jones, had committed an offence — refused to obey an order given by an N.C.O. He was brought before the officer commanding and the punishment given him was that he be marched before the whole battalion carrying his full pack. After being marched up and down and between the files for about half an hour, the O. C. stopped him and said: "Well, Jones, what do you think about it?" Jones replied: "Well, sir, they are the rottenest bunch I ever inspected."

The HOME CIRCLE COLVM

THE CLOSE OF THE YEAR

The close of the year is always a time for serious thought and reflection. The past crowds upon us at such a time with far more than usual intensity and especially forces upon our attention, our faults failures and mistakes. Let us look them squarely in the face and profit by them. The wise man always does this, but the fool never. The latter goes on committing the same follies and making the same mistakes, never profiting by his experience, to say nothing of the experience of others. every man makes mistakes. It may not be his fault the first time, but it is if he makes the same mistake a second time. We believe that the secret of success with thoe who succeed and the cause of failure with those who fail, will be found largely in the ability and disposition to study the causes of both success na d failure, not only in one's own experience, but in that of others. The farmer now has leasure to review th eoperations of the year and he should do it candidly and critically. Make complete analysis of every important operation. Find the weak places in it and trace them to their origin. Nothing will prepare one so thoroughly for the operations of the year to come as this kind of searching investigation.

And while we are about this business, we should look just as carefully into our record of moral responsibility. We should be far more anxious to improve character and morals than to improve our farms. Serious study of our weak points and of means of strengthening them, is a very profitable business at any time and if pursued assiduously will strengthen and develop all that is good and admirable in our natures, and make us better, stronger, nobler men and women as the years go by. And the time will come in the life of every one, when such a record of honest, earnest, persistent effort to improve, will afford greater saisfaction than anything else in his account with this world . We can wish no better thing for our readers than that they begin the new year animated by a firm resolve to turn all its experience into profit for themselves, mentally, morally, socially and materially and then to faithfully carry out the resolution.

WRITTEN BY A MOTHERLESS GIRL

Many times a girl could be saved untold suffering, sometimes life itself if some good Christian woman, with her best interest at heart would but give her the advice she so much needs. We do no accuse you mothers of not feeling a warm sympathy for us, or of intentional neglect, but if you keep it hid away in your hearts, how can it benefit us? We want your sympathy and love. We know you have your own troubles, your own life to live, but could you not sometimes, spare a few of your precious moments to the motherless girls at your door, who crave your sympathy and love? It will surely be "bread cast upon the waters," and an added star to your diadem. You may think from her surroundings and outward appearance she would not appreciate your interest. Try anyway. Learn something of her inner life. Outward appearances do not always bespeak inward happiness.

The heart yearning for mother love is ever ready to pull us down Many are any more deserving of pity, for try as you will, the world is hard on us. Much is expected of us, often more than we can give. We are more closely watched, more severely criticised than anyone else. The world is ver ready to pull us down. Many for some slight impropriety, which was thoughtlessly committed, must endure the fiery darts of slander, which is by far the most unendurable anguish the heart ever had to bear, and so our character, dearer than life itself to pure-hearted girls, mercilessly shattered, often by mothers of daughters, who themselves are not equals in moral worth, by the ones whose God given privilege is to help shield and protect girls.

Mothers, will you not hold out a hand to those who are struggling on discouraged, in some cases unappreciated, who sometimes feel they have no friend save Him who " tempers the wind to the shorn lamb." A kind word, rightly spoken, will go a long way and be immodtalized in the memory of the one for whom it was intended.

Home is where the heart is, a place our feet may leave but not our hearts. Home is where peace, joy, comfort and happiness reign. Where father whistles merrily, where mother sings cheerily, where children are happy, joyous and gay; where the family gathers around the evening lamp, busy with books, the needle, the papers and the playthings and bask in the sunshine of each other's love.

"Home is not merely four square walls
Od wood and brick and spacious halls."

If there is one thing above another a young man should be ashamed of doing, it is loafing without aim, purpose or profit, on the streets or in stores, day after day, all week. If you have nothing to do, stay at home—a part of the time at any rate. No young man with any self-respect will content himself with aspiring to nohigher reputation than that of a cronio loafer and store box magnate. Nothing will so blunt the higher faculties of the mind as inactivity; and noinactivity is so baneful and malevolent in its effect as that voluntary idleness termed loafing.

June Air in January

Most any furnace will produce a dry heat—the kind used to dry lumber in a kiln.

But that kind of heat will ruin the health of your family and destroy your furniture.

What month is the balmiest, healthiest, sweetest, most delightful of all the year?

June, of course.

The Sunshine Furnace has been designed, developed and perfected to give to your home in January the same quality of air that you breathe out of doors in June.

The Sunshine Furnace by warming fresh air and charging it with the necessary exact degree of moisture, not only warms but ventilates your home with pure, soft, healthful air every moment of the day.

Above the fuel door of the Sunshine Furnace is a water pan designed with scientific exactness to vaporize into the warm air the precise quantity of moisture necessary to the health and comfort of your family.

In the Sunshine heated home there are no dry, hacking throats, no burning or wrinkling skins, no dust or gas—only pure, humid, balmy, healthful warm air.

Engineering Service Free McClary's own heating engineers are at your service when you buy a Sunshine Furnace, to give you free expert advice on your home-heating requirements. Indians On The War Path

(When dispatches from Syracuse, N. Y., told last week that the Onondaga Indians were drawing up a declaration of war against Germany, under their treaty with George Washington, which made them a separate nation, it was a reminder of the part the red skins are taking in this struggle. The Onondagas took action because the indignities visited by the Germans upon some of their number taken prisoner while travelling with a circus abroad. The following account of the activities of Indians, ince the United States was drawn since the United States was drawn committee on public information):

In South Dakota, nestled in a picturesque valley of the Grand River, there is a little settlement called Bullhead. It is not a great way from the scene of Custer's last fight against the circling Sioux, and only a few miles from the spot where Marcellus, Redtomahawk of the Indian police, slew Sitting Bull in single combat. This grassy valley was once the very hotbed of hostile Indian plots against the United States Government.

Last December, there took place at Bullhead, a ceremony full of significance for the whole race of red men—full of meaning indeed for all Americans. Seven young full-blooded braves were about to volunteer for the military service of the United States in our war against the Kaiser. Even their names were redolent of the wild—Eugene Younghawk, James Weaselbear, Samuel Bravecrow, James Villagecentre, John Ironthunder, Josept Leaf and Thomas Pheasant.

BACK HOME

Over in France not long ago, John Peters, a Menominee Indian serving with Company A, First Engineers, died of wounds received in fight with the Germans Back home in Wisconsin, at the Keshena Indian School, the American flag flew at half mast. Through Shawano country, antique women of the victim's tribe revived the age-old custom of wailing for the dead, which lasts for days. In the case of John Peters, it is worth remembering, for he was probably the first Indian to enlist in the army after war came and was undoubtedly among the first Americans to cross the ocean in transports.

But there are plenty of Indians waiting to avenge him. Down at Camp Bowie, near Fort Worth, Texas, Captain Walter Veach commands Company E, 142nd Infantry. It is composed wholly of Choctaws, all volunteers. Through the camp alone there are scattered more than a thousand Indians. In Nebraska the Winnebagoes formed a company early in the war For the most part separate Indian units are frowned upon, as it is the wish of the government to merge the aborigines upon an equal footing with our white soldiers. But wherever Indian soldiers are found, they are reported as earnest, efficient, silently observant, and equal to the best Above all they are anxious to fight

The total Indian population of the United States is only 335,998. Of these just about half are citizens, 50,000 still wear skins and blankets, while only 30 per cent read and write English. There are less than 33,000 male Indians of military age. Yet there are over 6,000 Indians in the United States army, 85 per cent of them volunteers, and several hundred more of them in the navy, every one a full citizen.

Fourteen tribes are represented in the service, and when young enough, the chiefs themselves have enlisted. In rank, our Indian soldiers scale down from Major to private and almost every branch has lured some Indians. One Indian helps run a flock of baloons, and there are many in the Aviation Corps Some have become proficient in wireless telegraphy, and there are others scattered through various technical divisions of the army. A large percentage of the civilized Indians have received military training at the Government schools, and so enter the army with a certain advantage over raw recruits

There are about 25 big Indian schools. Every one of them is an automatic recruiting station.

THREE LOANS

None of the many races which mingle i the American melting pot have a better Liberty Bond record than the Indians. They are not the wealthiest people of the world, but on the three loans they have managed to subscribe more than $13,000,000—between $30 and $40 per capita Jack Barnett, a member of the Five Civilized Tribes of Oklahoma, individually took $660,000 of the second issue and $157,500 of the third issue. The Osages, with a population of only 2,18000 are the richest Indian tribe in the country To the last loan they subscribed $226,000 At Camp Travis in the 358th Infantry Regiment it is said that every company has its Indian non-commisioned officers. One of these, Otis Russell owns some valuable oil lands, yielding him anywhere from $500 to $1,000 a month. He puts it regularly into Liberty bonds.

Here and there the government had trouble with a few of the more remote tribes over the draft. In every case it was due to lack of knowledge and misinformation among the Indians. In but one instance was a show of force necessary That was in Utah, last Spring, when a troop of cavalry was thrown into the mountains. In Washington and Northern Oregon the Nisqually, Puyallups, Kayapullis and several other tribes appealed to a clause in the treaties of 1854-55, by which they agreed to lay down their arms and never "make war against any other tribe except in self-defence" But when the government really explained that this really was a war of self-defence they decided readily enough that those savage tribes over in Germany needed the Indian sign more than the Iron Cross.

The war attitude of the Indians at large has been a revelation of patriotism. The Indian insists that he is following his traditions—that in the old days back in 1609, when kindly Indians relieved the starving settlers at Jamestown, he has been a friend of the white man whenever reasonably encouraged Indians have helped the United States in every war it has fought. Since 1831 they have been accepted as volunteers in the army and have written a soldierly, honorable record.

But in this war the spirit and blood of the race seem to have risen in one hot compound of militant Americanism.

Hay Fever and Ragweed.

Victims of hay fever look upon this season with no especial favor. It is not quite yet the time of year when their sufferings become acute, but the time draws near, and the indications point to an abundant crop of goldenrod and ragweed. It seems that most persons who have hay fever charge the goldenrod with being the author of their miseries, and it is this serious accusation which perhaps has so long withheld from the goldeurod the honor of being designated as the national flower.

Another and a newer school of students and philosophers now seek to clear the goldenrod of the charges made against it and are laying the blame for hay fever on the ragweed, a plant which is much more common in Ontario and very likely in all other neighborhoods, than the goldenrod. The president of the Hay Fever Preventive Association has said that the chief cause of hay fever, and especially that variety of the malady known as "fall hay fever," is the pollen of two varieties of ragweed. The pollen of the spikelike flower of this weed is yellowish in color and almost as light as smoke or fine dust. It is so abundant that during the stage of pollination one's clothing will be stained yellow by walking through a patch of it, or only brushing against a well-developed plant.

While the pollen of the ragweed is extremely light and very easily windborne, the pollen of the goldenrod is heavy and tenacious. It would seem to be the opinion of experts on this matter that hay fever victims are not affected by the dust of the goldenrod unless they place their nostrils close to the flower.

In proposing to let the unfit die Sir William Ramsay seems to forget that the unfit are not always responsible for the fact that they are present.

A London woman who swallowed $3,250 worth of radium was cut open and the radium recovered. Now we know how much radium one woman isn't worth.

A vast amount of literature is being distributed by the various peace societies—with results so disappointing as to warrant the inference that the folks who do the fighting are not literary.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatism twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, orpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Wanted Half The Money He Made

Bought Medicines For Five Years But Got No Relief—Tanlac Restored Health

"After spending full half the money I made during the past five years on medicine that did me no good, a few bottles of Tanlac put an end to my troubles so that now a hard day's work never even tires me," said J. J. Harington, of 423 South Ohio Street, Butte, Mont., the other day.

"About five years ago," he continued, "I had an attack of fever, that left me with such an awful cough that it looked like I would never get rid of it, although I took about every cough medicine there is on the market. It would keep me up at nights, and if I exerted myself in any way it would start up and I would almost cough my head off before I could stop. This last year or so my stomach went back on me, I lost my appetite, and what little I forced down soured and bloated me up with gas till I was miserable for hours afterwards. Then I suffered agonies from pains all through my chest and around my heart. Many a time I would come home from work with such a raging headache that I would go straight to bed. My nights were so restless that I could get but little sleep, and I would get up in the morning feeling tired and fagged out and worse than when I went to bed.

"When I read so much about Tanlac I asked my wife to get me a bottle, but my trouble was so stubborn that it was not till I was on my third bottle that I noticed any improvement. First my appetite started up, and soon after that my stomach got all right and did not trouble me any more Gas stopped forming as my indigestion improved and the misery in my chest and around my heart stopped for good. My cough, too, has entirely disappeared. I sleep like a log at night and I haven't had a headache since I finished my second bottle of Tanlac. My constipation has been corrected and I now feel so well and strong that I am equal to any job, no matter what it is."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Abram Leaving Home. Gen. 12: 1-9.

Golden Text: Be thou a blessing.—Gen. 12:2.

1. Verse 1. How had Abram learned to know the voice of God

2. What reason is there to believe that every man has the potential power to hear and understand the voice of God?

3. When a godly man leaves the old country with the conviction that it is the will of God, why is not that God speaking to him precisely as he spake to Abram

4. Verse 1. When honey bees "swarm" why should it not be right to say that God causes them to do so?

5. Verse 2. How has God's promise to Abram, that he would make of him a great nation, been fulfilled?

6. In how many important respects have Abram and his descendants been a blessing to the world?

7. Verse 3. What nations in the past have persecuted the Jews, and what punishment has God inflicted upon them for so doing?

8. Would you say or not and why, that the promise, "In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed," has been fulfilled?

9. Verse 4. If Abram had been in doubt about obeying God and had delayed his departure, what probably would have been the result?

10. At what age is a man too old to start for a new country, or take up a new enterprise to better his conditions? Why?

11. Verse 5. When we have anything good from the Lord, why ought we to be anxious to share it with others? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

12. If a man says he is on the road to the heavenly Canaan and takes no person with him, what would be your assumption?

13. What ground of hope have we of reaching the land, or attaining the object that God has promised us?

14. Verse 5. If a man starts for heaven may he, or not, and why, be certain of getting there?

15. Verse 6. If God calls us to occupy a place, now unworthily occupied by another, what will probably happen?

17. Verse 7. What is your mental conception of the way or manner that God appeared to Abram?

18. Why would you say or not it is a rule with God to frequently repeat his promises to the faithful soul?

19. What is among the first things a good man does when he gets to a new country?

20. Verses 8, 9. Is there or not and why any place or condition to be attained on earth in which we cannot make further progress?

Don't Say That Again.

Orange Judd Farmer: An Illinois man, remarking about the low price of wheat, compared to chicken feed, says: "Sort of indicates that wheat may go to the chicks doesn't it?" Man, don't say that again If am afraid it might be overheard in some broken household in France, where some widowed mother tries to still the cries of her hungry children by giving them the greater part of her own scanty rations. Don't talk about feeding wheat to the chickens!

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S OR MISS' TWO OR THREE GORED PETTICOAT.

The well dressed woman realizes that the success of any costume depends upon the foundation over which it is worn. The new skirts are very narrow, and consequently they demand slender petticoats underneath. A very good style is shown in No. 8851. You may make it with two gores or three gores—the latter with seam at centre back. The top of the petticoat is turned down in a hem, and tapes are inserted for drawstrings. The petticoat may be made with or without the straight gathered ruffle of embroidery.

The lady's or miss' petticoat pattern No. 8851 is cut in eight sizes, 16, 18 years and 26 to 36 inches waist measure. The width at lower edge is 1¾ yards. The 26-inch size requires 2¾ yards 36 or 40-inch material, with 2 yards 15-inch flouncing.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Interference of Bess

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Billy frowned down into the bowl of his stubby pipe, while the girl watched him solicitously.

"But may be," she encouraged, "it is not as bad as you think."

"Bad!" exclaimed Billy wrathfully, "why where would I be, if dad married again? Do you think he would put me through college and start me out on my career, if he were interested in a new establishment of his own? No, indeedy, his second wife would take my place, and my coming wife's place, in the home. The thing to do, Bess, is to stop the affair in the bud. After a while it will be too late. Dad doesn't realize yet, that he's really in love with the girl."

"Perhaps," suggested Miss Blakeslee, "he isn't."

"Oh! No!" Billy sarcastically responded. "Then why does he spend every spare moment of his time in her company? Riding for hours with her in the park, glowering at a fellow if he interrupts a seance at the office. Dad was never like that with any of his other stenographers. And this one is a doll, you must admit that, Bess. You've seen her?"

Bess nodded her head. "When you pointed her out to me. I—I don't like her, Billy."

The boy smiled shrewdly. "Scheming looking?" he asked.

"That's what I thought."

"Dad has quite a bit of money. Some of it ought to come to me, but will it if he has a second wife? You know, Peaches, that you and I are going to be married some day, just as soon as the little doctor's shingle is over my door and—" he threw out his hands despairingly—"that's why I want to stop this fool affair of dad's."

The girl flushed, avoiding his eager eyes. "That 'some day' of yours is far away, Billy," she said.

"Not so far away as you think, perhaps," he replied. "Bess—" his voice coaxed her, "you don't want to see my future wrecked, do you?—all my beautiful plans gone to the dogs? Somebody's got to interfere. Dad will not listen to me, won't you go to him?"

"I—?" the girl gasped, astonished.

"Yes," he nodded quickly. "You could make him see things as no one else could. You've such a way with you, Bess."

"Billy, Billy!" smiled the girl, but her eyes regarded him thoughtfully.

"It's mother's money," said the boy defiantly. "I ought to have it."

"I wish that I could help you—" she spoke slowly.

"You can, you can," cried Billy jubilantly. "You've the most wonderful pleading eyes in the world."

"Have I?" asked the girl. She arose impulsively. "We shall see," she said.

"I'll run you down to the office," Billy excitedly agreed, "and leave you just around the corner. Send in your card. Dad's heard enough about you, even if you've never met. Dwell strongly upon my career, Bess, and how we've counted upon coming home together."

The girl laughed softly. "You, boy," she said.

"I'm twenty-one," he declared, "and older than you, child, if you have an extra year."

The infectious enthusiasm which had sent Miss Blakeslee forth on her mission as intercessor died suddenly as she awaited her lover's father. "Why on earth had she come, and now that she was here what should she say?"

The young woman who haughtily took the card from her trembling fingers was the dread charmer whom Billy feared. What influence could one have against the fascination of such tenderly curling hair or crimson lips? Bess sighed, and tried vainly to compose an introductory speech. She had just got as far as "Mr. Powers, I am here in the interest of your son," when the charmer beckoned, and she found herself in the presence of a gravely smiling man, whose hand was outstretched toward her.

"I am glad," he said, "to meet Billy's friend." And then all at once the set speech vanished, and Bess sitting in the wide office chair, was joining interestedly in a conversation touching upon golf, automobiles and "Billy." Billy's father was so much younger and better looking than she had expected that she could sympathise more in the feelings of the blonde stenographer, perhaps after all, her's was not merely a mercenary affair. . . . There was a certain movie actor, with whitening hair about the temples, who much resembled Billy's father. The thought of this actor's many troubled love affairs brought Bess abruptly looking back to the purpose of her present visit, but how to start the subject tactfully.

"Billy," she began tentatively, "takes me much into his confidence. He is terribly anxious to get through college and begin the practice of medicine. He has so counted upon starting in his own home—your home." She paused lamely, then leaned forward with sudden confidence, "and he has been so worried for fear you may marry and spoil his career. But of course you would never do that, a man of your age must live his life. This is Billy's chance, Billy's time for success, and joy, and—love."

"Love!" repeated the man quickly, "and you are my son's mediator? Can it be possible, then, that you are also interested in Billy's career?"

The hot blood rushed furiously to the girl's face, as she sat beneath his searching gaze. "I want Billy to be happy," she stammered.

"And I want to be happy," the man answered impatiently. "I do not agree with you that my life has been lived." Billy's father smiled a strangely winning, pathetic sort of smile. "The past has been none too happy," he said. "I am hoping that the best is yet to come. So I make no false promises. You may tell my son that from me, little intercessor."

She looked back, vaguely troubled, as he bade her good afternoon, at the elevator door. Later, as Billy drove her home through the park, they came upon the big Powers' auto, stationary, near a wide sweep of meadow. Billy's father was in the front seat, and beside him the pretty stenographer. Bess glanced up sharply at Billy's muttered ejaculation, and she fancied the trace of a smile as his father's eyes met hers.

"Darn the luck!" cried the boy dejectedly, "if you couldn't make him see the folly of this thing, Peaches, somebody's got to talk to the girl."

"I don't," she told him.

"All right," answered Billy determinedly, "then I will."

Bess came upon the two not long after that in her favorite tea room. Billy's father was talking earnestly, rapidly, while the girl listened silently attentive. Bess seemed to immediately lose her appetite for luncheon—it was all so hopeless for Billy. And presently, when the little stenographer had smilingly left him, Mr. Powers came over to her table.

"Well," he asked pleasantly, "how are affairs and Billy?" And when he offered to drive her home Bess decided to accept, and taking advantage of the time, to make a final plea. But Billy's father proved such an agreeable companion that she abandoned her plan on the way, and gave herself up to the enjoyment of the hour. After all it was hard that a man so congenial and kind must spend his days alone in a great vacant house. Of course there would be Billy, and later, Billy's wife, but the more Bess thought about it—well, strange to say, the more her heart ached for the father.

Billy, too, grew morbid — distraught. She couldn't quite make him out. For hours he would sit puffing away on that ill-smelling pipe, only to jump up suddenly and rush away. She supposed he was realizing the discouragement of the situation. Oftener, and still oftener she met Billy's father in company with the blonde siren. And when he would leave the girl to come over and speak to Bess, a pleased light seemed to linger in his eyes. Then, one never-to-be-forgotten night came Billy's voice over the telephone wire, and when he had finished speaking, Bess sat there dazed and white. She smiled presently, a queer twisted smile at the heirless sameness of him.

"Bess," he said, "you take the message to father."

She, of all people, to take the message—but she went. The maid had sent her in to the big fire-lighted room unannounced. So, for quite a time Billy's father did not hear her; he bent absorbed over a photograph, and there was in his eyes the "light of dreams." Though she could not see the pictured face, Bess discerned the outline of a girlish figure, and she trembled at the pain she must inflict.

"Mr. Powers," she said at last. In an instant he was on his feet.

"You!" he murmured unbelievingly.

"I've a message," Bess began breathlessly, "a message that will hurt. It's from Billy." The man waited.

"Yes?" he said.

"Billy is married. She rushed on: "He was married tonight to the stenographer—your stenographer. It seems she tells him she has never loved you and she has learned to love him. So it was her suggestion, not his, that they marry quickly, and tell you afterward." Bessie's voice broke. "Oh! I'm so sorry for you," she said, "sorry."

Billy's father spoke up very quickly. "It was foolish of Billy, of course," he said, "but why should you be sorry for me?"

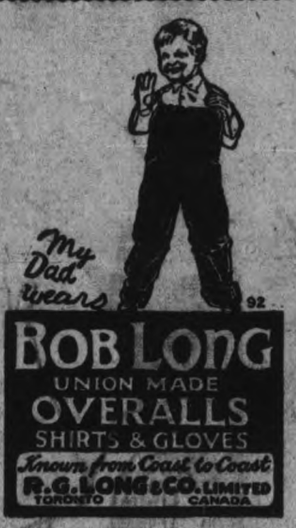
Bessie's eyes widened. "Because you loved her," said the girl, "it was she whom Billy feared you would marry."

The man stood looking down upon her. "I think I'll explain to you," he said, "what I never troubled to explain to Billy. I am writing a book. The stenographer took my dictation. Sometimes it was absolutely necessary for me to get away to the solitudes from every creature, in order to think. She went with me, and wrote. That's all. As for love and marriage I never had a thought until—" he smiled his tender quizzical smile—"until you came into my office that day to interfere."

There was a moment of vibrant silence, then Bess pointed to the photograph. "And that?" she asked. He placed it in her hand; her own face smiled back at her.

"It was my only comfort," he told her. "I found the picture in Billy's room." Quickly he raised her face to his, searching it long with eager eyes. Then suddenly, closely, he clasped her to him. "Oh! dear girl," he said, "tell me that my life has not been lived, that the best is yet to come."

Radiantly Bess smiled up at him. "And we'll give Billy his career, too," she said.



A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

The Picture of Health

BEAUTY and health usually go together. There may be classic features, but lacking the clear skin and healthful glow of the complexion, they fail to attract.

Pure, red blood is essential to beauty. For, in addition to giving color to the skin, it fills the body with vitality and energy.

There is a sparkle to the eye and grace and elasticity of every movement of the body.

Health and beauty abound.

Now just because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food actually forms new, rich blood, it is conducive of health and beauty. It supplies exactly what is lacking when you become pale, weak, languid, and lose the vivacity of health.

Even beauty of disposition and character are marred when the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves are weak and exhausted.

You lose sleep, suffer from headaches, digestion fails, and you get to looking on the dark side of things until you become downhearted and discouraged.

But as your system is restored by this food cure you find cheerfulness and confidence returning. The form is rounded out to graceful proportions, the glow of health is shown in the complexion, and you feel the vigor and energy which enables you to accomplish things.

With restored strength you experience the desire to serve and help others, and so beauty of complexion, of form and of character unite to make you happy and contented.

It is only necessary to look for the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on the box you buy so as to be guaranteed against imitations. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

The New Licensing System.

Canada's new system of license control over dealers involves more than 23,500 wholesalers and 80,000 retailers, the latter including 30,000 grocers, 16,000 butchers, 50,000 restauranteurs, 5,000 bakers, 4,500 fruiterers, 2,000 fishmongers and 4,000 produce merchants.

Gets Order of British Empire.

Mrs. Watt, of Victoria, B.C., whose name is among those honored by inclusion in the Order of the British Empire, is one of the Canadian women who has done good work on this side of the water. She has organized successfully Women's Institutes in the United Kingdom, and has been active about food production. Mrs. Watt, who was Miss Madge Robertson, an M.A. of Toronto University, has a young son in the army. After being wounded twice fighting with an old country regiment, he is now on Gen. Currie's staff.

English Slang Has a Come-Back.

Investigation of the origin of certain slang terms necessitated in the elucidation of a Thames police court case in London recently, disclosed that the English of two centuries ago used to speak of "roasting" a person, just as Canadians have used the term in recent years.

Have You Friends Who Suffer?

You have friends who are discouraged, who seem to have lost all interest in life, and whose sufferings are acute—because they are afflicted with Kidney or Bladder trouble?

Here is your golden opportunity to be a real friend to your friends. Tell them about Gin Pills, what they have done for others, and about the thousands who have found relief by taking this remedy.

Persuade your friends to try them, if only a sample box. Mrs. James Harris of Port Rowan took the advice of a friend and wrote us for a free sample. Hear in her own words the result:

"My husband had suffered for some time with lame back and Kidney Troubles. He became so bad, work was almost impossible. So many remedies were tried without effect that he became discouraged. A friend advised him to give Gin Pills a trial, which he did, and to-day he is almost entirely cured."

The case of W. T. Baldwin, of Smithville, Ont., is similar in many respects. Mr. Baldwin suffered from a pain in the back for over three years. Finally on advice from friends he tried Gin Pills, with the result that he obtained relief from his pain after taking the first box.

There is no need for anyone to invest a cent in Gin Pills until they have received a sample free and tried them, as Mr. Harris did. Write to-day, telling us to send a sample box free to your friend's address.

BEDRIDDEN WITH RHEUMATISM

Felt That He Would Never Walk Again "FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought Relief.

MR. LORENZO LEDUC

8 Ottawa St., Hull, P.Q.

"Fruit-a-tives" is certainly a wonder. For a year, I suffered with Rheumatism; being forced to stay in bed for five months. I tried all kinds of medicine but without getting better; and thought I would never be able to walk again.

"One day while lying in bed, I read about 'Fruit-a-tives' the great fruit medicine; and it seemed just what I needed, so I decided to try it.

The first box helped me, and I took the tablets regularly until every trace of the Rheumatism left me.

I have every confidence in 'Fruit-a-tives' and strongly recommend them to every sufferer from Rheumatism".

ARTFUL DODGER HAS NO CHANCE

Put a few drops on that old touchy corn then lift it out without pain

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn, stops soreness at once, and soon the corn dries up and lifts right out without pain. A delightful surprise awaits all who try this.

He says freezone is a sticky substance which dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissues or skin. A quarter of an ounce of freezone which will cost very little at any drug store, is said to be sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

While living is the time to bestow your love. Don't wait until the loving heart has ceased its beating and the tired feet are still to tell them you love them. What can they know of your words—of love, and praise, tears and grief? Give me all the love you have for me while I'm living; it will help us to bear the weary burdens that come on so thick and fast. In the home more especially is this true. The poor tired wife is the pack-horse. Without one loving word, she toils day by day, raises the little children, cares for the sick, until it seems as if the delicate form could bear no more in the home, the voice is still, there is a deep solemnity all over the place. Something is gone. What is it? I might say your pack-horse—yet I'll use the name that should be sweetest "Darling Mother"—has gone Life is blank; wife, my love, my life, has left me! Ah, me! home will never be what it has been; mother and wife have left us! If you could only say also, "I never gave her anything but loving words of praise, encouragement. I lifted every burden I could from her slight shoulders." Instead you generally howl with grief because your wife has gone, and there is no one to pack all the hard work on, or scold for everyone's faults.

Some men are too busy to give any time to their wives and children. They leave home early in the morning stay away all day, and come back at night filled with worldly cares, morose and uncommunicative. If it is ever suggested to them that they are doing wrong, they justify themselves on the ground that it is necessary for them to make a living, and that this leaves them no time for other things. Usually the plea is without foundation, for it is not merely a comfortable living that they are seeking after but the accumulation of needless wealth. Any man that is too busy to be a gentleman in his manners and a christian in his spirit within the circle of his own home is busier than he ought to be.

Our political speakers appeal only to partisan feelings and your pocket-book. You never hear them using their eloquence in an honest endeavour to better our homes which are the foundation stones upon which rest all our laws and institutions, both state and national. When the homes are right the entire country will be right. The questions that affect the morals and purity of our homes are the real and vital questions The voters who go out from moral, pure homes, will place moral and pure men in office, who will give us honest and pure railroad and tariff regulations. All we need is moral and pure homes so as to supply us with a majority of the voters.

When a woman puts what days she is at home to callers in one corner of her card, it is a sign that her husband is making money, and that you are no longer at liberty to wrap a white apron and your sewing up in a paper, go over early in the afternoon, leaving word for your husband to come at six and stay to tea with her. It may be she likes you as well as ever, but "society" demands too much of her time to let her give an entire afternoon to you. Let us return to the good old days as we found them before society stole from them all their brightness and pleasure.

The children whose horison is a brick wall, who must play on cobble stones and go swimming in the canal and be chased by the police, if they do not grow up to be ideal citizens, shall we of holier memories sit in judgment upon them? Shall we not remember the weight they carry in the race of life and be thankful we live in this beautiful country of ours?

When a man has established a home, has wife and children, the most important duties of his life have fairly begun. The errors of his youth may be obliterated the faults of his early days may be overlooked, but from the moment of his marriage he commences to write an ineffabel history; not by pen and ink, but by deeds, by which he must ever afterwards be reported and judged.

The world is full of women who can amuse the ordinary man. Can sing, dance and recite for him; can paint, write or decorate in a manner most pleasing, but the poor man often goes begging for a woman who can sew on buttons or mend clothes; who can cook his food with economy and flavor it to his taste.

Honest poverty should be respected and not scorned. It was in the homes of the lowly that we oftenest find Christ when upon the earth, and in our day it can be truthfully said that we meet Him there oftener than elsewhere.

Many a child goes astray, simply because home lacks sunshine. Many a wife esteems death her best friend, because he who swore before God to "love honor and cherish" has forgotten his vows.

Make your homes pleasant to your children and there will be no armies of unemployed marching through the country.

PULVERIZED COAL.

A New Departure In the Province on Fuel Conservation.

Once more the nation is warned to expect, with the coming winter, a renewal of the coal problem in a more serious form than ever. The householder may even have to see his customary supply of gas heat and electric illumination cut in two. If the nation is to be called upon to pinch like that, the outlook for manufacturing for the coming winter is not at all cheering.

It looks as if the claims of those scientists and engineers who have long insisted that coal should either be crushed or piped to its destination, converted into gas, or transmitted as electric power, have at last been justified.

An additional advantage over ease of bringing power to the spot desired is the fact that such a method would enable us to get a greater percentage of power from the fuel than is obtained at the present time.

When schemes for the better utilization of coal have been carefully analyzed, the most feasible, however, seems to be that which has to do with the conversion into electric power.

This problem has been very carefully considered in Great Britain, where a committee, known as the Coal Conservation Sub-Committee, made a report recently to the Ministry of Reconstruction. This subcommittee believes that the most economical way of utilizing coal is by converting it into electricity. It is stated that the coal now consumed in Great Britain could be made to do three times its present work — a mighty important fact, if there has been no mistake in estimating the factors involved.

Great Britain has its power stations split up among about six hundred private companies and municipalities. The average horse-power each station generates is about five thousand. These stations are entirely too small for obtaining the best and most economical results. The committee recomemnds that all these be abolished in favor of sixteen "super-power stations." Trunk lines would radiate every where from these to meet the nation's needs. Each generating machine would be of at least twenty thousand horse-power. Some might rise to even fifty thousand horse-power. The whole, it is suggested, would be controlled by a National Board of Electricity Commissioners.

Though the distances in the United States and the problems of meeting a fuel crisis are far greater than they are in Great Britain, the solution suggested for the fuel difficulties of our ally might well be considered by engineers and public service commissions in this country.

While England is thus weighing her fuel problems and welcoming suggestions, proposals of a somewhat different character are being made in the United States. These largely concern the advantages to be gained by large scale utilization of pulverized coal. In a report made to the president of the United States Shipping Board by the Fuel and Fuel Handling Committee of the Naval Consulting Board, as much as fifty million tons of pulverized coal are said to have been burned in the country in recent years.

Evidently, here we have a departure in the practice of coal utilization that may be of marked importance to the future of the coal industry, the manufacturer, and the individual household consumer. The advantage of pulverization consist of course largely in the perfect combustion that is obtained thereby. This pulverization must, however, be done with some science. Mere crushing of the fuel to a dust is not sufficient, it must be so reduced as to pass through a very fine screen. — Illustrated World.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favourable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength.) Take this home and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

WONDERS OF THE ALPS.

Changes Nature Wrought to Uplift Their Towering Peaks.

Nothing in the world's history is more impressive than the story of the Alps Ten or twelve million years ago, possibly far more, a long unseen line of weakness, a crack or fissure in the earth's crust, stretched away from France eastward hundreds of miles. On this line followed huge volcanic outbursts.

Next ensued a vast slow subsidence, which went on through geologic epochs until where Mont Blanc now rears its summit 15,780 feet was a sea fringing an old continent. Large rivers emptied into it. Deposits of mud, sand, gravel were laid one on another as the sinking went on until the layers became 50,000 feet, nearly ten miles, thick.

Then at last commenced a great uplifting; the struggling subterranean forces raised a huge load. For ages this went on until the rocks, crumbled, crushed, contorted, rose above the waters and continued to rise, forming lines of mountain chains and making Switzerland a tableland.

Every hour since then rain and snow, river, glacier and avalanche have been sculpturing into peaks and carving into lakes and valleys that vast platform with its recent sedimentary covering and primeval granite core.

The result is a land of unequaled grandeur.—London Telegraph.

International Questions.

International questions constitute one of the greatest known boons of the human race. International questions are so broad that they do not require any close reasoning in order to express opinions about them. That is their great beauty. One can strike in almost anywhere without any great danger of hitting bottom, and one can say almost anything about an international question without being called to account except by some one who is equally unreliable. Local questions are quite different in that respect. Local questions are much more prosaic and less romantic. One must be surer of his data and more consistent in his conclusion. In explaining local questions there is always danger that the man you are explaining to knows more about the matter than you do yourself. If you must make ignorant statements do it in the way that best conceals your ignorance.

Family Treasures.

"What's the trouble in the household?"

"Mother gave away all of father's old clothes. And he retaliated."

"How?"

"By throwing away all her old medicine bottles."

Thrifty.

"I fear my cousin is going to marry a very stingy man."

"Why so?"

"She suggested a morning wedding, but he said to make it after lunch on the ground that she would get one more meal at home."

Do not allow idleness to deceive you for while you give him today he steals tomorrow from you.—Old Saying

Thrift does for the individual what thrift does for the nation—it makes for strength. It is the surest foundation upon which a man can build. Note the successful men of your town. Do they waste their substance? Do they live beyond their means? do they run into debt, gamble and try to keep up with Lizzie? Yes, verily, they are the frugal men, the solid men, the thrifty men. They have managed well.

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Prouse, cattle dealer, Shebo, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease; at times was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Austria-Hungary Said to be in the Market for a "Non-Committal Peace Conference"

Latest Peace Feeler Came Through Holland and Has Been Sent to All Belligerents—Great Britain's Reply.

WILL SWAP HORSES

(Special to Examiner.)

Amsterdam, Oct. 5. — Replying to an alleged request by Austria-Hungary for a peace conference of all the belligerents, Great Britain is reported to have demanded that the Austrian government explain what it means by a "non-committal conference."

Austria Hungary's request was made through Holland, according to the Vienna correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt. She asked that Holland place The Hague at the disposal of the belligerents. Holland promptly notified all the belligerents, the correspondent says.

A SUCCESSOR.

It is reported that Prof. Lammasch, who, it is rumored, may succeed the Austrian Premier Hussarek, has prepared a memorandum stating Austria's conception of President Wilson's 14 points, which will be sent to the latter.

The Cologne Gazette says that the Hungarian Premier Wekerle, Count Tisza, Count Andrassy, and Count Apponyi, have arrived in Vienna, in connection with the new peace efforts.

"We are laboring unwearyingly in the interests of peace," Wekerle declared in an interview. "We are already negotiating."

Wekerle and the others will be received by Emperor Karl to discuss the situation.

THE RESTORATION OF BELGIUM—The British and Belgian troops continue their victorious progress in Belgium, despite very bad weather and terrible road conditions. Boat and Plane Fight to Finish

By HENRY WOOD.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Rome, Aug. 18. (By Mail.)—The Italian medals for valor to-day were conferred on Emilio Stagnaro, expert gunner, Genova, and Luigi Contigliozza, assistant gunner, Rome for their part in a remarkable air naval combat between an Austrian hydroplane and two Italian Torpedo boats.

These naval-aerial duels, which marine aviation has developed in the present war now take place almost daily, but the public hears of them only through an occasional decoration of some gunner, aviator or sailor who has particularly distinguished himself.

The two Italian torpedo boats on which Stagnaro and Contigliozza were serving as gunners were patrolling off the Adriatic coast when the approach of a hydroplane was perceived.

THE FIGHT BEGINS

When the black crosses on the hydro's wings became apparent the machine guns and anti-aircraft batteries aboard the torpedo boats opened fire.

Forced to manouver instantly by this fire, the hydroplane lost its first chance of gaining the position necessary for dropping bombs on the boats. Instead, however, by suddenly darting low it raked the decks of both with machine gun fire.

The adversaries again resumed the manouvering for position and the hydroplane dropped its first two bombs, which fell in the water.

Amid a constant hail of fire from both torpedo boats, the hydroplane again got the position for attack, and this time, although the bombs fell in the water they exploded near enough to demolish the gun at which Stagnaro and Contigliozzi were working, as well as wreaking death and havoc among the other gun crews.

TAKE COMRADES' PLACES

Although both were badly wounded, each insisted in taking the place of a dead comrade in one of the other gun crews, and without loss of an instant's time kept up the fight.

For over an hour the hydroplanes and the two gunboats maintained the contest, the hydro now raking the boats with machine gun fire and now dropping bombs.

In the end, completely riddled with machine gun fire and shrapnell balls, the hydro tilted and dropped into the water, but unfortunately near enough to the Austrian side of the Adriatic to enable its escape.

Both Stagnaro and Contigliozzi were taken from their guns fainting from loss of blood and hurried to the surgical room.

FIREMEN HAD A CALL LAST NIGHT.

The Fire Brigade responded to two calls last night. The first blaze was at the home of Mr. E. S. Ivey, 228 Rubidge Street. The furnace had become overheated, due, it is thought, to the use of soft coal. The damage was inconsequental.

Millbrook Fair Drew Great Crowd Yesterday

Entries Were Splendid and All the Classes Were Well Filled—Races and Other Features Pleased the Crowds – Many From Peterboro.

CONCERT WAS EXCELLENT

MILLBROOK, Oct. 5.—All roads led to Millbrook yesterday for the second day of the Fair, and they were alive with automobiles that came from all directions and from long distances. The attendance was unusually large, and the directors are congratulating themselves upon their escape from the rain that fell in the evening.

Peterborough contributed a large share of the visitors, but Lindsay, Omemee, Port Hope, and other towns were well represented. The 57th Band paraded from the town square to the grounds, and Cavan's Agricultural Exhibition opened its gates wide to a fine success.

The entries in the carriage and roadster classes were exceptionally large, and the judge had his work cut out for him in awarding the ribbons

The agricultural and heavy draught classes were well contested, and many splendid animals were in the ring.

Millbrook Fair always brings the best in horses, and some of those that won first at other Fairs had to take a back seat when put up against their superiors here.

Cattle were more in evidence than for some years previous. There were many entries in both dairy and beef classes, and the animals all looked as though they had special care.

The sheep, swine and poultry entries were also very good, and created favourable comment.

In grain, vegetables and fruit there has never been better samples, and while perhaps the number of entries may not have been so large as in other years, one marvelled at the magnificent specimens.

In the ladies' fancy work department thousands of pretty and useful pieces were displayed, and here again the judges found it difficult at times, to decide the winners.

Mr. W. S. Given, president, was a busy man throughout the day, as were also the secretary, Mr. H. R. Armstrong, and his assistant, Mr. J. Douglas. The vice-president, Mr. Jos. Hamilton, was also one of the busiest and most useful men on the grounds.

Butter Took Jump To-day

Gradually Slumped Back to 50 Cents—The Farmers' Market.

"The marketers in Peterboro set the price on butter," a merchant remarked yesterday when speaking of the situation. This statement was conclusively proven this morning at the market when at the outset 55 cents was demanded by the farmer's wives. This the public refused to pay to such an extent the price gradually came down from 55 to 52 then to 50 cents a pound. When the market opened at the above high price many decided to use oleomargarine. Eggs took a big jump today and 53 to 55 cents was asked a dozen. Chicken sold at 30 cents a pound; ducks sold at 33 cents a pound; apples sold at $1.50 a bag; potatoes sold at $2.25 a bag.

A NEW POCKET

(Special to The Examiner.)
(By John DeGhant.)

PARIS, Oct. 5.—The French and American drives in the Argonne, Champagne and Rheims regions are imperilling the Germans in the Argonne Massif and in the newly created pocket northeast of Rheims. Franco-American troops are now strongly established on the Orfeuil tableland.

The French have reached the Arnes stream and are threatening to envelope the enemy still holding Nogent-L'Abbesse, Beine and Moronvilliers (all between Rheims and the Suippe River. This operation is in conjunction with General Berthelot's drive north of Rheims.

The American advance east of the Argonne is timed to progress with General Gouraud's right and is menacing the Germans in the forest, the evacuation of which is expected.

Will Address The Reichstag

New Imperial Chancellor Will Declare Against Annexations.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Prince Maximilian of Baden, the new German Imperial Chancellor, will declare against annexation in the west by Germany, and in favour of a full restoration of Belgium, according to a despatch to the "Le Journal" from Zurich. The restoration will be carried out by means of an international fund, however, according to the programme which it is indicated the Chancellor will propose to the Reichstag to-day. In general it is declared, his statement of policy will be based on both the Reichstag peace resolution of 1917 and recent statement of Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister. There is indications also that the Chancellor will make known his disposition to confide the revision of the Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest treaties to a congress of all belligerents. He will declare against the payment of damage done to France, it is declared, and will demand the freedom of the seas in the German sense of that phrase, and return of German colonies. It is further forecast that the Chancellor will favour partial and progressive disarmament, but he will not entertain any idea of an arrangement with France concerning Alsace-Lorraine, and is absolutely opposed to the return of the two provinces.

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

Largest Shell-Loading Plant in the States Destroyed—Scores Dead and Wounded.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

(Special to the Examiner.)

New York, October 5. — Scores of persons are believed to be dead and many others maimed in various degrees, were in the hospitals in New Jersey early to-day and the nation's greatest shell loading plant, the property of the T. A. Gillespie Company, of Morgan, near Southamby, was in ruins as the result of an explosion of trinitrotoluol last night.

(Canadian Press.)

Perth Amboy, N. J., Oct. 5. — Explosions followed by fire, which last night destroyed numbers of buildings in the great shell loading plants here, with a probable loss of lives estimated at from 25 to 100, continuing at frequent intervals during the early morning hours, culminated at 4 a.m., with a terrific blast, which blew one of the few remaining warehouses or magazines to dust.

Large quantities of trinitrotoluol, one of the most powerful explosives known had been stored in this magazine. The force of the explosion rocked the surrounding country like an earthquake, wrecked light buildings, shattered thousands of window panes and caused a panic amongst residents in scores of towns.

The cause of the disaster is not known, but several investigations are under way to-day. Rumors were circulated that spies or alien enemies were responsible, but these were promptly discounted by officials.

The extent of the property loss has not yet been estimated by the company officers. The plant is said to have been valued at $18,000,000.

Estimate of Dead.

NEWARK, N.J., Oct. 5.—An estimate of 137 dead in the explosion of the Gillespie shell leading plant was made to-day in an extra edition of the Newark Evening Ledger.

Ninety-four workmen were killed, it was stated, in the first building destroyed, with twenty-four firemen with the company and eighteen plant guards who went into fight the flames.

Added to this, it was stated, are several civilian rescuers who have not been seen since they entered the building on rescue work.

Hut Fund Teams Realize $6,000

Objective Was Reached Last Night and Other Contributions Will Exceed It.

The response on all sides to the campaign on behalf of the Army Hut Fund this week in Peterborough has been mose generous. Up to last evening almost $6,000.00 in cash had been collected and turned in and this with pledges and the collectors yet to hear from should run the total over the objective for which the committee in charge are most grateful, and wish to thank most heartily every contributor big and small. The chairman, Dr. McNulty, feels he was very fortunate indeed in being surrounded by such a large number of valiant workers, and among these special mention should be made of Mr. J. E. Sullivan of the executive who was really the detail man in the campaign, who had an eye in every direction and consequently the work of the committee in general has run along very smoothly. The well-known workers of the business district have certainly excelled themselves and to these men who gave of their time so generously, the committee have nothing but the warmest praise.. Of those in the Centre district Mr. G. H. Giroux is out for first place. He has been a most indefatigable worker and has shown the way to work to his younger competitors. In the West end Mr. J. Grisdale is the live wire. In the North Mr. Overend, and in the South Mr. S. S. Shaughnessy, who adopted a very novel plan in selecting for his partner Detective Meagher. Probably the hardest working team of any who have covered a great deal of ground both in the residential and manufacturing districts must be mentioned Mr. W. O'Brien and Mr. T. Brooks, who have acted as general utility men and who have lived up to every promise. One and all have certainly excelled themselves and given of their time and euergy freely, which has tended to make the campaign such a splendid success.

A novel feature of the campaign was introduced last evening at the performance of "Everywoman" at the Grand Opera House, when the audience was addressed by Mr. Jos. Wearing, who had kindly offered his services to the committee in any capacity which they should see fit. Mr. Wearing in a spirited address explained the aims and objects and the needs of this campaign and asked his audience to be generous in leaving the theatre when they would be given an opportunity to donate something to this work. In the rotunda were two young ladies in full nursing uniform beside a stretcher, and as the audi- beside a stretcher, and as the audience filed out they certainly must have touched a responsive chord, as there was nearly $25.00 left on the stretcher. The committee wish to thank heartily Mr. Wearing for his splendid address and assistance, and also the two young ladies, Miss Stevenson, and Miss Armstrong, who so kindly consented to act in the capacity of Red Cross Nurses for the evening at the Opera House.

OTHER UNITS MENTIONED

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Oct. 5.— New details of the story of the breaking of the Hindenburg line between Cambrai and St. Quentin are given in accounts of the fight received from British correspondents. The representative of the Mail, after referring to Canadian, British, Australian and New Zealand divisions as units, whose daily life was heavy fighting, says: Other divisions had as hard fighting and as glorious triumph. The Americans also broke through the Hindenburg line. Allied airmen had photographed every tunnel mouth and every surface feature at low altitudes and these photographs were carried into action by American officers as they advanced through the mist. The heat and confusion of battle robbed the gallant Americans of some of their proper reward. It was not until yesterday that it was seen how much the Americans had done. Never have the Germans been seen in such thick swaths of dead as along the course the Americans traversed.

Encircling Movements

French Press Adopts Slogan of Village for Village.

(Special to The Examiner.)
(By Webb Miller.)

PARIS, Oct. 5.—The great battle along the western front to-day is revolving into a series of great alternating movements centralized around their main theatres. The battle front is taking the shape of three gigantic half circles within two northerly arcs in the heart of the Northern France industrial regions. At the bottom of each half circle Marshal Foch is hammering in an effort to increase the encirclement and pinch off the Germans within.

The northern arc of Lille is one of the most populous centres of France, and is about forty miles in diametre. The German retreat is flattening this arc hourly. Such a retirement is of tremendous importance. Every yard turned around Roulers and Cambrai increases the probability of greater success for the Allies.

Official Despatches

French and American Troops Have Gained Further Ground.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Oct. 5.— In the region north of St. Quentin, British troops made substantial progress yesterday south-east of Beaurevoir and north of Lecatelet. Eight hundred prisoners captured. The British line north-west of Lecatelet was advanced slightly on Friday night.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

The French and American troops in the Champaigne region have gained further ground north of Mont Blanc in the direction of the River Arnes. Along the Aisne canal, in the region of Rheims, the French are pressing the Germans vigorously and have crossed the canal at several points. The French have reached the outskirts of Bermiercourt, east of the canal. In desperate fighting the French have driven the enemy from the heights south-east of Chardon-Vert.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(Official.)—Under pressure of French and American attacks in the Champagne, the Germans have retired on their left flank and given up terrtiory east of the Monts. West of Suippe, the French, keeping in touch with German rear guards, have reached the heights south of Moronvilliers.

TEN THOUSAND TURK DESERTERS

Special to The Examiner:

ZURICH, Oct. 5.—Ten thousand deserters from the Turkish army assembled outside Constantinople and demanded the resignations of Talaat Pasha, Turkish Grand Vizier and Enver Pasha, Minister of War, according to despatches from Constantinople.

The Minister refused and despatched Government troops to attack the revolters. A battle followed, the result of which is unknown.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: There can never be any dispute as to which of the Allies won the war. They will each and all have won it. There is not one of the actively belligerent Allies who could have been spared without at least risking the direst disaster. When it comes to the principal powers on the Allied side, the ommission of any one of them would have precipitated certain and lasting disaster.

Least of all can the United States —the last of the great Allied powers to enter the arena—lay claims to any monopoly in war-winning, France Britain, Russia and Italy—to say nothing of the smaller nations—stopped the gap for virtually three years before we were minded and ready to strike a serious blow. Now that we have a clear vision of the situation and perceive the appalling menace that hung over us, unrealized, from the moment that the bandit chief of Berlin decided that the time was ripe to set out upon their long-planned slave raid across the civilised world, we cannot find language to express our gratitude to the nations that held the pass while we were slowly awaking to our danger and arming for our defence. Had France faltered for instance, nothing could have saved us. Had Britain hesitated, Mittleleuropa would have been "Europe" by this time, and we should have lived and traded and prospered only as the Kaiser permitted.

CLEAN OUT THE CELLARS.

The most effective observation of ...e prevention day in Peterborough ...uld be a campaign to clean out the ...lars of the business section. In the ...tes along George street there are ...ars that are so full of fire-breed...g rubbish that it is a miracle that ...e city has not been visited by more ...quent conflagrations. "Clean up ...d keep clean," is a slogan that ...uld be inaugurated on Wednesday ...d kept constantly in mind. The ...thusiastic co-operation of the mer...nts in this conection would have ...wholesome and lasting effect that ...uld minimize the fire risk in the ...siness section. Cleanliness, thrift ...d civic pride all should be an incen...e for this cleaning-up campaign.

WOULD BE PROFITEERING.

There does not seem any legiti...te reason or excuse for raising the ...ce of butter in Canada, because of ...e commandeering by the Govern...nt of the output of Canadian ...reameries for the next few weeks ...d if the present prices are increas...d to the Canadian consumer, those ...ncerned will have to face well-...unded charges of profiteering. The ...overnment is merely taking over the ...reamery butter manufactured in ...nada betwen now and the 9th of ...ovember. There is available for use ...Canada 18,000,000 pounds which is ...nsidered ample for domestic use. ...ere will be no scarcity of butter in ...nada, and if the prices are boosted it ...ll appear as nothing more or less ...an profiteering of the worst type.

THE PRICE OF VICTORY.

...is only too evident from the ...aphic reports of the war correspo...nts in regard to the bitterness of ...e fighting around Cambrai that the ...nadian people must steel them...lves for the reception of a casualty ...t that will be heavy even as com...red with the serious losses sustain...d by the Canadians in other big en...gements. Mr. J. F. B. Livesay, the ...ecial correspondent of the Canadian ...ess in France, prepares the people ...the Dominion for an announcement ...what the glorious achievements of ...neral Currie's forces have cost in ...sh and blood. "Beyond question ...sterday's battle was the most sav...e and sustained in which the Cana...n corps has ever engaged," cables ...Livesay. "Only the utmost hero...m and tenacity of our infantry, in ...ding battalions from Quebec, Cen...l Ontario, Western Manitoba and ...stern and Western British Colum..., enabled us to cling on to the sa...nt we had driven into the heart of ...e enemy's defence in the face of ...ve after wave of counter-attacks ...almost overwhelming numbers. ...r casualties are now heavier in the ...sent operations than in the battles ...the previous seven weeks before ...iens and Arras, and when we went ...ough the Queant-Drocourt line."

Mr Livesay's cable means that ...the fighting of the past few ...s the Canadians have lost ...ne men, killed and wounded, ...n the whole seven weeks' fight ...which preceded the Cambrai op...ation—in other words that the cap...e of Bourlon Wood and other ...ong points north and northwest of ...mbrai resulted in more casualties ...three or four days than were sus...ned in the wonderful victory of ...e Canadians in front of Amiens, and ...e breaking of the German switch ...e combined.

SHOULD BE CAREFUL.

In connection with the fire prevention campaign, a warning to the many householders who have endeavoured to meet the fuel shortage by installing electric heating apparatus in their homes may not be out of order. An electric heater, in the home of careful people is a safe and effective method of supplying heat, but care must be exercised in its operation. With the use of two or three heaters at once there is danger of the electric wiring becoming overheated and the result may be a disastrous fire. Again care should be taken that the heaters are kept away from inflammable material. An open window with a heater placed too close to it might form an admirable combination for starting a blaze. A draft of air blows the window curtain into the heater and eventually there may be a fire.

You may say there is little danger of this happening in your home. Yet the National Board of Fire Underwriters in the United States report that one hundred fires are caused every day from electric flat-irons, plate warmers and other electrical apparatus. People were careless and the fires followed. The trouble too is that fires due to the electric current often break out behind walls and under floors where it is most difficult to get at them.

Every one should understand something about the laws of electricity and appreciate that it has its dangers as well as its benefits. These dangers should be recognized and avoided.

RESTAURANT PRICES.

That restaurant keepers "have been cheating their customers in wholesale fashion," is the charge made by the Ottawa Evening Journal, referring to the exorbitant profits reported by the Cost of Living Commissioner in the case of public eating houses. The matter was referred to by The Examiner last evening and the following extract from our Ottawa contemporary is along the same lines. The Journal says under the heading "Outrageous Profiteering":

The Attorney-General of Ontario declares he has no authority to prosecute restaurant-keepers for profiteering because the order-in-council passed a couple of years ago providing for the prosecution of food profiteers does not apply to eating houses. His statement is in reply to a recommendation made to him two or three weeks ago by Dr. McFall, Cost of Living Commissioner, that prosecution be instituted against certain Ottawa restaurant-keepers and hotel-keepers upon whose profits the Commissioner submitted figures.

Without authority, of course, the Attorney-General can do nothing. But there is a remedy and it should be provided—the passage by the Government at Ottawa of a new order-in-council applying the provisions of the original measure to the eating house proprietors.

The Cost of Living Commissioner has just given out figures showing outrageous profits taken by restaurant-keepers on foods served to the public. In the case of one restaurant the profit on bacon is 1,100 per cent. Profits running into hundred percentages are common. The figures given are all on meats.

These profits have been brought about by a decrease in the quantity of the meats served without any decrease in the price charged for the portion. The reduction in quantity has been increasing. Thus, the restaurant which is now making, according to the Commissioner, 1,200 per cent. on bacon was serving 5 1-2 ounces as a portion on December 1, 1917; by June 1, this year, it had reduced the portion to four ounces and at the present time it is serving only 1 1-2 ounces. Reduction in the quantity of roast beef served has been similar, although not so great, eight ounces being the portion last December while 5 1-2 ounces is the portion now. Other restaurants have reduced the bacon portions from four or five ounces to less than two ounces in many cases. The price of the portion has not ben reduced and in some cases has been increased.

The restaurant-keepers, under the pretence of obeying Food Board regulations and patriotic food economy, have been cheating their customers in wholesale fashion. Provision should have been made long ago to prevent this kind of profiteering. The imposition on those who take their meals in public places has been great. Dr. McFall is to be commended for taking the matter up, and the Government should lose no time in enacting an order-in-council which will give the Attorney-General power to prosecute. Dr. McFall has the evidence. The profiteers should be brought quickly to book.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

On Thursday the Examiner had a reference to a letter by Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.P.P. on the Good Roads System. It was, however, not possible to publish the letter itself on that day, but the communication appears in to-day's issue.

"How to get most out of a furnace," reads a newspaper heading. But what is troubling most people is to get something to put into a furnace.

Half a billion dollars is the objective of Canada's new Victory Loan. Watch the people of Canada roll up this big total.

Deputy Provincial Fire Marshal Lewis is a strong advocate of the double platoon system for fire departments. "Firemen are human beings, says Mr. Lewis, "and are deserving of every consideration. They should have the same home privileges as other people."

Gasoline is still needed. Keep your car in the garage to-morrow.

Remember a week from to-day is Children's Aid Society Tag Day. Funds are more urgently needed this year than ever before.

JUST AS EASILY.

(Ottawa Journal.)

It may be well to remind some uneasy people that increased pay under the name of "war bonus" can be just as easily spent as the rest.

THE LAST CHANCE.

(London Advertiser.)

One of the saddest reflections of the German general staff these days is that in one of his books Foch tells just how a successful offensive should be conducted.

PREMEDITATIVE.

(Richmond Times-Despatch.)

The Kaiser in his speech at Essen, declared the Germans were a meditative people. From the standpoint of their preparations for war they might be called a "premeditative" people.

WHY THE DISTINCTION?

(Brantford Expositor.)

It is announced that the Dominion Paper Commissioner will forbid the starting of any new daily papers until after the war. Why continue the verboten to that class of publication which is most essential, and permit other publications, such as weeklies, magazines, etc., which are less needed, to escape the ban Nor must it be forgotten that the job printers use up a good deal of newsprint, much of it in an unnecessary manner. If there are to be restrictions for the purpose of paper conservation they ought to be applied impartially.

CRUEL EXPOSURE.

(Oberlin, Kan., Herald.)

A warning to young men: There is many a girl cutting all sorts of didos with crochet hooks who can't make a button stick on a shirt more than 24 hours.

AMONG THE LEADERS.

(London Free Press.)

A Toronto contemporary hears employers are inquiring amount of pension received by an applicant for work, and are fixing the wages accordingly. An employer like that is a close contestant for first place as the meanest man.

MUST PAY THE PRICE.

Mr. Livesay, the Canadian Press correspondent at the front, warns us to expect heavy casualty lists as a result of the recent fierce fighting about Cambrai in which the Canadians were engaged. They have been uniformly victorious—but the price of victory must be paid.

Days of Usefulness.

Bonner Springs Chieftain: In these work-or-fight days some men are already useful, some achieve usefulness, and others have usefulness thrust upon them.

A Neighbourly Appreciation.

Christian Science Monitor: Canada now speaks of Victory loans, and the next one to which it will be asked to subscribe will be projected almost at the same time as the Liberty Loan in the United States. The Domonion is determined to put up half a billion dollars, if called upon, and to herald the loan with the capture of Cambrai, scene of the debut of the tanks. One begins to wonder, not what Canada can do, but what there is, in her effort to make the world safe for democracy, that she cannot do.

Thrift is the antidote for worry, which is the most distressing of human emotions. To worry about the future is common to man, but not to the animals—they work for the future and plan for it. Thrift avoids the worries of life as no other habit can. It is good medicine for the blues.

TO FARMERS

The Government has sent out an appeal to the Canadian people to buy at home. Why? Because when we buy abroad more than we sell we have to pay a premium on the excess, in addition to the price of the goods. This is known as an adverse rate of exchange. We have bought four hundred million dollars' worth more from the United States than we have sold to it. The rate of exchange is 2 per cent. against us. In other words, we are paying 2 per cent. on four hundred millions of dollars, or eight million dollars, which means that if we owe a great deal of money for goods bought we have to pay extra for the privilege. If we keep this up Canada will bleed to death. Please inquire into this matter at once.

CROSS, SICKLY BABIES

Sickly babies—those who are cross and fretful; whose little somach and bowels are out of order; who suffer from constipation, indigestion, colds or any other of the minor ills of little ones—can be promptly cured by Baby's Own Tablets. Concerning them Mrs. Jean Paradis, St. Bruno, Que., writes: "My baby was very ill and vomited all his food. He was cross and cried night and day and nothing helped him till I began using Baby's Own Tablets. They soon set him right an now he is a fat healthy boy." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Militia Dept. Records Unfair to Methodists

Rev. Dr. Chown, Superintendent, Urges General Conference to Demand a Public Vindication.

HAMILTON, Oct. 4.—"It is due to our people now, and to our future, that this conference should urgently request the Government publicly to declare that the denominational returns of the Militia Department are not reliable and to adopt some other method of determining the proportion of chaplains to be appointed according to denominations."

So said Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, general superintendent of the Methodist church, in the course of his very comprehensive review of the state of Methodism in Canada and the problems presented by the war, at the opening session of the General Conference of the Methodist church in Canada.

"The denominational registration of Methodist soldiers as such would be of slight significance were it not that in a large measure it determines the future usefulness of our ministry," said Dr. Chown.

"Periodically a rumour starts up and is circulated to the effect that of the four denominations, namely, the Anglican, Presbyterian, Roman aCtholic and Methodist, the last has supplied the smallest number of recruits. The figures upon which this statement is based have often been repudiated, and no man can prove their truth.

Not On Attestation Papers.

"It is not generally known by the public that the attestation papers, which should accurately set forth the religious affiliations of the men, did not for about fifteen months after enlistment began contain the word 'Methodist.' The attestation papers were printed in accordance with the forms in use in England. Each recruit was asked to say whether he was connected with the Church of England, Presbyterian, Wesleyan, Baptist or Congregationalist, other Protestants (denominations to be stated), Roman Catholic, Jewish. Methodists were inadvertently discriminated against.

No Redress From Ottawa.

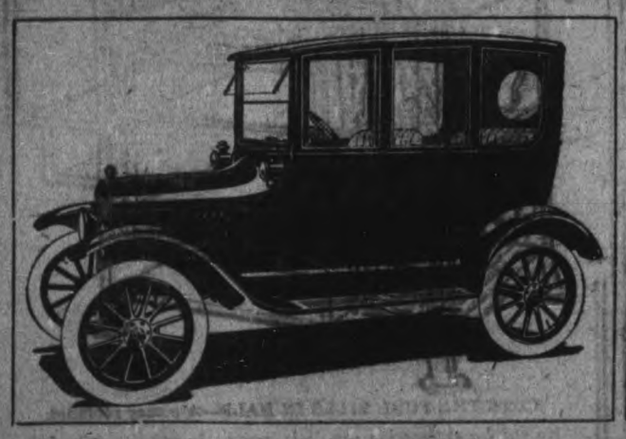
"We have made every effort to correct this erroneous condition of things. We asked the Minister of Militia to furnish us with the list of Methodists from various localities, that we might furnish him with proof that the militia returns were not correct. We urged that this courtesy was extended to the churches in Great Britain, but we were refused the opportunity. We afterwards asked that the religious denominations of the members of a certain battalion be given us. We were confident that we could prove gross inaccuracies in the report of that battalion, and by consequence of probability of errors in other battalions. The report has not yet been furnished us.

Humiliated in History.

"Our hands are tied in our own defence, and we are sent down to history humiliated by returns which we do not now and never will accept.

"I may be asked why this unfairness has not been earlier exposed For two reasons. First, a complete explanation would probably stir up denominational strife, a condition we are most anxious to avoid at present. The immense issues of the war so overshadow the standing of any church in it that we do not wish to engage public attention upon the smaller issue. And, second, because no reliable figures can be obtained upon which to base a statement."

Dr. Chown reported that some five hundred ministers and probationers had enrolled, or about one-third the total number of those men eligible of military age, health and strength. "Nor did they seek the reputedly less dangerous path of the chaplains' service alone," said Dr. Chown. "About five-sixths of our enlisted ministers joined the ranks of the combatant forces."



Two Very Popular Ford Models

The above two closed models of Ford cars have recently become very popular with the Canadian buying public, so much so that a very large percentage of buyers, have chosen either one of these models, which by actual experience have proved exceptionally comfortable and satisfactory for summer driving as well as being perfectly comfortable during the cold days of Fall, Winter and Spring.

It is regrettable however that just now when they have become so popular, the Ford Motor Company have but a very limited number available until after the war. We will however be glad to fill any orders accepted while the stock lasts and as a special inducement we have decided to store in our new garage free of charge from now until next Spring, any Ford Sedan or Ford Coupelet purchased this Fall. This will give the owner an opportunity of driving his car during the Winter when he so desires, which should prove to be a great convenience.

The material and workmanship on these two models are equally as good as on any $4000 to $5000 car and the riding qualities are exceptionally comfortable, together with being perfectly warm in any weather, explains the reason why these two models have gained such popularity.

Now is the time to purchase for as stated above when the very limited quantity available are placed, there will be no more until after the war is over and the automobile business resumes its normal condition.

Why Not Insure The Payment of Your Premium?

Suppose you are thirty-five years old, and carrying $10,000 of Life Insurance costing you, say $300.00 per year, would you not like, (in case of serious accident or illness destroying your earning power) to have the payment of this premium paid for you as long as you live?

Then Read The Following:

The Sun Life of Canada will give you a further insurance of $5,000.00 if you are still insurable, and if you become totally and permanently disabled from any cause, the Company will not only relieve you of all future premiums on THIS policy during such disability, but they will guarantee to hand you a $500.00 cheque every year, which you see will pay the premiums on your $10,000.00 and in addition will give you a handsome CASH XMAS BOX each year and, nevertheless, will pay the face of your policy at maturity or death.

Many people hesitate to take out Life Insurance, lest some catastrophy should force them to give it up. Well, that bugbear is removed by the Sun Life of Canada.

ASHBURNHAM HAS ATTRACTIONS FOR HOME-SEEKERS THAT ARE TOO OFTEN OVERLOOKED BY CITIZENS

Fine Community Spirit Has Fbwered in Work for the Boys at the Front—Homes Are Nearly All Closer to the Heart of the City Than They Seem, and Just Now Rents Are Less—Has Many Natural Beauties.

When Ashburnham merged its interests with those of Peterborough, it therewith wrapped its identity in the rustling folds of the new cloak of cityhood. For a time the hopes of the villagers remained strong in the promises that had accompanied annexation. Anticipation still retained its pristine tints, but their brightness had begun to fade. Ambitions born of the union struggled to survive, but in the end languished in sterility. A feeling developed that nothing had been gained by the partnership, that its benefits had not been reciprocal. Disappointment kindled a sputtering discontent that glowed with a sullen fire until new and milder fuel softened its flame to a bland light, dissolving with the steady illumination under which the city seeks the path of progress. In other words, while contributing its share of the obligations of amalgamation, Ashburnham has demanded and received recognition of its rights, and beyond that end has revived the spirit of its old thriving days when its industry and business activities were on a par with its neighbour across the bridge.

The first signs of this returning individuality was the refusal to accept the municipal designation of East City. That was the last ditch of the old sentiment, it was the Marne of the movement to obliterate its identity and its past under the purely geographical substitute. Ashburnham was a name that suggested old associations, which would have been lost with its passage, and at that stage some of the residents made a stand for its retention. To some of the newcomers it had a strong appeal, but for different reasons than those held by the old inhabitants. However, old and new were united in their purpose, and Ashburnham has been practically restored in public usage. With that tacit effort, grew a community spirit that is its very own. One of its expressions is the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League, comprising the entire population across the river, and without a divisive element. Its members sew and work together and at this time of the year prepare Christmas parcels for the boys who represent the old village at the front.

As a matter of fact, Ashburnham has clung to its independence in everything but municipal administration. It has its schools, churches, stores, parks, all the necessities of community life and the symbols of the complete residential entity. And if it were to launch a campaign to advertise its attractions to home builders it has not only the intangible asset of community spirit that is so widely sought to-day, but has the material advantages that must powerfully appeal to parents who are not restricted in their location by the essential considerations of proximity to this or that workshop.

Mention has been made of the schools, Public and Separate, the churches, Anglican, Catholic and Methodist, also the stores, grocery, hardware, drugs, bakeshop, barber shops and other essentials in the present plane of living.

A New Day Coming.

The community spirit of Ashburnham has been strongly behind the proposal to build a ned high levbridge on Hunter street. This improvement, with the street car service it will shortly bring, points to a new day for Ashburnham. Its industries are now comparatively few. The Auburn Woollen Mills in the north, the Quaker Oats Mills, at present operating on both sides of the river, and several smaller shops, are few compared with the factory demand for labour that has built up the south end. There have been prospective enterprises that had scanned properties up and down Ashburnham, only to bring disappointment when they located elsewhere. But the old hopes have refused to surrender to such discouragements, and there is confidence that the future will deal more kindly, following the earnest that has been shown recently.

Rents Are Cheaper.

Citizens whose work would permit them to live across the river should be moved by the present basis of rentals which, as is generally stated, are considerably less, but it is hoped only temporarily, less than those on this side. For example, one man who paid $12 a month for a house with modern conveniences, hardwood floors, big garden and other considerations in Ashburnham, moved down on to Rubidge street, where he is paying $20 for a dwelling that is not appreciably better than the one he vacated, and is gardenless. Six room houses on Driscoll Terrace rent for $12, and those of five rooms for $10. These have modern equipment. Of course, the descending scale does not rest there, but the cheaper homes are scarcely worth mentioning in these days of improvements.

On a Higher Level.

Ashburnham's advocates point to the fact that the greater part of their territory is on a higher level than the city's. The air, they assert, is clearer and purer. There is an old fiction that claims for the Hunter street bridge the coldest stretch of street in winter. This, however, is largely a delusion that has outgrown the quip that begot it. The wind sweeps down the river with a keen edge when it blows from the north, but it is no more penetrating than the blasts that prefer George street or any of the other streets in the entire city.

One of the chief assets of Ashburnham is its nearness to the city. When the two bridges are completed this will be a more outstanding convenience, and at the same time there is the quiet that suggests the country. Not that it is is deserted, but there are fewer automobiles and other vehicles plying the streets, endangering the lives of children, there are more open spaces for play—and there should be some movement now to preserve a few of them—and at the same time the route to the city is comparatively short. This is particularly noticeable in the section north of Hunter street, which offers two avenues over the river. Even at the corner of Smith and Concession streets, the distance is not fatiguing, either by way of the Oval and the new London street bridge or down Smith street to the car line. And that neighbourhood, with the park and its rows of trees will yet come into its own.

The river in its rugged gorge presents an unfailing charm for most people who view it, and the undulating contour of the entire district from the lake north is a relief to the unvarying flatness of large area of the western division of the city.

In stort, Ashburnham could present a convincing statement of its advantages, and the new houses springing up indicate that its attractions have not failed to find response in prospective home builders.

Engleburn Park.

Following the common pattern of all communities where men abide, Ashburnham has its modest homes of the average citizens, the "humble cottages of the poor," and the fine residences of the men of ample means. Not even our own west end can surpass Engleburn Park, except in extensiveness.

In fact, Ashburnham offers a wide and varied appeal, and if, expanding in the new day that is dawning, it continues to exert its community spirit, it may furnish the model for the greater Peterborough of the future.

Cottage Cheese.

When the curds of cottage cheese refuse to be anything but tough and lumpy after they have been drained through the cheesecloth bag, try running them through the food chopper, and see how light and delicate they become. If you want to add piquancy to cottage cheese, either purchased at the store or made at home add a few chopped up cherries. Another way of varying the flavor is to mix in it tiny chopped onions or caraway seed.

NEW ACTIVITIES FOR PETER ROBINSON CHAPTER I.O.D.E.

"Walkers On" Supplied for Last Night's Play at the Grand.

The Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. entered new activities yesterday when they supplied "walkers on" for the play "Everywoman" at the Grand in the New Year's Eve scene. Twenty girls from the chapter went on in the afternoon and twentyone in the evening in so creditable a manner the manager personally congratulated Miss Bessie Reid, the regent of the chapter. By this enterprise the girls earned a considerable sum to be devoted to the support of Prisoners of War By ushering at the grand last month the girls received a cheque from Mr. Turner for $68.50 which will also be devoted to the Prisoners of War fund. The chapter has lately put on an attendent in the cloak room who devotes tips to the same cause.

China Developing Great Forest Tract

(By United Press.)

Tokio, Aug. 12. (By Mail.)—The Kirin forest loan of $15,000,000 gold has just been entered into by the Chinese government. One third of the sum has already been advanced and the remainer is to be delivered this month. According to the agreement, the forests and gold mines in the province of Kirin, a province in North China, are to be exploited and operated by the Chinese government, on the advice of Japanese experts. Income from these forests will be security for the loan.

The loan agreement was signed early in August by representatives of the Chinese government and the Chartered Exchange Bank of China. Mr. Nishihara, personal envoy of Count Terauchi to China, who though not in the diplomatic service is considered as influential as a diplomat, acted as agent in Pekin for the Chartered Exchange Bank. Although this bank has signed as creditor, it is known that the actual creditors are the Bank of Laiwan, the Bank of Chosen and the Industrial Bank of Japan, all Japanese semi-government banks.

Is the Most Interesting Place To Her, Who Is On Autumn Attire Intent

The SUITS Are Marvels of Elegance

Practical in Designing, With Skirts That Are Narrower and Longer, and Coats That Are Straight of Line and Frequently Bepannelled and Bewaistcoated.

T'is indeed with intent to charm that Fashion has planned these Autumn suits. Materials soft and sumptuous, styles slim and sinuous, much ingenious detail, clever manipulation of embroideries, tucks and buttons, and the lavish use of fur—all this with an apparent simplicity of line—make of them such apparel as must captivate feminine fancy.

Velours, duvetyn, duvet-delaine, broadcloth, gabardine, tricotine and serge are used with delightful impartiality for their fashioning. Most all models show long and graceful jackets, some uneven around the hem.

A suit of reindeer velour is very typical. The coat has side panels finished with nigger brown plush and a deep collar of plush. The skirt is smartly cut, straight, and button trimmed. The price is $45.00

Straight lines, with unusual placing of black silk braid and buttons makes for a stunning suit of navy blue serge. Satin lined. Priced at..... $65.00

Of GOWNS a Most Interesting Array

Practical Dresses in Serge, Tricolette, Jersey, and More Elaborate Models in Satin, Meteor Charmeuse and Crepe de Chine.

They show that Paris and New York alike have taken thought for winter comfort in their choice of materials, but every last one of them shows dignity of design, and triumphantly vindicates the charm of the straight and slender line.

Some are straight from shoulder to hem, many show a Redingote jacket effect, which ends in a half-length tunic, and others have panels at the sides or back and front.

A straight, long panel from the shoulder in the back and a double panel from the waist in front, both finished with black fringe, distinguishes a dress of navy blue wool jersey to which the crowning note of chic is given by the plain round-neck bodice. Priced at $48.00

A beautiful orchid shade of charmeuse is combined with the same shade of georgette embroidered in silver thread to form a distinctively charming gown. The skirt is gracefully draped at the sides. The price is $45.00

"Character is Success," Said Dr. Honeywell at Last Night's Meeting in the Tabernacle

"All Four Sides of a Man's Life Must be Developed"—Young People's Night at the Tabernacle—Stirring Address by Dr. Honeywell.

"The Secret of Success or How to Win" was Rev. I. E. Honeywell's subject last night before an enthusiastic congregation in Brock street tabernacle. It was young people's night and the younger element flocked to the big tabernacle in hundreds. Delegations from the senior grades of the public schools, the Normal, the Business College and the Collegiate Institute were there and sang, whistled tunes and gave their yells till the roof of the building echoed and echoed with the sound. The ministers had a little choir of their own at one side of the platform.

Dr. Honeywell without beating around the bush waded right into the heart of his subject and gave a heart to heart talk on what life really is if it is only lived in the right way. His subject was based on the 29th verse of the 22nd Chapter of Proverbs.

"Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men."

SOME THINGS

"Some things," said Dr. Honeywell with his unbounded enthusiasm "Some things God sends only once and that is character and very often we don't appreciate its value until it is gone Everything young is happy. Artists always paint happiness as being young. And that is right where you want to start. There is not a person who does not want to succeed. But what is success? If you sell your faculties, your character, your consience, your soul, for gold you have miserably failed. Most people think that if a man gathers together a great heap of gold he is successful. But a man might be a millionaire and still be a failure in this world.

"Did the man possess the gold or the gold possess the man, wrote Rushin.

CHARACTER IS SUCCESS

It is possible for you to become a millionaire and yet become a failure in life You cannot tell whether a man is a success or not by consulting his ledger. It takes more than a banker's report to tell whether a man is a success and there is no other. Was Mozart a failure because he died penniless? Was Milton a great disappointment? In order for you to be a success in life the world does not demand that you should be a great banker, a great statesman, a great preacher, but that you should get the most of life in your occupation. If I were a bootblack, I should wish to be the very best bootblack in town, or if I were a barber, the best barber in town, a grocer or a dry goods man, I should want to have the cleanest and most up-to-date store in the city. And if you get the most out of life, the job will be looking for you not you for the job. Nobility of character has every hall mark of individual nobleness and purity. The first requisite of life is nobility of character. We are our own architects in building our character. It shall be what we make it. "And above all" this Dr Honeywell emphasized strongly, be very careful about the character of your companions. Nothing stamps your character. It shall be what we make your companions. If you only choose your companions you will be a success a great success. Never form sudden friendships.

GOOD COMPANIONS

A good companion is a compliment Young men, you wouldn't be seen with that crowd unless there was something about them that you liked. If you are not careful about your company don't find fault when the people talk about you. You must be mighty careful of the company you keep.

Dr. Honeywell then touched on the four sides of our life, the social side, the intellectual, the physical and the religious.

DEVELOP ALL SIDES

"All four sides must be developed," continued the speaker.

But above all the religious side must be developed YOU CAN NEVER ATTAIN THE PINNACLE OF SUCCESS WITHOUT JESUS CHRIST. No matter how hard you work in order to attain success Jesus must be an example to you and your religious side must be highly developed. Every member of the United States Cabinet is a professing Christian. Every member of the Supreme Court of the United States but one, (and he is a Jew) is a Christian man. I am told that your Premier is a devout Christian. Lloyd George is one of the greatest Baptist preachers in Great Britain. In fact every great man of importance is a Christian. You never heard of an Englishman ashamed of Disraeli, Gladstone or Nelson .You never heard tell of an American speak disrespectfully of Washington of Lincoln. But Jesus, was one of the most godly men who ever trod this earth. Why not put him on a pinnacle and take him as an example and an inspiration.

Food Board Flashes

No Man's Land is soon to grow crops. The French Government has made arrangements for bringing back into cultivation the desolate and war-torn areas from which the enemy has been driven. The dense population of France makes prompt agricultural restoration necessary to relieve the food situation. Preference will be given to farmers who originally lived in the invaded regions.

The women who have kept the men of France fed for four years will help in restoring the shell-torn agricultural areas from which the Germans have been driven.

MR. FARMER
Which Field Pays Best?

UNPRODUCTIVE FARM PRODUCTIVE

Land Clearing Made Easy with C.X.L. Stumping Powder

The above pictures represent the same field before and after using C.X.L. Stumping Powder

With the increased demand for Agricultural Products, caused by the War, which is now devastating the European Countries, Mr. Farmer, can you afford to have unproductive land? Every acre of tillable land will be required to offset the great falling off in agricultural products, and it is up to you, Mr. Farmer, to take advantage of this situation.

C. X. L. STUMPING POWDER will enable you to clear your land quicker and cheaper than by any other method and place you in an immediate position to reap a revenue from land which has heretofore been unproductive.

C. X. L. STUMPING POWDER is an explosive manufactured expressly for the farming trade; it is less dangerous to handle than Dynamite and more effective for agricultural purposes. It has been rightly termed by thousands of satisfied users as "The Farmer's Friend".

To-day time on the farm means money just as it does elsewhere. Therefore, why spend hours digging and pulling at stumps and boulders when a few sticks of C. X. L. STUMPING POWDER will do the trick in a few minutes. The progressive farmer no longer plows and reaps around stumps and boulders; the money spent in repairs on machinery and harness will offset the cost of clearing that field which has meant so much hard work to get under crop and harvest. This is your opportunity now when the markets of the world are pleading with you to produce more.

How about that field that is not producing the crops you expect from it? Have you ever stopped to think that you have been turning over the same depth of soil year after year, coaxing the land with fertilizers, to half a crop? What about the valuable plant food contained underneath the plow line? Try a few pounds of C. X. L. STUMPING POWDER on that field, bore holes to a depth of 2½ to 3 feet, at intervals of from 10 to 20 feet apart, and explode half of a cartridge of C. X. L. STUMPING POWDER in each, thus loosening up that fertile subsoil and giving your seed a chance to get below the worn out top soil to benefit from the valuable volume of plant food stored there.

The leading Agricultural Colleges of the world are now advocating subsoiling with Dynamite. Experiment on an acre this year and note results.

Tree Planting with Dynamite has long since passed the experimental stage. Leading orchadists of Canada to-day are planting fruit trees in holes exploded with C. X. L. STUMPING POWDER instead of in spade dug holes. The subsoil is loosened up and enables the roots of the trees to immediately expand in search of nourishment and not remain cramped up in a limited space.

Dig your ditches with C. X. L. STUMPING POWDER and do in one day the work it would otherwise take you a week to accomplish with pick and shovel.

Now, Mr. Farmer, the above are all common sense facts, and can you afford to continue cultivating land strewn with stumps and boulders, getting only half a crop and spending a portion of your profits on repairs and renewal of equipment, or letting valuable land under stumps and boulders lie idle? Figure this out for yourself and see if you are getting the revenue you are entitled to. Send us a trial order for a 50 lb. Box of C. X. L. STUMPING POWDER and judge for yourself the benefits you will derive from this, the greatest of Labor saving agents for the Farmer to-day.

C. X. L. STUMPING POWDER will enable you to clear your land of Stumps and Boulders,—Subsoil worn out land,—Plant Trees,—Dig Ditches,—Make and Improve Roads,—Rejuvenate Orchards,—Dig Post Holes,—Break up hardpan, etc., etc., cheaper, quicker, and better than by any other method. A trial will quickly convince you in this respect.

"Not Peace, But Righteousness."

Commerce and Finance: Dr. Norman Maclean in the "Scotsman" states a great truth when he says:

The prophets of peace forget that the master world in the ethical vocabulary of humanity is not peace, but righteousness. Peace is only the by-product of righteousness; and the peace that has not its roots in righteousness is only the scum on the surface of the foul and stagnant pool.

To keep the peace when the innocent are being massacred by brute force, when the weak are being overwhelmed by greed and lust, that is damnation.

WEAK BOYS AND GIRLS

It is a mistake to think that anaemia is only a girl's complaint. Girls probably show the effect of weak, watery blood more plainly than boys. Delayed development, pale faces, headaches, palpitation, and a feeling of listlessness, call attention to weak blood in the case of girls. But many boys in their teens grow thin and "weedy" and have pimples on the face, showing that they have not enough blood. The anaemic boy is just as likely to become a victim of consumption as the pale, breathless girl with her headaches and worn-out look. Let the boy in this condition catch cold and he will lose his strength and his health becomes precarious.

To prevent serious disaster to those of the rising generation, let both boys and girls be given the new rich blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are famous the world over for making. When giving these pills watch how soon the appetite returns and how the languid girl or the weak boy becomes full of activity and high spirits. Remember that the boy has to develop, too, if he is to make a strong hearty man. Give both the boys and girls a fair chance to develop strongly through the new rich blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. You will then see active boys and girls, instead of weakly children around you.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be obtained by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Appetite of Youth Quickly Restored

Appetite is useless unless digestion is good. Dr. Hamilton's Pills make tremendous appetite and keep digestion up to the mark as well. The liver, bowels and kidneys are stimulated, the stomach strengthened, and robust health quickly follows. Dr. Hamilton's Pills instill vigor and snap into the system, make folks feel youthful and happy. You'll forget you have a stomach, forget your days of sickness if Dr. Hamilton's Pills are used. Insist on having Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box; no other medicine so good.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

The Iron and Steel Markets

Canadian Dealers in the American Markets.

Canadian dealers who have been in the United States market looking for machine tools report that the biggest concerns there are not looking for business. As a matter of real fact selling has ceased to be part of their business. It is now simply a matter of production and leaving the disposal of the material to the government. Some idea of the volume of business moving can be gathered from the following. The manager of a large Canadian firm was in Cincinnati where he wanted to order a dozen electric drills. At the some time he was in the offices of the company there came an order from Washington calling for delivery of an A-1 rating of 600 of these same tools. The government controls the situation absolutely.

Still Delays.

There are still delays in the equipping of Canadian plants that are preparing to take on American war orders. In a couple of cases there is not a little embarrassment following the delays. A large amount of the capital has been put into plant, and the government allowance in the way of advances has been used, while a large overhead remains to accumulate against the day when there shall be deliveries to balance the account. Every effort is being made to relieve the situation, but it is quite a distance from being satisfactory yet.

New Calls.

The war continues to make all sorts of new calls on the machine tool equipment of the country. This week agents are busy gathering up a list of machine tools for the equipping of the Canadian force that is going to Siberia. This force will run into facilities for repair and upkeep work that will be poor or of a zero quality, and for this reason the necessary equipment for shop work is being sent along with them.

Canadian trade is looking for something better in the supply of plates than has been coming to this country for some time. The United States has been cutting off so many of the non-essential users that there is bound sooner or later to be an improvement in the situation. Every week sees a cut made in the list. This week it is announced that the U.S. War Industries Board requests the manufacture of passenger automobiles and phonographs to stop by the first of the year. In the latter case it is not the amount of steel that is thought of, but the inroads that the business makes on the labour market. —Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News.

Hon. L. H. Grahame Passed Away After a Short Illness

Funeral Took Place To-day in Toronto—Was Well Known Locally.

Honorable Laurence H. Grahame, for the past twenty years a well known figure at Stoney Lake, died on Thursday, October 3rd, in Detroit, suddenly. He had been called to Detroit from his home in New York, recently, and there contracted pneumonia after recently recovering from Spanish influenza, and died after two days' illness.

He was born in Toronto and educated at Trinity College school, Port Hope. When a young man he left for the United States, where he became an intimate friend of ex-President Roosevelt. At one time while ranching with Mr. Roosevelt during a stampede of horses, Mr. Graham saved his life. Later, when Mr. Roosevelt became President of the United States, Mr. Graham was appointed Governor of Indand Works in Porto Rico, which post he held for several years. Upon retiring he settled in New York. This summer he conducted the annual regatta at Stoney Lake.

He leaves his wife, formerly Miss Jessie Morson, of Toronto, two daughterse. Mrs. Paul Wells and Mrs. Thaddua McIlroy, of New York, and one son, Lieut. Gordon Grahame, recently returned from the front, whose wife, formerly Miss Alva Grieve, is a Peterborough girl.

The funeral took place in Toronto to-day.

Don't Give Your Children Raw Milk

Once more, it is urged upon the part of parents, not to give their children Raw Milk, but Pure Pasteurized Milk.

The difference between Pasteurized Milk and Raw Milk is exactly the same as the difference between a soft-boiled egg and a raw egg. Who would like a swallow of SOME Raw Eggs?

PASTEURIZING MILK

Destroys the impurities in Raw Milk and leaves to the Milk all of the food qualities.

TUBERCULOUS COWS.

The extent to which tuberculosis exists in all dairy herds is much greater than is generally supposed. In one herd in the United States, in December last, 72 tuberculous cows were found in a herd of 86. This was a "model" dairy where every expense and precaution had been taken, but was not a certified herd. Our Department of Public Health veterinaries advise us that from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. of the cattle supplying milk to Toronto are tubercular.—Chas. J. Hastings, Toronto's Medical Officer of Health.

A CRIME—Dr. Murphy, of Chicago, the greatest surgeon and probably the greatest doctor in this country, declared that it is a crime to use milk raw when pasteurization makes it safe.

Protect your children, and give them all the Pure Pasteurized Milk they can drink from the Creamery of

Bossie Isn't Built for Campaigning

(By United Press.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 30 (By Mail)—A cow is a practical sort of a mascot, but not very handy on a forced march. One machine gun outfit is authority for this statement.

When the machine gunners were up on the Vesle river, they captured a cow one day when pursuing the Germans. They confiscated the cow, being unable to locate the rightful French owner.

There was a debate as to whether Bossie's milk would be of more value than her meat and the "milks" won. So Bossie was stored in some ruins and fed when feeding was not too risky.

Then came the order to go back—the outfit was releived after a strenuous week's fighting. Bossie was a little slow for fast marching, and couldn't go in a truck as the outfit did. Finally, a couple of ardent milk fans offered to walk back with Bossie to the rest positions.

It was a long walk They had covered 50 miles when the United Press car last passed them. But Bossie did her best in the way of milk, on the way, and the machine gun boys hope to keep her, though all the odds of war are against them.

FIND INFLUENZA IS EPIDEMIC PNEUMONIA

Health Department Announcement Gives Instructions in Ways to Avoid the Infection.

In a bulletin issued by the New York City Department of Health the announcement was made that the so-called Spanish influenza is in reality an epidemic of pneumonia.

"The disease," the bulletin said, "called by the popular term, "Spanish influenza," is a peculair form of pneumonia of an epidemic type. So far no exact information as to precise microbic cause has been given, nor its relationship to influenza. The disease is infectious, the germs which cause it being passed from the sick to the well by contact."

After a description of the symptoms of the disease the bulletin said:

"There is nothing alarming in the present increase. Raw, unpleasant weather is very favorable for its spread. The enormous population of New York City, with its intimate and frequent associated conditions with the many neighboring communities, make it wonderful to think that the malady has been kept so well within bounds."

The bulletin gives these instructions as to how to avoid contracting the influenza:

Don't crowd. Don't worry. Don't jam the entrance of railways, theatres and places of assembly

Don't put unclean things into your mouth. Don't eat or drink in dirty places.

Don't expose yourself to cold or wet Don't over exert and avoid all excesses.

Don't go out if feeling ill. Take care. Keep fit.

Don't forget to use handkerchief, covering mouth when coughing or sneezing.

Don't eat without first washing the hands.

Health Commissioner Copeland said that unless conditions improved it would be necessary to call upon the Fuel Administration to speed up the distribution of coal and to permit the heating of homes before Nov 1. He said that if the disease continued to spread he might have to order cars run with open windows for the sake of ventilation. He said that he contemplated no move in the direction of closing theatres and places of assembly and amusement.

When the attention of Dr. Copeland was called to a cable dispatch from Rome to the effect that the bacillus of Spanish influenza had been isolated by a military surgeon, he said that he had not heard of it, but that valuable work along the same lines was being done in the laboratories in the city

"I am not ready to make any announcement of the work," he said, but interesting developments are taking place in the bacteriological laboratories here."

LAKEFIELD MAN LOST THREE FINGERS.

Mr. Fred. Abbott, of Lakefield, was the victim of a painful accident yesterday afternoon, when three of his fingers were cut off by a corn cutter, which he was operating. Dr. Fraser dressed his hand yesterday, and the patient is progressing favourably.

The Mother Tongue in a Shellhole

B Company had four half platoons holding fortified shellholes on the right flank of the battalion sector. Close beside them was a liaison shellhole, held by a platoon of a Canadian battalion occupying the neighboring sector. From the nature of the ground surrounding, the position was the most important of the whole divisional front; and to make it more secure the rest of the company was solidly entrenched close behind their outposts. Therefore the concern of the company commander can easily be understood when a sergeant came in one night with the information that the liaison post had been rushed by the Germans.

The man had been patrolling between the shellholes, when a commotion in the Canadian post had attracted his attention. Crawling as near to it as possible, he had overheard men speaking in German, he admitted, under the captain's cross examination. But he knew the sound of the language, "Who was likely to know it better,' asked the sergeant, proudly. And the captain, remembering his subordinate's long record of engagement with the enemy was forced to conclude that his information was more than likely to be well founded.

The captain made up his mind with promptness, which on an earlier occasion had won him his company. "Sergeant" he said, "you will take me out to where you heard those fellows speaking. Mr. Matheson," he added, turning to his second-in-command, "serve out bombs to No. 6 platoon. We will counter-attack immediately I come back."

Together officer and sergeant crawled of the nearest shellhole and made their way cautiously to the liaison post. All seemed quiet there; even when a few yards of its low parapet not a sound could be heard to tell the nature of its occupants Then two unseen defenders spoke one to another, and the officer hastily led the sergeant away. For though the men had spoken only in an undertone, there had been a guteral note in their speech which was certainly not English.

Between the outpost line and the reserve entrenchment they came upon No. 6 platoon ready for action, the men all served out with bombs, and big Donald Grant, their sergeant, an ex-forester from Invernessshire, simply boiling over to lead them to close quarters. "The cheek of thae damn Bosche," the captain heard him exclaiming.

"Have you warned all the outposts, Mr. Matheson?" asken the captain of his second-in-command, who had ordered No. 6 platoon to remain behind in the hope that he himself would get the chance of leading the attack.

"Yes, sir," he replied quickly. "I have No. 7 ready in reserve in case the first attack does not succeed."

"Good. Take command of No. 7 and I'll lead this little lot," said the captain

Matheson disappeared into the darkness, cursing his luck at being left behind; and with a low order, the captain moved the attackers off in the direction of the captured shellhole. As they passed one of the outposts, a voice called out softly to ask if they wanted any assistance.

"No," said the captain, shortly; and he chuckled to himself as he heard the low grumble of discontent at his negative. His was a Scottish battalion, who had numerous scores to settle wth the Germans and every unit of its establishment vied with the others in snatching at opportunities of settlement.

Forty yards from the liaison shellhole the captain paused, and a whisper to the sergeant got the men in position. Half of the platoon moved off to a point where the retreat of the Germans to their own lines could be easily interrupted. The captain was determined that not one of the raiders should escape to tell their comrades of their impudent exploit.

While this forty were crawling cautiously into position, he moved nearer the shellhole with the Highland sergeant, to find out if its garrison were watchful. A voice spoke out loudly from the direction of the post—a gutteral voice, and the captain buried his face in the mud, lest the white of his skin might be seen in the darkness. When he raised his head again the sergeant had left him.

Peering forward cautiously, he saw the man crawling within a yard or two of the shellhole. Then to his amazement, he rose to his feet and actually walked into the midst of the enemy. Quickly the captain moved after him; as he neared the position he heard the sergeant talking to its occupants in the same gutteral tongue as their own. A few seconds later, his huge form appeared over the parapet, then he came swiftly towards where his officer was lying.

"Come away, sir. Come away," he whispered, "and for heaven's sake, get the men in, the whole division will be laughing at us."

The captain allowed himself to be hurried out of earshot, and then he paused for the sergeant's explanation.

"They are all Canadians right enough," said the man.

"But why are they talking that language?" demanded the captain.

"And why should they not, sir," said the sergeant, delighted at his officer's amazement, "seeing that it's the tongue their mothers' taught them, and their fathers' father spoke before them. They're all Grants and Camerons in the shellhole, sir, whose grandfathers emigrated from my own country. It was Gaelic they were speaking, not German," and the big Highland sergeant lay down in the mud and choked with muffled laughter.

Scene from Cohan & Harris' big La ughing Comedy, "It Pays to Adver tise," which comes to the Grand next Monday, prior to a week's engagement at the Royal Alexandra Thea tre, Toronto.

Seats are now selling for the engagement of the latest farce hit, "It Pays to Advertise."

The many good things always found in these successes is the best reason to explain the enthusiasm shown for this engagement. "It Pays to Advertise," experienced an unusually long run in New York, being stationed at the George M. Cohan Theatre on Broadway for one solid year, gaining the greatest popularity of any farce in recent years. Roi Cooper Megrue and Walter Hackett are responsible for this farce which in addition to a love story that wins the enthusiasm of the feminine portion of an audience, is fine philosophy for the successful business men of the country.

Rodney Martin, a rich man's son, who has been the despair of his father because of his disinclination to go to work, is persuaded through love for his father's pretty stenographer to go into business after his father has disinherited him. Rodney's father is a soap king, and the son decides to go into the same business and adopts a strenuous advertising campaign to attract the attention of buyers. Father doesn't believe in advertising and tries to dissuade his son, the only result being to make the boy plunge more heavily into the advertising game.

This, in brief, is the story of the play, the complete plot of which it would be impossible to give in a way that would adequately express its intensely humorous situations to the feminine portion of the audience. The farce is from the pens of Roi Cooper Megrue and Walter Hackett, who have brought forth one of the most laughable plays presented in years.

MR. WM. S. DIXON AT KNOX CHURCH

Mr. Wm. S. Dixon leader of song in the Evangelistic services being held this month in Brock Street Tabernacle, has kindly consented to both sing and speak at Knox Church to-morrow at the morning service.

This will be one of the few opportunities Peterborough people will have of hearing an address from this talented leader. The congregation of Knox is asked by their ministers and session to give Mr. Dixon a cordial reception. Strangers will be made heartily welcome.

Big concerns everywhere are giving much thought to the elimination of the waste and utilization of all the by-products. Chicago is famous for using all the pig but the squeal. The Pennsylvania Railroad requires that every bolt and nut that can be retapped be used. You will find no waste iron around their yards. Even the cotton waste used in wiping engines is cleaned and used for packjournals. In the South, the stumps of yellow pine, heretofore a nuisance and an encumbrance to the land, are now turned into resin, turpentine and other by-products. Canada badly needs to learn the lesson of thrift.

Save and lend for Victory.

Fortune favors the Thrifty.

Save—the rainy day cometh.

Make hay while the sun shines—and save some of the hay.

Canada, before this war is over, will need that dollar you wasted yesterday.

Green corn soup can be made from rice stock.

It is well to add salt to lima or string beans when they are partly cooked.

Jim Stewart, Heavyweight Who Died Recently, Once Gave Promise of Big Things

Jim Stewart, who succumbed to Spanish influenza, after an illness of a few days, at Camp Dix, where he was stationed as boxing instructor, had an eventful, but somewhat disappointing career as a pugilist and retired from the ring three or four years ago. As a novice, Stewart gave promise of developing into a truly great fighter, but in repeated attempts failed to come through in the manner expected of him.

The big fellow's name in private life was Harry Loerch and he was a native of Brooklyn As a youngster, he had no thought of becoming a professional boxer, and upon his graduation from school studied architecture and became very proficient in that profession. He was fond of boxing and gymnasium work in general, however and joined the National Athletic Club of Brooklyn, which has turned out a very great number of boys, who have earned fame in the roped arena. Possessed of a splendid physique and skilled in the use of boxing gloves, he soon attracted attention in "gym" bouts at the N.C.A. and was induced to temporarily abandon his profession and enter the ring.

He embarked upon his pugilistic career at a time when, like the present, there was a dearth of good heavyweights. Lacking in that most essential ingredient in the making of a champion—a natural instinct for fighting—he was, nevertheless, a heady and clever boxer, so that he made his opponents in his early matches look foolish. He rose rapidly and soon was meeting the prominent men of his class. In 1908 Kid McCoy determined upon a come back and a match between him and Stewart was arranged. It was in this match that it first became apparent that Stewart was lacking in the necessary aggressiveness to make him a great fighter. Physically, the veteran McCoy was no match for him, but he allowed the wily Kid to buffalo him and outpoint him in a six round bout.

WENT TO FRANCE WITH JEANETTE

Though his own confidence and that of his followers was shaken by his poor exhibition with McCoy, Stewart continued to fight at intervals, and in 1910 he sailed for France with Joe Jeanette He made a hit in Parisian boxing circles by beating one or two Frenchmen and was matched with Sam McVey. However, the burly black, who was then one of the world's leading heavyweights, made short work of him, knocking him out in six rounds.

In 1912, a number of newcomers were added to the ranks of American heavyweights, and Stewart, occasionally flashing the form which he showed as a beginner, met most of them. He fought Luther McCarthy, who had knocked out Carl Morris and who afterward met his death in a fight with Arthur Pelkey in Calgary, Alta., twice outpointed Morris in bouts in New York, and fought Gunboat Smith twice. The first time they met, in May, 1912, Smith outpointed him, and according to a pre-arranged plan, to make a test case, Jim Buckley, who refereed the bout, awarded a decision to Smith. Buckley and the two boxers were arrested, charged with having violated the law. In September of the same year, Stewart again tackled Smith, but the former bluejacket who was making a great reputation for himself as a knockout artist, stopped him in seven rounds.

Stewart then began to drift away from the boxing game and returned to architecture and executed a number of important commissions. He had dropped out of sight of the followers of the glove game, when, upon the appointment of prominent pugilists to positions as boxing instructors in the various camps and cantonments, he applied for such a post at Camp Dix. He received his appointment and was making an excellent record in his new capacity, when he fell a victim to the plague.

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once if bilious or constipated.

Look at the tongue, mother. If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's somach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When feverish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels, without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Hardware And Metal Markets

New Price Changes Recorded During the Week

Mixed paints of all kinds feature the markets this week by substantial advances Inside and outside house paints, inside floor paint, floor paints and marine paints, all advance 25c. per gallon. Carriage, wagon and implement paint, enamels and other specialties show a ten per cent increase over present prices. Differentials on the various-sized containers for both paint and varnish have been changed, those smaller than gallon showing an increase of from 16c. to $1.60 per gallon according to size over the one gallon cans. The new schedule of prices and differentials is immediately effective, and spring booking orders are being accepted on this basis.

A sharp decline in prices prevailing on solder has become effective during the week. The market on tin has gradually receded from the high levels reached in its meteoric flight a couple of months ago, and this has been the main factor in the easier tendency on solder Lead, however, is very scarce, and practically all available supplies are being used in the prosecution of essential war work. This provides for the very firm undertone to the market on manufactured lead products, such as traps, bends, etc.

A 15 per cent advance is provided for in new prices issued on eavestrough, conductor pipe and kindred lines. This is in line with tendencies outlined in hardware and metal during the past couple of weeks, being brought about by continued scarcity of materials and high producing cost.

Manufacturers of corrugated sheets are urging the trade to conserve in the use of this commodity and indicating that preferences will be given in supplying essential industries with their requirements. Nominal quotations only may be said to prevail, and retailers have been advised to accept no business on firm basis until manufacturer has confirmed prices at which material will be available.

An advance of $1 per 100 pounds in galvanized sheets has been made in some quarters and the feeling generally is towards a higher level. The situation in regard to supplies of sheets seems likely to improve. Jobbing indicate that shipments now rolling will help out materially in both black and galvanized

An increase of from 10 to 15 per cent is provided for in new prices issued on one line of silver-plated flatware. Wiper's waste is another line to advance, present prices being up 1c per pound, and other items joining the up ward trend this week are butt and socket firmer chisels, drawknives, lard presses, raisin seeders, sausage stuffers, roller skates and fly oil Mops are also higher, and glass lamps are up about 20 per cent. Sleigh bells have been revised; new prices show a 10 per cent advance.

FLYERS' NERVES ARE CONSIDERED

By CAPT. PAUL BEWSHER of the Royal Air Force.
(Written For The United Press.)

London, Sept 6. (By Mail.)—During the whole career of a British airman the vital factor of temperament is taken into consideration. Long ago it was realized that flying called for special qualities, and that the human element had to be considered.

This is doubly true of war flying. From the training ground to the active service aerodrome the personality of each individual British air man is closely watched, and is carefully considededed.

Before he begins his instruction he s given one or more trips in a machine to introduce him to the new element, in order that he may see how he likes it. If he cannot stand it, which is very unusual, he need never fly again.

During the period of instruction, he is allowed to take more and more control, in accordance with his abilities and inclinations, and so feelings of nervousness are gradually iliminated. The pupil is not allowed to fly alone until he is absolutely qualified to do so Before his first flight alone, he flies the machine many times with the instructor in the second seat, ready to take control if necessary and intently watching his progress.

When the pupil feels confident that he can fly, and the instructor is satisfied that he is a safe pilot, he is allowed to fly alone. Trick flying by inexperienced pilots is forbidden and is punished.

During his practice flying the pilot is under observation and is not allowed to fly too long at a stretch, or too often in one day.

In this way, confidence is built up and the airman becomes as much at home in the air as on the ground.

If he is not well he is not allowed to fly. If he has a slight accident, which is likely to shake his nerve, he is given a rest. If he should chance to be injured he is given a long period of convalescence in order that his nerves may settle down and he may be quite fit to fly again.

As soon as a pilot on active service has "flown himself out" and is tired and has lost his keenness he is sent back to England for a long rest. If at any time he does not feel like flying he is given a holiday.

Thus is the very best got out of the airmen They are keen enough not to want a few non-flying days until they feel they absolutely must have rest; at the same time they know that the medical officer will order it the moment it is necessary.

But if there is strain, there is also exhilaration. Airmen love the sensation of flying and love to feel a machine obeying their slightest touch. The fighting airmen, moreoved, enjoy the fierce dolights of single combat. Fighting in the air is sporting and often chivalrous. Airmen, more than any modern soldiers, can enjoy the feelings which animated Coeur de Lion and the Black Prince.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

A couple of generations ago music was not studied generally by young people with the thoroughness and serious intent that it is to-day. Our parents and grandparents had to be content with the tuneful pieces—airs and variations, etc., which were considered sufficient accomplishments for the entertaining of friends, unless of course a professional career was anticipated, and that in those days was a far rarer matter than it is now.

So much greater advantages are within the reach of the student today, but with the general raising of standards, cultivation of taste, and movement toward the higher forms of art—let them not altogether forget that older generations, who sometimes with memories of old-fashioned, less strenuous days, long for a little music more simply melodic and directly appealing than the complex and symbolic works beloved of the initiated, but which need the necessary educating up to, and in remembering let teachers and students add to their list at least some, if only a little drawing-room music, which will not only give a great deal of genuine pleasure, but act as a beneficial recreation for the performer.

Music will come when the war is over and some of the poetic masterpieces of the war poets will be set to harmonies that will live forever. Trench reflections take the soldier back through youth and school days, and when a reverie is induced by the sounds evoked from a make-shift fiddle, or tin whistle, the student will recall the "shell" story. According to the Hymn of Hermes — at one time attributed to Homer—that god soon after his birth, found a mountain tortoise grazing near his grotto on Mount Kyllene. He disembowled it, took its shell, and out of the back of the shell he formed his lyre. He took two stalks of equal length and boring the shell, he employed them as arms or side of the lyre. He stretched the skin of the ox over the shell to cover the open part, tied cross bars of reed to the arms and attached seven strings of sheep gut to the cross bars. This is the first suggestion of a stringed instrument from which was patterned the harp, dulcimer, lute, harpsichord and piano. Probably the first ironsmith was the unconscious originator of percussion instruments.

However, the origin of music may do for reflection; what is needed is more bands, more music for the boys at the front to enliven the tedium of trench warfare which has long intervals between "drives."

GERMANY, AUSTRIA-HUNGARY AND TURKEY HAVE ASKED FOR ARMISTICE AND GENERAL PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

Prince Maximilian, the New German Chancellor, has Announced His Willingness To Consider President Wilson's Fourteen Peace Conditions---The Entente Allies Have Been Asked to State Their Terms---Austro-Hungarian Minister at Stockholm Has Been Charged to Request the Sweedish Government to Transmit Peace Proposal to the Allies at Once.

THE UNITED STATES VIEW OF THE SITUATION

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Amsterdam despatch says, according to a Berlin despatch received here, an immediate suspension of hostilities has been proposed by the German Chancellor, Prince Maximilian in the Reichstag, and that the Allies be asked to state their terms. A Paris despatch, according to a report from Berne, says Germany, Austria and Turkey have resolved to ask President Wilson to aid representation in their interests for a general armistice and negotiations for a general peace. A despatch from Stockholm stated that Prince Maximilian has announced his willingness to accept President Wilson's fourteen peace conditions.

"JUST PEACE REGARDLESS OF WAR CONDITIONS."

LONDON, OCT. 6. — Prince Maximilian told the Reichstag his note was directed to the President of the United States and was based on his speech to Congress on Auguts 1st and his speech in New York of Sept. 27. President Wilson had proposed a programme for a general peace which Germany and her Allies could accept as a basis for negotiations. He said the new government stood for a basis of just peace, regardless of the war conditions. 6

IMMEDIATE SUSPENSION OF HOSTILITIES HAS BEEN PROPOSED BY THE IMPERIAL CHANCELLOR MAXIMILIAN.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 6.—Immediate suspension of hostilities has been proposed by the Imperial Prince, Maximilian, in the Reichstag, according to the Berlin corespondent. The Entente Aliesare to be asked to state their terms.

WANTS PEACE TERMS STARTED WITHOUT DELAY.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The Austro Hungarian Minister at Stockhodm has been charged to request the Swedish government to transmit to President Wilson a proposae to conclude immediately with him and his Allies a general armstice, and to start without delay negotiations for peace.

A STATEMENT FROM EMPEROR WILLIAM.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.— Emperor William, in a message to the army to-day, says he has decided to offer an honourable peace to his enemies.

WASHINGTON VIEW OF THE SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, OCT. 6. — Nothing official has been received here yet re the peace offer. It is thought no offer will receive the slightest attention of the Allies while German troops occupy any part of France and Belgicm.

PARIS, Oct. 6.— Germany, Austro-Hungary and Turkey have resolved to ask President Wilson to make representations in their interests for a general peace according to a Berne despatch to the Havas Agency.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S TERMS ARE ACCEPTABLE.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 6.—The new peace note of Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, will declare that all of President Wilson's terms have been accepted according to Vienna despatch, which is published in the Dutch press.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 6.—The Chancellor's proposal embraces the sending of plenipotentaries to a neutral place to discus the question of a league for national arbitration and disarmament.

SUNDAY WAR NEWS

Additional Towns Captured By the British—French Troops Smash Through German Positions-

SUNDAY BULLETINS

LONDON, Oct. 6.— British troops north of St. Quentin captured the towns of Mont Brehain and Baurevoir.

COAL MINES DESTROYED.

The British on entering Lens found the coal mines in that city entirely destroyed. The church could scarcely be found among the ruins.

EVACUATING LILLE.

Wide gains of great importance were made yesterday. The Haute Canal has been reached and the Germans are hurriedly evacuating Lille.

TOOK POSSESSION.

Northeast of Le Catelet the British took possession of Aubencheul Aux Bois. More than one thousand Germans captured north of St. Quentin yesterday.

ON FRENCH FRONT.

PARIS, Oct. 6. — French troops have smashed through the German positions on a wide front in the Champagne sector and several important points were captured.

GENERAL RETREAT.

The Germans are making a general retreat on the Vesle front and in the Champagne district toward the Suippe and the Arnest. The enemy has abandoned strongly fortified positions held since 1914.

FRENCH ADVANCE.

Fort Brimont has been captured by the French. We hold the whole course of the Arnest river and have crossed the Suippe River.

RETREAT QUICKENING.

GENERAL ADVANCE.

French Headquarters report a general advance of the Franco-American forces between the Meuse and Aire Rivers, which is progressing rapidly and extending its front.

Buddhism is Doomed Thinks Japan Pastor

(By United Press.)

Tokio, Sept, 2. (By Mail.) Buddhism will die a natural death, when militarism and imperialism are dissipated from the world and Christianity will become the religion of the Japanese, according to the prediction of Dr. Danjo Ebina, veteran and leadng Japanese Christien pastor of Tokio. Dr. Ebina made this prophecy at the Conference of the Federated Council of the Churches in Japan in Karuizawa, the most popular summer resort of Japan. At this resort 617 Americans and 365 Britons, almost all misionaries, are spending their annual holiday lasting through July and August.

"I am exceedingly glad that Japan is participating as an ally of the great democratic nations in this war," Dr. Ebina said. The relolution of 1867 in Japan effected the abolition of feudal government. Thus the caste system was destroyed and the equality of men established. The principles of American democracy had a tremendous influence on this revolution.

"While old Japan hated the gospel taught by Christian missionaries, the new Japan welcomed it. For twenty years after the revolution conditions favorable to Christianity continued in Japan. Then the German system was introduced into the country. It suited the spirit of militarism and imperialism that still obtained in certain quarters, but it gave to Japan a philisophy of absolutism which had a fascination for some minds.

"This spirit seemed almost to supersede the democratic ideas that had been incalcated in the minds of the people. It made Japan very conservative In certain respects Japan even went beyond German Kaiserism, introducing a kind of emperor-worship. With this, Buddhism easily united. Then for a time many Japanese tried to bring Japan into an allience with Imperial Russia, so as to carry out the idea of imperialism in Asia. But happily, Japan chose Great Britain as her ally. At the beginning of the war some Japanese regretted that Japan was not an ally of Germany. Yet in spite of her militarism and her imperialism, Japan has been on the side of the democratic nations.

"The greatest crisis in Japanese history is impending. The defeat of German militarism and imperialism on the battle fields of Europe will mean the defeat of doctrines all the world over. These two "isms," as you know, have been the greatest hindrance to the spread of the gospel in Japan. Because missionaries, pastors and evangelists have been regarded as opposed to militarism and imperialism, they have been regarded as enemies of Japan."

Unconditional Surrender Is the Allies Answer to Huns Latest Peace Note

Germany's New Peace Offer Has Not Yet Reached Washington In An Official Form—The Enemy Is Retiring on All Fronts.

MONDAY MORNING WAR BULLETINS

ACCORDING TO A DESPATCH RECEIVED AT 8 O'CLOCK THE ALLIED TERMS ARE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The German Imperial Chancellor anounces that he has sent a note through the Swiss Government to President Wilson in which Mr. Wilson is requested to take up the bringing about of peace and to communicate with other belligerents upon the subject.

Berlin despatch says Emperor William has issued a proclamation to Army and Navy in which he states he has decided, in accordance with his Allies, to again offer peace to the enemy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—State Department reports peace note from Germany not yet received. In official circles it is declared there is slight probability of any serious attention being paid to propositions which come from Germans while they are still occupying portions of France and Belgium.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Pressure on the German armies in France and in Belgium has been so excruciating that the will to power has at last had to confess its weakness and sue for terms.

The only possible answer from the Entente is the answer that was given to Bulgaria a week ago—unconditional surrender.

The German Chancellor says he is wiling to negotiate on the basis of President Wilson's terms for peace. But these terms were not a basis for negotiation. They were of a nature of an ultimatum, and President Wilson, who formulated them, will interpret them, not Germany.

Chancellor Maximilian's terms include a return of the German colonies, the erection of Alsace Lorraine and Luxemberg into a buffer state and other things that the Allies cannot consider.

PRUSSIAN PEACE TREATY STILL NULL AND VOID.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 6—Russian note to Turkey states that the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, which was to have established peaceful relations between Russia and Turkey is still null and void.

THE BULGARIAN ARMY IS BEING DEMOBILIZED.

Monday Morning Bulletins—

PARIS, October 7. — Unconditional surrender is the general cry in Paris, as the answer to Germany's latest peace note.

PUSHING FORWARD NEAR DOUAI.

LONDON, October 7. — The British have captured Fresnoy and are now pushing steadily forward. Douai is in flames. The Germans are destroying everything as they retreat.

REJECTED BY THE PRESS.

NEW YORK, October 7.—The peace proposals of Prince Maximilian have been rejected by the press everywhere in the United States.

ONE HOUR'S WALK FROM LILLE.

WITH BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, October 7.— The German front line is running almost in front of Lille and the British patrols are so close to the city that they can reach it within an hour's walk.

NOTHING OFFICIAL IN U.S.A.

WASHINGTON, October 7.—Germany's new peace offer has not reached President Wilson yet officially, so nothing in the form of an official statement can be given out.

HARRASSING REAR GUARDS.

WITH FRENCH ARMY, October 7.—Germans are rapidly retiring on all fronts. The Franco-American armies are following them up and harrassing their rear guards.

When a man gets above his business he is bound to fall off.

And the "swat the fly" season is due to open pretty soon also.

The man who is his own worst enemy has a fool to overcome.

It is not drawing the color line to object to a green crew on the blue ocean.

FOURTEEN CONDITIONS OF PEACE STATED BY PRESIDENT WILSON

President Wilson on January 8, 1918, presented the following necessary elements of world peace:

1. Open covenants of peace without private international understandings.
2. Absolute freedom of seas in peace or war as they may be closed by international action.
3. The removal of all economic barriers and the establishment of equality of trade conditions among nations.
4. Guarantees for the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with domestic safety.
5. Impartial adjustment of all colonial claims based upon the principle that the peoples concerned have equal weight with the interest of government.
6. The evacuation of all Russian territory.
7. The evacuation of Belgium without any attempt to limit sovereignty.
8. All French territory to be freed and restored and reparation made for the taking of Alsace-Lorraine.
9. The readjustment of Italy's frontiers.
10. The freest opportunity for autonomus development of the peoples of Austria-Hungary.
11. The evacuation of Roumania, Serbia and Montenegro with access to the seas for Serbia.
12. Secure sovereignty for Turkey's portion of the Ottoman Empire. With the Dardanelles permanently opened to all nations.
13. The establishment of an independent Polish state.
14. General association of nations for guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to large and small states alike.

"For such arrangements of covenants," said the President in conclusion, "we are willing to fight and continue to fight until they are achieved. But only because we wish the right to prevail and desire a just and stable peace."

Such a pregramme, he said, removed the chief provocations.

In Tropical Countries Liver Chill Very Common

In Northern latitudes also the liver is a very unruly organ, and requires careful watching. The concentrated vegetable juices in Dr. Hamilton's Pills act directly upon the liver and stimulate its action to a normal basis. The blood is purified, the skin grows clear, headaches disappear and robust health is firmly established. No medicine for the stomach, liver or kidneys can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. box at all dealers.

THE WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

GOODBYES

CHAPTER VI.

Ruth chatered gaily with her aunt at breakfast. That Mrs. Clayborne was not quite pleased that she was going to marry Brian, she knew. But so long as that displeasure took no other form than cutting her off from spending money, Ruth did not worry about it. For one who has always spent money recklessly knows nothing of its value.

Mrs. Clayborne had allowed Ruth her ows way in regard to the wedding. It was no part of her plan to alienate her niece. So Ruth was to be married in the little church she had attended ever since she came to "The Terrace." The same old white-haired minister who had patted her on the head, then, and said he hoped she would help her aunt forget her sorrow because of the death of her husband, was to mary her to Brian. There were to be n oengraved invitations. Ruth herself had gone from house o house and invited the few whom she wished to come to the church, and to the wedding breakfast afterward. There were only a few—a dozen young people, and some old friends of Mrs. Clayborne's—perhaps twenty in all. Ruth laughed, when she heard one of the servants say:

"Dat Miss Hopkins' Eliza said dat Miss Ruth warn't havin' no kind of weddin' at all. She said she warn't invitin' nobody and that she was marryin' a pore man."

She was marrying a poor man, perhaps, but he wouldn't be poor long! He had old her he wouldn't. And he couldn't be so VERY poor; he dressed nicely, and his uncle was a prominent man in the town. Ruth was clever in many ways, but in others she was as ignorent as, when a child of ten, she had come to live with her wealthy aunt.

Afer breakfast she went uptsairs and quietly went over the entire house, no missing a room.

"What yo oll doin'?" Rachel asked. "I'se got yo dress and the rest of yo things on he bed like yo old me. Twelve o'clock comes mighty soon, missy Ruth." (Twelve o'clock was the hour of the wedding.)

THE DEAR OD HOUSE

"I'm saying good-bye to the rooms, Rachel. I'm going a long way and may not get back to visit for a long time."

"It ain't dem rooms what is gwoi' to miss yo, honey; it am old Rachel and Missy Claiborn, and all he rest of we uns."

"I know, Rachel, but you will soon be with me. And Aunt Laura got married when she was yousg, younger than I am. I am almost twenty-one. She was only eighteen, and she was happy, too," she added, a wistful tone in her voice, "she told me she was—that she was always happy until Uncle Clark died. If I ever have a boy Rachel, I shall name him 'Clark.' It would please her so much. I haven't told her, but I made up my mind years ago, that I would."

"Yo sho'ly is quare, missy Ruth—talkin' about namis' a baby," and old Rachel laughed and cried together as Ruth went into her aunt's room to talk a few moments before she put on a shimmering satin dress spread out upon the dainty lace covered bed.

Mrs. Clayborne was sitting quietly by the window, the morning paper still unfolded in her lap. Her thoughts were sad and she did not hear Ruth enter the room.

"Guess who it is?" Ruth said gayly putting her hands over Mrs. Clayborne's eyes, then leaning over to kiss her before taking a chair beside her.

"Ruth, Dear, you haven't much time. It is edeves o'clock."

"I know, but I wanted to talk a little. I shall be ready in time. Rachel has everyhing laid out for me. I know you don't like Brian, Aunt Laura,"—

"You are mistaken, Ruth, I DO like him. I simply do not think he is the right man for you to mary."

STRONG TIES

"But Auntie, please don't stop loving me because I can't do as you want me to, will you? I just couldn't bear it if you did!"

"I shall never stop loving you, dear. You and my dear husband have been all I ever had to love. I shall be very lonely."

"I know, and that is what saddens me. You never said it before, but I have felt that your loneliness would be hard to bear and it has been the only sad thought I have had aside from thinking you did not like Brian. I don't care about the money one bnt, Auntie. Anyway it is a man's place to atke care of his wife, so Rachel says; and, of course, I know that BBrian will always take good care of me. And now that I know you love me just the same as ever, I must run away. A bride must not be late to her own wedding, must she?" Ruth threw her arms around her aunt and kissed her fondly. This is our REAL godd-bye. The other will be before people."

For a few moments losger, Mrs. Clayborne sat quietly by the window. The paper had slipped to the floor, unoticed. Several times she wiped the tears from her eyes and whispered:

"I shall be so lonely." Then, she called her maid and carefully made herself attractive for the wedding of the child she was to lose.

When she joined Ruth for the short ride to chprch, she was the same, calm, dignified woman, she always had been. While Ruth her cheeks aflushed, her eyes shining, talked and talked and cried a little all the way.

Pairing In Legislatures.

The custom of pairing in the house of commons originated in Cromwell's time. "Pair off" is the phrase used to signify that two members of a legislative body of opposite political opinions agree to absent themselves from voting for a certain period. By "pairing" in this way they neutralize each other's absence. The whips of the house generally manage to find "pairs" when, for any reason, members desire to be absent temporarily.

CRUSHED THE CRITIC.

An Anecdote of Verdi and a Bothersome Parisian Journalist.

The first production of Verdi's opera "Othello" took place at Milan, and all the prominent musical critics of Europe foregathered in the Cathedral City in honor of the occasion. Among them was a Parisian journalist of wide reputation and admitted authority in the musical world. His first care on his arrival in Milan was to seek out Verdi and ask to be allowed to be present at one of the final rehearsals.

The composer received the critic with extreme politeness, but replied that he could not possibly grant his request, as he had decided that the rehearsals were to be absolutely private, and he could not make an exception in the favor of any one journalist, however distinguished.

The Paris critic, far from pleased at this answer, protested that in these circumstances his account of the opern might not be all he should like it to be. "You see," he explained to the composer, who affected not quite to understand, "I shall have to telegraph my article the same evening. It will necessarily be hastily written, and the impression in Paris the next day may suffer in consequence."

But Verdi was more than equal to the occasion. "My dear sir," he made answer, "I do not write for the next day." The critic bowed himself out.

USE A LOOSE REIN.

Do Not Be "Bossy" and Domineering In the Home Circle.

I find that I can write all day without pain in my fingers if I hold the pen loosely. If I should grasp it tightly it would be only a few hours before the strain made writing almost impossible.

Do we not often hold too tight a rein on ourselves and our families for comfort? Habit has made us bossy and domineering. When a member of the family goes we want to know where he is going and how long he intends to be gone; we keep a string on him and are ready to drag him home that we may feel that all are sheltered and under our watchful eyes.

This is selfish care. It fences the individual in. It hampers him and makes his field of pleasure and activity cramped and rasping.

When one knows that another is trustworthy, why hold so tight a rein? Some of us have got into the habit of repressing and suppressing ourselves for the sake of peace and the absence of anxiety. Freedom is necessary for the development of individuality and the best that is in each one of us. The caged bird never sings so joyously as the bird in the field or forest.—Shirley in Farm Life.

Salt Water Cataracts.

There are a good many salt water cataracts in existence. They may be found in Norway, southern Chile and British Columbia, where narrow fords, or arms of the sea, are obstructed by barriers of rock. The rising tide flows over and filters through such reefs into the great natural reservoirs beyond, but the water is held back at the ebb until it breaks over the obstruction in an irresistible torrent. Most curious of all is the waterfall at Canoe Passage, where the island of Vancouver approaches the British Columbia mainland. Here the flood tide from the gulf of Georgia to the southward is held back at a narrow cleft between two islands until it pours over in a boiling cascade eighteen feet high, with perhaps double the volume of the Rhine. At the turn of the tide, however, the waters from the north rush back into the gulf, producing a cascade of equal height and volume. The waterfall actually flows both ways.

His Criticism.

One of the wittiest of clergymen, advocating the habit of preaching extempore sermons instead of reading written ones, said he had heard of a Scottish minister who always relied upon his manuscript. At last his sorrowful congregation sent a deputation to complain that he did not speak, but always read his sermons.

"Ah, my good friends," said he, "I have a bad memory. I should forget what I had to say."

"Weel, minister," was the scathing answer, "if ye canna remember your ain discourses ye canna blame us if we forget them."—London Answers.

Fascination of Golf.

"I've heard of Nero a-playing on 'is fiddle, sir, when 'is 'ome was a-burnin'," said the landlady, putting down the local paper, "but this 'ere game of golf must be the most fascinating bloke in the world. I've been reading about the fire up at the golf ground last night, and it says, 'The fire brigades promptly responded to the call, and in the darkness closed in they were still playing upon the ruins of the clubhouse.'"

THE WAR-WEARY HUN.

Poem Distributed to Men in the German Trenches.

An interesting letter has been received by Mrs. H. J. Johnson, of Toronto, from her husband, Lance-Corporal H. J. Johnson, now with a machine gun section of the 102nd Battalion in France. The letter is in German and is one of many, which were dropped from allied airplanes while flying over the German lines. The idea is said to have been conceived by Lord Northcliffe, and is designed to give the Huns a true insight into conditions as they actually exist.

The letter, translated into English follows:

"A Voice From the Grave."

(Poem from the diary of a German soldier, who fell a victim to the proud lust for power.)

"A Soldier's Fate:,

"I was a soldier, but I was so reluctantly. They did not ask me to enlist but dragged me away to the barracks. I became a prisoner hunted down like a wild beast. I had to go from my home, from the heart of my beloved, and from the circle of my friends. When I think of this I am filled with yearning and my heart burns with indignation.

"I was a soldier, but only against my will. I did not like the gauds uniform. I did not like the hard military life. A stick would suffice to defend me, and if I am to go into the field, then I am to kill my brothers, not one of whom has done me any harm. For this, a cripple reap care and humiliation, and starving, I would then cry—'I was a soldier!'

"I was a soldier! Day and night I had to march instead of attending to my business. I had to be on guard instead of being free. I had to salute and behold the arrogance of many a knave.

"Oh, tell me, why are there soldiers at all? Every nation loves rest and peace alone, but only for the lust of power and to cause injury and to cause the gold fields to be trampled down.

"Therefore, up Brothers! Germans, French, Hungarians, Danes or Flemish—whether your trousers be white, black, red or blue. Extend a brother's hand instead of a leaden greeting. Up! Let us advance to a struggle for peace and free our nation from its oppressors! Let those who wish wage war. I, fain, would be a soldier of liberty."

$500 for Pair of Pyjamas.

The New York Sun tells of a subscription "bee" for the Sun's fund to buy tobacco for soldiers, held at the Hotel Shelburne, Brighton Beach. Pte. Peat made two speeches and did some of the auctioning of articles contributed for the fund. The Sun proceeds:

And, besides several others, there was Alfred Rogers, merchant, of Toronto, Canada, present, with his wallet, a generous heart and an abundance of patriotism.

The first article offered for sale at auction was a pair of Billy Burke pyjamas, wonderfully dainty and pretty.

"What am I bid for this adorable garment?" called Miss Tucker.

"Five hundred dollars," shouted Mr. Rogers.

The first bid was the winner.

"Thanks a thousand times," said Miss Tucker in delivering the purchase.

"No thanks are due me," Mr. Rogers protested. "I'm a Canadian, and I was moved by that speech of Pte. Peat's. Peat's one of us, you know. And, besides, I lost a brother in France. If I can help any of the fellows over there I'm doing only my little bit. And I don't know of any better way of helping than through the tobacco fund."

Fried Onions.

Cook in boiling salted water until clear and tender. Drain well. Then turn into a hot frying pan with a tablespoon of melted fat. Fry lightly and season with salt and pepper.

Creamed Onions with Potato Sticks.

Boil onions until tender. Drain; put into a serving dish, pour over them a well greased white sauce and garnish with fried potato sticks.

Stewed Onions.

Cut the onions in slices and boil in salted water for ten minutes. Drain well and return to the stew pan. For a quart and a half of onion, measured before it was boiled, add two tablespoons of butter, one teaspoon of salt, and one fourth of a teaspoon of pepper. Cover the stew pan and cook over a hot fire for five minutes, shaking the pan to prevent the onion from browning. Set the stew pan back where the contents will cook slowly for forty minutes. Drippings may be substituted for the butter but of course the dish will not be so delicate in flavour.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Dawn's Early Light

By FRANK RIGNEY

Six rows of stars, eight in a row. Forty-eight white stars twinkling on a blue square. Seven long lines of red and six of white rippling, waving, gathering up and flying out straight again. A setting sun sending out red beams of light that mingled with and faded away among the early peeping stars far overhead dipped a parting salute to Old Glory. Old Glory, illumined by the red golden rays, looking more resplendent and glorious than ever, waved back an acknowledgment.

Such was the picture Jack Cody gazed on. Jack, a fine, hearty, clean-cut boy of fifteen years, was the son of a lumberman and lived in a small wooden house on the outskirts of a village that was situated away off ever so far from trolley cars, subways and skyscrapers. Jack was a boy of the woods. The forest was for him school and playground and was frequently his bedroom.

This particular June evening Jack, resting after a strenuous day, was sitting on a pile of lumber and gazing at the flagpole newly erected on the "town hall."

News, a speedy traveler, where telephones, papers and crowds mix, seemed to slow up and get down to a crawl when it journeyed toward Jack's town. It had to work miles upstream against rolling logs, along old, rocky trails and through long stretches of woods, lakes and other things that go to make up a virgin country. This time it had put on a little extra speed, being helped along by some surveyors who had come as the advance guards of a party of railroad engineers and workmen. The news was big news. It was the president's war declaration, and it had the village buzzing with excitement. The surveyors had brought the flag along and one of them had left behind him a pencil, colored blue at one end and red at the other. Jack was the lucky finder of the pencil and with it he was endeavoring on a piece of white wrapping paper to portray the scene spread before him. The trees, hills, houses and view in general proving too much for him, he concentrated on the flag.

"Forty-eight stars and thirteen stripes," said Jack. "Gosh, but it is some flag! I wonder who invented it?"

His picture finished, he climbed down from the log pile and wandered towards the "town hall" to proudly display to some of his boy friends his copy of Old Glory. From nowhere in particular, similar to that mysterious place from which conjurers produce cards and rabbits, Jack's friends produced pieces of paper of various shades and shapes and the young artist was surrounded by a noisy crowd shouting, "A flag for me, Jack!" "Make me one!" "Do one for me!"

Across the main street, the one and only street of the village, was a group of men quietly discussing the news and asking questions of an elderly man whose appearance showed him to be a newcomer to the place.

The commotion created by the clamoring boys brought the quiet discussion of the men to an end and the stranger strolled over to know what the uproar meant.

"Good!" he exclaimed, when he found out. "Great, boys, great! That's the spirit, boys," he said, "but easy there, fellows, until I ask you a few questions. What are you going to do with your flags?"

"Stick it in my window," shouted one boy. "Paste it on the wall over my bed between Lincoln and Washington," said another—and so on until it seemed that the little village would be papered from end to end with the flags that Jack had not yet drawn.

"Fine!" said the inquirer. "Fine! Let me ask you, boys, now that I know what you are going to do with your flag, what you know about your flag—and what you are going to do for your flag? I ask you what you are going to do?"

A silence that could be almost heard descended on the crowd and the boys looked uneasily at each other.

"I didn't know that the flag wanted me to do anything for it," spoke up Jack, much to the relief of his friends, as the stranger's attention was drawn from them and directed to Jack.

"Come into the hall, my boy, get your friends to round up a few of the men, as many as they can, and let them all come, and I'll try and tell you and your friends a little story of the flag waving up there on the pole."

Very quickly the big room filled and it seemed as though Jack would have to get busy penciling out "Standing Room Only" notices, when the man who called the meeting had commenced his story.

There is no occasion to follow in detail all he told the men and boys of the Stars and Stripes, for that would be telling you something, friend reader, that you already know forwards and backwards. Sufficient to say that he commenced with the tale of Betsy Ross and the first flag, the adoption on June 14, 1777, by congress of the Stars and Stripes; that he told stories of countless heroes whose lives were given up so that Old Glory might ever wave free, the emblem of liberty to all; that he explained the wearing of the colors and the high ideals that they represented.

"It is glorious to die for the flag," he said, "but equally glorious to live for it, and that living for it means living for America, working and striving unceasingly for the betterment of all, 'One for all, all for one.'"

A powerful full-house chorus rendering "The Star Spangled Banner" under the leadership of the stranger brought the informal gathering to a most enthusiastic end.

Jack was impressed very, very much and strolled home lost in deep thought. A person walking close by Jack would have heard him muttering to himself, "Gee!" and "Gosh!"

* * * * * * * *

Boom! Boom! Zis! Zis! Zip! Bang! Boom! Crash! Bang! Jack never heard such a tremendous noise before. Rushing to his bedroom window, he gazed awestruck at the sight that presented itself to him. The village was in flames—men were rushing hither and thither shouting, calling and yelling for help. Jack dashed out, hatless and breathless. Bang! A huge shell tore away half of his little home. An awful rending, crashing upheaval followed. Flying stones and splinters knocked Jack all in a heap. "War!" he panted, "War!" Yes, it was war with a vengeance. Struggling to his feet, he raced onwards not knowing where to go, but onward, in hope of being able to do something. Bang! Bang! All the while the most unearthly shrieking sounds of flying shells and bursting bombs, mixed with the rattle of machine guns and the frightful roaring of the heavy cannon. Khaki-clad figures rushed past Jack. A fearful explosion louder than any of the previous, left Jack dazed. At his feet fell one of the khaki figures, beating the ground, striking the earth with his hands and hoarsely calling in a choked, feeble voice for help. Jack was afraid at last. Not of bayonets or bullets, but of the wounded man, for Jack did not know what to do with him or for him. "I'll go and get help," yelled Jack. He ran a few yards, stumbled and fell. Looking up, he saw right before him in the midst of the smiforms, Old Glory! "The flag was still there! Hurrah! Live for my country, die for my country," flashed through Jack's thoughts. "Now to help the wounded soldier, now to help—" A sudden stinging pain shot through Jack's shoulder. He fell forward on his face. He essayed to rise, but the excruciating pain was too much for him. "Help! Help!" he called. A sound of running feet fell on his ears. Painfully turning his throbbing head, Jack saw some of his boy friends, gazing foolishly at him. "Please!" called Jack. "Please! Oh, you boobs do something—help, lift me," but a near-by explosion had scattered the crowd. Toby, the village stray dog, dragged itself by yelping and was soon lost to Jack's view. The flag! The flag! There it is again—this time in the hands of the newcomer, who holds it high in the air. The figure holding it wavers, staggers. Jack makes a supreme effort to rise, but for him comes oblivion.

* * * * * * * *

It was a beautiful June morning when Jack awoke and sat up suddenly. He rubbed his shoulder, scratched his head and blinked his eyes. "Old Glory!" thought Jack, "Where is it? What has happened it?" The rising sun was paying its respects to Old Glory and Old Glory was returning the compliment.

"You're up early," said a voice that startled Jack into full wakefulness. It was the stranger.

"Yes," said Jack, "I thought I—that is—I thought—"

"What?" said the man, encouragingly.

"That you were killed and that the flag—" went on Jack as he related his dream of the night before. The man laughed and asked Jack what he would do for the wounded soldier, for an injured dog, for himself. Jack didn't know. He then asked Jack what he would do in ordinary peace times in emergency cases. Jack didn't know. Neither did any of his boy friends, who were beginning to come out into the morning sunshine.

"Don't you see," said the man, "that the best way to help your country and flag is by being prepared to serve? Be prepared for all cases and for all times. Even in this far-away town, at this present moment, you can be of service. Every man, woman, boy and girl and child from the top corner of Alaska to the other end of Florida can be of help if they only make a little preparation. Help the men with their work, prepare the way for the great railroad that's on its way to you and you will be serving your flag and country.

"Say, fellows, let me tell you something. Railroading is my big business, but my big pleasure is scouting. Im high up in both jobs, and as I'm bringing my business to your town, there is no reason why I shouldn't bring my pleasure. Who's for scouting?"

"Me for one," said Jack. "Me, too," chorused all the others.

"Fine!" said the man, "and now listen. I'll fix it up in New York at headquarters that your town will be marked on the scout map. I'll see that you get all necessary papers and information, and, by the way, I may have a job on the railroad of lettering or map drawing for a certain scout who has prepared himself with a red and blue pencil."

The crowd dissolved and Jack started home to his work softly singing to himself:

"Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming."

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mr. Arthur Hainge, Ashton Farm, Percy, Sask., writes: "Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr.Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble, as the cough passed off in two or three days".

Carnation Milk
the ideal milk supply

DO you know why Carnation Milk has replaced ordinary milk in so many homes?

You must be interested—if you are particular or anxious, as many are—about the milk you use.

Carnation Milk is evaporated to the consistency of cream. But only water is taken from it. Nothing is added. No sweetening or preservatives. It keeps its freshness, because it is sealed tight, while still fresh, and because it is sterilized.

When you add an equal quantity of pure water to Carnation Milk you "bring back" the original milk. Not an artificially sweetened milk with a few uses only, but a fresh, rich milk that may be used as you use ordinary milk.

How convenient it is to have milk in this form! To keep it on the pantry shelves—always ready—yet always fresh. How economical, to avoid the waste of perishable milk that must be used within a few hours!

Carnation Milk, undiluted, is as cream for coffee, tea, cereals, fruit. Diluted, it is a rich and safe milk for the children to drink. In creaming vegetables, soup, gravies—there is no need of adding butter when you use Carnation Milk.

Your Grocer—the Carnation Milkman

Order a few cans. The new tall can (16 oz.) holds 2½ as much milk as the small can. Compare it with ordinary milk. Learn the satisfaction of serving milk that is uniformly sweet, pure and safe to drink. Write for book of 100 Recipes.

TOO HAUGHTY TO WORK.

English Servants Will Not Do What They Think Beneath Them.

The Lowells lived at 31 Lowndes square, having moved there from another house in the same square. Their establishment was not magnificent, but adequate, with a sufficient complement of servants. These servants were engaged for special posts in the "service," as is always the custom in England, and each was a stickler for his prerogatives and perquisites and quick to resent any demand that did not fall in the province of his sharply defined duties.

It so happened that in moving a carpet from the former house had been put down in the new one, leaving a few inches uncovered in a corner, which the furnishers had overlooked. As there was a dinner party at the embassy that night and Mrs. Lowell possessed a piece of the carpeting to cover the bare spot on the floor, she rang for one of the menservants and asked him if he would kindly tack it down for her. He drew himself up, distinctly offended in his pride.

"I beg your pardon, your excellency," he said, "but it is not my place to do that. I will ring for Alfred."

Alfred appeared, and his answer to the same request was:

"I beg pardon, your excellency, but it is not my place to lay carpets. I will call Charles."

And Charles came with the same answer. Mrs. Lowell called up, I think, every male servant in the house, but one and all stuck their noses in the air and looked with disdain upon the humiliating hammer and tacks. She then had them stand in a row while she herself proceeded to nail down the small corner of carpet and haughtily dismissed them from her service.—Princess Lazarovich in Century.

Wood Pulp.

Observation of nature has often suggested ideas to business men. Many years ago James G. Blaine said to Dr. Hill that there was a rapidly diminishing supply of rags and cotton for papermaking. That set Dr. Hill thinking. One day he came into the office of a paper manufacturer holding a hornet's nest in his hand. "Why cannot you make paper like this?" he said. Dr. Hill's trained eye had seen that the hornet began making its nest by chewing up particles of wood into a fine pulp. That illustration led to the use of wood pulp for making paper.

Killed by Fear.

Frederick I. of Prussia was killed by fear. His wife was insane, and one day she escaped from her keeper and, dabbling her clothes with blood, rushed upon her husband while he was sitting in his chair. King Frederick imagined her to be the "white lady" whose ghost was believed to invariably appear whenever the death of a member of the royal family was to occur, and he was thrown into a fever and died in six weeks.

Senator Root says the committee system in congress is "antiquated and cumbersome." It seems so when a bill is to be passed, but as a bill killer it has Samson and the jawbone of the ass beaten hauds down.

Whenever we see a man who says he was "driven to drink" we always feel pretty sure that if we were to interview the driver we should find the driver had had the bit in his teeth through most of the drive.

A German who seems to be somewhat of a fiend for figures says that a man of sixty has spent three years of his life putting on his collar. But now much of that time was spent under the bureau cussing out the button even he does not venture to guess.

THAT SON-IN-LAW OF PA'S—Pa Gets the Severest Shock Of All

By Wellington

Hardly Excusable Even in a Child

IF a child were to enter one of our aeroplane factories and interrupt a workman with a request to have a kite made—the workman would smile indulgently—and proceed with his aeroplane.

You yourself would condemn the man if he stopped his vital war work to build a toy.

Condemn yourself, then, if you employ labor and material to make such goods as cater only to your self indulgence.

Every time you buy a thing you do not need, you interfere with Canada's war work.

Every dollar you spend on goods not strictly necessary, is a dollar—not merely wasted—but used to employ labor on things that have nothing to do with our efforts to win the fight for freedom.

Too many of us, in Canada, are flying the "luxury kite." Too much of the time of Canadian workmen is being purchased by us to make the things that are for show and pleasure. Too great a quantity of material that our soldiers could effectively use against the foe, goes into the making of superfluous things for us, whom they are so valiantly defending.

Stop the reckless spending.

Stop acting like children. This war we are fighting calls for men and the brains of men. If you cannot fight—at least do not interrupt the war-work by buying the things you merely want and do not need.

The money you have been spending wastefully—with no result but to divert labor from war-essentials—will make a worth-while sum.

Use that money to build up a fund, that you can lend your Country, when your Country calls.

A Review of Peace Situation Does Not Justify Opinion That Early Peace is Possible

TERMS MAY BE REVISED TO MEET PRESENT DAY CONDITIONS.

For the past week the despatches have indicated that some spectacular surprise was pending in connection with the war. Peace rumours flowed freely, and while the maiden speech of the newly appointed German Chancellor, Prince Maximilian, did not presage an early move for peace, it was felt that a definite move in the direction of peace on the part of the enemy could not be long delayed. The smashing blows of the Allies on all fronts has had the desired effect, and it has long been conceded that Germany would not wait until her territory was invaded before she threw up her hands.

The news was received in Toronto at noon to-day and the town went wild following its circulation. The newspapers offices were besieged with requests for information and bells and whistles echoed the news throughout the city. People returning from church blinked their eyes and wondered what had happened.

THE DESPATCHES ARE OF A SEMI-OFFICIAL NATURE.

Despatches received up to six o'clock this evening are of a semi-official nature, but there is no reason to doubt their authenticity. Washington has not been officially advised of the enemy's latest peace activities but news from the American capital indicate that President Wilson and his advisors will not consider peace until French and Belgian territory has been evacuated. There is every reason to believe that the fourteen terms credited to President Wilson and referred to in enemy quarters may be revised to met present day conditions and may be less acceptable to the enemy. Whether or not peace follows the receipt of to-day's news it cannot be long delayed as all signs point to the rapid disintregration of the enemy's forces and the exhaustion of Germany's military resourecs. To forestall peace much longer would be to invite internal disaster in the form of revolution among the civilian population and mutiny in thearmy.

The news reached The Examiner this morning about eleven o'clock by telephone and was later confirmed by despatches received over the wires.

Extracts From Speech of President Wilson Given in New York Last Month

"There Can Be No Compromise," Declared the President ---A Basis For Peace.

Following are a number of extracts from President Wilson's address in New York on Sept. 27 last:

We are all agreed that there can be no peace obtained by any kind of a bargain or compromise with the Governments of the Central Empires, because we have dealt with them already and have seen them deal with other Governments that were parties to this struggle, at Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest. They have convinced us that they are without honour and do not intend justice. They observe no covenants, accept no principle but force and their own interest. We cannot "come to terms" with them. They have made it imposible. The German people must by this time be fully aware that we cannot accept the word of those who forced this war upon us. We do not think the same thoughts or speak the same language of agreement.

It is of capital importance that we should also be explicitly agreed that no peace shall be obtained by any kind of compromise or abatement of the principles we have avowed as the principles for which are fighting. There should exist no doubt about that. I am, therefore, going to take the liberty of speaking with the utmost frankness about the pratcical implications that are involved in it.

If it be indeed and in truth the common object of the Government associated against Germany and of the nations whom they govern, as I believe it to be, to achieve by the coming settlements a secure and lasting peace, it will be necessary that all who sit down at the peace table shall come ready and willing to pay the price, the only price, that will procure it; and ready and willing, also, to create in some virile fashion the only instrumentality by which it can be made certain that the agreements of the peace will be honoured and fulfilled.

That price is impartial justice in every item of the settlement, no matter whose interest is crossed; and not only impartial justice, but also the satisfaction of the several peoples whose fortunes are deal with. That indispensable instrumentality is a League of Nations formed under covenants that will be efficacious. Without such an instrumentality by which the peace of the world can be guaranteed, peace will rest in part upon the word of outlaws, and only upon that word. For Germany will have to redeem her character, not by what happens at the peace table but by what follows.

And, as I see it, the constitution of that League of Nations and the clear definition of its objects must be a part, is in a sense the most essential part, of the peace settlement itself. It cannot be formed now. If formed now, it would be merely a new alliance confined to the nations associated against a common enemy. It is not likely that it could be formed after the settlemen. It is necessary to guarantee the peace; and the peace cannot be guaranteed as an afterthought. The reason, to speak in plain terms again, why it must be guaranteed is that there will be parties to the peace whose promises have proved untrustworthy, and means must be found in connection with the peace settlement itself to remove that source of insecurity. It would be folly to leave the guarantee to the subsequent voluntary action of the Governments we have seen destroy Russia and deceive Roumania.

Some details that are needed to make peace sound less like a thesis and more like a practical programme. These, then, are some of the particulars and I state them with the greater confidence because I can state them authoritatively as representing this Government's interpretation of its own duty with regard to peace:

First, the impartial justice meted out must involve no discrimination between those to whom we wish to be just and those to whom we do not wish to be just. It must be a justice that plays no favourites and knows no standard but the equal rights of the several peoples concerned;

Second, no special or separate interest of any single nation or any group of nations can be made the basis of any part of the settlement which is not consistent with the common interest of all;

Third, there can be no league or alliances or special covenants and understandings within the general and common family of the League of Nations.

Fourth, and more specifically, there can be no special, selfish economic combinations within the league and no employment of any form of economic boycott or exclusion except as the power of economic penalty by exclusion from the markets of the world may be vested in the League of Nations itself as a means of discipline and control;

Fifth, all international agreements and treaties of any kind must be made known in their entirety to the rest of the world.

Special alliance and economic rivalries and hostilities have been the prolific source in the modern world of the plans and passions that produce war. It would be an insincere as well as an insecure peace that did not exclude them in definite and binding terms.

HOW LENINE WAS SHOT.

Dora Kaplan Opposed to the Bolsheviki and Germanism.

On Friday, August 31st, when Lenine, the Bolshevik Premier, was about to leave the place of meeting at Michelsohn's factory a well-dressed woman approached him and talked to him of the food shortage in the centres of population. As she was thus talking to him another woman came up from the crowd and fired several shots. Lenine instantly fell to the ground unconscious. Two of the bullets had found their mark—one in the lung and the other in his throat. The woman who fired the shots was recognized as Dora Kaplan. She was a well-known revolutionist who in 1907 assassinated H. Novitsky, a much hated gendarme. She was sentenced to hard labor in Siberia, where she became acquainted with the social revolutionary leaders, and since then has been an ardent advocate of its program.

She was a member of the right wing of the same party. She was opposed to the October revolution. She was strongly in favor of allied intervention and was closely connected with the counter-revolutionary movement at Samara, the stronghold of the social revolutionary elements opposed to the Soviet Government. A preliminary investigation into the plot to assassinate Lenine has revealed that Dora Kaplan was not alone in her work, but all efforts to find her accomplices have so far been in vain. Money was found on her person and since she was known to be poor much significance is attached to the fact, but she refused to tell where she got it.

Rumors that Lenine died of blood poisoning are more and more persistent, although the leaders of the Government, who are in constant touch with the Kremlin, the headquarters of Lenine, have assured the people that he is recovering from his wounds and that there is no further anxiety concerning him.

Mr. Radek, in charge of Russian affairs in middle Europe, has come out in the Pravada with a statement that the attempt on the part of the counter-revolutionists to kill Lenine will tighten the dictatorship of the proletariat. He calls upon the workers to refrain from personal vengeance and to carry on the class struggle with still greater energy.

On the morning after the attempt on Lenine's life another leader of the Soviet Government, Urutzky in Petrograd, commissary of state for the northern commune, was shot and killed by Leonid Kanegis, a pupil of the school of artillery. Kanegis escaped, but later was caught by the Red Guards and brought before the extraordinary commission for the suppression of the counter-revolution.

Halibut Catch Dwindles.

The Vancouver Province publishes the following news item: There is no doubt that the halibut are vanishing from the known banks up north and are seeking new grounds, for the halibut fishing fleet is having very bad luck. Steamer after steamer arrives and hails small catches, although the weather has been good. In many cases, the fish brought in do not pay the expense of the voyage. The steamer Kingsway has come in with 20,000 lbs. of halibut and 15,000 lbs. of cod after a trip of three weeks. This is very expensive fishing. Not so many years ago the steamers used to bring in from 200,000 lbs. to 300,000 lbs. and sometimes 400,000 lbs. a trip, and were only out a week or ten days.

The declining supply of halibut has placed this fish in the luxury class, and people who wish to provide cheap substitutes for meat must turn to other varieties of fish. There is a large number of edible fish which are available at low cost. We have no right to complain that the cost of fish is high if we limit our demand to halibut and a few such luxury varieties.

La Mascotte.

The mascot came to us from the French. The word is French slang and was popularized by Audran's comic opera. "La Mascotte," in 1880, though before that its use had long been common among French gamblers. And, as in England, the mascot could be anything from a dog to a doughnut.—London Standard.

LOVE LINKED WITH DEATH.

Where Women Propose and if Rejected Must Kill Themselves.

In the Pacific ocean, between Fiji, New Guinea, New Caledonia and the continent of Australia, lies the Melanesian group of islands, where head hunters and cannibals abound. Strange and grewsome as are many of the customs of the tribes, there are some that are most romantic. For instance, on the island of Tucopia the women propose marriage instead of the men.

When a girl of Tucopia sees a man whom she thinks she would like to have for her husband she does not rush up to him and ask him to marry her. On the contrary, she gives the subject deep thought and often the man a most careful investigation before she "pops the question." The reason is that his answer spells life or death to her.

It is a tribal law that any woman who has been refused must forthwith kill herself. Therefore a woman asks a man's hand only when she feels sure that his answer will be the happy one.

Many are the strange and seemingly inexplicable questions with which the women of Tucopia ply the stranger who cannot realize the personal motive back of the solicitude of the dusky belles who inquire if he is married or not and the state of his wife's health. Romances are consequently very apt to turn out in happy marriage.

But there have been innumerable instances when a poor girl, smitten by the newcomer's charms, has been compelled to kill herself because the man with whom she has fallen in love has had to refuse to marry her.

Baldness with the women of Tucopia is a sign of beauty, and never until she is bald does a Tucopia woman become fully convinced that she is really lovely.

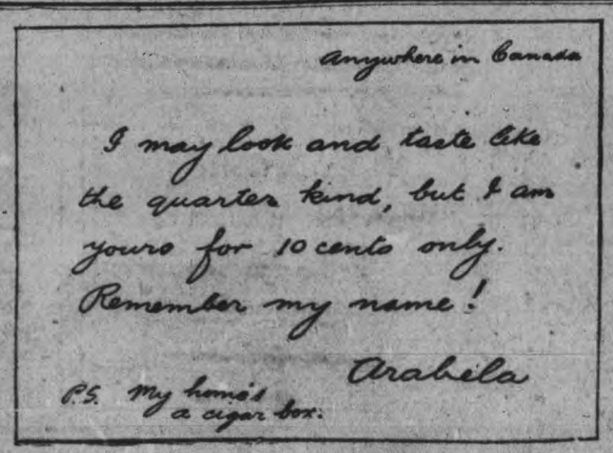
But, bald or not, she takes great care whom she asks to marry her, for the tribal law has never been known to fail. If a rejected woman does not kill herself she is executed under the most dishonorable conditions by the leaders of the tribe.

One wonders what would happen if Mrs. Pankhurst and Mr. Asquith were to meet off Cape Hatteras.

Being the breadwinner of a family is not a hard job, but it requires some hustling to provide the butter.

The income tax returns seem to prove conclusively that more people have incomes than was suspected.

Henry Frick is reported to have paid $400,000 for a Van Dyck. He could have grown one himself cheaper than that.



THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S ONE PIECE DRESS.

This attractive and easily made plaid gingham dress for a little girl suggests the familiar old fashioned pinafore in its simplicity. For little tots there is nothing more becoming than the straight hanging dress which has no waistline, as in No. 8870. The front and back panels are curved to form pockets at the sides. The closing is at the left side of the front panel. The big, deep pockets are cleverly formed by the extensions of the side sections of the dress. The sleeves may be either long or short.

The girl's one piece dress pattern No. 8870 is cut in four sizes—4 to 10 years. The eight-year size requires 3 yards 27 inch, 2⅝ yards 36 inch, or 1⅞ yards 44 inch material, with ⅝ yard 36 inch contrasting goods.

GERMANS ARE FIGHTING DESPERATELY BUT ALLIES ARE SLOWLY ADVANCING

Opposing Armies Locked in One of the Fiercest Struggles of the War—Germans Loot and Burn Towns.

OFFICIAL DESPATCHES

Canadian Press:

PARIS, Oct. 7.—French troops have crossed the Suippe River eastward of Orainville and have reached the outskirts of Bazancourt and Boul-Sur-Suippe after severe fighting. At Clement-A-Arnes heavy losses have been inflicted upon the Germans, who retired in disorder. The fighting completed the deliverance of Rheims. The battle of St. Quentin continued all day Sunday and Remaucourt, Tilloy Farm and several fortified woods were captured, the announcement says.

Laon, the stronghold to which the enemy has been clinging as the key point of his line on the southwest, apparently has been set on fire by the Germans. The town was reported ablaze yesterday, and fires were still burning there to-day.

The enemy resisted furiously, but was unable to check the French, who captured several hundred prisoners.

Towns Occupied.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 7.—(Many towns have been occupied by the British in their advance after the retreating Germans along the front from Cambrai to Lens. In some cases enemy rear guards offered resistance, but they were annihilated. More ground has been taken immediately to the north-west of Cambrai. Halum, east of Lens, has been reached and passed. The Germans have been engaged in the further work of destruction. Many explosions have been observed in the great coal mining districts north-east of Lens. Prisoners say that coal mine pits mouths have been destroyed. Douai is still burning and the country south of it has been flooded. Prisoners just captured say that before the torch was applied, German officers and men engaged in a wild ogry of looting. They scrambled all over the town, stealing property of inhabitants and many cart loads of loot were shipped to Germany.

Fighting Desperately.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Germans are fighting desperately in their campaign for every inch of ground because of the great number of valuable communicating lines behind the battle front, despatches declared to-day. doctors who recommend Marmola Pre- and fro, and the battle is described as one of "unstable equilibrium" north of St. Quentin. The Allied area is being gradually widened, but the Germans are fighting hard and progress is slow.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Oct. 7.— (Official.) — Further progress was made by the British last night on the front between Lens and Cambrai, Field Marshal Haig announced to-day that posts have been established on the crossings of the Scheldt canal north of Abencheul-Au-Baznad and north-east of Oppy.

The British also have pushed in slightly further towards Lille on the western south-west, capturing a German post east of Berclau and progressing somewhat north of Wezmorcourt.

The statement reads:

In local fighting yesterday in the neighbourhood of Aubencheul-Aux-Bois we captured about 400 prisoners. Yesterday afternoon one of our patrols in the Oppy sector brought in 34 prisoners and four machine guns. During the night we established posts at canal crossings north of Aubencheul-Aux-Bac and also north-east and east of Oppy. A German post east of Berclau was captured by another of our patrols. We made slight progress north of Wezmacourt.

AMERICAN OFFICIAL.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. — Slight advances were made yesterday by American forces between the Meuse and the Boise. In the Argonne heavy infantry fighting was reported today by General Pershing. He also reported increased artillery activity everywhere on both sides.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Oct. 7.— French troops have made further advances north-east of Rheims, capturing St. Marmes and penetrating Hauvine, the War Office announced to-day.

The Germans are offering powerful resistance along this front, particularly in the vicinity of Berticourt.

Violent fighting continued through the night north of St. Quentin, where the enemy made numerous counter attacks.

French troops last night captured the town of St. Mazmes, north-east of Rheims and penetrated to the town of Hauvin, to the east and north of the Arnes River. North-east of St. Quentin the Germans attacked several times in an effort to retake the positions conquered by the French.

URANJE CAPTURED.

PARIS, Oct. 7.— Austro-German troops, defeated by the French and Serbians in Central Serbia, are retiring northward in disorder, the French eastern communique announced to-day.

The capture of the important city of Uranje was confirmed. The Allied advance in Albania is continuing.

Still Burning the Villages

Germans Move Back Toward the Rhine—A Big Retirement.

(United Press.)

(By Webb Miller.)

PARIS, Oct. 7.— The Germans are burning villages and towns behind their lines along the whole front from Lille to Rheims. This is believed to presage a retirement in several sectors. South of Cambrai the enemy is reported already to have fallen back two miles on a seven mile front.

At least a score of places are in flames. Laon, the great communication centre and base east of the St. Gobain massif, was set afire yesterday. Sallaumines, east of Lens, and several villages south-east and west of Lille, and between Douai and Gomain are burning. The French found Nogent-L'Abbesee, Beine and all the villages in the Suippe Valley in flames.

M. Civirieux, writing in the Matin, says:

"The fighting continues and will continue to the end, until there is a general German retreat. This retreat is announced by the burning of villages. Great evacuations seem near."

THE WEATHER

October bids fair to equal September as a wet month. Already this month has a rainfall of 2 inches to its credit. On Friday night the total came to 1.12 inches, and Saturday night supplied over 1-2 inch (.52.) The thunder of Sunday morning was unusually heavy and apparently very close.—W. P.

PRESIDENT WILSON GAVE UP HIS MORNING GAME OF GOLF

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 7.—President Wilson passed up his morning game of golf, an unusual proceeding, and locked himself in his study, where he busied himself writing. It was understood he was drafting something in connection with the Teuton peace offensive.

ALLENBY KEEPS ON—This map shows Damascus, occupied by the British under Allenby, who are now en route to Beirut, thirty miles to the northwest. Baku, the oil centre, is shown in the upper right hand corner of the map. Captured by the British a few months ago, it has been abandoned, but is now likely to be reoccupied.

Germany's Total Peace Offensive is Discounted Among the Allied Nations

Prince Maximilian in a Speech to the Reichstag Merely Says the Fourteen Points Enumerated by President Wilson Form a Basis for Negotiation—Unconditional Surrender and the Evacuation of All Invaded Countries Will be Demanded.

PRINCE MAXIMILIAN IS CHARACTERIZED AS THE LORD HIGH CAMOUFLEUR OF PRUSSIAN AUTOCRACY.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, October 7.—Germany does not accept the Wilson terms for peace until Germany makes full reparation and gives a guarantee that will fourteen points form a basis for negotiations, therefore there can be no peace until Germany makes full reparation and gives aguarantee that will insure the future.

This is the stand taken in Paris and all of France on the peace statements coming from Germany as mirrored in the French press there can be no consideration for the Germans' proposition in its present form. There must be absolute concurrence, it is declared, in evacuation and suitable guarantees before there can be peace talk. An armistice now would give a beaten enemy a chance to reform his shattered armies and improve his disastrous military situation.

One newspaper declares it is the last despairing trick to cheat the Allies and avoid the penalty of infamy and prevent the devastation of Germany as she has devastated those weak nations which have opposed her.

GERMANY KNOWS AND ADMITS SHE IS BEATEN.

The fact stands out: Germany knows and admits she is beaten but this does not mean that the war is ended. Meanwhile the victorious Allied troops are advancing while the millions of eyes of fighters and peoples are turned hopefully to President Wilson.

"Germany leans upon principles which would only make the arms fall from our hands."—Le Temps.

"Then when the fighting has ceased, the German troops have regained their breath, and the Imperial Government is popular and strong, the German plenipotentiaries would knock down one after another their pretended basis for negotiations.

"We should be forced to rebegin the war or sign a disastrous peace that would not last long."

GERMANY MUST EVACUATE INVADED COUNTRIES BEFORE ALLIED POWERS WILL CONSIDER PEACE PROPOSALS

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, October 7.—Washington to-day regards the latest Teutonic peace moves as attempts to barter for peace—a peace to Germany's advantage before American-Allied arms can visit retribution on the Boche armies.

Inasmuch as the offers contain no proposals for withdrawing troops from Allied territory no proposals for a general and complete laying down of arms, they are not acceptable, the international authorities declare.

Some authorities believe the President might tell the Teuton that peace negotiations could be instituted if Germany cleared her armies out of occupied territory absolutely, if she also laid down her arms and gave the United States control over them, if, in others words, she made a complete military surrender—not a breathing spell armistice.

GERMANY CAN HAVE SAME TERMS AS BULGARIA.

This would be comparable to the terms given Bulgaria.

Official Washington can be said to favour military action without stint, until Germany is forced to surrender—until she is ready to clear out of these occupied lands and until there is a real spokesman representative of the German people rather than of the Kaiser.

Army men point out that victory is a certainty next year. They say it would be the greatest tragedy of all time were the Allies now to wipe the slate clean after sacrificing hundreds of thousands of lives. Quitting now would leave Germany intact and not contrite. The old militarist rule would still be in force.

The Teutonic peace move caused no surprise here. This Government has had every reason to believe that Germany intended to prosecute a peace offensive of more extensive proportions than ever heretofore undertaken. Rejection of this latest maneouvre may even be followed by further efforts later, for it now appears that the German war lords are telling the German diplomats that an American-Allied victory is in sight.

THE LORD HIGH CAMOUFLEUR FOR THE PRUSSIANS.

Prince Maximilian is looked upon as the Lord High Camoufleur for the Prussian autocracy.

Though he has set up a cabinet which includes Socialists and Liberals, the power of the Prussian war lords had not been diminished, Allied diplomats point out.

The Austrian proposal timed with that of Germany is viewed as German engineered, though officials are inclined to believe that internal conditions are forcing the Austrian hand much more than in the case of Germany. The latter it is pointed out, realizes Austria's precarious situation, and is trying to get peace talk started before the volcano erupts.

BRITISH PRESS COMMENT ON THE ENEMY LATEST PEACE MOVE DEMAND UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, October 7.—Discussion of Germany's intentions and skepticism as to the result of peace overtures of the Central Powers ar reflected in comments on peace proposals, by newspapers here.

The Daily Mail declares there must be unconditional surrender resulting in Germany giving up all territory and property destroyed by war and surrender for trial by the Allies of all "The great criminals of the war."

The Mail says: "There are five hundred of these, beginning with Emperor William." Other big papers comment summarily.

Admitting that the latest German move is most important of any thus far made, and confident that the Allies will give the closest attention to it the Chronicle says they will find it insufficient. "No statesman who believes in Wilson's policy of trying to end the war once and for all can be content with anything less than final and unequivocal elimination of the Potsdam war makers."

It continues: "There must be restitution, reparation and guarantees

ARMISTICE PROPOSAL A "MOST INSIDIOUS DANGER"

Germany's Peace Offer Discussed in the United States Senate—Peace Now Would be a Victory for Germany Declares Senator Hitchcock.

WILSON'S TERMS

The following despatches concerning the German peace offensive were received since two o'clock this afternoon. They contain all the information available up to press time:

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The discussion of Germany's peace offer began in the United States Senate to-day. Senator Poindexter of Washington, Republican, declared that the proposal for an armistice was a "most insidious danger." Senator Poindexter declared an armistice would mean the end of all military action, and if accompanied only by the enemy evacuation of Belgium and France, would be a victory for Germany. Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, earnestly pointed out that the German offer also provides for the acceptance of fourteen term slaid down by President Wilson in his address of January 8. Acceptance of Germany's offer only upon the evacuation of Belgium and France, Senator Hitchcock said, would be preposterous, but he declared the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine to France, and as well as reparation for Belgium and France are among the President's terms which Germany proposes to accept.

AMERICAN SHIP PRODUCTION HAS BROKEN ALL RECORDS

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—American ship production again has broken all records. The output of American ship yards for the twelve months ending October the first was seventy per cent. of the entire world's greatest annual pre-war output, according to figures made available to the United Press to-day.

Peterboro Casualties

To-day's List Contains Several Additional Names.

Mrs. Dunnett, 536 Rogers street, received official word on Saturday that her son, Pte. William John Dunnett, Infantry, had been admitted to No. 3, general hospital, Letreport, on Sept. 28th, suffering from a gunshot wound in the head. Pte. Dunnett went overseas early in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pearson, 238 Dublin street, received word that their son, Pte. James Pearson, has been admitted to No. 25 General Hospital September 28, suffering from gunshot wounds. Pte. Pearson went overseas in March, 1915, with the Remount Depot. He was gassed on a previous occasion.

Nomination Night For the Local Veterans

There will be an important meeting of the Peterboro branch of the Great War Veterans Association to-night, when nominations for the officers to be elected during the coming year will be held. The elections will take place two weeks from to-night. A large attendance of the members is requested for to-night's meeting.

THERE IS NO PART

Of the army regulation that is more severe than that covering good eyesight. What is true of the army is no less true of the great army following commercial pursuits. Do not allow youdself to become inefficient in seeing power. See Dr. Lacey, 410 George street.

WAR SUMMARY

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Allied operations in Serbia are being resumed against the Austrian and German troops who still hold about one half of Serbian territory. The abandonment by the Austro-Hungarians of Albania, which borders Serbia on the west, has undoubtedly been undertaken for the reinforcing of the Teutonic line in Northern Serbia. Dramatic action by the Allies is possible in this sector, which would lead to an invasion of Hungary. The fact that the Allies have secured full use of Bulgarian territory for military purposes, brings them within thirty-five miles of Hungarian territory at the north-eastern corner of Bulgaria.

THE IRON GATE.

This intervening area is through Serbian territory, leading to the famous iron gate, which marks the passage over the Danube into Hungary. A movement by the Allies through the iron gate would compel the Germans and Austro-Hungarians to evacuate Roumania and concentrate for the defence of the Hungarian grain and cattle lands. These are the principal sources of food supply for the Hapsburg Empire and have also been drawn upon to feed the Germans.

FIRE AT THE RENFREW MANUFACTURING COMPANY

The wooden boxing leading up to the water tank at the Renfrew Manufacturing Company caught fire from some unknown cause this afternoon at 2.45. The fire brigade was called and extinguished the blaze which was burning the sawdust and felt paper which lined the boxing. The source of the fire was particularly hard to approach and the blaze was not under control until 3.10 p.m.

THIS DAY IN THE WAR

Oct. 7, 1917: Rain holds up operations in Ypres sector.

Oct. 7, 1916: Somme battle renewed with Allied advance.

Oct. 7, 1915: Big Austro-German drive on Serbia starts.

PATRIOTIC CELEBRATION

Tabernacle Meeting Took on a New Turn—Address by Mr. J. Wearing.

BANDS ASSISTED

The Brock Street Tabernacle was crowded to capacity last night, nearly four thousand people having gone from the different churches to hear Dr. Honeywell. Things turned out altogether different from what was anticipated, however, as hearing of the proposed celebration of the war news an invitation was sent to the 57th and the G.W.V. bands to visit and play in the hall. Their arrival changed the meeting into a patriotic celebration over the welcome news that come over the wires during the day. After a number of patriotic selections by the bands Mayor Duncan expressed the gratification of the citizens generaly at the turn events in Europe had taken and he intimated that thanksgiving should be given to God for our great victory. After a conference with the ministers and others present Dr. Honeywell then announced that he would call on Mr. Joseph Wearing for a few words after which the meteing would be closed.

Mr. Wearing said: "We have heard a good deal from some pessimistic quarters during the last four years about the breaking down of Christianity. As a matter of fact the idea of universal brotherhood was never so nearly realized as it is right now. Think what it means to have Belgians, British, French, Americans and Portuguese fighting shoulder to shoulder in France and smashing the supposedly impregnable Hindenburg line to such fragments that at last even the Kaiser has been forced to get on his knees. Think too what it means to have British, French, Americans and Italians relentlessly forcing Austria back through the Alps so that she too now throws up her hands; and Serbians, Greeks, British and French bringing Bulgaria to her knees in Macedonia; and British, Arabs and some French and some Americans driving the accursed Turks from sacred Palestine; and Russians, Japanese, British and Americans bringing the gospel of a true, not a sham democracy into Siberia.

Progress of Civilization.

"My friends the progress of civilization has not been halted as some people suppose. Instead we find Anglo-Saxons, Celts, Slavs, Negros, Mongolians, Protestants, Catholics, Mahammedans, Buddists, men of all tongues, creeds and colours joining hands to fight—to die—for what? To crush, to utterly destroy the Prussian military tyranny that would block, that would stop if it could, the onward march of our Christian civilization.

"The co-operation of the Allied nations also bespeaks well for future days, because it represents a breaking down of old prejudices that have kept nations apart, the burying of old hatreds that have provoked former wars, because it represents a joining of hearts, a clasping of hands across the sea, a spirit of world-wide co-operation which makes possible this League of Nations that we are all talking about, this League of Nations that we are building our hopes of future peace upon, a League of Nations born of a common peril, made strong by a common helpfulness, welded together by a common sacrifice of blood, and, is I believe, standing firm and united when the war is over so that the like of this bloody war can never occur again.

"What we must remember now is that for all our success we must give God the glory. And we must remember too that the idea of universal brotherhood can only be made a reality by a common knowledge in Canada, in America, in Britain, in France, in Germany, in Austria, in every country, a common knowledge of the power of Jesus Christ to save men and women from their sins. He alone reigns for ever and ever and He is Lord of Lords and King of Kings."

After Mr. Wearing had spoken the meeting closed with the singing of the Doxology and National Anthem, My Country Tis of Thee, and God Save Our Splendid Men.

Dr. Honeywell's ready compliance with the Mayor's suggestion not to prolong the meeting in the Tabernacle, although a large audience had gathered to hear him, was recognized to be a graceful act under the circumstances.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, OCTOBER 7TH, 1918.

LAST NIGHT'S CELEBRATION.

The demonstration in Peterborough last evening over the developments in the war situation may have been a little premature in regard to the final wind-up of hostilities, but it was welcome nevertheless as a means of "letting off steam" over the glorious victories won by the Allies in the recent fighting and over the prospects of a successful peace for the cause for which the Canadian soldiers are fighting. The celebration impromptu as it was, was none the less enthusiastic and it showed that Peterborough people have not yet forgotten to cheer. In the mass of humanity which marched behind the bands there were hundreds of women whose dear ones are still overseas, and their joy at the prospect of a speedy termination of the war can be imagined.

The rejoicing of last evening may not have anticipated the final celebration by a short time, but it was not out of place nevertheless.

THE PRICE OF VICTORY.

"In attaining their objectives the Canadians lost heavily."

Not in the official reports of the commander-in-chief nor on the maps with shaded lines that show the territory gained are to be found war's greatest victories. The triumphs of the conflict are the individual sacrifices of brave hearts who give their lives ungrudgingly.

Not with the pealing of bells and the shout of the multitude do the victors ride home triumphantly. Their achievements are honoured in the hearts of tenderly-loving mothers, wives and sisters who keep memories green with proudly-stanched tears.

In the quiet of our homes and offices we read the reports of ever-advancing armies; we are thrilled that the men who are making the world ring with their prowess walked the same streets that we walk, sang the same songs and sat with us in the same offices. But the vision is sadly impersonal. We do not see the great elfin vultures of the air as they peck at one another, screaming with a shrill defiance as they swirl and turn in the air. We do not hear the machine guns spitting with venomous tongues nor start as the artillery booms reverberating death. We do not hear the impact, the breath-holding stay of a moment and the dull whirr as engine and pilot fall downward. We do not see the proud look as the undaunted walk to the "kick-off" nor can we smell the dank earth that is bed for the wounded and shroud for the fallen.

These brothers of ours attain their objective. We are proud that they reach the geographical points that the intelligence officers have pricked on the maps for them. That achievement is left for the many or the few who survive. We are no less proud of those who are stopped in their great adventure by enemy rifle or machine gun. They, too, attain their objective. They set out to defend their homes and their loved ones and to strike a blow for justice and liberty and though they give their lives in the cause they have won the day. — Montreal Star.

MUST SURRENDER FIRST.

The announcement that Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey have applied through the medium of the Swiss Legation at Washington for an armistice in order that peace negotiations may be entered upon should not be regarded as meaning the end of the war—an interpretation that many people seemed to put upon the news yesterday. The only thing that can end the war immediately is a complete surrender on the Allies' terms. Any suspension of hostilities for the purpose of discussing terms will not be entertained by Great Britain, the United States or France. The enemy knows the Allies' terms—they have been stated repeatedly by President Wilson, Lloyd George and President Clemencean, and the enemy know exactly whot they are. If they are prepared to accept the conditions flatly and unequivocally they can have peace to-day; if not the war must go on. That seems to be the situation reduced to its simplest terms.

In his address in New York last month President Wilson left no doubt as to the position of the United States in regard to peace:

"We are all agreed that there can be no peace obtained by any kind of a bargain or compromise with the governments of the Central Empires," said the American president. "They have convinced us that they are without honour and do not intend justice. They observe no covenants accept no principle but force and their own interest. We canot 'come to terms' with them. They have made it impossible."

There is no reason to suppose that there has been any change in the feeling of the United States. On the other hand the press of all the Allied countries to-day is united in the sentiment that peace can only come on the basis of the Central Empires' unconditional surrender.

There can be no suspension of hostilities to allow the enemy a breathing spell under cover of more or less doubtful peace negotiations. There can be no dealing with an enemy who at the very moment he is sending out his peace feelers is applying the torch to French towns, wantonly looting the property of our allies and carrying off into virtual slavery the civilian inhabitants of the towns and villages from which the hammering blows of the Allied force are forcing him to withdraw.

The Central Empires can have peace at once on the same terms as the Fox of the Balkans secured it—unconditional surrender.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Who said a quiet Sunday?"

Yesterday was one of the noisiest in Peterborough's history. The thunder storm, with the terrific rumbling of the artillery of the heavens, started the noise in the morning, and last night's demonstration was a fitting finish.

Some people seemed more interested in the possibility of to-day being declared a public holiday than they were in the good news of the enemy's weakening.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

The German Whimper.

(New York Evening Post.)

Everybody knows the differences between a manly attitude in the face of misfortune, and a whining attitude. And to-day the commonest tone of the German rulers is a whimper. This is presumptive proof not only that their own nerve is failing, but that they see evidence all around them of a sinking into fear and despair.

Libelling the Housewife.

(Washington Post.)

But although public opinion may very well banish Sunday joy-riders from the streets, it may be a very different thing when it comes down to private bread baking. A housewife may buy forty pounds of white flour and ten pounds of oatmeal, using the latter for porridge only, and the flour for bread. Public opinion doesn't follow one into the kitchen. Can we depend upon the people to be for the most part loyal enough to do just what all the Allies are doing?

Labour and Internationalism.

(London Daily Chronicle.)

Fifty years ago to-day a great international Labour Congress at Brussels declared unanimously that the claims of the workers could not be completely met by strikes; arbitration councils, they urged, must be everywhere established. We are still far from the goal, but on this jubilee day three threatened labour storms bid fair to roll away before the sweet reasonableness of mediation. Wartime strikes seem to have a different psychological basis from the deliberate labour struggles of calmer days.

Mail Contract

Sealed Tenders addressed to the Postmaster-General, will be received at Ottawa until noon, on Friday, the 15th November, 1918, for the conveyance of His Majesty's Mails, on a proposed Contract for four years, six times per week on the route, Warsaw Rural Mail Route No. 1, from the 1st April next.

Printed notices containing further information as to conditions of proposed Contract may be seen, and blank forms of Tender may be obtained at the Post Office of Warsaw, and at the office of the Post Office Inspector, Post Office Inspector's Office.

MISS ZARA CLINTON—As Prince Charming, in F. Stuart Whyte's English Pantomime "Cinderella," at The Grand for three performances commencing with Matinee next Monday (Thanksgiving Day.)

"Cinderella," a musical version of the famous fairy story of the same name, will be the offering at The Grand for two nights and a Thanksgiving matinee starting Monday, October 14. The production is under the direction of Mr. F. Stuart-Whyte, which means that it will be a wonderful show, with a clever company, lots of pretty girls and a wealth of beautiful scenery and costumes.

Miss Zara Clinton, will again be the "principal boy," playing the role of Prince Charming. Miss Sue Parker, who plays Cinderella, is a new member of the company, having been chosen for the role by Mr. Whyte last season when she was playing in one of the big New York revues.

Other favourites of "Aladdin" and "Robinson Crucoe" are Mr. John Barrett-Lennard, Miss Kitty Harvey and Mr. Harry Hoyland.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

Take Notice That—

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough intends to construct as local improvements, cement sidewalks on the following streets between the points herein described, and intends to assess a part of the cost upon the lands abutting directly upon the said works respectively.

2. The estimated cost of each of said works, and the sum in respect to each of said works which is to be paid by the Corporation, are set out below, and also the estimated rate per foot frontage for each of said works. The special assessment in each case is to be paid in twenty annual instalments:

Street.	Estimated Cost.	To be Paid By the Corporation.	Estimated Special Rate Per Ft. Frontage.
Gladstone Ave., south side, from a pt. 551 ft. east of Lock street, to a pt. 45 ft. farther east	$ 69.75	$ 24.39	$ 0.81
Water St., east side, from Charlotte St. to a pt. 210 ft. south of Charlotte St.	483.84	280.44	0.926
Charlotte St., south side, from Water St. to a pt. 21 ft. east of Water St.	54.00	26.78	1.296

3. A petition against any of the proposed works will not avail to prevent its construction.

Dated, October 5th, 1918.

S. R. AMRSTRONG,
Clerk.

TO FARMERS

The Government has sent out an appeal to the Canadian people to buy at home. Why? Because when we buy abroad more than we sell we have to pay a premium on the excess, in addition to the price of the goods. This is known as an adverse rate of exchange. We have bought four hundred million dollars' worth more from the United States than we have sold to it. The rate of exchange is 2 per cent. against us. In other words, we are paying 2 per cent. on four hundred millions of dollars, or eight million dollars, which means that if we owe a great deal of money for goods bought we have to pay extra for the privilege. If we keep this up Canada will bleed to death. Please inquire into this matter at once.

MEETING OF THE NORTH MONAGHAN TOWNSHIP COUNCIL

Milk Vendor Files a Claim for Damages to His Automobile—List of Accounts Passed.

The North Monaghan council met in Mr. W. H. Bradburn's office on Saturday, the 21st of September, all the members being present with the Reeve, John McIntosh, presiding.

The minutes of the last two meetings were read and confirmed.

Mr. O. A. Langely was present in the interests of Mr. M. Carton re drainage for New Chamberlain St.

Moved by Mr. Henry and seconded by Mr. Forster that a committee of the whole council meet Mr. Langley and Mr. Carton at New Chamberlain street, on Monday evening, September 23rd, at 6 o'clock p.m. — Carried.

A notice was read from County Treasurer Elliott stating that all county rates not paid by Dec. 20th would pay interest at 6 per cent per annum after that date.

A communication was read from O'Connell and Corkery, solicitors for Joaqunm Anglesey, milk vendor, filing a claim for damages to his car for $104, also a claim for car hire for $20, making a total of $124, said being damaged on the quarter line between concessions 10 and 11. Mr. Anglesey was present personally and the council discussed the matter with him, the result being that the following motion was moved by Mr. Henry and seconded by Mr. Bell and carried unanimously:

That no action be taken in regard to Mr. Anglesey's account or claim for damages to his car.

Following paysheets were presented for payment:

Robt. Colon, com. for Road Div. No. 3, grading, etc.	$23.44

Moved by Mr. Henry, and seconded by Mr. Wilson, that the above paysheet for grading on the quarter line be passed and paid, and charged to Road Div. No. 3.

Moved by Mr. Henry and seconded by Mr. Bell that Robt. Colon's paysheet for grading on the Kingdom Road, township lot 8, concession 11, also for putting in a culvert on the same, be passed, and paid, and charged to roads and bridges account, the amount of the paysheet being $27.42.—Carried.

The following bills were passed and ordered to be paid:

J. E. A. Fitzgerald, coal for the crusher	$82.29
Commutation of statuite lab.	2550.00
To pay for sheep killed by dogs	100.00
Total	$2255.19

The total assessment of the township being $918,416 for the year 1918, it would therefore be necessary to levy a rate of 7 8-10 mills on the dollar for township purposes.

The council then directed that the clerk prepare bylaws fixing the township rate and confirming the county rate and the school rates, the same to be passed at the next regular meeting of the council.

Moved by Mr. Henry and seconded by Mr. Foster that the following bills be passed and paid:

Jos. H. Bell, for rep. the Grove bridge	$3.25
Archie Patterson, for work done on culvert	4.38

Moved by Mr. Forster and seconded by Mr. Wilson, that the Road Commissioner for Road Div. No. 6 be authorized to grade Chester St. — Carried.

Moved by Mr. Bell and seconded by Mr. Forster that this meeting adjourn and that the next meeting be held at the Court House, Peterboro, on Oct. 12, at 2.30 p.m.

The Campaign Announcements

Dr. Honeywell Meetings Are Well Under Way—Cottage Prayer Meetings.

As the Union Evangelist Campaign proceeds the list of activities connected with it is growing rapidly. Five laymen arranged for a special luncheon which was held at the Empress to-day at 12:30 to which all the ministers of the city and surrounding country, including such points as Warsaw, Keene and Lakefield, have been invited. It is understood that the question of evangelism was to be discussed especially. Representatives were also invited from the Y.M.C.A. and the Salvation Army.

At a meeting for Christian workers at four o'clock yesterday afternoon Dr. Honeywell laid great stress on the absolute necessity of cottage prayer meetings being undertaken on a wide scale immediately throughout the city. He said that there should be at least fifty of those meetings every Tuesday and Friday morning and called for homes and leaders. Yesterday only twelve meetings had been arranged for but by this morning it was announced that there would be twenty-five meetings to-morrow morning and it is hoped that there will be fifty meetings held on Friday morning. Those willing to open their homes or to lead meetings are requested to notify their pastors or Rev. Mr. Doner.

TO-MORROW NIGHT

To-morrow night delegations are to attend from the George street Church Knox Church, the Bethany Tabernacle and the Salvation Army. It is understood that the members of these congregations will meet in their churches and walk to the Tabernacle in a body where they will be given special seats. Arrangements are being made for the members of the George street Church to meet in Central Park.

Wednesday evening the members of St. Paul's St. James, Park street, and Mark street churches will form delegations. Friday evening the members of Trinity, St. Andrew's, and Murray street churches will be the special guests at the meeting

Thursday evening the business women of the city which includes all women who are earning salaries of any kind will be the special guests of the evening, as well as representatives from the churches at Warsaw, Lakefield, Bridgenorth, Norwood, Keene, Millbrook and other adjacent points. Representatives of the Central Committee have visited most of these points and arranged for these delegations, announcements concerning which were made in a number of the outside churches yesterday. It is understood that the members of these churches who have automobiles and who can do so will arrange to bring in as many other members of their church as possible to the meetings.

Last night's collection amounted to $280. The Brock street Tabernacle is now in splendid shape for the rest of the meetings. The heating arrangements have been so perfected that last night the building was perfectly warm, almost too warm for those near the stoves. The forming of a big canopy of paper covering the speaker's platform and the choir stand as well as the stretching of wire across the hall have improved the acoustic properties of the hall so that the speaker can now be heard in all parts of the building.

PETERBORO UNDER THE EXCITEMENT OF PEACE RUMOURS

Citizens in Ecstasy of Elation Over Report That Germany Was Ready to Discuss Allies' Peace Terms.

Peterborough was electrified yesterday by the report that Germany accepted the peace terms of the Allies as enunciated by President Wilson a short time ago. The telephone message from the Toronto news agency early in the afternoon was immediately given to the public, and its vague but promising intimation quickly filtered through the city's homes. By evening a great crowd had assembled on George street, drawn together by the common hope invoked by the meagre announcement that Germany desired to negotiate the Allies' terms. Practically to the last individual the report was received with reserve, remembering previous occasions that had seemed to indicate conclusive victory, and the premature celebration that had marked the glorious but costly gains in the spring of 1915. However, the public discovered in the Examiner's extra addition that there was a definite proposal from the new German Chancellor, which according to Swedish information, was being transmitted throught Stockholm to Washington. This was a substantial evidence of the enemy's realization of approaching defeat, and its significance aroused the crowds, even the cool, thinking types, who couldn't reconcile the report with the enemy's boastings uttered no later than Friday.

But the Sunday news indicated clearly that Prince Maximilian had made a gesture, however reluctantly and reserved, that accompanies the Hun cry of "Kamarad," and that in itself aroused visions of the approaching consumation of four years of war —victory, with the Hun crying for peace.

Started to Celebrate.

Peterborough started in to celebrate the news early last evening. Crowds began to gather on George street soon after 7 o'clock, and the Examiner bulletin boards were surrounded by eager groups, anxious to get the latest reports of the new developments in the war situation.

Meanwhile the band of the Great War Veterans' Association and the 57th Regiment were mustering at the Armouries and at 7.45 the Veterans' Band, with Mayor Duncan marching at its head, marched down George street and halted in front of the G.W.V.A. rooms. From a window of the Veterans' headquarters, Mayor Duncan addressed the crowd, briefly asking them to fall in behind the band and announcing that when official news was received he would proclaim a public holiday.

A procession was then formed and proceeded up George street to Brock street, where the 57th Band joined in line. The procession moved on to Brock street rink, but owing to the fact that the building was already crowded, there was no room for anybody but the bands and the rest of the procession had to remain outside. However, in view of the news, Dr. Honeywell decided to close the evangelistic meeting for the evening, and in a short time the procession was on its way down town again, with the massed Veterans' and 57th Bands playing the Red, White and Blue. Hundreds of citizens, men, women and children fell in behind, so that the street from curb to curb was a mass of marching, cheering, singing people. It is a long time since Peterborough has heard so much noise.

The procession marched south to Charlotte, west to Aylmer, north to Simcoe, the siren of the motor truck greeting them as the parade passed the fire hall, and then east on Simcoe street to George and back to the Examiner office, where the massed bands played "Oh Canada," "The Maple Leaf," "Rule Britannia" and "God Save the King," each patriotic selection being enthusiastically cheered. George street for nearly a block was a solid mass of humanity at that time.

There were no speeches, and the playing of the National Anthem brought the impromptu but enthusiastic demonstration to a close.

A Number of Towns Bombed

(Special to Examiner.)

LONDON, Oct. 7—Successful bombing expeditions against Lautern, Pirmassees, Mezires, Thionville, Courcelles and the airdromes at Morhange and Frescaty, were reported in a Sunday official statement issued by the independent air force.

Heavy fighting was carried on Saturday night in the course of which the British machines dropped twelve and a half tons of bombs on the railway stations at various towns.

Heavy bombs were dropped on a factory at Bubach. Fire broke out at Courcelles.

Horse Killed By Lightning

ACCIDENTS DUE TO THE LIGHTNING EARLY SUNDAY MORNING.

Mr. James Healey, 338 Cameron street, had a valuable mare valued at $125, killed by the lightning Saturday morning. The mare was loose in a field at the head of Enclid avenue, and was struck by the lightning when it approached an elm tree.

Groceries Knocked Down.

At least one of the George street grocers reports that groceries were found scattered on the floor of the store, presumably knocked off the shelves by the force of the thunder.

Telephone Pole Afire.

One of the telephone poles on Gilmour street was set on fire early on Sunday morning by the lightning. It blazed for a few minutes but gradually died out.

Many persons report that their telephones rang early on Sunday morning, due it is thought, to the lightning striking the wires.

China Smashed.

Mr. Chas. Kitney, the well known market gardener, is minus $7 or $8 worth of china, which was knocked off a buffet in his house, and broken by the thunder.

Struck by Lightning.

Mrs. James Ward was struck by lightning while passing through a doorway at her home, 222 Wolfe St., during the storm on Sunday morning. The lightning left a white mark several inches long on her arm.

House Struck.

Several persons living at 462 Elm street, the home of Mrs. Johnson, were stunned when a bolt of lightning came into the house on the electric wires on Sunday morning at 6 o'clock. No damage was done to the house except that a quantity of plaster was broken from the walls. Fire was not caused.

Music & Drama

EVERYWOMAN.

"Everywoman," Walter Broune's beautiful story of every woman's pilgrimage in quest of love, seems to have lost none of its popularity in Peterboro, judging by the size of the audience which attended the Grand Opera House Friday night on the occasion of the third visit to the city. The plays tells in most effective form of Everywoman's adventures in search of King Love. Lured away from home by Flattery fittingly appearing in a mirror, Everywoman accompanied by her attendantts Youth, Beauty and Modesty, sets forth to find Love. The stage of a theatre is the first place visited, and Everywoman becomes a star, while Youth and Beauty are gladly made welcome in the chorus. Modesty, however, is out of place there, and disappears. Everywoman is almost deceived into accepting Passion as Love, and then is tempted by Wealth. She seeks to find Love in the luxurious unconventional life of the city but in the midst of a big dinner party she finds that Beauty is dead. Soon Youth is killed by Time, and Everywoman is deserted and lonely, rejected by Wealth, and her other erstwhile friends. Finally she is led home by Truth and discovers that Love, the son of Truth, has been waiting for her there.

The production is most beautifully staged and acted. Practically the whole of the splendid company seen here last season appeared again on Friday evening. Miss Pauline Shay, who scored a triumph in the same part last year, was altogether delightful in the title role—a most exacting part which calls for versatility and histrtionic ability. Miss Shay's charming personality and pleasing ennunciation made her portrayal of the role a constant delight to the audience. In the afternoon the part of "Everywoman" was most ably played by Miss Doris Fellows, the arduous nature of the part making it necessary for the two to alternate. Mr. Percy Parson's well-remembered for the manner in which he handled the remarkable role of "Nobody," on the other visits of the play, added to his laurels on this occasion by the impressive way in which he delivered his lines. Messrs Frank Kilday and F. J. McCarthy were seen again in the comedy roles of Bluff and Stuff, theatrical managers, and were as amusing as ever. Miss Eleanor Kenefeck, had the principal singing part, that of "Conscience," and displayed a pure rich voice to good advanttage. The many other parts of the production were cleverly presented.

The scenic investments were in keeping with the general excellence of the offering, the fourth act, depicting New Year's Eve on Broadway, being probably the most effective.

A splendid orchestra added considerably to the enjoyment and charm of the performance.

To-night the uproarious comedy, "It Pays to Advertise," will be presented at the Grand.

EXPRESS TRUCK CAUGHT FIRE.

Early Sunday Morning Blaze.

The express truck of Mr. Edward Cooney caught fire at 1.40 Sunday morning when Mr. Cooney tried to fill the gasoline tank by the light of a lantern.

The lantern was held over the tank while the gas was being poured into the tank. The fumes from the tank drew the flame of the lantern into the tank, resulting in a slight explosion and a small fire. The fire bridge was called and the fire was extinguished before it did any damage.

Barbers Consider New Higher Prices

The master barbers of London, Ont., have increased the wages of the journeymen, also advanced the price of hair cuts to 40 cents and shaves to 20 cents. There has been some intimation of forthcoming advances here, but action seems to have been held up. It was proposed that hair cuts be 40 cents, neck shaves would not be free with shaves and children's cut would be higher. Apparently the barbers here are not yet preparod to push their prices to the higher notch.

Sun-drying is one of the most satisfactory and cheapest methods of drying.

PETERBORO' CHURCHES ARE PRETTY WELL SUPPLIED WITH COAL

Some of the Local Churches Are Experimenting With Different Grades of Coal —Wood Being Used Freely

A fairly comfortable winter for the church goers is anticipated by the managers of the different churches, as in most cases enough coal has been put in during the summer.

As St. Paul's church during the coal shortage of last winter, a test was made of a mixture of hard and soft coal for the furnaces, which proved so successful it will be adopted for this winter also, on a ratio of 50-50.

The hard coal was laid in during the early summer and the soft coal is being put in now.

At St. Andrew's.

At St. Andrew's church 70 per cent. of the usual supply has been put in, and this will be helped out by wood. The managers are considering closing up part of the church should the weather be unusually severe or wood unobtainable.

George Street Methodist.

The George street Methodist church is supplied until some time in January by "run of mine" coal, which has not yet been tested but with which the managers hope to keep the church comfortable. At present to help out the balance of the winter they are endeavoring to secure enough wood.

In other city churches the situation is much the same, with enough of the usual supply on hand to avoid closing the buildings. Of the quantity on hand, the managers, in many cases, were reticent to reveal.

Voice of The People

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: Are neighbors at liberty to allow their fowl to run wild all over other people's premises, picking at garden stuff and destroying it, to say nothing of the nuisance of having them continually around the door. Can they be forced to supply proper fencing to keep them on their own ground, and shut them up, as they are a proper nuisance. They have been asked to shut them up, and take no notice.

Thanking you for space, I am,
Yours truly,
Subscriber.

Editor: Get in touch with the clerk of the municipality in which you reside and find out from him what provision the municipality has made for such conditions.

RECALLS OLD FIRES AND FIRST STEPS FOR PROTECTION

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The following is some interesting news of our city which I hope you will publish, as no doubt it will be of interest to the citizens of Peterborough and community at large.

During the year 1861 Peterborough was visited by three severe fires, the most extensive of which occurred in August of that year, and swept nearly the entire square, bounded by George, Simcoe, Water and Hunter streets. A few shops on the north-west corner, the shops of Messrs. Nicholls and Hall, and one or two others on the south of the block indicated, were all that escaped the fury of the flames. Twenty-nine places of business were burned, and a scene of desolation marked the centre of the town. Thanks to the energy and enterprise of our citizens the ground thus denuded have been rebuilt, and a better class of buildings have taken the place of the burned ones, many of which were wood and furnished ready fuel to the fire. Notwithstanding the serious loss to the town by this and other fires it was not until November, 1862, that a fire company was fully organized, and proper steps taken to secure the usefulness of the engine, hose, etc. Before concluding my reference to the buildings of Peterborough, I add that the fine block owned by James Stevenson and Thomas Bradburn, esquires, consisting of two large shops, of four stories each, were erected during 1860. The fine row of numerous white brick stores extending from these southward to Simcoe street, the property of Mrs. Joseph Dixson, were all, excepting two towards the centre, erected in the autumn of 1865, or summer of 1866, after the wooden buildings which occupied their site, had been destroyed by fire.

Two prominent citizens passed away from earth during the year 1861. One of these, Augustus Sawers, Esq., was, during the pervious year, mayor of the town, had some years previously founded the Engineers' newspaper, and was for a time its editor and proprietor.

For a few years previous to his death, he took an active part in politics and had warm friends and strenuous opponents. He was possessed of a good physical constitution and a vigorous and cultivated mind, a quick perception and happy facility in expressing his views either by speaking or writing. His decease occurred on the 6th of August, 1861, in his 42nd year. His remains were interred in the Little Lake cemetery.

The other gentleman to whom reference has been made was Colonel Alexander McDonell, whose early services and long public career in this county require a more extended notice.

The late Col. Alexander McDonell came to this country with his uncle, the late Bishop McDonell, of Kingston, then a mere boy and before the year 1812. During the war he held a commission as a cadet attached to the Canadian Fencibles, and was present at and took part in the battle of Sacket's harbour. In 1825 he was employed by the Hon. Peter Robinson to assist in locating on their lands the immigrants of that year, and subsequently filled the position of immigrant agent and Crown lands agent for this country.

In the years 1834 and 1836 he was elected to parliament for the north riding of the Newcastle district and was again a candidate at the election for the Colborne district in 1841, but was defeated by Dr. Gilchrist, who also superseded him in the office of Crown land agent. During the rebellion of 1837-8, as has been already stated, he was in command of the second battalion of Northumberland militia. For several years previous to his death he had taken no prominent part in public affairs, but lived as a retired gentleman, chiefly at Caisses's hotel, where he died suddenly on the 29th of November, 1861, at the age of 75. He was by birth a Scotchman, and a Roman Catholic in religion. His remains were interred in the Little Lake cemetery.

On the 6th of May, 1864, the town aration of the County of Victoria from that of Peterborough took effect, and thenceforward that county launched upon a separate and independent municipal existence.

On the 16th of May, 1864, the town hall bell was erected in its present position in the market house tower. Its weight is 902 pounds and its total cost to the town $400. On its being placed on its supports the chief engineer, Mr. Helm, ascended to the belfry, and there, amidst the cheers of the bystanders broke upon the silence of the fire brigade, called it 'Protection.'

Our city has improved wonderfully during the last fifty years; it has gone ahead in leaps and bounds. The means the city has to-day in combatting fire is one of the best. The brigade is considering casting the horses to one side and using a truck to haul the fire engine. This no doubt will be a big improvement. It is up to the citizens of Peterborough to get together and do all they can to make Peterborough a "Greater Peterborough." What we need is unity and co-operation. Let everyone get his shoulder to the wheel and push. Then Peterborough will flourish, expand and grow as it never did before.

Thank you, Mr. Editor for space.
Yours truly,
J. D. RICE.

REMINISCENCES.

Our respected City Clerk objects to the correctness of our reminiscences so far as relates to the Smith street bridge. He points out two errors therein, namely, the name of the bridge "Auburn," the name of the contractor.

Very good, I am pleased to be corrected. But about the name. It is a beautiful bridge and a monument that for all time will stand to the credit of the engineer who designed it. There are many bridges just like it over the Seine at Paris, and I am proud of it. It is the best bit of municipal work of our Council, but don't you think it deserves a better name, one in keeping with its own beauty and with the beautiful immediate picturesque surroundings? We have had so many Smiths—John Smith, Bob Smith, Sidney Smith, Township of Smith, Smith street, etc., that I thought to submit a name, Auburn, which would suggest something more worthy of the beautiful bridge and surroundings. Let me suggest that the Council place on that bridge a bronze plate with this legend,

"Auburn Bridge"
Designed and Erected
By T. H. Hay,
City Engineer,
191

The late City Engineer deserves this testimonial.

And now for Mr. Armstrong. He practically admits all I said:

1st—There was a "misunderstanding" in the committee as to what the contract covered and what it did not cover."

2nd—The Board of Works received tenders for the construction of the Smith street bridge except coping, hand rail, spandril filling and sidewalks.

That is, the contract was let for part of the job. Is not this where the "misunderstanding" arose, just as I stated?

The facts are these: The amount provided by the by-law passed by the people would not build the entire bridge, so the Council let so much of the work as they could lawfully pay for, and then unlawfully they finished the work with the people's tax money. They issued debentures to raise the money, but no doubt they only raised in that way what the by-law provided for, and the rest of the money was raised out of taxes levied for other purposes. Was this last money for the finishing the bridge lawfully applied? I respectfully submit it was not.

Now, Mr. Armstrong, will you please enlighten the people by telling them how much money beyond that provided by the by-law was required to finish that bridge and, secondly, where it came from? Who did the work to complete the bridge proper? namely, the coping, hand rail, spandril filling and sidewalks, and greatly oblige,

Your obedient servant,
SENEX.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH TO ATTEND MEETING IN BODY

The congregation of George street Methodist church are invited to attend in a body the meeting in the Brock street tabernacle on Tuesday evening and to occupy a certain portion of the building which will be reserved for them. All who are attendants of this church, young and old, are therefore requested to assemble in the Central Park on George street as near seven o'clock as possible. It is desirable that they leave the park not later than a quarter after seven. If it should be raining they will assemble at the George street church. Every organization is asked to work for a large attendance. District visitors can help greatly by passing the word along to all the families in their territory.

Hawaii Singers and Players in "The Bird of Paradise."

"The Bird of Paradise," Richard Walton Tully's exotic drama, will make its second appearance at "The Grand" next Wednesday, Oct. 9, matinee and night. The piece is referred to as "the play of a woman's soul," and has its settings in the Hawaiian Islands. Against this background of unique beauty is lived rather than acted, a powerful story of two women and their influence upon the lives of the men who love them. One, with the sensuous charm of the young Hawaiian, vows that she will woo her husband and keep him, "by the charm of lips and arms." The other, a snow maiden, says: "I will keep and hold him by the power of the mind." The girls live and love and pay the price of life and love. Then each seems the other and says: "I was wrong. My way has failed. Teach me your way, to win and keep a man's love."

Every woman knows, and every home woman will admit that this is the knowledge she desires beyond all earthly things. She will learn if she sees "The Bird of Paradise."

Miss Rita Romilly, as Luana, Oliver Morosco's nineteen year old leading woman, Guy Harrington, as Paul Wilson; Brandon Evans as the beachcomber, and Miss Jane Haven as Diana, the American girl, are the principal characters, assisted by a lengthy cast, including a quintette of Hawaiian singers and players, whose music gives atmosphere to this compelling play.

Italian Patriot Avenged at Last

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Coresuondent)

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMIES AFIELD, Sept 8. (By Mail.)—After 39 years, almost to the very date, fate has seen to it that Italian vengeance which is long suffering but never forgetting, has been satisfied and the martyrdom by Austrian gendarmes of Cicerruacchio, an ardent Roman patriot, is now avenged on the books of Justice.

In August 1849, following the tragic retreat of Garibaldi over part of the same territory where the Italians are again fighting Austria for complete national and ratial freedom, Cicerruacchio was taken prisoner. Through the initiative of an Austrian gendarme official, he was given a summary court martial and quickly executed. A little later, orders to suspend the sentence came from higher authorities.

A little tablet at Porto Tolle, on the lower Po, marks the spot where Cicerruacchio paid the penalty to Austrian hatred for his efforts in behalf of Italian freedom.

His death like that of thousands of other Italian patriots, who have suffered a similar martyrdom at Austrian hands, went unavenged until August of this year.

On the morning of August 26, during a raid by Austrian airplanes on towns back of the Italian front, an Austrian airplane was brought down above Porto Tolle and fell directly in front of the tablet commemorating the martyrdom of Cicerruacchio.

The two occupants, an Austrian aviation lieutenant and a sergeant escaping from the machine, turned to the tablet expecting to get an idea of their whereabouts, read it, and then turned to find themselves in the hands of Italian gendarmes.

Austria Tries to Charm Serbs

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Coresuondent)

Rome, Sept. 4. (By Mail.)—Martyred Serbia is now being made the victim of one of the most diabolical and insidious forms of propaganda the Austrians have yet devised.

A Solonika, Corfu, Rome, Padis and in fact almost every centre in any of the allied countries, there are scores of Serbian soldiers, whose families, wives, mothers, sisters and children are either interned in Austria or living in Serbia under Austrian domination and surveillance.

These officers, who now have not seen their families for two years, instead of receiving from the latter news that might only stimulate them to greater hatred and greater effort against Austria, receive instead just the contrary.

In fact, the wives, mothers, sisters, sweethearts and daughters of these Serbian officers are encouraged and even helped to dress nicely, to live in such a manner that they will only reflect an unusual degree of physical well-being, but finally to have their photographs taken which the Austrian authorities will kindly allow to be sent by way of Switzerland so the Serbian officers may see how well their families fare under Austrian control, how fat and plump their children are, how well-dressed their wives are, and finally what a mistake it is for these Serbian officers not to give up the struggle and accept Austrian domination, which would mean so much for the welfare of the officers themselves as well as for their families.

WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

Naturally, the women of Serbia, not suspecting always the ulterior design back of these Austrian amenities, and wihing above all that their male relatives in the Serbian army be free from anxiety as to their welfare, often write letters accompanying these photographs telling of their prosperity, well-being and comparative happiness, that might be effective with any one less schooled in the intricacies of Austrian propaganda and Austrian policy than the Serbians.

These, were, in fact, the same tactics adopted by Austria before the war to win over to Austria domination of the Jugo-Slav provinces of Slavonia, Dalmatia and Croatia. In these provinces by construction of schools and colleges and by conferring physical benefits far beyond what Austria was doing for other subjugated provinces, the Duel Monarchy hoped to curry favor of the Jugo-Slav population to a point where it would accept willingly Austrian domination and forget its ideals and instincts for national and racial liberty. The failure of this propaganda is apparent in the present demand of the Jugo-Slav residents of these provinces for the creation of the Jugo-Slav state.

WOULD WIN SERBS OVER

That Austria has not given up her former dreams of complete domination in the Balkans with an outlet to the Mediterranean at Solonika, is indicated also by other forms of propaganda which aim to win Serbia over to Austria.

Throughout the portion of Serbia occupied by the Austrians, the military authorities have limited the requisition of food, live-stock and produce to the minimum quantity, leaving the great bulk with the Serbian peasants.

Simultaneously, Austrian agents through Serbia have begun a propaganda in favor of a plebescite by means of which Austria hopes to get an apparent consent of the Serbian population for Austrian domination.

The suggestion is even made that in the reorganization of Austria into a confederation of states, Serbia would be allowed the same important role as well as the other members of the confederation.

While all this propaganda unquestionably meets with some success, yet from information that constantly finds its way out of Serbia, there is little indication that the Serbian population has been schooled too long in Austrian duplicity to be caught in the net.

Germany's Total Peace Offensive Is Discounted and the criminals who launched the war must be so unmistakenly beaten that no doubt may be raised as to who won it and who lost it."

FRENCH PRESS CONSIDER PEACE IMPOSSIBLE UNDER PRESENT CONDITIONS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, October 7.—Request for an armistice and the opening of peace parleys by the Central Powers is looked upon by the French press generally as an attempt to evade certain disaster. It is declared that Germany hopes to conclude peace which will permit her to exploit the peace treaties of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest, and also save the Hohenzollern dynasty. An armistice under present conditions, the papers think, is impossible. The conditions expressed by the new German Chancellor do not at all correspond with conditions for peace laid down by President Wilson.

GERMANY'S PEACE NOTE WAS DELIVERED THIS MORNING.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, October 7.—(1:15 p.m.)—Germany's peace note was delivered to President Wilson personally by Frederick Oederlin, an attache of the Swedish Embassy. This gave rise to a suggestion that it came from Emperor William himself. The President is preparing the reply this afternoon.

A PROMPT AND DECISIVE REPLY IS LOOKED FOR.

WASHINGTON, October 7.—A prompt and decisive reply to Germany's latest peace proposal is indicated by developments in Washington early to-day.

PARIS, October 7.—Austria-Hungary recently again insisted that the Vatican undertake steps towards peace, it is reported in Rome. The Vatican it is added, rejected the demand.

Onward Ladies' Bible Class of George Street

Officers Elected for the Year—A Presentation.

The Onward Ladies' Bible Class of the George street Methodist church spent a most enjoyable evening at the home of their teacher, Mrs. James Stubbs, Water street, on Thursday evening.

After a few pleasant hours spent together, the officers for the ensuing years were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. Middleton.
Secretary—Miss Mable Roseboro.
Assistant Sec.—Mrs. Allen.
Treasurer—Miss Amy Allen.
Treasurer of King's Bank Book—Mrs. Sanderson.
Assistant Treas. King's Bank Book—Miss Bouck.
Look-Out Committee—Mrs. McMillan, Mrs. Sarginson.

After the election of officers the Onwards presented one of their members Mrs. James Logan (nee Miss Ida Oldfield) who was recently married, with a silver bread tray and other individual gifts from the members of the class.

An address was read by Mrs. Sargison and the presentation by Mrs. Tretheway.

Dear Mrs. Logan:—We, the members of the Onward Young Ladies' Bible Class of the George street S. S. of which you are a member, and having heard of the important step you have taken in changing your name, and taking upon you the duties of married life, we take this opportunity of expressing our pleasure and best wishes to you and your husband.

We wish you all true happiness and a long, happy married life. We remember the many kind acts you have done for us as a class and your ever cheerful help on all occasions. We still count you as one of our number and hope you will still help us with your presence the hour we spend studying God's Word.

Please accept this silver bread tray and the indiviual gifts from the members as a slight token of our esteem, and may they ever remind you of the many happy hours you have spent with us.

Signed on behalf of the Class.

Mrs. Logan made a very suitable reply, thanking the Onwards for their very beautiful presents and also for their many kindnesses which they have shown in the past.

Sunday Service at the Temple

Mrs. Goodwin, of Hart Avenue, Has Knitted 200 Pairs of Socks for Soldiers.

In connection with the visit of the members of the Honeywell Evangelistic party to different churches in the city, Mrs. W. S. Dixon delivered a very helpful and interesting address in the Salvation Army Temple yesterday morning.

It being Harvest Festival Sunday an altar was erected whereon the soldiers and friends placed their special offering while the Temple Band played a suitable selection.

The Temple was tastefully decorated with flowers, fruits and farm produce which was collected and donated by soldiers and friends.

In the afternoon the annual Sunday School rally was held. The scholars, Senior and Bugle bands, Songsters, Guards and Scouts and veterans of the corps gathered at Central Park and marched to the Temple. There were over two hundred on the march and the number would have been much greater but for the cold drizzling rain.

A special programme of suitable recitations and music was given by some of the children, and selections were also rendered by the band and songsters.

Just before the close of the service a bouquet was presented to the oldest lady in the audience who proved to be Mrs. Goodwin of Hart avenue. She is seventy-seven years of age and has knitted two hundred pairs of socks for the soldiers, and has lost one grandson at the front. A silver spoon was also presented to the youngest baby present, the child of Mrs. Richards.

The evening service was of an unusually bright and interesting character, and at the close of the service three men and women sought the face and favour of God.

CALIFORNIA WOMAN GAINED 35 POUNDS

Husband Says He Never in His Life Saw Such a Change in Anyone.

"Positively, I never saw anybody improve like my wife has since she started on Tanlac; she actually gained thirty-five pounds in only six weeks, and if that isn't a wonder I don't know what is," said Harry Clifford, who is in the automobile business and lives at 735-A Crocker St., Los Angeles, the other day.

"For over a week," he continued, "my wife was nothing but a nervous wreck. She had no appetite, and could eat nothing but the lightest kind of diet. Even that would disagree with her, and swell her up with gas that pressed so around her heart that she could hardly get her breath. She suffered constantly from spells of nervousness so that she could hardly sleep, and she would get up in the morning feeling so tired and depressed that she wouldn't be fit for anything all day long. She used to weight one hundred and twenty five pounds, but she fell off in a short while till she was but a shadow of her former self, and got down to ninety pounds. She was losing out day by day and became too weak to look after her household duties. In fact her condition was so serious that I felt uneasy lest she should go all to pieces.

"Well, about six weeks ago I got a bottle of Tanlac for her, and after taking only four bottles of the medicine, she looks like a different woman. Besides regaining all her lost weight, she can eat anything she wants without suffering the least bit of distress afterwards. Her nerves are in fine shape and she sleeps all night like a child. She never complains of that gas trouble or of shortness of breath; the headaches are all gone, and she says that she is simply feeling fine in every way. I can well believe it too, for she is bright and cheerful all the time and I haven't seen her looking so well in many months."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Co.

TSINGTAU BECOMING JAPANESE PITTSBURG

TOKIO, Sept. 2.—(By Mail.)—Since Japan captured Tsingtau from the Germans in 1914, the complexion of that city has become more brunette (with apologies to Pittsburg.) It has become an industrial centre.

"Although Germany occupied this important city more than 17 years, its effort to industrialize Tsingtau met with failure," states an official report issued by the Japanese government. "Up to the outbreak of the war, only a brewery and two flour mills were erected there. Immediately after its occupation by Japan, the Japanese military administration and later, the Japanese civil administration began the encouragement of Japanese industries to build Tsingtau.

"The administration leased land to factory owners at very low rents and promised them exemption from all taxes or levies for certain periods. Electric power was supplied at largely discounted rates and it was arranged for the Shantung railway to discount freight rates on all raw materials or manufactured products carried to or from these Japanese plants.

"The new Tsingtau brewery or the Dai Nippon Brewery Co., is brewing 90,000 cases of beer a year. The output of the Tsingtau Flour Mill Co., is 2,250 sacks a day. Other new factories in Tsingtau or its two factory suberbs, Tai-tung-chien, are making cotton, yarn, salt, albumen, brick, canned provisions, silk, ice, soap, leather goods, bone meal, machines oils and [illegible] 2h.plhah and tools, oils and fats and matches."

Mrs. McIntyre Was Not Debarred From First Aid

The following is a copy of a telegram that was sent to Ottawa in connection with the case of Mrs. McIntyre. The reply, which follows, proves beyond doubt that it was not necessary to break the rules of the Patriotic Fund in order to give assistance in this particular case.

The telegram of inquiry which was sent to the Patriotic Fund, Ottawa, follows:

Is a wife without children, willing worker, in receipt of assigned pay and separation allowance, husband at the front, who has lost all her resources through many operations and loss of health, absolutely debarred by rules of Patriotic Fund from Fund aid in paying medical and hospital bills?

The reply follows:

The Reply.

Patriotic Fund rules by no means prohibit assistance being given in such a case as your telegram refers to, but local committees have absolute discretion.

"Slum" Is Good Enough For McIntyre Girls

By FRANK J. TAYLOR
(United Press Staff Coresuondent)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept 3. (By Mail.)—"It's been mostly slum for the last couple of weeks," was the way the Salvation army sisters, Miss Gladys and Irene McIntyre, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., replied to the question as to whether they had good food at the front.

Miss Irene, with her sleeves rolled up to her elbows, and flour spattered overe her apron, did the talking, as she rolled doughnut dough and cut out doughnuts, while Miss Gladys fried them in the outdoor kettle they had arranged over an open fire. They had no stove at this "hut."

"We had to make the most of the situation out here," said Miss Irene. "When we came out there was nothing to cook with at all. So we built a sort of campfire place. We haven't made a pie for three weeks, because we haven't any oven. We'll be forgetting how if they don't get us an oven. But the boys here get lots of doughnuts.

"It's a little harder to work here than where we were before. In the daytime, the only road to this little battered town, is under constant observation by the boches, and its impossible to bring in supplies except at night they don't bring any more than necessary. So we've had little fresh food or canned fruit—it's mostly slum, just as the boys have, but it's plenty."

"Slum" is army stew. The girls could have had special food, as they neglected to tell. But they used it when the soldiers were tied fresh food. "Slum" was good enough, they said.

Patriotic Concert Held in Warsa

A very entertaining concert was given in the Town Hall on the evening of the Warsaw school fair, Sept. Each school taking part in the contributed to the programme. The chair was ably filled by Dr. Mur and the proceeds, amounting to over $55, went for patriotic purposes.

The Bantam contest was won by Miss Birdie Graystock, who at o had the Bantams, auctioned off, and the proceeds handed over to the schoolchildren's patriotic fund for the day.

The total amount cleared by children for patriotic purposes on fair day was over $113.00.

SPANISH "FLU" IN BROWNTON.

Two cases of Spanish influenza are reported from Brownton. The patients are officers in the Salvation Army corps. So far these and other cases have not been definitely diagnosed by the doctors in attendance. The latter freely admit that it is difficult to determine whether the cases reported so far are really Spanish influenza or merely an aggravated form of cold.

Mysterious Cold Which is Prevalent in Peterboro Is Thought to be Spanish "Flu"

One Serious Case Has Developed Into Pneumonia—Peterboro Nurse Stricken in England.

Rumours of Spanish influenza about the city have been authenticated to a certain degree by Dr. C. H. Amys, M.H.O., who said this morning that while no serious cases have been reported to him, he believes that a mysterious cold which is prevalent, is really the dreaded "flu" in a mild form. Over the week end one serious case of suspected influenza developed into pneumonia and was taken to Nicholls Hospital, where the victim lies very seriously ill.

Local Nurses Go East.

In the east the epidemic has spread to such an extent that several local nurses have gone to help out, and voluntary services are being called for to assist. On Friday the Board of Health in Ottawa, backed by the Medico-Chisurgical Society took drastic action in closing all seminaries and schools to day pupils, all places used for entertainment or public gatherings and all public assemblies except assemblies for divine worship. The churches will be requested to discontinue services until further notice.

Protect Yourself Against Spanish Influenza

A Dangerous Epidemic That is Prevalent Throughout Canada

This disease which is now prevalent throughout Ontario, is "Epidemic Catarrh," characterized by acute inflammation of the mucous membrane of the air passages, attended by severe constitutional disturbances followed by general debility and frequently develops into an attack of pneumonia.

It is highly infectious and every precaution should oe taken to avoid contracting this dreaded disease.

Don't put unclean things into the mouth. Keep the hands clean, and wash the mouth and gargle the throat once or twice a day with "PYROLL."

While this epidemic is prevalent, people cannot be too cautious and careful and everybody, and especially those attending schools or places where a number of people gather, should use "PYROLL," which is recommended by doctors and dentists as the best antiseptic and mouth wash to prevent this disease. mwf-6d 82

Raising Class Barriers.

(Vancouver Province.)

For a generation past the tendency has been to separate employers and employed into different camps, the one openly teaching and promoting a class consciousness of its own, the other promoting such a consciousness without openly teaching it. The doctrine that the class should include the proprietors and workers in the same industry, and that they should share in determining the conditions, rewards and domestic control of the business, may not be acceptable to those employers who think that they have a right to dictate everything in the shop, or to those workers who wish to abolish wage service altogether. But for the present it is the way of peace.

COMPULSORY MUSIC EDUCATION IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS PREDICTED

" I should not be surprised as one of the results of the war, to see the study of music compulsory in our public schools because of its demonstrated value in many phases of military and patriotic matters."

These were the words spoken by a man whose work lay in teaching aviators, training young men for wireless work, signalling and so on. He had just paid a visit to a station where about forty or fifty young men were learning to send and take simple messages by Morse code. The teacher himself was a man with a good knowledge of music, and he stated that the marked difference in the abilities of the various pupils to acquire skill in their work was in a great measure attributable to whether or not they had received previous musical education. Those who had done so were much quicker in detecting sounds and recognizing sound values, while the trained and thereby more accurate sense of rhythm proved a great help.

This simply bears out one of the many strong arguments brought forward in favor of music being made a compulsory subject in the school curriculum, that it is undoubtedly beneficial in creating in the children alertness and precision of thought.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,— A distinguished visitor has said: Experience is going through a thing yourself, and have it go through you. A man knows only what he experiences, what he goes through. What goes through him he knows only, what he is, what he is certain of, and he is certain of only that which he experiences. Experience is weaving fact into the fabric of your life. Experience is sowing truth in actual personal occurrences.

Experience is Shadrach Meshach and Abednego sayin, "Oh Nebuchadnezar we are not careful to answer thee in this matter if be so our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning, fiery furnace and he will deliver us out of thine hand, oh king. But if not, be it known unto thee oh king, that we will not serve thy god oh kings, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up, and after the king saying so, I see four men loose walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt, and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God.—3rd chap. Daniel.

Experience is an earnest Christian living a life of prayer and realizing God's power in his life, but he cannot know the meaning of the word trust as George Mueller knew it, when he might waken in the morning with not enough food on hand for the breakfast only an hour off; of the two thousand orphans under his care, and in answer to his waiting prayer have all satisfied at the usual breakfast hour.

Our Saviour spent much time, as given in John, chapters 13 to 17, with his disciples in the last few days of his journey, here impressing upon them the fact that it was expedient for you that I go away; if I go not away the comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart I will send him unto you yes. But the comforter which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in My name, he shall teach you all things and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.—John, 14 and 26.

Now through some weakness during the past two years I have been carried out of church, also being put and carried off the boat by kindly hands and driven home. And by the advice of physicians remained out of church about ten months. After that I got two friends to go with me and take care of me. After when I failed to get anyone to go and take care of me I said there was a power above man, whoever he is, and to this hour, whether on street or in church I have been upheld. I might say I have loved the church, having been a member for full 56 years. I have never known this experience as I have known it lately. The Bible appears like a grander book. Oh what spiritual food for a dying man. Able to do, exceeding abundantly above all we can ask or think.

If ye abide in Me and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you.—John, 15: 7.

For the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God.—John, 16: 27.

J. H. TAYLOR.

Instinct of the Mudfish.

The remarkable instinct which causes the mudfish to roll himself in a ball of mud when the dry season approaches is a wonderful provision of nature, intended solely, it would seem, to prevent the extinction of the species. The most interesting fact about this fish is that it breathes by means of its gills when in its native element and by means of lungs during its voluntary imprisonment in the mud cocoon.

Strictly Business.

"I always read one of Thackeray's novels two or three times."

"I don't want mine read that way," said the compiler of best sellers. "By the time you finish one of my novels I have another ready at a dollar fifty."

Proving Their Sincerity.

(London Times.)

The Americans are, indeed, idealists as the "Arbeiter Zeitung" and Herr arden understand—but they are not oftjes." They are judges of facts d of men, as hard-headed as our wn people—perhaps they are the ore hard-headed of the two. They ill begin to believe in the conver...ion of the Germans when Germany rings forth fruits meet for repent...nce; not before. A voluntary withdrawal within her own territories and surrender of all the loot in her possession, as first steps, might produce some impression that she was sincere. But insolence in March, followed by whining in August, excites nothing but contempt in the stalwart democracies on both sides of the ocean. In their uncourtly way they bethink them of the old adage:—

"When the Devil was sick the Devil a saint would be,
"But when the Devil was well, the Devil a saint was he."

Fat Crystals.

If small quantities of butter, lard and beef fat be separately boiled and slowly cooled for, say, twenty-four hours, the resulting crystals will show very marked differences under the microscope. The normal butter crystal is large and globular. It polarizes brilliantly and shows a well marked St. Andrew's cross. That of lard shows a stellar form, while that of beef fat has a foliated appearance. In course of time, as the butter loses its freshness, the globular crystal degenerates and gradually merges into peculiar rosette-like forms.

The Nitrate Industry.

Great as the nitrate industry of Chile is, the beds themselves are seldom of vast size, though they spread over large areas. Occasionally the nitrate is found within a foot or two of the surface, and at other times it is twenty feet deep.

He Cannot Sleep

IT isn't the body that craves rest, but the mind.

When you are bodily tired you can usually fall to sleep at the first opportunity.

But when the nerves are irritated by anxiety and worry rest and sleep seem to be impossible.

The mind seems to be most alert, and you are thinking, thinking, thinking—first of one thing and then of another—often matters of little or no importance. But you simply cannot sleep.

Sleeplessness is the most common and often the first indication of a breaking down of the nervous system.

The object of sleep is to allow the body to rebuild tissue and the nerves to recover tone. Sleep is the ideal condition for this process.

If you cannot sleep you worry, and worry breaks down nerve cells at a tremendous rate, so that instead of laying up nerve force for the demands of the day you are using up the reserve.

The nerve centres are sometimes likened to storage batteries. If you continue to consume the nervous energy in reserve, without paying back, these centres become sooner or later depleted, and you find yourself a nervous wreck.

After a sleepless night you get up feeling tired and lacking in mental energy. Your day's work seems more than you can face, and you become down-hearted and discouraged.

The future is not bright, for you must realize that the natural result is exhausted nerves, paralysis, locomotor ataxia or some form of helplessness.

In Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is found the most natural and the most rational treatment for the nerves imaginable, because this food cure contains the vital substances which go to the building up of the blood and the depleted nerve cells.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does not induce sleep, but it does restore the nervous system, and after you have been using it for a few days you will begin to find yourself resting and sleeping naturally.

A little patience is necessary if your nervous system is greatly exhausted, but you will be encouraged by the benefits obtained to keep up the treatment until the exhausted nerves are fully restored, and you feel the energy and snap which means success and happiness.

In Tropical Countries Liver Chill Very Common

In Northern latitudes also the liver is a very unruly organ, and requires careful watching. The concentrated vegetable juices in Dr. Hamilton's Pills act directly upon the liver and stimulate its action to a normal basis. The blood is purified, the skin grows clear, headaches disappear and robust health is firmly established. No medicine for the stomach, liver or kidneys can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. box at all dealers.

THE WIFE
BY JANE PHELPS

RUTH MADDON AND BRIAN HACKETT ARE MARRIED

CHAPTER VII.

It was a very brave little bride who made her responses in a clear musical voice and who accepted the congratulations of her friends. As Ruth looked at her stalwart, handsome husband, she had no thought of fear, no misgivings as to the future.

Then at the breakfast, to which only intimates had been invited, she shed a few tears as she clung to her was gaily happy. She had trustfully given herself to Brian Hackett, having absolutely no realization of what that giving meant.

When the parting finally came, after the big trunks, containing her extensive wardrobe had gone, Ruth aunt—the woman who had been mother, father, everything to her. And whom she had displeased by marrying Brian Hackett.

Not that Mrs. Clayborne showed her displeasure; she was too thoroughly a woman of the world to show her feelings. But Ruth knew it and the fact tinged her happiness ever so little, while it did not materially affect her.

But, when, as the train sped North and in the seclusion of the drawing room, Brian took her in his arms and murmered:

"My precious little wife," she forgot everything save that she was with him, and that she was happy.

Atlantic City was their Mecca for their honeymoon. There, by the sea, they would learn to know each other in a way that had been impossible to them in Brian's infrequent visits South.

Ruth was delighted. She was like a child in her joy at everything she saw and did. Brian was delighted to see the envious glances cast upon him as he walked beside his superbly gowned bride. Delighted, too, because she was so wholly interested in him that there was no room for jealousy.

Brian had no faintest notion of what his bride's trousseau had cost. Had he, it might have frightened him and taken a bit from the pride with which he regarded her, and the admiration she evoked. That it represented far more than he earned in a year, is a fact that would have seemed almost unbelievable to him. Women's clothes, their cost, was a sealed book to him. He had left home early; his parents were in such humble circumstances that he really had had no opportunity to learn anything of the cost of feminine "fol-de-rols"—as he called everything from Ruth's dainty slippers to her expensive hats and parasols.

So, as "ignorance is bliss," he was blissfully unconscious of what it had cost to clothe his stylish wife, and he walked or rode on the board walk with her as happy as a bridegroom very much in love with his bride could be.

And Ruth! just to see him, be with him, the changing colors reflected in the water—to listen to the swish of the tides as they rolled out and in—just to watch the sun sink rosily crimson behind the clouds, their edges touched with crimson and gold—was to her, intense delight. Her artistic nature reveled in the beauties of the sea, and she would exclaim, in her joy, when gazing at them:

"I could stay here forever with you and watch the water and the sky!"

"I should have to have a pretty big bank roll to let you spend your life at Atlantic City," Brain once replied, figuring in his mind how much longer they could remain. Ruth was not any more economical over ordering food and extras, than she had been in buying her clothes. And, at times, it was really hard for Brian. He wanted to curb her, to tell her they could not afford all the delicacies of the table, and that she ought not to patronize the smart shops on the board walk. But it is not easy to tell a bride of a week those things, especially when she does it all as a matter of course. To Ruth it was only natural to order what she wanted to eat; or, if she saw some lovely trinket in a smart shop, to run in and buy it. What was money for, if not to spend? She would doubtless have asked, had she been questioned.

But a little before the proposed two weeks were up, Brian pleaded a business call and they left for New York, their future home.

"Time we did, too!" Brian muttered, as he looked at his slim roll, after he had paid his bill. "Hardly enough left to get to New York. I should have known better than to come here."

"How I hate to go, dear," Ruth said, as she packed their belongings after calling for a maid to assist her. "I should love to stay. We must run down here often. You know, I have never been by the sea before and it fascinates me."

"Yes, we'll run down occasionally," Brian returned as, at a motion from Ruth he fished up a fifty cent piece for the maid and grudgingly gave it to her. He must tell Ruth that they couldn't afford to give many tips.

Ruth, not knowing the thoughts running through Brian's mind, chatted on unconcernedly. She was all ready and proposed that they take one more turn on the board walk before they left.

"All right, dear, come on." And, linking arms, they walked for an hour saying "goodbye" to the sea, as Ruth quaintly expressed it.

"Good bye, and—good riddance!" Brian muttered to himself, as he thought of his depleted roll.

THOUSANDS ON FARMS

Over 7,500 Persons Were Placed on Farms This Year.

Experience Shows Cold Nights Lowers Milk Flow When Cows Are Left In Fields.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

SINCE Oct. 31st, 1917, the Ontario Government Public Employment Bureau have secured employment for 19,000 persons, of which 7,016 were men and 11,984 women. This work has been accomplished for the most part through the efforts of the offices at Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton and London. Since April, however, new bureaus have been opened at Kingston, Port Arthur and Fort William.

In order that the best results might be gained through the campaigns for farm laborers the efforts of the Trades and Labor Branch, the Organization of Resources Committee and the Agricultural Representatives were co-ordinated. The province was divided into six districts, each centering around one of the bureaus. The organization is now such that each county, through the Agricultural Representative, is kept in touch with one of the Employment Bureaus. Thus the surplus labor in one part of the province may be shifted to a part where a scarcity is felt. Any farmer in Ontario, by communicating with the Agricultural Representative for his county, may learn how farm help can be obtained.

To date 7,800 persons have been placed on Ontario farms. Of these some 3,300 were men, 2,140 boys and 1,260 women. Several campaigns have been launched including, "Soldiers of the Soil" (boys between 14 and 19 years), "Haying and Harvest," "Sugar Beet Hoeing," "Threshing and Fall Ploughing," and "Flax Pulling." Over 250 boys were sent to the sugar beet fields of the Chatham district, and 125 are now pulling flax.

Of the 1,260 women sent the majority are on fruit farms. An effort was made at the Toronto office to send women to assist in the farm kitchens with the result that 70 women have gone to this work. During the winter a class was organized for the purpose of giving girls a training in chore work on the farm. In April a course was opened, at the Ontario Agricultural College, where about 150 women and girls have gone out to assist on mixed farms throughout the province. The results achieved by these women have been satisfactory from the standpoint of the farmer.

It is the desire of the Department that every farmer in need of help is supplied with suitable and satisfactory assistance, and it is toward this end that our offices are organized and into the fulfilling of which practically all the energy of our staff is put.

On account of the supreme importance of food production the greatest amount of effort, in all offices, has been put forth toward recruiting and placing men on farms, yet a large number of people have secured positions in other lines of work. Eight hundred and seventy-one men have been placed at factory and munition work, 3,200 general laborers, 3,000 builders and 1,624 at miscellaneous occupations. Women have been placed as follows: 1,690 domestics; 1,273 munition and factory workers, and 1,700 at clerical and miscellaneous occupations.—Dr. W. A. Riddell, Superintendent, Ontario Trades and Labor Branch.

Prevent Great Farm Loss.

If, through better care and management, the average life of farm machines could be increased by a single year what a tremendous saving would be effected. The amount a farmer loses each year through neglect of his machinery would pay for the erection of a plain weather-proof shed that would keep them in good condition.—Prof. John Evans, O. A. College, Guelph.

Keep Cows Inside During Cold Nights.

The season for cold nights will be here all too soon, in this northern climate. While it is true that keeping the cows inside means more labor in cleaning the stable and more difficulty in keeping the cows clean, the extra fertilizing material collected in this way will probably pay for the extra labor. If this does not, the extra supply of milk received by keeping the cows in a comfortable stable at times when the temperature drops below freezing-point, will do so. Experience shows that cold has a very marked effect in lessening the milk flow, particularly for cows that have been milking for some time, when the natural tendency is for the cow to dry up and during which time every means should be adopted to keep the cow milking. Cows should milk at least ten months of the year. Leaving cows out of doors on cold nights, after they have been milking for six or eight months, makes a greater tendency for these cows to go dry.

Where cows are kept inside, the stable should be cleaned regularly and some absorbent material like sawdust, shavings, chaff, or cut-straw, should be scattered along the passages, on the platform, and in the gutter. This helps very much in cleaning the stable and in keeping the cows clean.

Another advantage of stabling on frosty nights, is that it prevents the cows eating frozen feed, which is generally considered to be injurious to milk cows. They may be kept in the stable or yard until after the pasture thaws, and in this way the animals are protected against digestive troubles, and conditions are more favorable for maintaining the health and milk-flow of the animals.—Prof. H. H. Dean, O. A. College, Guelph.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, cold; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not disturb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

How Bamboos Bloom.

Bamboo plants are said to have the peculiarity of blooming at exactly the same time, whether in Europe or Africa, the difference in climate and surroundings seeming to make no change in the plants bursting into flower. They blossom rarely, but as they die immediately afterward this cannot be deplored. The plant is said to be exquisitely graceful and is easily cultivated.

That Sinking Feeling.

Sometimes a simple phrase will tell more than a volume of description. In such a phrase a sailor describes his sensations on going under fire for the first time. "It was," he says, "as if some one had given me a smack below the chest with the flat of a heavy spade."

His Title.

"If it were customary in this country to confer titles upon men who go in for literature, what would I be?" asked a conceited journalist of his senior.

Settled the Difficulty.

An insurance agent had vainly tried to persuade a man to insure his valuables against burglars. "A safe's all very well," he admitted, "but look at the constant trouble of locking up and unlocking to see if your things are all right."

"I've got over that difficulty," declared the weary listener.

"Indeed!" said the agent incredulously. "How?"

"I've had a window put in the safe," growled the other.

Money and Politics.

In his reminiscences Grover Cleveland George F. Parker tells a story of the prodigal expenditures in politics. A rich man who had been nibbling at the Democratic nomination for governor of New York met William C. Whitney's advice. This the advice: "Of course you ought to run. Make your preliminary canvass, and when you have put in $200,000 you will have become so much interested in it that you will feel like going ahead and spending some money."

Turtles of the Amazon.

The fresh water turtles of the Amazon grows to a great size, especially on the upper river, where specimens grown ones three feet in length, two feet in width and weighing 200 pounds are often seen. Every house has its little pond or corral to hold a stock of these animals through the season of rain, the wet months. Those who buy Indians in their employ send them out for a month when the waters are low to select a stock; others purchase their supply.

Wills in Argentina.

In Argentina the laws provide that a father must leave his children four-fifths of his fortune, and a husband, if he has no children, has to leave half of his property to his wife. An unmarried son is compelled to leave his parents two-thirds of his property, and only unmarried persons without parents or descendants can make wills disposing of their possessions as they see fit.

Not a Corn or Callus on Feet

Apply few drops, then lift them off without pain.

A noted Cincinnati authority discovered a new ether compound and called it freezone and it now can be had in little bottles for a few cents from any drug store.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off with fingers.

No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying freezone or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses, just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! It works like a charm. Try it!

Women should keep freezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Soldier's Idyl

By JESSE ETHEL SHERWIN

Every mother was in tears, ever sister looked sad. Only the thoughtless sweethearts and those who had no relative going to the front seemed indifferent to the occasion.

It was a pathetic picture, for all the brave or mock-buoyant bearing of the boys in khaki. In the minds of all was the sorrowful knowledge that many among the odd five hundred recruits leaving the training camp for an eastern shipping point, were viewing friends and home for the last time.

As to the soldiers, every man was erect, bright-eyed, laughing, joking and singing. One fair-haired fellow seemed to be the prime favorite of the group with whom he marched.

"All got your troubles, fellows!" he jollied. "Free from care I—tra-la-la! Not a living relative in the world, so no weepers, and if I 'get it' on some lone hill, why, no mourners."

There was a tug at his arm as he ranged up with the others on the depot platform to await the backing in of the train. He turned, off came his hat, a gratified flush crossed his face.

"If you please, Mr. Wilbur," spoke a shy, lovely, dimpled girl, scarcely his own age. "Could mamma say good-by to you?"

Roy Wilbur had said he had no relatives or friends in particular. He recognized his mistake. Was not Eva Burt here at his side? And her mother had sent for him! And because he had been poor and obscure he had never dared to raise his eyes with the fervor he inwardly experienced, but now a sudden hope inspired him.

"You have neglected us of late, Mr. Wilbur," spoke Mrs. Burt, but her tones were indulgent, almost caressing. No one could resist the appeal of that boyish, ingenious face and the pathos of his environment.

"Training camp—getting ready to leave," and like fragments of explanation tided Roy through a confused apology.

"We shall think of you wearing this in the trenches," continued Mrs. Burt, handing Roy a parcel containing a sweater. "Home-made, and especially for you, and Eva—"

The young girl fluttered like a timid bird. "It is only a little comfort Mr. Wilbur," she said.

Their eyes met as he accepted the little package. Then Eva Burt burst into tears and hid her face against her mother's arm.

"Poor boy!" said Mrs. Burt, herself deeply affected, and her hand rested upon the uncovered head with a gentleness of a blessing. "I know you will make us all proud of you."

A quick order came from an officer, and, waving his hand in adieu, Roy hastened back into the ranks, a new ideal come into his life at that moment.

"Strike her up!" hailed a comrade, and the unslung ukelele twanged out a melody he could now inspire with genuine appropriation and fervor, "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

At the open window of the passenger coach he was going over the sprightly air to the accompaniment of the voices of his comrades, when the train started up. In the near distance Mrs. Burt was waving her handkerchief in adieu. Eva, standing just behind her, kissed her hand to him. He thrilled. He was no longer friendless nor lonely.

"You're putting the right punch into that song," enthused a fellow soldier, and every note brought new life and courage to dashing, reckless, single-hearted Roy Wilbur.

In the trenches the whimsical little instrument did its cheering duty, and its lovable owner was the soul of that jollity which makes hardship endurable. One night Roy was returning from a visit to a near camp, when a portion of the brigade to which he belonged swept by him, bent on capturing a redoubt somewhat ahead. As he drew aside to let them pass a shell burst directly over his head. He was thrown prostrate, with a dozen ugly wounds.

Roy lay there awaiting the coming of an ambulance following the troop. He was faint, in pain and dangerously hurt, but he unslung the ukelele with which he had been entertaining the camp he had visited. Out upon the clear air rang the notes of his favorite air, encouraging those on the march, and they broke out into resounding cheers.

Roy Wilbur was taken to the hospital, to collapse. Then there was fever, delirium, two months' convalescence, and one fair, sunny morning the chief surgeon pronounced him on the way to recovery.

"Where's my ukelele? I want to celebrate!" were almost the first words Roy spoke, all his old sprightliness coming back to him.

"What do you want with it?" questioned his attendant.

"Want to play, 'The Girl I Left Behind Me!'"

"I'll send it in."

"Wonder if she ever thought of me?" ruminated Roy. "Wonder if—"

"They sent this in," spoke shy, but tender tones, and a girl in the garb of a Red Cross nurse entered the room, the cherished ukelele in hand.

Roy looked up, wondering, then radiant. The girl looked down, delightfully, blushing and quivering with emotion.

At the side of Roy Wilbur stood "the girl he had left behind him!"

Rich Loot for Huns.

The Cathedral of the Holy Saviour in Moscow, says Stray Stories, is probably the most magnificent church in the world. Its five cupolas are covered with pure gold one-half inch in thickness. Its internal decorations are magnificent and very costly. This church is the nation's thank offering for the deliverance of Moscow from the French. It took fifty years to build, and its cost has been estimated at $160,000,000.

In the Cathedral of the Assumption, situated inside the Kremlin, is the most sacred picture of Russia, the Virgin of Vladimir, said to be painted by St. Luke. The jewels which adorn it are valued at $1,250,000, one emerald alone being said to be worth $250,000. Napoleon took from the church five tons of silver and 500 pounds of gold, but its most precious treasures were concealed previous to the French invasion, and afterward restored.

Nearby is the Cathedral of the Annunciation, with its many golden domes. It has a pavement of agate and jasper. The celebrated icon of the Virgin of the Don is its most prized possession.

The dome of St. Isaac's Cathedral in Petrograd, from which the Royalists fired machine guns during the revolution, is the most conspicuous object in the capital. It is covered with copper overlaid with pure gold, no less than $1,000,000 of gold being melted down for the purpose. The total cost of this cathedral is estimated at $125,000,000.

German Youth Bad.

The moral deterioration of the German nation in consequence of war time trials is greatly troubling clear-minded observers of the Fatherland. The Lutheran Synod of Berlin, the other day called a special meeting to discuss how to deal with the dissolute ways of the thousands of young munition workers, male and female, who habitually squander their high wages in riotous living and immorality. It was agreed that most of the youth of the country seemed to be entirely beyond control.

Much has already been written about the unsafety of the public street, and the general callous indifference to the sufferings of others. This seems to apply to the whole of Germany.

"Every man's hand seems to be against his neighbor," the Cologne Gazette despairingly exclaims, and it devotes a whole article to the intense if latent anger of the populace at the extortions to which it is subjected by the unscrupulous methods of tradesmen, who in their turn are made the victims of deficient Government control and the usurious practices of producers.

Popular discontent is fanned by announcement of extravagant profits such as those made by a meat firm which supplies the army. It operated with a capital of 1,000,000 marks, and in one year netted a profit of 722,638 marks.

Sarcastic comment abounds in respect of the newly rich, who flaunt their recently-acquired wealth in the faces of their less favored fellow-citizens. The vulgarian who at a restaurant calls for "three times a portion of whatever is most expensive" is a standing type.

The money is yours!

You have earned it.
But—

Will you use it for Canada or against Canada? Will you save your money and help to shorten the War? Or will you buy what you want, go wherever your pleasure dictates, dress as well or better than you always have dressed, indulge such whims as you can afford?

You must choose

The money is your own to do as you like with. But when you buy what you do not need—urgently need—your money actually works against Canada. For, it represents precious materials and labor, both of which are absolutely essential to the army. Your money uselessly spent delays all-important war work—merely for your self-indulgence.

You would not, knowingly, stop the progress of Canada's war efforts. You would not prolong the war. You would not let your money work for Germany. But it is possible that unwittingly you are doing this very thing.

Remember Canada's need.

Let not Canada's sacrifice go for naught.

Thrift, self-denial, patriotic privation, give us who stay at home the glorious privilege of a share in the great struggle for human freedom.

Save your money for Canada, and for Canada's fighting men.

Save your money to bring nearer that day we all long for—the Victorious end of the War.

LEMON JUICE TAKES OFF TAN

Girls! Make bleaching lotion if skin is sunburned, tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very, small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons, and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear, and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

As a matter of fact, very few excuses ever excuse.

FINANCIAL SENSE.

Take Care of What You Earn and Then Invest It Wisely.

The greatest financial genius I ever knew and the richest man I ever knew personally once said to me:

"There is no greater financial genius possible than taking care of what you earn, and there is no better or surer way of taking care of your surplus than to invest it in sound securities paying 5 or 6 per cent. And such securities are easy to find any day of any year. So any man may be a financial genius if he will exercise the simplest common sense."

I protested that it would be said of such a man that he was narrow and selfish.

"Nonsense," the financial genius replied. "I have money invested in railroads, in packing houses and in manufacturing enterprises. Could money be invested more usefully? Yet it is as safe as government bonds and pays a better rate of interest. I invest my own money, but a man without financial experience may secure safe investments without difficulty. If a man has a bank account his banker will find safe investments for him. Bankers are men of financial experience, and 90 per cent of them are intelligent and honorable. There is no excuse for a busy man losing his savings. Many women, when they come into possession of money, lose it because they invest it in schemes bankers would not trust, or else the women loan their money to men who could not borrow money at a bank. Everything in life is simple and easy if we would only accept experience and be careful of big and sentimental notions. Financial sense is knowing that certain men will promise to do certain things and fail. Therefore when you invest your savings get security. And it is no more trouble to get good security than it is to get bad if you are guided by common sense and experience."

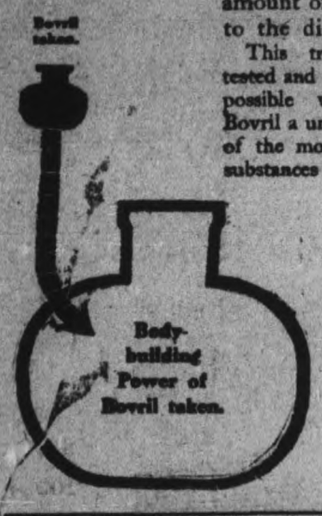
Enormous Food Value of BOVRIL

Proved by World-Famed Scientist at instigation of British Government Department

The great body-building power of Bovril does not admit of argument. It is proved, just as the circulation of the blood is proved, or the law of gravity.

The independent experiments carried out by an eminent physiologist under the most complete scientific control, proved the notable body-building powers of Bovril. The experiments were conducted with human subjects, on a standard diet, and the increase in weight was never less than 10 (and it actually in some cases reached 20) times the amount of Bovril added to the diet.

This tremendous fact, tested and proved in every possible way, has given Bovril a unique place as one of the most precious food substances in the world.



BOVRIL stands alone

OUR KHAKI SETTLERS

SOLDIERS SEE PROSPERITY AHEAD FOR KAPUSKASING.

Although Veterans Are Unused to Bush Life, They Find the Change Agreeable and the Germans Imprisoned In Neighboring Internment Camp Prove a Source of Entertainment.

THERE is profit and pleasure, labor and loss ahead of the soldier settlers at Kapuskasing, but they only see peace and prosperity ahead. Across the river from the soldier settlement the finest band in Canada played magnificent melodies Sunday afternoon. The bandsmen are interned German musicians, who plan a triumphal tour through the Fatherland when, as they hope, the Kaiser wins his final victory, but the soldier settlers only enjoy the triumphant strains, and pay little heed to the expressed desires of the alien artists.

Seventy returned men are there to-day. Forty-four of them have selected one-hundred acre lots in the township. Five of them are already in their log cabins on the farm sites, and twenty more will be settled this month. They are clearing stumps as rapidly as old-time bush farmers did. White spruce, tamarac, silver birch and balsam is easily removed, but the snaky roots of the Balm of Gilead (white poplar) are hard to pull out. French-Canadian Roman Catholics in this section of the north land regard the last named tree with almost superstitious awe. They will not use this timber for building purposes. They believe it was from a tree of that kind the cross of Calvary was made. The soldier settlers lack superstition. They use the wood without fear of evil result.

One settler, who fought with the Princess Patricias, is the live stock king of the settlement. He has six pigs, twenty-five chickens, and two hundred rabbits, and will soon have horses and oxen. He already figures on $200 profit on his pigs. Since December 10th last his hens have laid an egg a day. He has designs on the vegetable market. If his present plans are successfully carried out he will produce from the virgin soil of his farm this season forty thousand head of cabbage, besides crops of other kinds.

They have no complaints, the soldiers who have settled beside the Kapuskasing. Early discomforts and winter cold have been forgotten since the ice broke on the river. Their cleared lands are almost ready for the plough. Those already settled on their lots labor cheerfully from daylight to dark. They feel they are working for future prosperity, making a place for their children's children.

Those blessed with foresighted vision even see the time when their descendants will boast of their ancestry as proudly as the descendants of the U. E. L. do in older Canada to-day.

Few of the men ever worked in the bush before they went to Kapuskasing. Their wives and families have taken as kindly to it as they. The twenty-year-old daughter of one says she will never return to the city, even if the settlement is not a success and all her kin are driven back to old Ontario. She works as hard as her father works, and he is the oldest man of all there. For twenty years his one ambition has been to own a farm. His dreams are becoming realities at Kapuskasing. He has fought all over the empire, during thirty years of service.

The market for the produce of the soldier settlers is assured. A two-million-dollar pulp mill will be erected in the near future. To operate the plant twenty-eight to thirty thousand horse-power will be generated at the Big Beaver Falls, where the waters of Kapuskasing leap 45 feet in three successive strides. The flow is certain. The river takes its rise in the lake of the same name 75 miles above the settlement. It joins the Matagami miles below, later links up with the Moose river and then finds entrance to Hudson' Bay by way of James Bay.

The rugged beauty of New Ontario cannot surpass in any place the picture presented where the Kapuskasing flows. The waters to-day are tinged with the stain of the bush. Watching them where they glide above the falls, one is impressed by the deep, rich dark brown flood sliding over the rocks and there breaking into cream-crested billows of beauty. There are 650 interned aliens at Kapuskasing. During the first year of the war, Col. Fred Clarke, who has since won the D.S.O. with the railway troops in Flanders, succeeded in getting them to clear seven hundred acres of land and construct thirty-five miles of Government road. About the time of his giving up that command, Germans joining their brethren there brought a story of great punishment for those Huns who labored for the good of the enemy. Work was abandoned and it seemed that till the end of the war Canada would have to provide all the labor required to keep our interned enemies content.

Peaceful persuasion has induced 50 per cent. of them to do the necessary work of the compound. Germany and Britain have agreed that civilian prisoners of war may volunteer for work of that nature in the vicinity of their place of imprisonment for their own needs and not to benefit their guardians. The Canadian Government is observing that agreement in its treatment of the aliens at Kapuskasing. Their movements are restricted, the guard is strict and few dare to venture a break for freedom, because they fear the miles of bush they must penetrate to win clear.

The bodies of twelve of them who did not die in the bush, lie in a graveyard east of the camp. Those who are left in captivity believe that the day will come when the Kaiser himself will set them free again.

THE CURIOUS BANANA TREE.

A Plant That Will Practically Grow While You Wait.

If a good sized, healthy banana tree is cut off a few feet above the ground during the wet season the tree will not die, but nine times out of ten will send up a new shoot from the center of the trunk and will grow fast enough to make up for lost time, for within forty-eight hours it will rear waving green leaves triumphantly above the severed trunk.

The secret lies in the fact that the trunk of the banana tree is not hard and woody like other trees, but is really composed of undeveloped leaves wrapped tightly together in a spiral form. When the tree grows these rolled up leaves push upward and merely unroll. Thus no time is lost in forming buds and growing leaves as do ordinary trees. When the trunk is cut off it doesn't interfere with the growth of the leaves, because they are always pushing up from the center of the stalk. If you will roll a sheet of paper tightly and push against one end you will see exactly how the leaves are pushed up from the trunk of the banana tree, and if you cut the roll in two you will find that it doesn't prevent you from pushing out the center of the roll as before.

Although the banana tree repairs an injury so rapidly and well, the shoot formed from the cut stalk seldom bears fruit or flowers. As these shoots are taller and stronger than the original trees, however, they are much better adapted to withstand wind and storms, and the natives frequently cut the banana trees in order to force them to produce the strong, fruitless growth and to serve as windbreaks for other crops.

Expecting Another Drop.

Some time ago Mrs. Green called on her friend, Mrs. White, and, after clutching, kissing and saying how dreadfully delighted they were to see each other, they turned to the interesting topics of the day.

"By the way," said Mrs. Green after a time, "I haven't heard anything about Eva's divorce lately. I wonder what has become of it?"

"I heard a few days ago that she had dropped all proceedings," answered Mrs. White.

"Dropped all proceedings!" was the wondering rejoinder of Mrs. Green. "You don't really mean it?"

"Yes," returned Mrs. White. "Her husband has taken to aeroplaning, and she has decided to let the thing adjust itself."

Interesting Comparison.

"It beats all how luck does play favorites," remarked Farmer Corntossel. "I jes' been to see Ezra Hankins."

"How's he gettin' along since he hurt his foot?"

"He's purty glum. The doctor charged him $100 fur cuttin' his foot off. An' when the railroad cut off Uncle Jake's foot the company paid him $600 in cash. Maybe these great corporations ain't as graspin' as some people says."

Force of Habit.

"See here, boss, I ordered tripe and beans, with coffee, and the waitress has brought me a lettuce sandwich and a cup of weak tea."

"You must excuse her, sir. All due to absentmindedness. She's a former society girl, and she can't seem to grasp the idea that a quick lunch is not a function."

Presence of Mind.

"That woman over there looks as if she were painted."

"Sir, that is my wife."

"I had not finished my sentence. She looks as if she were painted by Raphael and had just stepped out of the frame."—Exchange.

Risky.

A girl may warble to you that she doesn't like flattery, but don't take a chance on telling her that she looks like a rhinoceros.

Simple Way to End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

Victor Hugo.

Victor Hugo was the wealthiest of the nineteenth century authors and also the hardiest. At one time he made less than 1,000 francs last him and his brother for eighteen months, and one chop would serve for lunch three days in succession. But this early abstinence did not spoil Hugo's digestion, for at the age of eighty-three he cracked nuts with his teeth and ate oranges as some folk eat apples—peel and all.

Publicity or Bankruptcy?

Bradstreets statement that 84 per cent of all failures are among non-advertisers is significant.

Intelligent advertising has become absolutely essential to every modern industry—

But what shall the advertiser do in the face of war conditions, when he finds it difficult to get goods to fill his orders?

First of all, remember that the fundamental purpose of advertising is to fix indelibly the trade mark or the trade name in the public mind.

A let-up in that campaign must be fatal to any product.

The American Rolling Mill Company declares its purpose to continue its advertising, although for two and a half years it has been unable to supply the demand for its product.

"We are building," they say, "a permanent business edifice, and some day we would have to spend millions of dollars buying back the business and goodwill of our clients if they are forsaken in this emergency."

Unless advertising is kept up without break the advertiser loses the results of all previous effort.

Here is a warning to the advertizer who neglects the dull season in summer—

When advertisements are fewest is the very time when a message to the public may get the most attention, providing, of course, that the character of the advertising deserves it.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISS' OR SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

The slim, straight lines of this girlish frock are especially adapted to the use of wool jersey. It will also make up attractively in gingham or linen. The waist has panels at front and back and the closing is at the left side front. The V neck is accented by a smart collar with a very distinctive outline. The long sleeves are gathered into deep cuffs, but, if preferred, the shorter sleeves may be substituted. The four gored skirt has panels at front and back and is gathered at the slightly raised waistline.

The miss' or small woman's dress pattern No. 8886 is cut in three sizes, 16, 18 and 20 years. Width at lower edge of skirt is 2 yards. The 16 year size requires 4½ yards of 36 inch, or 2¾ yards of 54 inch, with ¾ yard of 36-inch contrasting material.

BRITISH AND AMERICANS OPENED A NEW ATTACK EARLY THIS MORNING

Satisfactory Progress is Being Made on the Front Between St. Quentin and Cambrai —Prisoners Taken.

OFFICIAL DESPATCHES

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Oct. 8.—(Official.)—English and American troops attacked this morning on the front between St. Quentin and Cambrai, Field Marshal Haig announced to-day. Satisfactory progress is being made, the Field Marshal states. In successful local operations near Mont Brehan and Beaurevoir on this front yesterday more than two hundred and thirty prisoners were taken.

To-day's attack was launched just before daybreak during a heavy rain which began last night.

Successful local operations were carried out yesterday in the neighbourhood of Mont Brehain and north of Beaurevoir in which American and English troops captured over 230 prisoners. Shortly before dawn this morning British and American troops attacked between St. Quentin and Cambrai. In spite of the heavy rain which commenced last night and is still continuing first reports indicate that satisfactory progress is being made.

French Official.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, Oct. 8.—(Official.)—North-east of Rheims the French continued their successful advance. French troops have reached the outskirts of Conde-Sur-Suippe, at the junction of the Suippe and the Aisne north-east of Berry-Au-Bac. Along the Suippe river, the French have penetrated into Isles-Sur-Suippe and to the west have captured Bazancourt.

Forced Labour.

Canadian Press:

HAVRE, Oct. 8.— The Belgian government has issued a statement that from the coast to beyond the city of Bruges the male population between the ages of 15 and 45 have been brutally torn from their homes and forced to labour on German military works.

Driving Invader Out.

Special to The Examiner:

GENEVA, Oct. 8. —Field Marshal Mackensen has arrived in Serbia to save the remnants of the Austro-German armies, which the Allies are pursuing toward the Danube, according to a Vienna despatch received here to-day. The Austrians are reported to be evacuating Belgrade. The Serbian population, including women, is helping to drive them out.

Leaving Belgium.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 8.— Evacuation by the Germans of the Belgium coast region is continuing. Telephone lines are being taken down.

The stores of material at Knokke, near the coast, five miles from the Dutch border, have been set on fire, reports state, and many factories have been undermined in preparation for their quick destruction. As part of the occupying troops would have to choose between capture and flight when the evacuation occurs, the correspondent points out, instructions have been given them, he says, to escape to Holland in civilian clothes with the object of evading imprisonment and subsequently returning to Germany.

Are Before Nish.

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, Oct. 8.—Serbian troops are before Nish, according to reports received here to-day.

BOLSHEVIKISM IS RAPIDLY DECLINING THROUGHOUT RUSSIA

The Power of Lenine and Trotsky is Limited to Petrograd and Moscow.

UKRAINE HELPLESS

(United Press.)

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.— The convalescence of Russia from the disease of Bolshevikism is proceeding at a remarkably rapid pace. With the exception of cholera stricken and terrorized cities and districts of Petrograd and Moscow, there is virtually no place in Russia where the power of Lenine and Trotsky is exercised, cables to the Russian Embassy indicate.

All the nationalities inhabiting Russia have once more united for the establishment of a free and prosperous land. Only the nationalities of the Caucasus and the Ukraine have yet had an opportunity to offer their allegiance to the new all-Russian Government formed at Ufa. This is not due to their opposition to the new government. The Ukraine is helpless for the time being, due to the presence of a German army numbering nearly a half a million men.

Spanish Influenza May be Prevented

It is a Duty One Owes to One's Self and to the Community.

The difficulty with this form of influenza is that a very mild case may, by contagion, produce in another individual the very worht form of the disease. That is, a person, who seems to have but a slight cold, may be tre Carrier of the Germs.

Those, who are liable to be exposed to the Contagion, should, both for themselves and the sake of their families, take every precaution to avoid contracting it.

The mouth should be cleansed once or twice a day with an antiseptic wash and the throat gargled with the same.

Also one of Moncur's Capsules for the Prevention of Spanish Influenza should be taken each morning. These Capsules strengthen the system so that the Germs, even though the person is frequently exposed to the contagion, are quite unable to gain a foothold.

However, they are not recommended to cure the disease but only to prevent one from taking it; which they will do if they are taken before the person is already infected. If the prevalent Epidemic strikes Peterborough in full force, these Capsules will save a lot of people from sickness and also prove an enemy to the Undertaker.

Sold at Moncur Drug Store, 407 George St. Next the Royal Bank.

The Week's Evangelistic Campaign Announcement

The following is the list of subjects with which Rev. Dr. I. E. Honeywell expects to deal at the meetings in the Union Evangelistic Campaign this week in the Brock Street Habernacle.

Tuesday evening, at 7:30—"The World's Saddest Cry."

Wednesday evening, at 7:30—"Nuts for Skeptics to Crack, or Will the Old Book Stand?"

Thursday evening, at 7:30—"A Great Love Story."

Friday evening, at 7:30—"Indifferent, Asleep or With the Devil's Gang, Which?"

Saturday evening, at 7:30—The Booster Choir Will Sing.

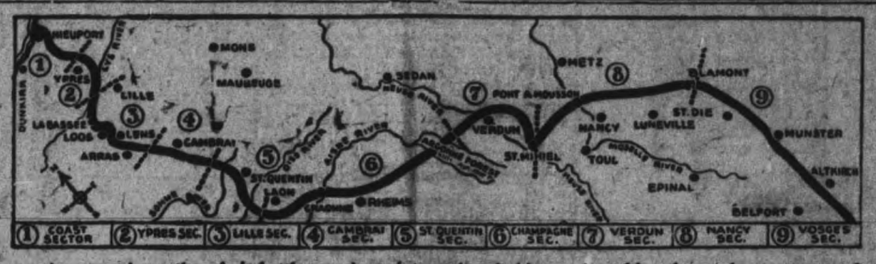
There will also be an address.

Sunday, afternoon—The first big meeting for men will be held. The subject will be, "Paying the Fiddler."

SPECIAL MEETINGS.

Wednesday and Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Speaker, Dr. Honeywell.

Friday afternoon, at 3 o'clock in the Reid Street Sunday School, corner Charlotte. Speaker, Mrs. Russell.



This extension map shows the whole battle area in an interesting fashion and enables the reader to grasp what a tremendous battle is in progress. In 1 (the coast sector) the ports of Belgium held by the Germans are in peril; in 2 (the Ypres sector) the enemy is being steadily driven back; in 3 (the Lille sector) the cial fields have been regained; in 4 (the Cambrai sector), the Canadians, with the British, are putting up a desperate battle; in 5 (the St. Quentin sector) the French have crossed the Crozat Canal and cut the German communications; in 6 (the Champagne sector) the French have driven the enemy back from Challerange and smashed the strongest part of the Hindenburg line; in 7 (the Verdun sector) the French and Americans are pressing on towards Metz, which is already under their fire; while in sectors 8 and 9 the curtain has yet to rise upon fierce fighting.

Closing in on the Germans

Heights West of Aise Captured by the Americans After Hard Fighting.

(United Press.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

With the American First Army, October 8th. — The Germans are squeezed tighter in the Argonne pocket as a result of the capture of Chatel Chehery and the heights west of the Aire, in yesterday's furious all-day battle.

Hills 180 and 244 were stormed, robbing the Boche of dominating positions overlooking the Aire, and simultaneously closing in tighter the east flank of the Argonne salient.

The enemy artillery on the heights west of the Aire was captured in less than five and a half hours after the American attack started. One division in the last couple of days captured eights 77's and 75 machine guns, in addition to a Belgian field piece which was being used by the Boche.

A considerable movement northward of German artillery and supplies has been observed back of Cunel and Sommerance.

(Cunel is three miles west of Brieulles. Sommerance is six miles west of Cunel. Both are strong points in the Kriemhilde line.)

Notes on the Evangelistic Campaign

Since the opening of the Evangelistic Campaign in the Brock Street Tabernacle people have been wondering what means Dr. Honeywell, the evangelist, will use to reach the unconverted in his audiences and if he is likely to follow the practice of many other evangelists by doing what is known as devising the audience through such methods as asking all the Christians to stand. Dr. Honeywell does not approve of these methods. At the meeting of Christian workers held Sunday afternoon he said that he used to divide his audience but he always felt sorry for the poor people who did not stand and who therefore were made conspicuous and uncomfortable because they remained sitting. For this reason he does not purpose adopting this method. There will not therefore be any reason for any person to remain away from the meetings through fear of being made conspicuous.

PERSONAL WORKERS

Dr. Honeywell keeps impressing on his committees that the success of the campaign is going to depend on the Christian people of Peterboro rather than on himself. He may shake the tree but they must gather the fruit. This means that Christian people must be prepared to do personal work in the meetings. A Christian who has any known sin in his or her life and who is not wholly dependent on the Holy Spirit for guidance cannot do effective personal work. Any inconsistancy in his or her life will close their mouths and make it impossible for them to speak effectively to the unconverted. For this reason Dr Honeywell continues to impress upon Christians their duty to get absolutely right with God that they may be used during the campaign.

This afternoon Mrs. Russell will conduct a special meeting in the Reid Street Sunday School at three o'clock Wednesday and Thursday afternoons Dr. Honeywell will conduct special meetings in St. Paul's Presbyteran Church at 3 o'clock. On Friday after noon Mrs. Russell will speak again in the Reid Street Sunday School at the same hour.

At the meeting in the Tabernacle to night, the congregations from George Street, Knox, Bethany Tabernacle, and the Salvation Army will be the guests of the evening and will be allotted special seats near the front.

There will be a meeting of the extension committee this evening after the regular meeting.

TURKISH CABINET REPORTED FALLEN

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Oct. 8.—A Berne despatch to the Daily News to-day said it is understood that the Turkish Cabinet has fallen. The despatch said there is great excitement in Constantinople.

WILL RESIST THE HUN PEACE OFFER

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Oct. 8.— The Fatherland party in Germany, after a meeting of the Reichstag on Saturday, held a meeting and passed resolutions to resist by every possible means the peace offer of Prince Maximilian, now Imperial Chancellor, according to Zurich despatches. The Lokal "Anzeiger" of Berlin says that two of President Wilson's points must be considered rejected, namely, the separation of Alsace-Lorraine from Germany, and the incorporation of an independent Poland in place of a Prussian Poland.

Peterboro Casualties

Killed, Wounded and Prisoners Included in the List.

Word has been received by Mrs. James Rose, Otonabee, that her son, Pte. Harold Rose, was wounded with gunshot wounds in the right thigh on September 28. Pte. Rose was only 15 years of age when he enlisted. He was the first bugler enrolled in the 93rd Band. In England he was transferred to the Young Soldiers' Battalion because of his age, and went overseas last August.

PTE. JAMES CONLIN.

Mr. Arthur Conlin, 397 Sherbrooke street, received word yesterday that his brother, Pte. James C. Conlin, was admitted to No. 3 Australian General Hospital, Abbeville, France, on September 28, suffering from gunshot wounds in the back. Pte. Conlin went overseas last February. He was a painter by trade.

PTE. A. H. GRAHAM.

Word has been received that Pte. Alfred Henry ("Freddy") Graham, the well-known Peterborough hockey star, has been wounded in the recent fighting. A message from Ottawa states that Pte. Graham has been admitted to No. 2 Western General Hospital, Manchester, England, on Oct. 3rd, suffering from a gunshot wound in the right shoulder. The young soldier, widely known in hockey circles, is the captain of the Peterborough Junior O.H.A. team, and a member of the Eastern All-Stars in the winter before last, went overseas early this year, and after training in England, was transferred to the Princess Pats in France. A letter received from him by a member of the Examiner staff a few days ago stated that he had met Lornie Rose, the local hockey player, in France.

PTE. P. J. O'DONNELL.

Mrs. Patrick O'Donnell, 543 Elm street, received word yesterday that her son, Private Patrick John O'Donnell, was admitted to Casualty Clearing No. 22, on September 3, with gunshot wounds in his right foot, left leg and neck.

Pte. O'Donnell enlisted in 1915 with the 10th Canadian Machine Gun Battery from Fort William and has been in France for three years.

DIED OF WOUNDS.

Official notice reached Mr. J. I. Davidson, 815 George street, that his youngest son, John Frederick, died in the 30th Casualty Clearing Station on September 29th from multiple gunshot wounds. Pte. Davidson was a graduate of Toronto University, and entered the service of the Union Bank, being assistant to the Inspector at Head Office, Winnipeg, when he enlisted in March, 1917, with the 27th Battalion, being transferred to the 43rd Battalion and reached France in March of this year. Pte. Davidson was previously wounded on August 8, and returned to the line but recently.

PTE. F. SULLIVAN.

Pte. Fred Sullivan, of Peterborough, who enlisted here early in 1915, and went overseas with the 39th Battalion, is officially reported wounded. Pte. Sullivan has been in the casualty lists on several other occasions, and one time was reported missing, but turned up in a short time. He has been in France for over three years.

PTE. W. D. KEARNS.

Mrs. Wm. Kearns, 492 Elm street, received official notice this morning that Pte. W. D. Kearns, Infantry, was officially reported admitted to No. 22 General Hospital, Camiers, September 28. He went over with the 93rd Battalion.

Retirement is Delayed

Enemy May Have to Move Back From Twenty to Forty Miles

(United Press.)

(By Lowell Mellet.)

With the British Armies in France, October 8. — The German high command is definitely preparing to retire its armies at most points, as a result of the shattering of the Hindenburg line, and continued allied pressure from the North Sea to Verdun.

The enemy is expected to take up new positions roughly twenty to forty miles farther back. The latest information shows the Valenciennes-Givet line is not yet ready, and that the retirement must be delayed as long as possible; but the allied assaults are seriously interrupting the German plans and may force the backward movement before the enemy is willing.

Tag Day for the Shelter

School Children Will be Tagged To-morrow—General Tag Day on Saturday.

Owing to the fact that there will be a teachers' convention on Thursday and Friday of this week, the tagging of the children in the public schools will be undertaken to-morrow, and if the boys and girls do as well as heretofore the officers of the Shelter will be well pleased.

The Children's Aid Society is doing a work that should be appreciated by the givings of the public, and no doubt the general tag day on Saturday will ge well received.

The increased cost of living affects the children in the Shelter the same as the children in your own home, and it is hoped that donations will be as liberal as possible both in the schools to-morrow and the general tag day on Saturday.

World Happenings

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The Italian steamship Alberto Treves was torpedoed on October 3, about 300 miles off the American coast, the Navy Department announced to-day. Thirteen survivors have been picked up by the steamship Orizaba. Two other boats and 27 men are missing. The Treves was a vessel of 3,838 tons, and was owned in Genoa.

WOMEN ELIGIBLE.

HAMILTON, Oct. 8.—Women will be eligible for admission of ministry of the Methodist Church, as well as given the franchise in all Church courts of the Church, is the recommendation of the committee adopted this morning, and accepted by the Methodist General Conference in session here. A lively debate on the subject is expected when the matter reaches the main body of the conference.

AMERICANS ATTACK.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 8.—British and American troops are to-day vigorously attacking the Hindenburg line in its centre, in the neighbourhood of St. Quentin and Cambrai. The British are going ahead on a twenty-mile front. The French continue their progress towards the German line of communications. The Germans are giving ground at many points, burning everything as they go.

Fair at Chemong Indian Village

The Chemong Mississauga Fair on Thursday, October 10th.

Don't forget the Fair at Chemong Indian Village Thursday, Oct. 10th. Horse back and foot racing, etc., curing wild rice and all kinds of fun. Good fish dinner served. Come early everyone and have a good time. Man to look after your car and also the ferry. A big crowd will be there.

American Forces Are Moving In to New Positions Between the Argonne and Meuse

Franco-American Advance Has Been Halted at the West Entrance to the Grand Pre Passage—Pershing Aims to Cut Off Luxemburg.

(United Press Service.)

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, October 8. — The American progress between the Argonne Forest and the Meuse is now approaching the Grand Pre, which cuts the forest in two. This road will serve as a connecting line when captured by the Americans on the west and east flanks of the forest. It is apparently General Pershing's present purpose to move his front between the Argonne and the Meuse to Grand Pre and by effecting a junction with the French and Americans to the west, and squeeze the Germans out of the southern half of the forest area.

Halted Advance.

The Franco-Americans who are operating on the west side of the Argonne have recently halted their advance at the west entrance to the Grand Pre passage. Their advance toward Vouzier, which is the base for a turning movement against the whole of the Argonne has come to a temporary rest because of the immense reserve force which Von Hindenburg has been throwing into this sector.

Advance Continues.

Marshal Foch will not contenance a major offensive by the Allies at present anywhere along the west front, hence the French and Americans are abstaining from costly frontal attacks in an effort to reach Vouziers and clean out the Argonne of its innumerable machine gun nests and concrete artillery positions by single movement but while waiting for a more favourable opportunity to resume the advance to the west of the Argonne, General Pershing has undertaken the very arduous work of forging ahead on the east border. The Americans are little more than five miles south of Grand Pre, but they are subjected to a constant flank attack all the way by the enemy concentrated in the Argonne. The fact that the American's front between the Argonne and the Meuse measures no more than a dozen miles, is also a handicap. Nevertheless the creeping advance continues. The Americans are following the course of the Aire River which bounds the Argonne on the east and runs through the Grand Pre pass into the Aisne on the western side. When the Americans reach Grand Pre their right wing on the Meuse can be advanced very considerably towards Stenay to cut off Luxemburg which continues to be General Pershing's main objective.

The American Answer to the German Peace Propaganda May be Forthcoming To-day

Two Important Elements Enter Into the Reply—President Wilson Gives the Matter Deep Consideration.

CONCENSUS OF OPINION

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.— That the American answer to the Teutonic peace offers would be forthcoming to-day or very soon afterward, was the indication in official quarters this forenoon.

Rumour had it that President Wilson would elucidate his position in an address to Congress, but his version lacked confirmation.

It was known that the President had given deep consideration to the nature of his reply. There was a general feeling that quick, terse action would serve the American purpose best. Speculation with respect to the reply turned on two elements: First, will President Wilson consult the Allies as to his course? Second, will his answer inform the Central Powers, as has been done in the past, that the present Teuton form of government is not to be trusted and that peace cannot be made until the government is responsible to the people.

In the first case the only light forthcoming was information from the State Department that the President would not necessarily advise with the Allies, even though he was asked by the Teuton notes to transmit the situation to them.

Stirred Officials.

Special to The Examiner:

MADRID, Oct. 8.—The latest German peace proposal has stirred officials and newspapers of Spain. The concensus of opinion is that the time for peace talk will be not until the Allies have entered German territory and vanquished the enemy.

The Second Element.

As for the second element, experts in propaganda said the present situation offers a golden opportunity to the United States to drive home its idea that autocracy must be stripped away before peace can be made with the Teuton nation. Such a statement forcefully made at this time, it was argued, might stir up the brewing spirit of revolt at least in Austria, and cause a break in the political alignment of the Central Powers.

Can Be No Trust.

President Wilson has repeatedly said he does not desire to dictate the form of government for Germany and Austria, but at the same time he has pointed out that there can be no trust in the Hohenzollern-Hapsburg murderers and burglars. Hence, it is a preliminary to any peace discussion that the people of the Central Powers shall be speaking rather than that their war lords shall be the mouth pieces.

The unanimity of response to the nation—no peace until there is an unconditional surrender—makes it certain that the President will voice a firm rejection of the tricky Teuton notes. The only subjects for decision are questions of form and substance.

The Turkish peace offer probably will be delivered to-day or to-morrow via the Spanish Embassy.

CONSULTING ALLIES.

(Special to Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — An exchange between President Wilson and the allied capitals is preceding the President's answer to the Teuton peace notes.

It became known to-day that he is consulting the allies for their view before completing his answer. If he incorporates the entente attitude as reflected through the diplomatic channels here, he will reject the offers, but he will do it in a way to permit of peace negotiations later, provided Germany and Austria will make the necessary concessions.

That is the entente disposition as reflected here.

The American attitude, as reflected by Congress, the press and the general public, is to leave the peace door open only to one concession — an unconditional surrender.

MAY BE BRIEF.

Early this afternoon the President called into consultation with him Secretary of State Lansing, Colonel House and Private Secretary Tumulty. Colonel House for a long time has made an intimate study of the international situation with a view to presenting data needed in the final peace settlement. As the President's closest adviser he will probably have an important bearing upon the executive's answer.

Secretary of State Lansing is believed to favor an answer much along the lines of that originally given to Austria. But there are indications that something less brief will be the retort.

PRESS CONFERENCE.

(Special to Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — President Wilson was understood this afternoon to have reached a conclus-

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8TH, 1918.

REMEMBER THE CHILDREN

The citizens of Peterboro ar once more reminded that the annual tag day campaign of the Children's Aid Society will be held on Saturday. It is to be hoped that the response will be even more hearty than usual because more funds are required to carry on th work of the Society for the coming year, than ever before and the splendid mission of looking after the neglected and dependent children of the district must not be allowed to suffer for lack of financial support. There is no more important local call than this annual appeal from the Children's Aid Society. No work that is more conscientiously or faithfully undertaken and carried out and the appreciation and gratitude of the people of Peterboro should be shown in a record response to Saturday's appeal.

THE HILL TEST

The late James J. Hill's test as to the possibility of success in life is one that peculiarly appropriate at the present time when the people of Canada are being urged to adopt a consistent policy of thrift. Mr Hill once said:—

"If you want to know whether you are destined to be a success or not, you can easily find out. The test is simple and infallible: Are you able to save money? If not, drop out. You will lose. You may think not, but you will lose as sure as fate for the seed of success is not in you."

Many people have not tried this test. The coming Victory Loan Campaign gives them an opportunity to make a personal application of the Hill plan. It is the duty of every Canadian to save for the Victory Loan. The last campaign taught the lesson of thrift to many who had even saved before. May the new effort still further spread the gospel of thrift.

FIRE PREVENTION

To-morrow has been set apart by the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario as Fire Prevention Day with a view of impressing upon the people of the province the dire necessity of taking energetic steps towards reducing the terrible fire loss. With the average annual per capita loss in Canada at nearly $3 as compared with 33 cents in six European countries, it is clear that there is need of the campaign that is being inaugurated. It should be understood that every fire is paid for by all the people The insurance companies do not really pay for the fire waste because the cost of the insurance is added by manufacturers and merchants to the price of the goods and everyone who buys an article in a store is helping to pay for the insurance. Every fire makes every man's struggle for a living harder by compelling him to spend for his neighbor's waste what he might otherwise spend for his own comfort.

These are points to be remembered in connection with to-morrow. And incidentally the city council could set the seal of their approval upon the observance of Fire Prevention day by resurrecting and passing the revised building by-law designed to minimize the fire loss in Peterboro. Many fires are directly due to carless practices in building and all construction work should be so regulated that faulty building is eliminated and proper attention given to the fire hazard.

Fire Prevention Day would have a more significant meaning in Peterboro if the city fathers showed their sincerity in the matter by passing the amended by-law.

SHELL CONTRACTS

There are many rumors to the effect that U. S. war contracts in this country are being withdrawn or cancelled on account of the favorable news from the front. Before paying much attention to these a person needs only to consider the situation for a minute. The greatest element entering into the manufacture of munitions, outside of accuracy, is speed The demand for machinery for equipping shell plants is tremendous, and it is harder to fully equip these plants now than it was formerly because all the stock in the warehouses of the country is depleted, and orders are held off on longer delivery dates than formerly. The Dominion has a large number of shell plants that are well equipped. They have demonstrated beyond a doubt that they can make munitions with any plant in the world. It stands to reason that they are going to get orders as long as shells are required. In many cases the manufacturers of the United States just now experimenting and learning in the shell business what the Canadian firms found out a good many months ago. Without any desire at boasting, it is safe to say that Canada is the shell making territory of this continent. It is only to be expected that contracts that are let now shall have some form of a cancellation clause attached to them.

The shall business has run into big figures in Canada. The Imperial Munitions Board has placed contracts that will run well past the billion dollar mark. As a matter of fact there must be at least $200,000,000 in British orders still unfilled here. American business under contract will be about $125,000,000, and there is every reason to believe that, although the British business shows a tendency to decrease owing to the ability of their own shops to produce more, American orders should grow to larger proportins. They want shells, and they want good shells, and they want them at once. Canada can supply them speedily.

The Canadian War Board is getting to the stage where it can turn down orders and cut them pretty close in order to keep the allotment of steel coming to this country centered entirely on war work.—Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Unconditional surrender", such is the answer of the press in all the Allied countries to the enemy peace proposals.

Hindenburg is reported to have resigned. His line, however, went before he did.

The Toronto Star points out that the Allies can read the German peace proposals by the light of the burning French cities.

Get ready to buy your Victory Bonds. The Allies are going to see this thing through.

Canada is to have a tank brigade The Canadians have already made good in the land fleet and the new brigade should win new laurels for the Maple Leaf.

The Allies are determined to finish the war where it was started—in Germany.

"The hit dog yelps," is the New York Herald's but truthful reference to the Hun peace proposals

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

EXTREMELY SO.

(Detroit News)

"Call Hindenburg," said the Kaiser. "I did, papa," said the Crown Prince, "but his line is busy."

MUST PAY THE PRICE

(New York Sun)

The hour of dawning victory will assuredly not be the one in which the blood-guilty conspirators of 1914 will be allowed to redeem themselves cheaply from the disaster which they started out deliberately to inflict upon the rest of the world. Peace they can have when they are ready for it; but they pay the price—in full!

COAL AND THE PEOPLE

(Hamilton Herald)

Coal production should, in our opinion, be classed among the industries which ought properly to be controlled by the state and conducted for the direct benefit of the people. All the coal mines should be public property, and should either be operated by the Government or leased under such conditions that the Government would retain a measure of supervision over their operation. The local distribution of the coal could safely be left to private enterprise, but the Government should take charge of its transportation. With the eastern coal mines publicly owned and operated under Government supervision, there is no reason why Ontario should not be supplied with coal from the Maritime Provinces.

TO FARMERS

The Government has sent out an appeal to the Canadian people to buy at home. Why? Because when we buy abroad more than we sell we have to pay a premium on the excess, in addition to the price of the goods. This is known as an adverse rate of exchange. We have bought four hundred million dollars' worth more from the United States than we have sold to it. The rate of exchange is 2 per cent. against us. In other words, we are paying 2 per cent. on four hundred millions of dollars, or eight million dollars, which means that if we owe a great deal of money for goods bought we have to pay extra for the privilege. If we keep this up Canada will bleed to death. Please inquire into this matter at once.

John E. Kellerd Shakespearean Actor

Important Engagement for the Grand Opera House Saturday Next.

The Grand Opera House is pleased to announce that the annual engagement of the eminent actor, John E. Kellerd, who will appear at the Grand on Saturday, October 12th, in two classical plays, Julius Caesar and the Merchant of Venice.

The plays of Shakespeare are the best that the English-speaking race possess and knowledge and practical use of them are essential to the dignity, influence and welfare of the intellectual stage.

Whenever they are acted well they succeed. The coming of a Shakespearean star of note is consequently an event of importance, and is looked forward to with great interest by all lovers of the legitimate drama. Mr. Kellard's support for the present season contains many names long identified with the more pretentious productions of Shakespeare, and is without question the most powerful organization that has ever toured the country in Shakespearean repertoire.

With "Cinderella."

F. Stuart-Whyte's show of wonders, "Cinderella," will be the attraction at "The Grand" on Thanksgiving, matinee and night, and Tuesday, Oct. 14 and 15.

This is Mr. Whyte's third big English pantomime production in Canada, and it has been built upon a scale of grandeur never before attempted by any touring musical attraction. The action of the peace is divided into two acts and eleven superb scenes. There are twenty bright and catchy song hits and a dozen brilliant dance numbers. The seat sale opens Friday morning.

OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

Hut Fund Total Exceeded $6,000

Committee is Deeply Grateful for the Generous Response From Citizens and for Business Men's Help.

Although the active campaign in the city on behalf of the Knights of Columbus Army Hut Fund practically closed on Saturday evening last, it has been decided to keep the lists open for two or three days in order to allow a number of the teams to clean up their districts or make return calls on those who have not yet handed in their contributions.

On Saturday evening, when all the teams had made their reports, the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. J. R. Corkery, was loaded down with over $6,000.00 in cash, and this with pledges received and cards yet to be collected, should run the total in the city over the seven thousand dollar mark. When this was reported the cheers that went up resounded through the block, and the smile on the face of the untiring and energetic chairman, Dr. McNulty, was certainly reflected in the face of every worker.

The campaign throughout has been an unqualified success and has been responded to nobly by both Catholic and Protestant alike. It has also been the means of creating a better, bigger and broader spirit among our citizens which will no doubt tend to a better Peterborough and a better Canada. To each and every contributor, big and small, the executive in charge wish to tender their most sincere thanks, and at the same time their most sincere appreciation of the assistance rendered them by the different canvassers, especially to the well known business men who gave of their time and energy so generously. To Mr. Thomas Barrie the committee in charge wish to extend their sincere thanks for the free use he gave them of his building as headquarters, an assistance that was very kindly offered, and very graciously accepted. The headquarters in the Barrie building will remain open for two or three days yet in order to give the teams every opportunity to clean up their districts and to make reports, and any citizen who has not contributed yet and should wish to do so may either send his contribution in to headquarters or mail it direct to Mr. J. R. Corkery, at his office on Hunter street.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS IN LINDSAY CLOSED

LINDSAY, Oct. 8.—His Worship Mayor Kylie has issued a request that all schools and public places, such as theatres and moving picture houses, be closed until the danger of an epidemic of Spanish Influenza is over, or at least until after Thanksgiving Day.

War Veterans Nominate Officers

Elections Will be Held in Two Weeks' Time—The Slate.

Nominations of the officers and executive committee of the Great War Veterans was held last night in the club-rooms. The slate selected was as follows:

President—Comrades Cooper and Staunton.

First Vice-President—Comrades Dr. E. Wood and Mann.

Second Vice-President — Comrades Moscrop and Yeates.

Financial Secretary — Comrades Haggett, Coleman, and Long.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Comrade Smith (acclamation).

Executive Committee (five to be elected) — Comrades Bacon, Long, Steele, Mann, Cooper, Ringer and Perks.

Chairman, Entertainment Committee—Comrade Mann.

Chairman, Pensions Committee — Comrade Lieut.-Col. T. J. Johnston.

Patriotic Fund Committee—Chairman, Comrades Staunton and Whatley.

Chairman, Investigation Committee —Comrade Smith (acclamation).

The elections will take place in two weeks.

Applications for membership from Arthur W. Daniel, W. G. Perks, Fred. N. Shepphard, J. N. Tebeau, Charles Griffin, George Aboud, Richard Gibbs and Harold A. Graham, all returned soldiers, were received and accepted. A standardized draping was also adopted for use on soldiers' graves on decoration days and other occasions.

Secretary Whatley reported that of the 104 tons of coal ordered by the association, 42 tons had been delivered.

Mr. W. H. Moore, of the legal firm of Moore and Wearing, offered his billiard table to the association.

The G.W.V.A. was advised by the Dominion Executive that Dr. E. H. Wood, M.B., has been selected as local representative of the Invalided Soldiers' Aid Commission. All soldiers' cases to be referred to him.

ST. PETER'S HOLY NAME SOCIETY ORGANIZED

Members Promise to Honour God's Name and to Induce Others to Do Likewise.

St Peter's Holy Name Society was organized last night at a largely attended meeting in St. Alphonsus Lyceum. Rev. C. J. Phelan presided, and his Lordship Bishop O'Brien reviewed the progress of the Holy Name movement, its object and obligations, and emphasized its value as means of promoting reverence for and devotion to God. The members promise to labour for the glory of God's name, to avoid blasphemy, perjury and profane and indecent language, to induce others to refrain from all insults against God and to remonstrate with those who blaspheme.

Short addresses were given by Dr. McNulty, C. H. Pennefather, John Corkery, Sr., John Fallon, J. A. O'Brien and others. The following officers were elected:

President—C. H. Pennefather.

Rec. Secretary—Wm. Prendible.

Treasurer—John McCabe, Jr.

The executive will be elected at the next meeting.

St Peter's Society already has a membership of 260 who will attend mass in a body on Sunday and be formally enrolled. It is expected that societies will be formed in the other two parishes in the city.

Rehearsal for Booster Choir This Afternoon

The boys and girls of King George School, ages 9 to 15 inclusive, will meet with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Dixon of the Honeywell Evangelistic Party, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, in the Mark street Methodist church, to practice for the Booster Choir. It is hoped that all will be present.

There will also be a general, full rehearsal of the Booster Choir of the boys and girls, 9 to 15 years of age, from all the grade schools, on Wednesday at four o'clock, in the Brock street rink. It is very important that all boys and girls who wish to sing in the great Booster Choir in the public service this Saturday night be present at the rehearsal on Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH NOTES.

The congregation is asked to put the names and addresses of any boys of the church who are overseas on the collection plate so that a correct list may be had for the Christmas boxes. Any wishing to contribute money for the same kindly send same to Mrs. F. L. Robinson or Rev. Mr. Rowand.

Red Cross will meet on Thursday afternoon from 2 to 5.

Friday night, St. Andrew's Church is to go in a body with Trinity and Murray Street Churches to Dr. Honeywell's meeting at the Brock Street Tabernacle. It is hoped that everyone will make an effort to be at the church at 7.15 p.m., so that there will be a large number to go down in a body to the meeting.

Marquis L. Post Was Discharged

Marquis L. Post, who was arrested early Sunday morning on a charge of concealing and employing his brother, Walter F. Post, who was wanted by the police as a deserter from the 1st Depot Battalion, Belleville, was charged by Magistrate Dumble this morning.

Walter F. Post, who pleaded guilty yesterday morning to deserting, has had a chequered service in his brief military career. The Dominion Police evidence showed that Post has been in the 34th, the 59th, 116th Battalions and also the 1st Depot Battalion. He was aboard a ship in Halifax harbour which capsized. The soldiers and crew were landed and he (Post) and 13 comrades deserted.

He will be taken to Belleville to-day and court-martialled.

Music & Drama

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE."

Based on the power of printers' ink, and upon the wonderful effects that can be secured from advertising, the Cohan and Harris' successful comedy, "It Pays to Advertise," by Roi Cooper Meguie and Walter Hackett at the Grand last night, proved one of the funniest offerings seen here for a long time. It is described on the programme as "a farcical fact," a description that is not only alliterative but accurate. Rodney Martin, son of a soap king, Cyrus Martin, undertakes to show his father that he can succeed in business. He selects the soap industry as his field, and with a recipe for home-made soap, lifted from a cook-book, starts on his campaign. A press agent, Ambrose Peale, interests him in the possibilities of advertising, and after a lavish expenditure on publicity and a series of hilarious adventures, the new firm succeeds in its venture. Of course there is a love story mixed up in the comedy, and everything ends happy. The lecture of the press agent describing the manner in which advertising has revolutionized modern business life was a feature of the farce.

Mr. George Street, as Rodney Martin, did admirable work, and E. Murray was very amusing as the advertizing expert. Miss Allene Durans had the chief feminine part, and handled it well. Henry L. Fox gave a very entertaining portrayal of the character of Cyrus Martin, the Soap King.

"It Pays to Advertise" contains a good moral, and, besides, it is hilarously funny.

RED CROSS WORKERS.

There will be no sewing for the Red Cross in the Library on Thursday. Will the ladies of Murray Street Church go on Wednesday either to sew or to take work home.

Six Cases of Spanish Influenza Have Developed in Peterboro

Three Have Been Reported to Dr. C. H. Amys, M.O.H. for the City, and Three to Dr. T. N. Greer, M.O.H. for North Monaghan.

Six cases of Spanish influenza have developed in Peterborough during the past two days. Three have been reported to Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Health Officer for the city, and are in the city, the other three were reported to Dr. T. N. Greer, M. O. H. for North Monaghan and are confined to one family in Browntown. The latter cases were brought in from Renfrew.

So far, Dr. Amys has not received instructions from Dr. McCullough, Provincial Medical Health Officer, that the disease is to be reported, but it is generally understood by the local physicians that, being an infectious disease, it is to be reported.

The responsibility for passing such a regulation rests entirely with Dr. McCullough, Provincial Medical Officer of Health. Apparently, however, no suggestion has been made by the Toronto Department of Health, that such a regulation be passed, or if it has, Dr. McCullough has not yet considered it necessary to act upon it.

Should Be Done.

Undoubtedly it should be done, one doctor said, otherwise how could the authorities know where the cases are, how serious the outbreak is, or what steps are necessary to fight it.

Druggists Busy.

The druggists in the city report an unusually heavy call for disinfectants and a steady demand during the past few days for camphor.

My advice to people, said one doctor, is to stay at home as much as possible, as a preventative from catching the disease, and to keep the houses warm and well ventilated. The weather is responsible for a great deal of the spread of the disease. A few days of good sunshine would do much to check it.

How Contracted.

Dr. Hastings, M.O.H., of Toronto, says that the disease is communicated by direct contact. Persons get the germs on their hands, perhaps, and later, possibly half an hour, they forget they have been in touch with a person suffering from the disease, or are not aware they were, and they put their hand to their mouth or nose. The organism is still living and they later develop a case of the disease."

Undue Alarm.

Dr. D. B. Whyte, Director of Medical Service of the Department of Health, Toronto, said:

"There is certainly a lot of influenza and some deaths have occurred. But when all things are considered, the death rate is very small. Every case which ends fatally is advertised and there is much talk about it, while at the same time there are children dying every day from measles, diphtheria and other contagious disease and no one says anything about them. Considering the number of cases of influenza, the death rate is small.

Ottawa's Advice.

In Ottawa, where the epidemic of "Spanish Flu" has spread so rapidly the Board of Health has issued instructions prohibiting people from calling at homes where there is any infection.

May Close Schools.

Mayor Kylie of Lindsay, has made a request that the Lindsay schools be closed until after Thanksgiving as a preventative to an epidemic there.

May Start a U-Boat Drive

Every U-Boat in the Enemy Service May be Cut Loose—Naval Chiefs Confer.

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.— Realizing that Germany is likely to start a desperate U-boat drive against transports and troop ships if her peace offensive fails, American naval officials and the British First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Eric Geddes, began conferring here to-day over combative measures.

Indications point to the loosening of practically every U-boat in the Teuton service against the Allied supply lines.

However, authorities believe that this effort, like its predecessors, is doomed to failure, on the whole, because of reduced U-boat efficiency.

Annual Convention Teachers' Institute

Meetings Will be Held in the Collegiate Institute.

The annual convention of the teachers of the city and county of Peterborough is to be held in this city on Thursday and Friday, the 10th and 11th of October. The Thursday evening session is to be held in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Room at 8 p.m. There will be a short musical programme followed by an address on "National Ideals in Education" by Professor Coleman of Queen's University, Kingston.

As education will be one of the chief after-the-war problems, this address should be of interest to all. The public are cordially invited to attend. There will be no admission fee.

The day sessions are also open to the public.

Council Proposes Amendments to Assessment Act

The report of the Light Committee adopted by the Council last night included the following recommendations to be made to the special committee of the Legislature which is considering amendments to the Assessment Act submitted by municipalities

That the following recommendations be made to the Special Committee of the Legislature which is considering amendments to The Assessment Act:—

(a) Income should be collected same year as which assessment is made;

(b) Should be compulsory for every person in receipt of an income liable to taxation to file annually with the Assessor a statement under oath as to the amount of his income;

(c) That income in case of householders from any source be exempt up to $600.00;

(d) That outside contractors should be taxed in the form of a license or otherwise, the tax to be based on the amount of contract;

(e) Business assessment should be changed so that, when the party assessed gives up business during the year, the party taking over the business becomes liable;

(f) That Clause 17, Page 29, be amended to read as follows:—

Every person employing any other person in his trade, manufacture, business or calling, within ten days after demand therefore, shall furnish to the Assessor of any municipality requiring information concerning the names, places of residence, and wages salary or other remuneration of all persons employed by him whose wages, salary or other remuneration are not exempt under the provisions of paragraph 20 of Section 5

(g) To amend Section 49 of The Assessment Act, by adding subsection 6 a:—

6a. In cities and towns, the Assessor may, if so authorized by By-law of the municipality, which By-law the Council of the municipality is hereby empowered to pass, mail the notice or cause same to be mailed to the address of residence or place of business of such person.

(h) To amend Subsection 8 of Section 10, by adding the following:

"Provided in case of a corporation carrying on a mercantile or manufacturing business, dividends paid on shares to parties holding such shares be assessable for the amount of such dividends paid to such parties, and in the case of persons engaged in such businesses their income above the amount of the business tax and statutory exemptions be assessable."

FIRE PREVENTION

Extracts from

PROCLAMATION

Issued by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario.

Whereas next to the care of those who are offering their lives on the front line of battle, the conservation of all our energies and substance is our most important problem;

And whereas the saving of human life, thrift, and the prevention of loss of property through destruction by fire, is an aid which every one should give willingly to the community at large;

And whereas the reckless and impoverishing fire waste that confronts the people of our Province is appalling; * * *

Therefore, believing that the loss can be minimized only by awakening in the public mind a universal watchfulness against carelessness, accumulation of rubbish and unsanitary conditions; * * * and

Because of this great need and in order to arouse a sense of watchfulness, carefulness and cleanliness, and to create a greater personal responsibility in reducing the number of preventable fires;

We have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council for Our Province of Ontario, to name, and do hereby name Wednesday, the

9th DAY OF OCTOBER, 1918
as
FIRE PREVENTION DAY

And We do hereby urge that on this day, throughout our Province of Ontario, attention be called in schools and public places to the conditions that exist and to the need of immediate action and co-operation on the part of everyone; and special exercises, addresses and other means be employed to impress on the public mind lessons of Fire Prevention.

* * *

To insure the success of this great Clean-up Campaign it will be necessary to have the hearty and harmonious co-operation of all * * * who have for their objects civic, social and industrial betterment. * * *

The Proclamation should be read in all Schools and at Public Gatherings.

PTE. EDWARD DOWNES.

Word has been received in the city that No. 455479, Pte. Edward Downes, has been admitted to hospital at Rouen, France, on September 28, suffering from gunshot wound in the wrist. His next of kin is given as Mrs. Matilda Downes, 585 Harvey street, but the party at that address have no knowledge of him. He enlisted in August, 1915, with the 59th Battalion.

PRISONER OF WAR.

Mrs. Josephine Russell, 771½ Smith street, has been officially notified that her son, Corporal William Russell, who was previously reported missing on August 14th, is now officially reported a prisoner of war.

SERGT. J. P. McGRATH.

Mr. David McGrath, 141 Hazlett street, received a telegram to-day saying that his son, Sergt. James P. McGrath has been admitted to hospital suffering from a gunshot wound in the hip. Sergeant McGrath was badly wounded last January and has only lately returned to the front. He enlisted in Peterborough with the 39th Battalion and attained the rank of Company-Sergeant-Major but reverted to private in order to go to France. He was in the 2nd Battalion when wounded.

If a man can't be bought you can usually land him with flattery.

(Special to Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — The President's reply to the German and Austrian request for an armistice and peace negotiations probably will be despatched before night. The President had spent the entire morning in his study and was believed to be putting in final shape the document upon which he worked nearly all day yesterday.

Scene from The Beautiful Hawaiian Romance "THE BIRD OF PARADISE."

"THE BIRD OF PARADISE."

Life in the Hawaiian Islands is the feature of "The Bird of Paradise," Richard Walton Tully's play, that will be seen at the Grand to-morrow, Wednesday, night.

This charming story of Uncle Sam's possessions has created favorable comment wherever it has been played. Dealing as it does with the subject of whether a woman can hold a man's love with just her lips and her arms, or whether there is something stronger than that to hold this love, is the whole subject of the play. Luana, the pretty Hawaiian girl, discovers at the end that she is wrong in thinking that that is all that a man craves, and finding out that her American husband is really tired of her and wishes to go back to his people, she turns to her people again and appeases them by offering herself as a human sacrifice in order to save them from destruction. The scenic artist and electrician have outdone themselves in depicting pictures that are perfect reproductions of the Hawaiian Islands. One of the spectacular scenes is the last act showing Kilauea in eruption. A native band of Hawaiian musicians are carried, and they sing and play their native music throughout the different scenes. Miss Rita Romilly, whom Mr. Morosco discovered this season, will be seen in the leading role of Luana, and others of the cast are made up of metropolitan favorites. A quintette of Hawaiian players and singers are carried and their music is one of the striking features.

Even the lure of the tropics has been felt in the hearts of men from the lands of the north. Perhaps it is because that lure is eternal that "The Bird of Paradise' finds itself going on year after year playing not only to new patrons, but to many who have seen it not once but many many times before.

To those who toil, who know the grimness of rigorous cold, the stubborn resistance of life that nature and soil and social complications offer in the lands of civilization, the picture of the mid-Pacific Islands, with its eternal sunshine, its color and warmth, will always attract.

One of the greatest charms of the play is the ever-present, weirdly sweet music that steals out of the silence and forces its appeal to deeper emotionalism, giving peace to troubled souls and a sweeter breath to the Island love.

INFLUENZA LEAVES TRAIL OF DEATHS. OUTBREAK SPREADS

Canadian Towns Invaded by the Epidemic and Drastic Action is Being Taken by Authorities—Sweeps German Armies.

U.S. ARMY CAMPS STRICKEN

OFFICER SUICIDES FROM WORRY OF CAMP DEATHS

Special to The Examiner:

CAMP GRANT, Ill., Oct. 8.— Col. Chas. B. Hagadorn, commandant of Camp Grant, committed suicide at his quarters last night. His body, with a pistol wound in the head, was found in bed this morning. Officers said today he had been showing strain, imposed on him by the pneumonia epidemic, which has caused more than 500 deaths in camp. He was unmarried.

AUSTRO-GERMAN ARMIES HAVE 280,000 CASES NOW.

Special to The Examiner:

GENEVA, Oct. 8.—One hundred and eighty thousand cases of Spanish influenza are reported in the German army, according to an official despatch received from Berlin to-day.

A Vienna despatch says Hungarian newspapers report 100,000 cases in Budapest.

104 DEATHS IN 24 HOURS AT CAMP SHERIDAN.

Special to The Examiner:

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 8. — Epidemic of Spanish influenza is increasing rapidly in Ohio, and a total of 25,000 cases and many deaths have been reported to the State Department of Health to-day. Camp Sherman reported 104 deaths for a 24 hour period ending at 3 p.m. yesterday.

ORDNANCE DEPT. HAS 300 CASES AMONG STAFF

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — Spanish influenza has stricken approximately 300 civilian workers in the Ordnance Department here, the War Department announces to-day. Owing to the scarcity of physicians nurses were taken to homes of the employees in Departmental autos.

2,000 CASES AT KITCHENER.

Kitchener has 2,000 cases, with 12 deaths in a week. All schools, churches, theatres, have been closed and public gatherings forbidden.

SHERBROOKE'S DEATHS.

There were 25 deaths for the week end in Sherbrooke, where temporary hospitals have been opened to cope with the epidemic.

NURSES ARE ILL.

Nine nurses of the General Hospital, St. Catharines, are ill with influenza.

4,910 DEAD IN U. S. CAMPS.

Influenza cases reported from all camps in the United States since the disease became epidemic in September 13th, now totals 167,000; pneumonia cases 17,102, and deaths 4,910.

WAR CORRESPONDENT DEAD.

PARIS, Oct. 7.— Don Martin, war correspondent of the New York Herald, died this morning after being ill for two days with Spanish influenza.

The American Answer

ion as to his reply to the Tenton peace notes. The State Department was to give the press a conference at 4 o'clock, at which hour it was anticipated either the reply or an outline of it would be forthcoming.

(Special to Examiner.)

ROME, Oct. 8. — "We must have absolute victory. Any kind of negotiation is now more than ever inadmissible." The words of President Wilson immediately after the rejection of the Austrian peace proposal, are printed by the "Epoca" in large type as summarizing the attitude of the Italians toward the new peace movement.

"Austria seeks to cheat the Italian national aspirations by simply returning to the status quo, which means permanent irreconcilation and conflict between Italy and Austria as long as the latter keeps under her the territories inhabited by Italians."

(Special to Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 8. — "Germany's new ministry is one of national defence as well as peace and is prepared for a stand to the end against a humiliating peace," Dr. Bernhard, former German minister of the Colonies, declared in a statement.

LACK OF FAITH.

(Special to Examiner.)

GLASGOW, Oct. 8. — Winston Churchill, the British Minister of Munitions, speaking here, expressed his lack of faith in the purpose of the German government as outlined in the last German peace proposals.

(Special to Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — The 4 o'clock press conference was arranged after President Wilson had consulted with his closest advisers, Secretary of State Lansing, Col. House, and Private Secretary Tumulty.

Previous to that time, it was sent to the entente circles, and the President had briefly consulted the allies as to his reply.

That the answers are rejections of the Teuton offer appeared entirely certain. What they might develop in the way of negotiations or what develop in the way of talking unconditional surrender, was not revealed early this afternoon.

MOTHER, YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, FROM CONSTIPATION

IF TONGUE IS COATED, BREATH BAD, STOMACH SOUR, CLEAN LIVER AND BOWELS.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once — a teaspoonful to-day often saves a sick child to-morrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts half sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally — look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs,' and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels, and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and from grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask the druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs,' then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

No Trouble to Keep Skin Free From Hair

(The Modern Beauty)

There is no need for any woman to countenance superfluous hairs, because with a paste made by mixing some powdered delatone with water it is easy to get rid of them The paste is applied for 2 to 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This treatment will rid the skin of hair without leaving a blemish, but care should be taken to see that you get real delatone.

Council Authorizes Fuel Commission to Engage Help Needed for Keeping Records

Also Instructs Legal Committee to Follow Up Protest Against Bell Telephone Company's Increased Rates—Mr. G. N. Gordon in Role of Keeper of Small Street Park.

EX-MAYOR DUFFUS' REQUEST

"We must support the Commission," Mayor Duncan remarked, upon the Fuel Commission's application to the Council last night for clerical help to file the reports of the coal dealers' daily deliveries.

Ald. Worth moved, seconded by Ald. Taylor, that they be authorized to engage two girls to carry on the work begun by Miss Edgar, and recently assumed by City Clerk Armstrong. His two stenographers and Assistant City Clerk Curtis have spent a week filing the statements of dealers who had withheld their reports for months.

The Commission ordered the dealers not to supply consumers who have already received coal, but dealers telephone every day asking how they are to know who these citizens are.

"It means a lot of work to keep the records and supply this information," Mr. Armstrong said, and added that two girls would probably be required all the time.

Ask For Light.

Joseph Finlay and four other ratepayers petitioned for a light at the corner of Caddy and Centre Streets.

"That was passed long ago," Ald. Weir commented, "but it seems impossible to get the lamp placed there. The bridge at that point should have a railing."

A Tree Too Many.

Mrs. W. A. Sanderson's request for permission to remove a tree in front of her residence at 369 Brock Street was referred to the Board of Works.

Mr. G. N. Gordon's Park.

City Solicitor Gordon has been performing a little public service out in the west end that was bared to the public for the first time last night. At the corner of Park and Hunter Streets there is a little stray patch of sward bearing ten trees. During the summer Mr. Gordon kept the grass cut, and for the first time the plot looked trim and neat. A florist informed him that the grass would never thrive until the trees were trimmed. Mr. Gordon was willing to fertilize, seed and roll the lot this fall if the city would trim the trees.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Worth, that Mr. Gordon's offer be accepted, and the trimming be done at once.

$36 For a Ribbon of Land.

The Council discovered that it owned nine inches of land on Babb's Lane more than it was aware of. The Council previously agreed to sell a strip of ten feet to Mrs. Elizabeth Davidson at $48 a foot for a total of $480, but last night, on a motion by Ald. A. A. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Edgar, it was decided to convey the entire strip of 10 feet 9 inches to Mrs. Davidson for $518 and reserve pole rights for the city.

Working Girls Ask Jitney Over River.

Ald. Worth reported that he had received a petition from working girls living in Ashburnham, requesting that a "jitney" service be provided for them during the cold weather.

The Council was unable to suggest a means by which the traffic convenience could be supplied.

Ald. Weir asked whether an arrangement could be made by which the Hydro-Electric Commission and a jitney service might honour each other's tickets.

This subject lagged, and expired finally with Ald. Malcolm McIntyre's hope that this would be the last winter without a street car service to Ashburnham.

Walks to Cost $598.59.

City Engineer Parsons reported that the cost of concrete sidewalks on Gladstone Ave, Water Street, east side, south from Charlotte, and on south side of Charlotte east from Water Street, would be $598.59, according to his estimates.

May Remove Trees.

City Engineer Parsons recommended that Mr. Weber Turner be given permission to remove every second tree from in front of his residence at 566 Gilmour Street. Approved, on motion by Ald. Taylor, seconded by Ald. Worth.

Dog By-law Unchanged.

Dr. Amys reported that there had not been a case of rabies in the city for over six months. "I wish to state that I consider bull dogs a menace if allowed to run at large in a city where there are so many children," he added.

Mayor Duncan said that some of the hunters wish to loose their hounds preparatory to the hunting season, but the Council was unresponsive.

Need Larger Garage.

The Dominion Dustless Sweepers, Limited, asked for permission to enlarge their present garage on Water Street to accommodate two machines. Granted, on motion by Ald. Edgar, seconded by Ald. Langford, the work to be done under the supervision of the City Engineer.

Sidewalk to Office.

The Campbell Milling Co. need a sidewalk on Dalhousie Street from George Street to a point directly in front of their office door. They offered to supply the materials and do all but the finishing work, and for that reason asked that no frontage tax be charged against them for this short stretch of sidewalk. On motion of Ald. Taylor, seconded by Ald. Saunders, their request was granted. The city will provide a man to do the finishing work.

Protest Bell Telephone Rates.

Replying to the Council's complaint of the Bell Telephone Company's increase in the charges for local party lines, the Dominion Railway Board replied that the new tariff became effective automatically on October 1. Ald. A. A. McIntyre had introduced this subject at a recent meeting of the Council, and last night moved, seconded by Ald. Langford, that it be referred to the Legal Committee, with instructions to watch the actions of other protesting municipalities, and with full authority to support any applications they may forward to the Railway Board for the disallowance of the increased rates.

The committee was also authorized to make a formal protest to the Board.

City Solicitor Gordon stated that Toronto and other cities have filed their objections, and were getting evidence to submit to the Board.

Will Supply Labour.

A sidewalk on the south side of Charlotte Street, east of Water Street, in front of the Duffus Garage, will be built under the superintendence of city officials at at city wages, but by men engaged by Mr. J. J. Duffus, who requested the Council to construct it as soon as possible. Mr. Duffus stated that he expected the building to be completed in a short time, and he wish to level off the ground around it.

The Council was willing to assist him, but it was stated that there were no men available for the work.

Mr. Duffus replied that he would supply the men if the city would undertake the work.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders, that the City Engineer be instructed to proceed with the sidewalk under these conditions, also that the stone and gravel required be purchased from the supply Mr. Duffus has on hand and at the prices the city has been paying for similar work. The questions of building a curb outside the walk and of buying concrete from Mr. Duffus' supply were left with City Engineer Parsons. The curb will be about 20 feet long, and 15 feet from the building.

Mr. Duffus also stated that he had already built that part of the sidewalk covering the coal chute for the garage, and asked that he be recompensed by the city laying an equal amount of concrete in one of the approaches he had yet to finish.

Ald. Edgar remarked that if the sidewalk had been laid previously, Mr. Duffus would have had to tear it up to build the coal chute and then relay the walk at his own expense.

"But the walk wasn't there," the ex-Mayor replied, "so where is your argument?"

Ald. Edgar re-stated his point, which he maintained was revelant, but the question was referred to the Property Committee.

EXPRESSION OF SYMPATHY FROM LAW ASSOCIATION

Lieut. A. Huycke and Gunner Herbert Dixon Referred To.

The following is a copy of two resolutions passed by the members of the County of Peterborough Law Association at a special meeting held at the Law Library:

Moved by Mr. O. A. Langley and seconded by Mr. Joseph Wearing, and carried:

That the members of this Association, having heard with greatest regret that Lieutenant Arthur Huycke, youngest son of His Honour Judge E. C. S. Huycke, Judge of the County of Peterborough, has been reported missing by the Admiralty while on active service in the Royal Naval Air Force, do express their heartfelt sympathy with His Honour at this time.

The members of the Association desire, also, to express the hope that the anxiety of His Honour, his wife and the other members of the family may be speedily relieved, and that time will prove that their gallant son has been rescued and that he may be restored to them, and once more be found in the service of his King and country bravely upholding the sacred cause of freedom and liberty.

Herbert Dixon.

It was moved by Mr. E. H. D. Hall and seconded by Mr. G. N. Gordon, that the members of this Association place on record an expression of their great regret in learning of the death in action in France of Herbert Dixon, son of Albert E. Dixon, Esq., a member of this Association.

That the Secretary be instructed to convey to Mr. Dixon an expression of the deepest sympathy of the members of this Association in this great bereavement, and the hope that the memory of the sacrifice and devotion to country made by his son may be a source of consolation to him, his wife and the other members of their family.

Fire Brigade Out, on Prevention Day Wednesday, Oct. 9

Peterboro's public reminder of the need of fire prevention will be impressed upon the people by the Fire Department which on Wednesday, October 9th, the day appointed by the Ontario Fire Protection League, will parade through the entire city. The League has inaugurated this movement for the purpose of educating the people in the necessity of greater precautions on their part in keeping their premises free of debris and otherwise fire traps. The Council decided that a public meeting was unnecessary. This League has appealed to all the municipalities in the Province to observe Fire Prevention Day in the hope that it will bring about a deeper realization of the value of the little precautions that every householder can practice, and by concerted action ultimately reduce this province's heavy annual fire loss

IN MEMORIAM.
In sad and loving remembrance of my dear husband, Pte. John Wilson, of the 3rd Toronto Battalion, formerly of the 83rd Battalion, killed in action in France at the Battle of the Somme, on the 8th Oct., 1916:

There's a lonely grave across the sea,
Where lies my darling husband I never more will see..
My heart is sad and weary, as lonely here I sit,
But I am proud of my dear hero
For I know he did his bit.

His King and country called him,
The call he did obey,
He left a lonely heart behind
When he went away.
He fought his country's battles,
He died to make us free,
He gave his life that we may live
In a land of liberty.

When the World Was New.

The world is biggest when we are young enough to conceive of the pasture as an empire and the city block as a republic. Time is longest when we are young enough to see a day as an epoch, a week as an era, a summer vacation by seaside or lake shore as eternity itself. As we grow older the world grows smaller, and so does time. Space and time are nothing for boy or man save as he holds measures for them in hand or in memory. The boy understands ten feet because that is three long strides, and ten years because he has just lived them. Now we have lived another ten and yet another, but the first ten were the longest and are the truest measure, for the more years we are granted the more scornful of the gift we grow, though the more insistent, too, in our demand for more.

Committee to Confer With Authorities of Mount St. Joseph

Rejecting a recommendation in the Board of Works report to rescind the former decision to provide a sewer for Mount Saint Joseph, the Council last night appointed Aldermen Worth Taylor, Weir and A. A. McIntyre a special committee to confer with the authorities of the Mount regarding the share of the cost they would be willing to accept.

This clause in the Board's report submitted last night proposed the rescinding of the former action and "that Rev. Father Phelan be asked to meet the Council and discuss the question of the annexation of the Mount Property to the city."

"If it's left in that shape nothing will be done," Ald. A. A. McIntyre said in moving an amendment to the report that the clause be struck out.

"To rescind the former clause would merely throw it out," Ald. Worth said, and seconded the amendment which carried.

Ald. Edgar remarked that some of the members of the Board of Works had "flopped" on their motion that had been passed in committee. "The resolution was not out of the way," he said. "We don't know whether Mount St. Joseph is willing to pay the cost when the sewer is completed. You have other applications for sewer connections outside the city because when one party is given the privilege of connecting others think they also are entitled to it. I am of the same opinion."

Ald. Edgar stated that if these privileges were given to persons outside the city, they would not be willing to be annexed.

"The tax rate in Monaghan is 16 6-10 mills. Do you expect them to come in and pay 36 mills if they can get these privileges?"

Applications for sewer connections were received from Victor Wilson, H. Wilson and Roy Pilling of King George street, south of the city, and Israel Payne and J. D. Manley who did not give their street addresses.

"KEWIE" IS RARE BIRD IN UNCLE SAM'S ARMY

(By United Press.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 12. (By Mail.)—There are birds and birds among the American birdmen along the front. One is a rare specimen of the "kewie bird."

A "kewie bird" is a chap who flies little, but always comes back with a tale of terrible fighting whenever he gets into his machine.

"We call such fliers kewie birds," explained one of the real birdmen who never talks of himself, "because the kewie is the bird inhabiting the shores of Newfoundland. It always flaps its wings and squawks a lot, but never rises from the earth."

A man never remains a "kewie" long among Uncle Sam's fliers. They won't stand for the "kewie's squawks." The "kewie" is soon "rid den to death," with derision and ceases to talk.

There are seldom "kewies" in the aviation camps especially among the men who fly much. Most aviators are modest to the extent of being bashful, and while they will always tell what the other fellow did, their own experiences can be hardly pried out of them.

They'd rather be shot down by a boche than be a "kewie bird."

Huns Must Leave Allied Soil Before Peace Can Be Discussed, Says President

President Wilson Refuses German and Austrian Request for an Armistice—Maximilian is Asked for Evidence of Good Faith on Part of Germany—German Chancellor is Asked Whether He Means Germany is Ready to Accept the Fourteen Terms and Discuss Only Details of Their Application.

REPLY IS SENT IN THE FORM OF AN INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, October 8. — President Wilson late yesterday informed the German government that before the United States can discuss an armistice German troops must withdraw from all invaded territory. He asked Chancellor Maximilian whether he represented the German people or the authorities of the Empire who are conducting the war.

The President's message was not a reply, but in the form of an inquiry. The Imperial German Government is asked whether it accepts the terms laid down by the President in his address to Congress, January 8th, and subsequent addresses.

TEXT OF SECRETARY LANSING'S REPLY.

The text of the communication handed to the Charge of Switzerland here follows:

"Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge on behalf of the President, your note of October 6th, enclosing the communication from the German government to the President; and I am instructed by the President to request you to make the following communication to the Imperial German Chancellor:

"Before making reply to the request of the Imperial German government, and in order that that reply shall be as candid and straightforward as the momentous interests involved require, the President of the United States deems it necessary to assure himself of the exact meaning of the note of the Imperial Chancellor. Does the Imperial German Government accept the terms laid down by the President in his address to the Congress of the United States on the 8th of January last, and in subsequent addresses, and that its object in entering into discussion would be only to agree on the practical details of their application.

MUST WITHDRAW TO SHOW GOOD FAITH.

"The President feels bound to say with regard to the suggestion of an armistice that he would not feel at liberty to propose a cessation of arms to the Governments with which the Government of the United States is associated against the Central Powers so long as the armies of those powers are upon their soil. The good faith of any discussion would manifestly depend upon the consent of the Central Powers immediately to withdraw their forces everywhere from invaded territory.

"The President also feels that he is justified is asking whether the Imperial Chancellor is speaking merely for the constituted authorities of the Empire who have so far conducted the war. He deems the answer to these questions vital from every point of view."

TRANSLATION OF GERMAN NOTE.

The translation of the German note as presented by Swiss Charge d'Affaires Oederlin, said:

"The German Government requests the President of the United States of America to take steps for the restoration of peace, to notify all belligerents of this request and to invite them to delegate plenipotentiaries for the purpose of taking up negotiations.

"The German Government accepts as a basis for peace negotiations the programme laid down by the President of the United States in his message to Congress of January 8, 1918, and in his subsequent pronouncements, particularly in his address of September 27, 1918.

"In order to avoid further bloodshed the German Government requests to bring about the immediate conclusion of a general armistice on land, on water and in the air."

APPEAL TO JEWISH PEOPLE

A copy of the appended cable has been forwarded to Peterborough for circulation among the Jewish fraternity:

Copy of cable sent to Clarence I. de Sola, President of Canadian Federation, dated Jerusalem, October 2nd, 1918.

"The Zionist Organization appeals to the Jewish people to celebrate November 2nd as 'Declaration Day' and to observe the anniversary of this historic date every year. It was on the 2nd of November, 1917, that the British Government issued their declaration on Zionism which opened a new area in the history of the Jewish people. Great Britain then officially recognized the inviolable right of the Jewish people to a national home in Palestine and offered her powerful help towards the realization of this aim. The British Government then showed its determination to assist the Jewish people in their age-long aspirations, by authorizing the appointment of a Zionst Commission to proceed to Palestine in order to investigate the ways and means for establishing a national home for the Jewish people in Palestine, with the approval of the British Government. The foundation of the Hebrew University, in Jerusalem, was laid on July 24th, 1918. We look forward with the confident hope that this national centre of learning will become a source of light and of spiritual guidance to the scattered communities of Israel. All the Allied Powers fighting for the freedom of the world have declared their determination to help us to achieve our purpose. France, faithful to its great tradition of liberty, equality and fraternity, has, in the most generous spirit, officially declared its sincere intention to support our cause. The Italian Government, ever devoted to the ideal of nationality, has given expression to its determination to assist our national aims. President Wilson, representing the great democracy of the western hemisphere, has declared his full approval of the British declaration and his sympathy for the reconstructive work of the Zionist Commission in Palestine. We now have the assurance of complete solidarity between the Allied Powers in favour of our national cause. The whole world views our efforts with the greatest sympathy. Despite the terrible sacrifices which our people have made during the world upheaval, never was our future more full of promise and of hope. 'Declaration Day' falls this year at an opportune time. General Allenby and the heroic British army have liberated the Land of Israel, bringing freedom, justice and good government in their train; therefore, let the Jewish people once again express their heartfelt gratitude to the British Government; let them hold meetings and thanksgiving services to give utterance to their joy at the triumph of the British army, whose efforts we hope to see crowned with final victory. Let 'Declaration Day' be observed in a manner worthy of the great historic event which marks the dawn of a new era for the Jewish people.

(Signed)

Palestine Zionist Commission.

GRAIN MARKET

Business continues quiet in the local market. Grain is moving out but slowly, farmers taking advantage of every fine day to get through as much of the fall field work as possible, leaving the hauling of grain to market to less busy times. Canadian corn is not yet in the market, but the American corn is available, and is selling around $1.62 to $1.63, Toronto freights, for No. 3, Yellow. Quite a little winter wheat has been delivered, although it had been said that the crop had all been winter killed.

Manitoba wheat — No. 1 northern, $2.24 1-2; No. 2, $2.21 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.11 1-2 (not including tax) in store, Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 82c, in store, Fort William; No. 3, 76 3-4; extra No. 1 feed, 78 3-4c; No. 1 feed, 76 3-4c.

American corn—No. 3 yellow, kiln dried, Toronto freight, $1.62 to $1.63 (unofficial.)

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.31; No. 3 winter, $2.27; No. 2 spring $2.26; No. 3 spring, $2.22, basis in store, Montreal.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, new crop, 76c. to 78c.; No. 3, 75c. to 77c., according to freight outside.

Barley—Malting, new crop, $1.05 to $1.10.

Peas—No. 2 nominal.

Buckwheat—Nominal.

Rye—No. 2, nominal.

Ontario Flour — War quality, $10.75, Toronto-Montreal, $10.75, new bags.

Manitoba flour—War quality, $11.65, old crop, Toronto.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered Montreal; shorts, $42.25; bran, $37.25; feed flour, not quoted; middlings not quoted.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2, $21 to $22; No. 2 mixed, $19 to $20 per ton; straw, car lots, $9 to $9.50.

BE READY FOR EMERGENCIES.

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when croup or colds come suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25-cent bottle and sell at 60 cents.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards — Receipts yesterday 52 cars, with 580 cattle, 157 calves, 666 hogs and 895 sheep and lambs.

It was a quiet dull market, prices holding steady at Monday's decline of 50c on all grades of butcher cattle. The one or two loads of heavy choice steers were cleared out late Monday afternoon at from $12.50 to $14.25. Outside of these there have been no choice lots offering this week, and prices even at the recent sharp declines are considered to be still good, considering the quality of the cattle.

Fat cows especially are on the weak side of the market this week.

The receipts of Western cattle are steadily increasing.

Lambs were 25c higher yesterday, with the lighter receipts.

Hogs are down 50c from last week.

-THE WIFE-

BY JANE PHELPS

Brian Takes Ruth to a Cheap Hotel

CHAPTER VIII

When they arrived in New York, dusk was just falling. They drove to a small hotel, where Brian had made arrangements to remain until they could find an apartment that pleased Ruth, and suited his pocket book. The hotel was rather dingy, but at night it did not look so bad, and he hoped Ruth would not feel too much out of place in it. He knew that upon her visit to New York with her aunt, she had stayed at one of the fashionable Fifth Avenue Hotels, so it was with an apologetic manner that he asked her if she thought she could be comfortable for a few days until they found an apartment.

"I will have to be, I suppose," she returned, not meaning to be ungracious, her fastidiousness rather shocked, nevertheless.

"It will be only for a little while, until we find something suitable," Brian told her. "And you will be out all day looking for a place, then for the furniture"

"It will be such fun!" Ruth exclaimed. "I do so love to furnish. I had the time of my life when I did over aunt's house."

"I'm afraid there will be quite a difference in furnishing a four or five room flat and your aunt's lovely old house."

"I shall enjoy it, just the same." Nothing could dampen Ruth's ardor where furnishing and decorations were concerned.

Things did not look quite so rosy the next morning. The dinginess of the hotel in the bright sunlight that struggled through the soiled windows, was more apparant. The faded carpets of antique pattern, the streaked draperies of no particular color, the old fashioned upholstered furniture, all were gloomy and forbidding. But Ruth said nothing. Brian had told her the night before that he had arranged to remain. She would not make him unhappy by letting him see how the surroundings depressed her. She made a little move and shrugged her shoulders, as she thought she was glad her aunt couldn't see it

"She would be sure I had made a mistake in marrying Brian," she said to herself. Brian had gone at once to the office, first, however, giving her a list of real estate agents who would be apt to have something within his means on their lists.

She sipped her coffee from the thick china cup, determinedly taking her thoughts from the tray so daintily set for her by Rachel, with its dainty Haviland china, shining silver, and glistening glass. She was in Rome, she would do as—the Romans, rather as the New Yorkers in her position, did.

After her breakfast she started out. As she was entirely unfamiliar with the portion of the city in which the real estate offices were located, she did not get along very fast. And at tel. She had found nothing, within discouraged, she returned to the hotel. She had found nothing, within the price Brian told her they could afford to pay, that she would even consider.

"Why, Brian, even Rachel wouldn't live in the places I saw!" she told him when he came in, about an hour after she did, and found her curled up on the faded couch in one of her beautiful negligees in which she was so lovely and dainty looking, he declared he was afraid to kiss her. At the same time he was totally unaware how out of place his bride looked in such surroundings

"Tell me about them," seating himself beside her, Brian listened while she described the places she had visited.

"No elevators, and nasty, narrow stairs, with doors almost at right angles at the top. Why, Brian, if you opened your door at the same time they were opening the other one, both could look right in! Then those horrid little mail boxes where you had to push a button to get in. Why, dear, I would be absolutely mortified to death to have any one call on me and stand and push a button to see the door open of itself And the tiny rooms, and—ugh—some of the places have cockroaches running a't live in a single placeshrdl ushlrr around! why, Brian, we just couldn't live in a single place I saw to-day."

"Perhaps you will have better luck to-morrow, little girl. Now get dressed and we'll go down to dinner."

"Then let's go to a play. I've got the blues, seeing those horrid little holes I saw to-day."

"I don't believe we'd better. You see, Ruth, dear, we haven't much money left. I can't ask for an advance, very well, and we must keep enough to pay our bill here when we get out, and to furnish our flat. After we get settled we'll go whenever you wast to," he promised as he saw a look of disappointment on Ruth's face.

"It's rather horrid to be poor, isn't it?" she asked after a moment.

"Oh, I don't know! I never worried much about it."

"Perhaps men are like that! But I guess women think more about pretty things, and going nice places. I never have had to think much about such things, you know'"

"Yes, I know you have been spoiled by having everything you want, and I'm going right on spoiling you in the same way, before very long," he assured her, his optimistic spirit roused as soon as he began to talk to her.

Strong, Forceful Men With Plenty of Iron In Their Blood—

These Are the Ones With the Power and Energy To Win

"Many a capable man or woman falls just short of winning because they don't back up their mentality with the physical strength and energy which come from having plenty of iron in the blood," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "Lack of Iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. To help make strong, keen red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron. It often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time." Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually, including such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury, and ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential nominee Charles A. Towne, General John L. Clem (retired), the drummer boy of Shiloh who was sergeant in the U. S. Army when only twelve years of age; also United States Judge G. W. Atkinson of the Court of Claims of Washington, and others.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifullly dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of his old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

THE TONKA BEAN.

From It We Get the Perfume Known as New Mown Hay.

Grass, freshly cut or otherwise, has had nothing to do with the production of the perfume labeled "New Mown Hay." The source of the essence is really the tonka bean, found in the tropical countries of South America, chiefly in the valleys of the Orinoco, Caura and Cuchivero rivers in Venezuela and certain sections of Colombia and Brazil.

The tonka bean tree in some cases reaches a height of sixty feet. It has pinnate leaves and large panicles of flowers, which are succeeded by a pod containing a single seed. The odor, which is remarkably strong, resembles that of sweet clover new mown hay and is due to the presence of cumarin, a crystallizable, volatile, neutral substance which is soluble in alcohol or ether and somewhat so in boiling water, from which it crystallizes on cooling. The beans are often frosted with crystals of this substance, giving them the appearance of being sugar coated. The collectors in Venezuela and Colombia usually set out for the forests in February, when the fruit begins to ripen. They go up the rivers in canoes or skiffs by the hundreds, stopping wherever the trees are plentiful, and when the fruit begins to fall the pods are gathered and taken to some open space where sunshine is plentiful and there carefully crushed and the beans extracted and then spread out to dry. When thoroughly dried they are loaded into the boats and transported to Ciudad Bolivar or some other convenient port, where they are sold to the exporting merchants. Here they go through the process of crystallization by being steeped in strong rum or alcohol for about twenty-four hours and then again dried.

They lend their fragrance to high grade tobacco, fine toilet soaps, to "brilliantine" and other hair dressings and dyes, to cosmetics, to flavoring extracts used in confections and to many other things that gratify the sense of smell.

Oldest Temperance Lecture.

A foreign exchange has this interesting paragraph: "There is still in existence an Egyptian papyrus of the date of 3,500 years before the Christian era, which contains the following caution: 'My son, do not linger in the wineshop or drink too much wine. It causeth thee to utter words regarding thy neighbor which thou rememberest not. Thou fallest upon the ground; thy limbs become weak as those of a child. One cometh to trade with thee and findeth thee so. Then say they, "Take away the fellow, for he is drunk."'" This is believed to be the oldest temperance lecture in existence.—Christian Herald.

ESSENTIALS OF PITCHING.

First Comes Control, Then Knowledge of a Batter's Weakness.

"Control is the thing," say all the great pitchers, and all the great pitchers agree that a study of the batsman is next in importance. There are certain batters who can punish certain kinds of balls, while against a different style of pitching they are correspondingly weak. If a batter likes a fast ball at the waist line it becomes the duty of the wise pitcher never to give him a ball to his liking. Perhaps he is weak on a curve ball at the knee on the outside. The foxy pitcher makes a specialty of offering him that kind of delivery in abundance. In deciding what is best to pitch to the various batters a brainy catcher is of wonderful assistance.

Then, too, the pitcher must study situations. When he divines that a sacrifice is the play it is usually the best plan to keep the ball high. Such a ball is harder to meet squarely, while it is almost impossible to give it definite direction. On a low ball the skillful bunter can usually place it toward first or third, as is desired. For batters who have a tendency to pull away pitchers usually keep the ball on the outside, mostly depending on the curve. Seldom do batters who pull meet such balls squarely. As a rule they hit fast balls on the inside hard. The batter who hugs the plate closely and steps into the ball is bothered most by a fast ball on the inside, as it has a tendency to make him meet the ball on the handle, thereby losing most of the force he puts into the swing.

The pitcher must also take into consideration the position of his infield and must know who is covering the base on a throw, so that he may pitch to aid his infielders.—Billy Evans in St. Nicholas.

Scotch Repartee.

An eminent Scotch clergyman happened to dine with some learned lawyers of the Edinburgh bar. He appropriated to himself a large dish of cress, upon which he fed voraciously. Erskine, wishing to admonish him for his discourtesy to the other diners, remarked:

"Doctor, you remind me of Nebuchadnezzar in his degradation."

"Aye, do I mind ye o' Nebuchadnezzar? Doubtless because I am eating among the brutes," answered the Scotch worthy.

Perfectly Natural.

"Why does that young man reach in his pocket and draw out a package of papers as soon as he begins to talk to any one?"

"That's a mere matter of habit. You see, he is a life insurance agent."

In the Modern Flat.

Prospective Tenant (dubiously)—Well, I'd take the place—it has modern improvements, and so forth, as you say—but I don't like that ugly crack in the wall over there. Janitor (hastily)—Crack, sir? Why, that's the private hall.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth); then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for five times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Snowball

By Augustus Goodsch Sherwin

"You got them, did you?" pressed eagerly one of two men hustling along in the darkness.

"I got all the papers there were: yes," responded the other. "Now, what are you going to do with them?"

"Get a little further in among the brush and I'll show you," chuckled Boyd Willett.

They were rough men in a rough community, and they had just accomplished a rough deed. Briefly, Willett had hired a common criminal to burglarize the home of a man with whom he had a lawsuit over some land, and secure documents the lack of which on the part of the latter would give Willett all the advantage.

"What's this? What you sneaking around here for?" suddenly burst [illegible] a prostrate form. "Oh! Indian Jim—and drunk as usual!"

"Not fire-water this time," mumbled the halfbreed. "Jim got rheumatism. Can't go fast."

"Well, liven the way just now and don't hang around here poking into our business," growled Willett, giving the poor wretch a brutal kick that sent him rolling out of the path.

"It come. I mark you for that!" growled Jim, and lay where he was and glared after the fellow who had humbled and hurt him. Willett and his confrere advanced a little further into the wood. Willett scraped up a heap of dry leaves with his foot and lit the mass.

"Dump on the papers," he said, and his associate opened a small sack he carried and a number of documents fell into the flames.

"They're all there!" gloated Willett. "Once out of existence my game is clear. Now let Richard West and his slick young lawyer prove that they have any claim to Moccasin ranch."

"Whew!" ejaculated the other, as a whirl of the wind sent up spiral straying wreaths of smoke and blinded his sight, and neither he nor Willett observed that one yellow, time-worn sheet flew free of flame contact. It whirled in among some bushes, out of them and over to where Indian Jim lay. He secured it, not then knowing its purport or value.

There was a pretty romance current concerning the young lawyer, Vance Dale, who had the Moccasin ranch land case, and the daughter of the man who was his client. Gossip had it that if Richard West won his rights he would be a very rich man. Gossip, too, foretold that if he won the case Dale would win, as well, Elnora as a reward for his labors.

good faith, never dreaming of the abstraction of the papers. Richard West delivered over to his counsel the box that had contained them. He was crushed, prostrated, when Vance Dale one day informed him that the box was empty.

"Then we will lose the case," mourned West. "There was one paper, a contract, that would have proved our right of priority. It never was recorded. What can we do?"

"Fight to the end," replied young Dale staunchly. "Willett has a crude deed, it is true, but you have possession. Yes, we will beat them yet."

Young Dale came across Indian Jim one day, sick and half-starved, in an old dugout, provided for his needs and Jim got on his feet.

Then all minor themes of interest and excitement in the town were obscured by the great trial. Winter had come, but the courtroom was thronged each day of the trial.

"It looks as if West is beaten out," was the popular opinion, but Vance Dale fought the opposite side every inch of the way. The final afternoon of the trial, however, the loss of the papers told heavily against his client.

Dale arose to deliver his final argument in the case. All he could do was to make a strong point of the actual occupancy of the ranch by West through the years. Willett based his claim on the deed of a relative of the original owner. The contract of this man, now dead, with West would have been conclusive, but, as shown, it had been abstracted by the criminal associate of Willett.

Dale rose to make his great appeal before the court. There was a hush in the courtroom, and then, as Dale lifted one hand to begin his peroration, a crash sounded through the room. A flying object had smashed a pane of glass, striking the young lawyer squarely in the breast and then dropping to the floor. A snowball had come speeding from the outside. Instantly there was commotion. Some court officers ran out. There were echoes of rifle shots; then affairs quieted down as it was known that Indian Jim had fired the snowball from an overlooking building and had then fled on his fleet Indian pony.

Dale had pushed the snowball aside with his foot. Glancing down now, about to resume his speech, he chanced to observe, protruding from one side of the snowy sphere, a fragment of buckskin. He pulled at this to bring to light a pouch, and inside of it the folded document, blown away from the fire that night in the woods—the old contract.

So Indian Jim had his revenge on Boyd Willett and repaid the kindness of Dale at a critical juncture, and brought fortune to Richard West and a loving wife to the young frontier lawyer.

USED FOR SHAVING.

Many men are troubled, more particularly in the cold weather, with a sort of roughness of the skin or eczema caused by shaving. The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment after the shave soon cures the trouble and by using it after each shave you keep the skin soft and prevent irritation and soreness. Because of its antiseptic qualities this ointment prevents and cures Barber's Itch.

LITTLE ANDORRA.

The Tiny Republic That Nestles in a Nook in the Pyrenees.

Andorra is a republic of 175 square miles situated in the valley of the same name in the Eastern Pyrenees. It forms an irregular little square plug between France and Spain and is a hotbed for smugglers plying between the two countries. It leads a semi-independent existence under the protection of France and the Bishop of Urgel, Spain. Charlemague declared it independent in return for its services against the Moors.

In 1278 it was transferred to the Comte de Foix and the Bishopric of Urgel. During the French revolution relations between it and France were interrupted, on account of the refusal of France to accept the annual tribute, which was considered incompatible with a Republican form of government. In 1806, however, the former relations were renewed, and free importation of cereals, made necessary by the limited area of Andorra, was allowed by France in return for an annual tribute of 960 francs.

Andorra is governed by a council of twenty-four members chosen for four years by the heads of the communities. The revenue is derived from lands and a few taxes. The manner of life is very simple. Every ablebodied male is liable to military service between the ages of sixteen and sixty. The capital is Andorra, with about 1,000 inhabitants. The total population is about 6,000 and remains practically stationary.

MAD RIOT OF COLORS.

Grotesque Native Fashions on the West Coast of Africa.

A somewhat amusing description of the arrival of a ship on the African coast near Sierra Leone is given by Mrs. Horace Tremlett in her book "With the Tin Gods." She says the ship was met by a multitude of primitive native canoes manned by naked savages, but evidences of civilization were not lacking in the later arrivals.

"They were followed in a more leisurely and decorous fashion by boats, also containing colored people, but clothed and apparently in their right mind, and these climbed up the companionway and swarmed in dozens all over the decks and into the saloons, taking possession of the ship. No one appeared to resent their behavior, and they crowded into the drawing room, lolling about on the settees and chairs. Some of them thumped out hymns and cakewalks with merciless enthusiasm on the piano, while the others whistled or sang the tune in various and divergent keys. They had evidently come on board to enjoy themselves, and every black face was decorated with an expansive and genial grin of pleasure.

"The men were dressed in decent ready made suits of dark tweed or cloth and, though adorned with a good deal of jewelry in the way of watch chains, pins and rings, were quite presentable. But their womenfolk were the most ludicrous caricature of civilization it is possible to imagine. Many of them were silk and satin dresses, frilled, gathered and draped about their bulky figures. Red and yellow appeared to be the most popular colors, although purple and green were a close second, and I remember a very striking costume of emerald green velvet with [illegible] and frills of deep coffee colored lace that surely must have been the envy of all beholders. Huge hats of grotesque shapes were perched indifferently on their black woolly heads. Magenta feathers strove with scarlet poppies, and vivid blue roses wrestled with yellow ribbons on a mauve hat.

"Bangles and chains composed of everything from colored glass to fine gold jingled and rattled as they moved about and glistened equally with their coal black eyes and gleaming white teeth. They chattered and gibbered like a troop of monkeys, and pandemonium reigned on board for several hours. It transpired that they were the native aristocracy of Sar' Leone, merchants and traders with their ladies, who made a point of boarding the mail boat whenever possible, generally to bid farewell to one of their number who is traveling down the coast. They look upon it as a legitimate excuse for a spree, and as a large proportion of the ship's cargo depends upon their good will they are encouraged to make the most of the occasion."

Loan and Lend.

Many errors are committed in the name of usage. That's why, today, the dictionaries permit one to use "loan" as a verb instead of "lend."

The highest philological authorities, among whom is Richard Grant White, say that "loan" is absolutely the noun form of the word.

"Lend me a dollar" is correct. Further, when the man has lent you the dollar you have obtained the loan and presumably will repay it. We negotiate for loans and obtain them if the person is willing to lend them to us. One cannot loan a loan any more than one can lend a lend. If we insist in using loan as a verb the word "lend" is so much excess matter in the lexi-

To the College Boy.

When you enter college keep in mind the sound advice that a wise college president has offered to such as you. "Follow the preparatory school rules for the first year," he says. "Keep up the momentum that the school has given you rather than take advantage of your new liberty all at once. Watch the upper class men. See how they have improved or abused the freedom of the college life and the opportunities at the college and then deliberately make up your mind what kind of man you want to be."

A Curious Funeral Ceremony.

It is said that when Alaric, the conqueror of Rome, died "a river was turned aside to make place in its bed for his grave, and when he was buried the water was again let into its former channel and the prisoners who had helped to bury him were killed so that no one might find out where the conqueror of Rome was buried." The river turned was the Busento and the place near Cosento, Italy.

Holding One Million Dollars at Your Service

An inventory taken at our factory stock-rooms, our branch warehouse, and of the stocks carried by our forty-six Agents, would show, at any time, about $1,000,000 worth of Dodge Power Transmission Equipment ready for immediate shipment.

It takes nerve to carry this stock at the present time, but we have carried an equivalent amount of stock for years past, and shall continue to carry it in the future. It's one of the things we pride ourselves upon when we talk about Dodge Service.

When you order a Pulley or a Hanger or a line of Shafting or some Sprocket and Chain from us, it is shipped at once from stock. Then a duplicate of your order is sent to the works, and that equipment is replaced into stock. Consequently our stocks are maintained at a high level. That explains why you can get most Dodge stock equipment shipped on the day you order it. We know the exact condition of our stock at any hour. That is why we can handle big contracts for stock lines so very quickly. That is why so many firms rely upon us for all of their Power Transmission Equipment.

We regard it as a kind of a trust never to let a customer down, and we take pride in maintaining this service standard.

Mr. E. Elliott Replies to the Member for West Peterboro Concerning Good Roads

Mr. Thompson, M.P.P., in a letter to local papers, explains why the County of Peterborough should acquiesce. The explanation may be new to some, but not to the County Council. S. L. Squire, Esq., of Toronto, the so-called "municipal advisor," gave the same explanation, the same reasons, the same figures, on different occasions when here addressing the County Council at great length.

The Council after consideration, concluded that the basis for maintaining, etc., discriminated too much against the farmers. Those same explanations are printed and in the hands of every County Council in the Province.

The system as laid down in the Act does not provide for any money to come directly out of the provincial treasury to the county for assistance, but simply part of the auto fees collected by the province from auto owners in the City and County of Peterborough.

In 1917 the province collected from the city and county auto fees to the amount of fourteen thousand dollars, and in 1918 will collect considerably more.

To obtain all back would be out of the question, as you will plainly see on examination of the real figures to get back $14,000.00 would, according to the Act, represent 20 p.c., or the government's share; then the county's expenditure would have to be under the Act 80 p.c., or fifty-six thousand dollars.

Farmers would not readily raise $56,000.00 in one year to upkeep one-tenth of the roads in the county. No county council would venture such an amount, hence no danger of drawing on the provincial treasury, not even to the extent of the amount collected as auto fees. Good financing for the province, but not so for the county.

There is to-day raised by the county for regular purposes $44,632.00, for war purposes $52,148.00 Would the farmers stand nearly $4,000.00 more than war expenses for one-tenth of the roads of the county; it would be war prices to the farmer forever.

Once a system is adopted, all expense of such roads will have to be met by the county. As a result the maintenance would be much the greater part, and 20 p.c. out of our auto fees does not apeal to the farmer when he, from all over the county is asked to put 80 p.c. to maintain one-tenth of the roads of the county.

The system is not "popular" with the farmers, and Mr. Thompson is at liberty to carry on his campaign, and have a vote taken at the municipal elections to find out a verdict.

Another argument or explanation is repeated, in referring to city against county, village against township, side lines against main roads, if the province would refund the auto licenses; that all municipalities would fall over one another for their share, but it the province can legislate to pay back 20 cents to be expended on the main roads, or one-tenth of the roads of the county, by the farmers paying 80 cents to get it, then they can legislate to pay it all back, less the cost of collection, etc., to be expended on the main roads of the county.

Every gentleman you meet, either from the city or county, except a politician or government official, most emphatically says such money should be expended on the main roads of the county from where it was collected.

The people or auto owners of the cities and towns want it, for they know that 95 p.c. of their travelling is done on the main roads and 20 p.c. of the farmers' travelling done on the main roads.

A map sent to the county by the government with red lines showing suggested county roads has all roads running to a lake or summer resort, which would seem at par with a latter day "reciprocity" management, agreed to by the Provincial government, whereby an exchange of free travel was expected between the Auto League of the States and the Auto League of Ontario, that is, for all holding membership Auto League tickets. As a result 50,000 touring autos invaded Ontario in 1917, and ran over Ontario roads free, whereas $250,000.00 could have been collected to help maintain the roads they use. It wealthy citizens from the conjested cities of the States see attractions in our summer resorts, the farmers do not like keeping up roads for them, and insofar as the roads are concerned they go Scott free.

How many farmers from the County of Peterborough took advantage of such exchange and motored through the States? It is quite out of reach of any save some gentlemen who have large interests in the flourishing cities or valuable holdings in the great Canadian timber limits.

We want good roads and we trust the day is not far distant when we will have them. Through roads are a national asset, most valuable when well maintained, and they should be maintained out of the national treasury.

Through roads, maintained by the province. County roads maintained by the county, with the assistance of auto fees and a reasonable assistance from the province. Township roads maintained by the township commuting statute labour are what we desire.

It has been hinted that the province is going to force this county system by way of Act of Parliament, but it does not seem to be advisable, and trust such rumour is not correct.

Would Mr. Thompson disclose to the public when the so-called office of "municipal advisor" was created, and when Mr. Squire was appointed to such office, and how much of his time has been taken up visiting and persuading county councils to pass and sign a by-law (brought in form to the council by himself) to adopt the system?

The Act provided that no money shall be paid to the county until the following conditions are complied with, namely:

A system of roads designated.

A county road superintendent appointed.

A by-law in accordance with the Act passed, all subject to the approval of the government.

It also provided that no councillor, either county or township councillor, shall act in any capacity under sections 7 and 9 of the Act.

Through roads, maintained by the province, is now being urged by the people, as will be observed in a deputation from the Eastern Good Roads Association waiting on the government a few days ago, requesting all main raods going through Ottawa to be taken over and repaired and maintained by the province instead of county roads going through Ottawa to be takpromised consideration.

Respectfully yours,

E. M. ELLIOTT.

GIRLS! HAVE WAVY, THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments—try this!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

Make Your Stomach Your Best Friend

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS DIGEST THE FOOD, PREVENT SOURNESS AND MAKE YOU FEEL FINE ALL OVER.

If you feel any distress after eating take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. You will then have a good, steady friend in your stomach. For no matter what you eat there will be no gas, no sour risings, no lump in your throat, no biliousness, no dark brown taste in the morning. And should you now be troubled, eat a tablet as soon as possible and relief will come promptly. These tablets correct at once the faults of a weak or overworked stomach, they do the work while the stomach rests and recovers itself. Particularly effective are they for banqueters and those whose environment brings them in contact with the rich food most apt to cause stomach derangement. Relief in these cases always brings the glad smile. Get a box of Stuart' Dyspepsia Tablets. 50 cents in any drug store. Be good to your stomach

GUARDING THE NATION'S SECRETS

(By Lieut. F. J. Sleath)

No matter how jealously guarded the secret of a particular type of aeroplane may be while the machine is building, sooner or later, once the plane has passed into service, the enemy will bring one down and find out all he wants to know about it. By that time, however, such a start will have been gained on him, that the type may be obsolescent before he can turn out an imitation. It all depends how soon he secures his sample after the machine leaves the manufacturer's hands.

It was this consideration which weighed most heavily with a certain British pilot and his observer when they came down in the sea with the latest flying-boat that British makers has turned out.

They had been well out to sea, flying fairly low, when a fog had suddenly cut them off from the rest of their companions. The pilot had immediately headed for home, but a few seconds later the revolution indicator had suddenly shown an alarming drop, steadily decreasing until the pointer swung past the number which represented bare flying speed. There was nothing for it but to come down and pushing forward the control lever before the machine itself dived headlong into the sea, the pilot brought the boat to rest on the silent waters.

Without a word to his observer he hastily climbed up to the engine to see if it was in his power to make good the defect. A glance showed him that only a repair shop and a squad of expert mechanics could hope to tackle the job successfully. His face was slightly more grave when he climbed down to the hull again. But a quick smile stole over his features as he turned to his observer. The latter was curled up in his seat whistling drowsily "Wait till the clouds roll by" It was impossibe to feel depressed in the company of this light hearted youth, who had been playing for his school when the war broke out, and was still a schoolboy at heart though a veteran in service.

"Are you going to make the works go wound again, daddy?" asked the observer.

"Can't be done, my son," said the pilot "We shall have to wait on some one coming along to pick us up."

"I suppose the fog will lift soon and give our chaps a sight of us. Wake me up before they come," and snuggling still further down into his seat the observer went to sleep.

Hour after hour went by, and still the fog hung about them. The night drew on, the pale opalescence drenching the misty particles faded away. The boat pitched lazily to the gentle swell, and no sound came out of the surrounding blackness save the lap! lap! lap of the waters against the hull, and sometimes the low cry of a sea fowl, wakened suddenly from its sleep and calling for its mate drifting several swells away. The pilot sat upon the deck combing, and listening intently for the slightest sign of approaching rescuers, while behind him down in the cockpit slept the boy dreaming of home.

"Are we still here?" The observer's low whisper sounded like a roar to the pilot's straining ears.

"Go to sleep, sonny said the pilot, "I'll call you for the morning watch."

But the boy sat up in his seat and began listening as intently as the pilot to every sound drifting over the undulating waste around him. He had not his comrade's knowledge of navigation, and did not know that the current was taking them further away from the home shores and nearer the track of the enemy patrols. But he sensed the awkardness of their situation, and all through the night he watched with his companion, although pretending to be asleep; and his was the voice which broke the silence when the first hint of dawn showed up the eastern horizon.

"The fog has cleared," he said "Jolly good business. We're sure to be picked up now. They will turn out the whole of the Grand Fleet if necessary to search for a craft like this."

"Sure to, sonny," said the pilot, routing out and dividing up their store of chocolate.

"Supposing we are sighted by an enemy patrol first," ventured the boy a little later. "We'd have to sink this old cockle-shell. I don't suppose there's much chance of that, though Do you?"

"We should," said the pilot, ignoring the final query, he knew that there was every chance. He glanced significantly over at the bombs as they hung, ready for dropping, under each spreading wing. The boy followed the glance and nodded "Yes, that would be the best way," he said, as coolly as though he were deciding on a change in the tactics of his side during a hard fought game

The pilot suddenly peered forward into the morning grey, then rising quickly he climbed to the upper plane The observer glanced eagerly over the shadowy waters. For on the horizon was a little black smudge growing steadily in size, and behind it another smudge, and another. It was a patrol flotilla fast approaching them British or German? More probably German from the direction. Put the pilot was smiling when he climbed down from the plane.

"It is British then?" exclaimed the boy.

"No, it is German, my son," said the pilot.

"Oh, what rotten luck, and our fellows can't be far away either."

"Is your lifebelt on securely?" asked the pilot.

"Yes!"

"Well, get over the side and swim as hard as you can."

"But don't you want me to help—"

"Get over the side," said the pilot curtly, and there was that in his voice which made the junior man instantly obey. "Good-bye, sonny," he added as the observer slipped into the water. "It is my privilege, you know."

About two hundred yards away the observer paused and looked back at the disabled plane The pilot was crouched on the top of the wing under-plane over the bomb rack, with a heavy spanner in his upraised hand ready to strike a blow. A mile away the first German destroyer was tearing the sea in twain in nervous haste to salve the coveted trophy and got away before the appearance of the dreaded British patrols. The observer turned and swam away from the tragedy which he knew was about to happen.

There came the roar of a mighty explosion. He heard the swish of the air blast along the surface waters, and the rush of the approaching wave from the greater sea disturbance. The wave engulfed him just as he began to hear the splash and patter of the falling debris, and in the blackness of its heart his senses swam into unconciousness. He was still sobbing deleriously when the British patrol boat picked him up an hour later. But on the long steam homeward he recovered sufficiently to tell the story of how a gallant man died that a jealously guarded secret might be preserved to the nation for just a little while longer.

PENS OF THE PAST.

The Old Time Quill and the Art of Putting a Point on It.

Quill pens are no longer used except in rare old fashioned instances, but people still use "penknives"—you can see the name any day in the cutlery store windows—but they do not use them to make or mend pens. In fact, where is there a man or woman who knows how to put a point on a quill? It was once an art which every man had to master, though women were generally bad at it, as they are now at sharpening pencils.

In the old days the first question asked of a schoolmaster was the one whether he was skilful in pointing quills, for he had to sharpen the pens of his whole school and incidentally instruct his pupils in the art. Alas! There is no modern pen of steel or gold that is so smooth, so swift, so alluring as a good quill pen. The writer is very sure of that, for his father used to tell him so.

The art of handwriting has certainly declined since the quill pen went out of use. The old fellows could really write. We still pay them an unconscious tribute by calling a writer a "quill driver" and picturing the pen, whenever we have to make an abstract representation of it, as a quill

LADY'S BATH ROBE.

For the hours of leisure at home or after milady's bath there is nothing quite so comfortable as a roomy bathrobe. The one shown in No. 8849 has a plait at each side of the front coming from the shoulders and disappearing into the fulness of the lower part. There is also a deep inverted plait at centre back to give extra fulness. A wide shawl collar finishes the neck, and a cord frog is used for fastening. Large pockets of the bordered material are stitched at the sides. A cord girdle holds the robe in place. This bathrobe is made from a blanket measuring 72 by 80 inches.

The lady's bathrobe pattern No. 8849 is cut in three sizes—36, 40 and 44 inches bust measure. The 36 inch size requires one robe blanket 72 by 80 inches, or 4 yards of 44 inch material.

CAMBRAI IS CAPTURED WITH 8,000 PRISONERS

Additional Progress Made by the British, French and Americans —Germans Evacuating Argonne Forest.

OFFICIAL REPORTS.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The City of Cambrai, the German stronghold, has been captured by the British with 8,000 prisoners.

Additional progress was made east of Sequehart and towards Bohain and Maretz. South of Cambrai the British captured Forenville and reached the western outskirts of Walincourt. The attack this morning was on a front of the third and fourth armies and began at 5:20 o'clock. The British and Americans continued their progress of Tuesday under a heavy protective fire from British artillery. The defeated enemy was almost smothered under a great deluge of steel and explosives.

Nearly 10,000 Germans were taken prisoner yesterday by the Allied forces in the fighting along the various fronts of the battlefield. The Germans are hurriedly evacuating the Argonne forest. The battle is continuing.

GUNS CAPTURED.

A large number of guns have been captured by the British and Americans in addition to great batches of prisoners which continue to arrive at the cages. The American troops alone captured two complete field batteries and a battery of heavy artillery, while they outflanked both ends of the valley south of Premont, capturing all the German guns there. The German reinforcements have arrived, but as these troops have been engaged several times recently their presence merely adds to confusion in the enemy ranks.

THE STATEMENT READS.

Further progress was made yesterday evening east of Sequehart and in the direction of Boham and Maretz. Our troops reached the western outskirts of Walincourt and gained the line of the La Targette-Cambrai Road capturing Forenville. At 5.20 o'clock this morning the attacks were resumed on the whole front of the third and fourth armies. First reports indicate that rapid progress is being made everywhere. Shortly after midnight Canadian troops attacked north of Cambrai, Ramillies has been captured and crossings of the Canal De L'Escaut effected in the neighbourhood the the village. Our troops have entered Cambrai. The number of prisoners taken yesterday exceeded 8,000, and we have captured many guns.

Released the City of Rheims

Result of Yesterday's Successful Attack—Line Strengthened.

(United Press.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY, Oct. 9.—Verdun is now freed from German artillery domination, as was Rheims. The success of the Franco-American attack east of the Meuse, which began yesterday, has already released the famous city from the enemy's four year grip.

Fighting over fields which had not been stirred by battles since 1916, the French and Americans have advanced more than two miles on a front of about seven miles.

This operation has also greatly strengthened the right flank of the Americans west of the Meuse. Although heavy rains over the whole front have made the going difficult, pressure against the Kriemhilde-Stellung is increasing all along the line. The Germans between the Meuse and the Argonne Forest are in danger of being shoved back a considerable distance.

A Night Scene.

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

RHEIMS, Oct. 8.—(Night) — The stately towers of the Rheims Cathedral stood out proudly, despite their scars, against the myriad colored autumn sky this evening — free once more.

To the eastward the Americans and French still sweated midst the dust and toil of battle in one of the most dramatic movements of the war, which has liberated the martyr city. The task, assigned to a famous American division, meant a blow which even the Allies viewed as extremely difficult.

The American arm swung back. The blow fell, and the line crumbled. The Americans fought all day and night without sleep. Officers said they could scarcely understand how men could go farther, but when they were called to attack after two days of almost ceaseless fighting they leaped forward.

SACRIFICE TO SAVE

In times like these the nations at war rightly demand sacrifices of all their citizens. Particularly is this true of Canada, which has enjoyed unexampled prosperity as a result of the war. Many thousands of her sons have not hesitated to make the supreme sacrifice, but many thousands more are doing better in a financial way than they ever did before.

To the latter the easiest way in Sacrifice is open. All that is asked of them is that they Sacrifice to Save,—that they give up a little in a cause for which others have sacrificed their lives. By sacrificing to save, and saving to Lend they can make the burdens of Canada lighter. It is a small demand. It is the easiest kind, yet very paying patriotism.

Sacrifice to Save; Save to Lend.

WHERE BRITISH SOLDIERS ARE FIGHTING

—London Daily Mail.

Hun Resistance Is Desperate

German Armies Are Massing All Available Forces on the Western Front.

ALLIES ADVANCE

(United Press.)

(By William Philip Sims.)

PARIS, October 9. — The German armies to-day are attempting the most desperate resistance of the war. They have been commanded to hold, or die, in order to give the allies the impression that they have not yet been beaten, while Berlin proceeds with its truce plot. In default of sufficient field artillery, the Huns are massing all the available trench mortars, howitzers and high velocity guns at critical points in their efforts to stop the slow allied advances while from Russia, the Ukraine, and the East generally, every possible German soldier is being hurried into the bloody war in the west.

The hospitals throughout Germany have been raked of nearly every fit convalescent. Reports have been received here that a levy en masse would be attempted in the event of President Wilson's note being unfavorable, as a last resort to prevent the total collapse of the Empire.

FORCED LABOR.

It is also reported that Belgian civilians are being forced to work on line after line of defences about Ostend, Zeebrugge and Bruges ,indicating that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff consider regular fighting across Belgium inevitable if they hope to arrive at the Antwerp-Namur-Metz line.

The Laon salient is gradually tightening. The British and the Americans are driving prongs of the pincers deeper between St. Quentin and Cambrai, while the French and the Americans are doing the same between Rheims and Verdun.

Short of guns, ammunition and reserves, Ludendorff is frenziedly shunting what he has from that point to this fighting, in an ever-losing battle.

Heavy Fighting on a Twenty Mile Front—Villages Retaken.

WEATHER CLEARED

(United Press.)

(By Lowell Mellet.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Oct. 9.—The British, Americans and French, attacking on a twenty mile front between St. Quentin and Cambrai are well ahead of their scheduled objectives. The assault, beginning on a limited front early yesterday, rapidly grew in scope until it encompassed the whole front between the two cities. An average advance of one to three miles was made, with a total penetration of five miles in the centre, where the Americans, fighting by the side of the British, Scottish and Irish units, drove deep into the enemy lines, capturing Brancourt and Premont.

Counter Attacks Repulsed.

The Americans engaged in this fighting are Gen. Lewis "Wildcat" division, composing troops from North and South Carolina and Tennessee.

The Americans overcame stubborn enemy resistance, especially from machine gunners.

On the extreme left, just south of Cambrai, the Germans launched a counter attack, employing a number of tanks. They succeeded in retaking Niergnies and Seranvillers, but the tanks were put out of business and the villages won back.

The fighting began in a downpour of rain, but the weather cleared later in the day.

C.A.S. TAG DAY SATURDAY, OCT. 12

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I think it would be of interest to the people of our fair city, before Tag Day, to know something we have been doing in the past year. 21 children in the city and county have been made wards, and placed out in good homes, and are making a name for themselves. A few might be mentioned. Little Jack — is filling the place of a dead soldier, and helping a broken-hearted mother to bear her trouble, and he is doing it well; he is the pet of the home now. Little Herb is in a fine country home, with no one to claim his title to first place. Little Willie is doing well and some day will share in a five hundred acre farm. Money would not buy that boy, and I have an order for a little girl some day to make him a chum. Melville is doing well in his new home and can wash dishes like a girl, and is very fond of the baby that came this year to their home. Georgina —, a fine, strong girl, is doing well in her country home, helped to harvest the crop and at times drove the milk rig. It would be very hard to tell of the scope of my work, but often I have to work over hours, and on Sunday. I have always been received kindly by those I have tried to correct and warn. I find the work very interesting ,and have tried hard to improve the home life of the people I visit. If good people only knew the conditions surrounding the home life of lots of people they would do like the Saviour, not condemn but try to save them.

Tag Day, Oct. 12, on Saturday.

TURKISH GOVERNOR WILL SEEK PEACE

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Oct. 9.—A despatch from Athens, dated September 26, stated that Rahmi Bey, Governor of the Turkish Province of Smyrna, was expected to arrive in Athens that night to discuss peace.

Peterboro Casualties

Several New Names in the Casualty Lists.

A telegram was received yesterday from Records Office, Ottawa, by Mr. A. P. Brown, stating that his son No. 911495 Corporal Cecil Charles Percy Brown, Mounted Rifles, was officially reported admitted to No. 22 Casualty Clearing Station on Sept. 29th with gunshot wound in head. He enlisted at Edmonton in the 196th Western Universities Battalion in June, 1916, and was sent to France in a draft to the 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles over a year ago. After being in the trenches several months, he was sent as a musketry intructor, to the 3rd Canadian Training School, in France. He rejoined his battalion at the front, last March, where he has been ever since. This is the second casualty in Mr Brown's family, his eldest son Sergeant Elmer G. Brown having been wounded in January, 1917.

Another son, Kenneth Brown has been at the front continuously for over two years.

PRIVATE NORMAN ROUTLEY

Mr. Nelson Routley, 392 Brock street, received word yesterday that his brother Pte. Norman Routley, had received a gunshot wound in his right foot on September 30th. Pte. Routley went over to France on August 18th.

PRIVATE C. R. M. SHANNON

Pte. Charles R M. Shannon has been wounded in the right thigh and admitted to hospital at Rouen.

The word came this morning to his mother, Mrs. Charles M. Shannon, 294 Lake street. Pte. Shannon went overseas about six months ago and was in the famous "Princess Pats" when wounded.

HAS TURNED UP

Word has come to the city that Pte. Albert Rowe, who some weeks ago was reported died of wounds is still alive and well The Militia Department reports that another man by the name of Pte. Albert Rowe has died and regret very much the mistake. Pte. Rowe formerly lived in Lakefield and enlisted in the 247th Battalion and went overseas with 235th Battalion.

PRIVATE THOMAS J. KING

Mrs. Annie Kenneally , 499 Sherbrooke street, received word this morning that her nephew, Pte. Thomas J. King was admitted to hospital on September 27, suffering from a gunshot wound in the right shoulder. Pte. King enlisted in the 93rd Battalion but was transferred to the 5th C. M. R. He was badly gassed in September but returned to the front.

PRIVATE GILBERT DOWNER

Mrs. Gilbert Downer, 128 Stanley avenue, received word yesterday that her husband, Private Gilbert Downer was admitted to the South African General Hospital, Abbeyville, France, on Sept 28th., with a gun shot wound in the right leg.

PTE. WM. LOGAN.

Mrs. Logan ,of Park street, has received word that Pte. Willie Logan who went over to France in August, has been wounded in the lip.

PTE. ANTOINE LAZURE.

Mrs. Arthur Lazure, 554 Romaine street, has been officially notified that her son, Pte. Antoine Lazure, has been admitted to a casualty clearing hospital as a result of being gassed on Oct. 1st.

PETERBORO SOLDIERS ARRIVE AT QUEBEC.

Advice has been received that the soldiers as noted have arrived at Quebec. The advice is dated October 8th:

J. B. Simpson, 466 Stewart street.
G. H. Moore, 67 Morrow street.
W .A. Elliott, 760 George street.

Allies Are Still Smashing Ahead in Spite of the Stubborn Resistance of the Enemy.

CANADIANS IN ACTION

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. — The capture of Gornay by the Americans ,the liberation of four other villages, and a bag of 3000 prisoners on Tuesday, was reported by General Pershing to-day.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON ,October 9. — The British, French and Americans resumed their attack on the St. Quentin-Cambrai region this morning, and have extended the fighting over a front of about 30 miles, embracing the sector north of Cambrai. Rapid progress was made everywhere. Field Marshal Haig in reporting these operations to-day, announced that the Canadian troops had captured Ramillies, two miles north east of Cambrai.

DRIVEN BACKWARD.

The Germans on the east bank of the Meuse are now being driven backward for perhaps one half of the depth of the American front, north of Verdun. The Meuse, therefore, is at least in part an American possession instead of a German barrier. More freedom of manoeuvres will be possible. The early evacuation of the Argonne has now become increasingly necessary for the Germans.

TWO DIVISIONS DESTROYED.

The French and the British are at the gates of Bohain (11 miles north east of St. Quentin), the Americans are less than four kilometers (2 1-2 miles) from Busigny (3 1-2 miles north of Bohain.)

Two entire German divisions have been destroyed in the fighting along the Suippe River. On the right bank of the Aisne, French and Americans are progressing toward Lancon (7 miles south-west of Monthois.)

Farther to the northeast the Americans along the Aire River are rendering the enemy's hold on the Grand Pre Pass untenable.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, October 9. — The capture of German positions on a three mile front south east of St. Quentin, was announced by the French War Office to-day.

German counter attacks were repulsed along the Arnes River. There was violent artillery fighting along the Oise and the Suippe.

(United Press.)

(By Frank J. Taylor.)

With the American First Army, Oct. 9th. — French and American troops in their attack east of the Meuse, have advanced six kilometres (more than 3 1-2 miles) in some places.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9TH, 1918.

SATURDAY'S TAG DAY.

Saturday's tag day on behalf of the Childrens Aid Society should bring in a record-breaking amount. The public will readily recognize that under war conditions the work of the Society is necessarily made more extensive, while at the same time the expense of carrying on such work has steadily increased. There is every need, therefore of a substantial collection on Saturday, and it is to be hoped that the public will realize the necessity of a liberal response to the appeal. No institution is more worthy of support than the Children's Aid Society.

A FLAG FOR PETERBOROUGH.

The Governor-General of Canada has offered a beautiful flag of honour for every district which exceeds its allotment of the Victory Loan. Peterborough must have one of those flags. This districts's share of the loan has not yet been announced, but whatever it may be, Peterborough must over-subscribe the amount. Peterborough cannot do anything else and remain true to the glorious record set up in this city in recruiting days or true to the magnificent fighting of the boys from this city and district on the battle fields of France.

No talk of peace should interfere with subscriptions to Canada's Victory Loan. The only peace that be made with Germany is on terms of complete surrender, and until the Kaiser and his people are prepared to accept these conditions, the Allied armies are going to keep on hammering the Hun in the field, while the people of the Allied countries will continue to support their fighting forces in every possible way at home. Canada's army has won imperishable glory for the Dominion by its work in France and Belgium. By over-subscribing the new Victory Loan, Canada will send the ultimatum across the Atlantic that the people of the Dominion are of the same breed as the men of Currie's corps, and are of the same determination to see the war through to a victorious conclusion. The news of such a feat in the fifth year of the war would emphasize the fact that the people of Canada are in the war to a finish—ready whenever called upon to back up their splendid men at the front.

THE NEED OF REINFORCEMENTS.

The Canadian casualties at the front have been very heavy. In the Amiens battle, in the drive eastward through the Drocourt-Queant switch in which the Canadian Corps took Bourlon Wood, and then strove to outline, and in the fighting up to the Canal du Nord, they were approximately 30,000. In the desperate fighting flank Cambrai on the north, the casualties have been at least another 15,000. Many of these will return to the ranks in time, but the reserves in France and England have had to be depleted to keep the Corps at full fighting strength. Enough reserves still remain overseas, it is believed, to provide for the remainder of this season, but the heavy losses bring up the matter of more men from Canada. The Government has to deal quickly with the matter of new calls under the Service Act. So far as Ontario and the Western provinces are concerned, the Military Act enforcement has been quite adequate. Available men in Class One have been well combed over. But can the same be said now of the enforcement of the Act in Quebec? For months no statement has issued from Government circles respecting the number of men called to the colours in the various provinces, and showing the full extent to which the Act has been applied. Such information must, of course, be given to Parliament, but it is unlikely to meet until January, and it may be necessary to make further calls before then. If there is contemplated any calling up of men outside of Class One, that is, of married men, or of single men in Class Three, a very needful preliminary is the publishing of such facts regarding previous drafts as will assure Ontario and the West that the Act is applying uniformly all over Canada. The last reports of drafting in Quebec were not satisfactory, but in the considerable interval since then the disposal of appeals by Mr. Justice Duff may have enabled the Service branch to get the men whose appeals have been disallowed. The day when secrecy regarding reinforcements in Canada is important is passing. The United States publishes the number of troops going overseas monthly, and publicity regarding our comparatively few thousands of reinforcements is not now of the same military importance. Ontario and the Western provinces, which have contributed largely toward the reinforcements raised under the Act are justified in asking for reports of progress in the matter of enforcing the Act in Quebec.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

THE SPANISH INFLUENZA.

The epidemic of what is commonly known as Spanish influenza, which is at present raging in the military camps of the United States and in the principal eastern cities across the line and in Canada as well, has so far not affected Peterborough to any appreciable extent, although five of six cases whose symptoms resemble those noticed in other places, have been reported here. While there is no occasion for the citizens of Peterborough to get into a panic over the possibilities of the influenza spreading through the city, the rapidity with which it has swept other communities, makes it imperative that the menace should be recognized and that any steps that are possible to check the ravages of the disease should be taken.

In the first place it should be understood that infection with the influenza is most commonly received by coming into contact with the secretions of the nose, throat and mouth of a person who is ill with the disease, by spray from the mouth and nose in talking, coughin or sneezing, or from drinking and eating utensils, towels, etc.

Common sense would therefore suggest the wisdom of keeping away from crowds and crowded places. Every citizen should realize the necessity of keeping himself or herself fit by getting plenty of sleep, by eating only plain foods and by the absolute avoidance of gatherings at late hours in poorly ventilated rooms. Over fatigue and loss of sleep, by lowering the natural resistance of the body, may prove fertile aids to the spread of the influenza. People who have an ordinary cold should consider the welfare of the community and avoid attending any public gatherings where there may be danger of spreading the infection.

Physicians state that the so-called Spanish influenza is an acute, infectious disease, similar in its course to the epidemic which swept over the world in 1889-90.

The onset is sudden, with chills, a feeling of weakness, pains in the head, eyes, back and elsewhere in the body. There may be vomiting, and dizziness is frequent. Sweating is common. The appetite is lost and prostration is marked. The mucous membrane of eyes, nose, throat and bronchi is often reddened and inflamed.

Usually the highest point in the fever is reached on the second or third day. The temperature then suddenly falls and the person feels quite better. At this point the danger of getting out of bed appears. Relapses are common and the apparent recovery is only too frequently followed by a rapid spreading pneumonia, fatal in at least from thirty to fifty per cent. of cases.

The patient should be put to bed on the first appearance of symptoms in a room as airy and well ventilated as possible and kept quiet until medical treatment can be had.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Victory Bond campaign is on. Get ready to go the limit.

Canada's answer to the German peace note should be expressed in the form of a 100 per cent. over subscription of the new Victory Loan.

The Canadian people have supplied the men for Canada's splendid army. The Canadian people must supply the money to furnish that army with food and munitions.

One of those honour flags the Governor-General is going to give the district exceeding their allotment for the Victory Loan would be a very nice war souvenir for Peterborough.

SIMPLY JUSTICE.

(London Advertiser)

Burn Berlin! That is the thought that arises hot from the smoking picture of Cambrai's ruins. Burn Berlin to the last palace and the last pigsty as a beacon fire to the people of Germany and the world that destruction must be paid with destruction!

THE ONLY FAIR PRINCIPLE

Should not the principle be laid down that in this country from this time forward each man must assist each according to his capacities, in preserving the free and open civilization to which he has come for shelter?

MUCH MORE SERIOUS

(Boston Transcript)

Chancellor von Hertling follows in the footsteps of Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg: "In invading Belgium. Germany transgressed the written law" But whereas in 1914 it seemed only a crime, it is now seen to be a blunder, which is a much more serious matter.

RETRIBUTION

(Philadelphia Record)

No Government ever practiced mendacity on any such scale as Germany has. It has lied about the cause of the war, about its own and the Allies' conduct of the war, about its crops, about the Belgians; it lied to the Russians at Brest-Litovsk; it lied to its own people about England and about America, and its current military bulletins are fictions with only slight traces of the truth in them. Now it is approaching a situation on earth that would not accept its word about anything.

ONE ANSWER

(Hamilton Herald)

A correspondent writes to The Ottawa Journal to enquire, "Why is it necessary, having once changed the name of the hour, to change it back again?" The answer is, that if the clock were not put back people would have nothing to kick about when the time comes to put it ahead.

CASH PENALTY FOR THE HUN

(New York Evening Sun)

We believe that a specific statemen emanating jointly from all the Allied Governments that Germany will be made to pay in dollars and cents for the havoc she commits would have a most salutary effect. A price should be put upon each city, town, village and province. The Huns would hesitate to destroy Lille were they advised that by so doing they were adding $1,000,000,000 to the indemnity they must pay. A billion and a half for Antwerp, a billion each for Brussels and Ghent, might be a charge which they would hesitate to add to the fatal balance sheet awaiting them.

TO FARMERS

The Government has sent out an appeal to the Canadian people to buy at home. Why? Because when we buy abroad more than we sell we have to pay a premium on the excess, in addition to the price of the goods. This is known as an adverse rate of exchange. We have bought four hundred million dollars' worth more from the United States than we have sold to it. The rate of exchange is 2 per cent. against us. In other words, we are paying 2 per cent. on four hundred millions of dollars, or eight million dollars, which means that if we owe a great deal of money for goods bought we have to pay extra for the privilege. If we keep this up Canada will bleed to death. Please inquire into this matter at once.

Annual Meeting of Belmont Club

Mr. Joseph Wearing Was the Speaker for the Occasion.

The Belmont Club met for supper at Hooper's Monday night, the occasion being the annual meeting of the Club. The speaker for the evening was Mr. Joseph Wearing who gave an address on "Post Bellum Problems." Mr. Wearing pointed out that the two outstanding problems after the war would be the proper development and conservation of our natural resources and the securing of a desirable population. The speaker took up the question of agriculture, mining, forests, fishing and water-powers indicating the importance of each to the country and pointing out the problems which each involved. After discussing our resources, Mr. Wearing then took up the question of immigration and showed the defects in our system in dealing with this question in the past What we must insist on in the future is the prevention of undesirables getting into the country and the proper development of those who do come in. At the close of his address a resolution of thanks was extended to Mr. Wearing by those present. In acknowledging the vote of thanks the speaker stated that the problems to be faced would need the attention of young men for they would stand to lose or gain by the solution of the problem.

Dominion Rubber System Belting is Better Belting for Every Purpose

There is yet to be found a process, condition, use or industry in which belting is required, that the Dominion Rubber System's belting engineers have not successfully and efficiently served with some type of our Belting.

If you have a problem for which there is no parallel, our technical experts will undertake to solve it without charge and produce, if necessary, a special type of belt to satisfactorily meet your requirements.

Nearly every factory, mine, quarry, paper or flour mill, grain elevator or railway shop is using our belting as a satisfactory part of its equipment—some of the largest users specify it exclusively.

Our Dominion Friction Surface Belting will out-serve, at lower cost per horse-power, any belt made—because it is built up to the highest quality standard,—by the oldest, largest and most highly specialized rubber organization in Canada.

An important factor in the service of Dominion Rubber System Belting is in placing the right type of belt where it will produce maximum efficiency—this is primarily due to our Dominion wide service branches through which the free advice of our belting engineers is available to every user of belting.

As one of these service branches is within 'phone distance of you, put it up to our experts to get you out of any difficulty that concerns belting.

Five Ways of Saving Fuel in Heating Houses

Canadian Householders Can Save $16,500,000 This Winter

Canada faces a shortage of coal, and it is the patriotic duty of every citizen to save coal in heating his home. About 1,500,000 homes in this country are to be heated through the winter. If everybody "does his bit," a ton of coal at each home can be saved easily during the winter. Now, when the appeal for Thrift is being made, the coal situation brings to us a unique opportunity for saving money as well as coal. By effecting the economies noted here, Canadian householders can save, taking the price of coal at $11 per ton, as much as $16,500,000 this winter.

The U S. Bureau of Mines has recently published a pamphlet which contains excellent advice for the Canadian householder. It outlines five ways in which coal may be saved. They are as follows:—

1. Of coals available in your marke, select the one the requires the least attention in burning.
2. Use an economical method in burning your coal.
3. Keep your house temperature 62 to 65 degrees Fahrenheit, instead of 72 to 75 degrees Fahrenheit.
4. Heat as few rooms as the comfort of your family will permit.
5. Shorten the heating season as much as possible

1. SELECTION OF COALS

In house-heating equipment, the fires can be given very little attention. Therefore, fuels that require little attention in burning are the most economical and give the best satisfaction. In time of war less desirable coal may have to be used, in order to simplify transportation problems, but the fact remains that some coals are more efficient than others when the same attention is given to the fire Usually the man of the house can attend to the furnace early in the morning and again in the evening. During the day the furnace is left in charge of the housewife or the servant. The housewife has her children, the preparation of meals, and other cares to take up her time, so that she can not give the furnace much attention. In some houses the furnace is atended only when the house becomes either too hot or too cold, and thus the fire is allowed to run from one extreme to the other, conditions which are very unfavorable to saving of fuel. About the same attendance can be expected from a servant.

Therefore, in order that a fuel may be burned economically in a house-heating furnace, the fuel used should be of such kind that the fire requires little attention. The following fuels in the order named are the best fuels for house-heating purposes.

Anthracite coal in sizes from 1-2 inch to egg size

Gas-retort or metallurgical coke in pieces 1-2 inch to 3 inches across.

Coal briquets 2 to 3 inches in diameter.

Screened Pocahontas (semi-bituminous) coal over 1-4 inch and through 3 or 4 inch screen

Sized bituminous coal in pieces 1-2 to 3 inches across.

If these fuels can be bought, fine sizes or slack coal or other fuels requiring frequent attention when burning should be left for power plants, where the firemen can and should give the fires frequent attention

2. USE AN ECONOMICAL METHOD OF BURNING OUR COAL

Because of the great variety of fuels used for house-heating purposes, and because of the great variety of house-heating equipment and conditions of operation, only the most general rules can be given for firing the fuel The details must be determined by actual trial in each furnace.

FIRING ANTHRACITE

When firing anthracite, the best results are obtained by spreading the coal evenly over the entire fuel bed. The fire should not be allowed to become too low before putting on a fresh firing. A fuel bed five to ten inches thick gives good results. The fire should be disturbed as little as possible.

FIRING BRIQUETS

Briquets, when properly made are very good fuel for house-heating purposes. However, the supply is decidedly limited. When burning briquets the fuel bed should be kept eight to ten inches thick The fresh charges should be spread evenly over the grate area. The fire must not be disturbed. Poking breaks the briquets and spoils the fire.

FIRING BITUMIIIOUS COALS

The bituminous, or soft, coals are smoky and cover the flue surfaces with a large amount of soot and tar, which reduces the transfer of heat and impairs the draft. Bituminous coal should be fired by placing the fresh charge on one side of the grate only, leaving part of the surface of the fuel bed uncovered. The volatile matter hising from the freshly fired coal is ignited by the red-hot coal of the uncovered part of the fire and a large part of it burns.

DRAFT REGULATION

Draft regulation is perhaps the most important factor in burning coal efficiently in house-heating furnaces. The draft is regulated mainly with dampers; one of these is on the ash-pit doors, one on the fire door, and one in the pipe connecting the furnaurnace with the chimney.

The damper in the firing door supplies air over fire needed to burn the gases rising from the fuel bed; therefore, its regulation controls the completeness of combustion of these gases. When soft coal is burned a large volume of combustible gases rises from the fuel bed immediately after the firing; therefore, the damper in the fire door must be opened enough to allow the air necessary for burning the gases to enter the furnace.

3. KEEPING THE HOUSE TEMPERATURE LOWER

In heating houses considerable fuel can be saved by keeping the temperature in the house 5 to 10 degrees Fahrenheit, lower than the customary instead of the temperature being 70 and 74 degrees Fahrenheit., it can be kept between 62 and 68 degrees Fahrenheit, without any discomfort or danger to health In fact, some medical authorities ascribe "colds," common in winter to living in too warm houses. Thus Dr. William Brady writes:

"Air need not be heated above 65 degrees Fahrenheit for comfort. Anything above that point represents waste an extravagance. It simply runs up a big coal bill and opens various doors to the coming of the doctor. The onset of cough coming in the winter is almost a sure sign of extravagance."

Keeping the house temperature lower is the easiest way to save fuel. It is fuel saved by doing less work. As to the question of health, more sickness is caused by having a house too warm than by keeping it too cold.

4 HEATING FEWER ROOMS

Another easy saving of fuel can be effecte by heating fewer rooms in the house. In many houses the family can get along comfortably by keeping three or four rooms instead of heating six or seven rooms. And this can be done without any real hardship on the family. If one stops to think that 55 per cent of the families in Berlin, Germany, live, sleep, cook and eat in the same room, living in three or four warm rooms will seem a comfort. Really only the three rooms in which the family lives need to be heated at all. If consumptives can get well by sleeping outdoors, why could not well people keep well by sleeping in unheated bedrooms, with the windows wide open?

5. SHORTENING THE HEATING SEASON

In some homes the furnace is started too early in the fall and is run too late in the spring. The chimneys of these homes are belching smoke and spreading soot over their neighborhood, while the neighbors keep windows and doors open to the outside air and even sit on the front porches. These faint-hearted people in their fear of catching cold, heat their houses unnecessarily; thus they waste the country's coal, increase their coal bills, invite sickness into their homes, and make life unpleasant to their neighbors. When mornings and evenings are chilly, a grate fire for a short time in one or two rooms will make the house comfortable.

Huns Will Celebrate When They Read This

(By United Press.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 20. (By Mail)—Little Marie Yvonne, the rest of whose name no one seems to know, will live and will not be entirely crippled all her life. An aMerican Ambulance unit is happier since the doctors gave out the report.

Marie Yvonne lived in a small town north of Chateau-Thierry, during the six weeks the boches held the place. The five-year-old tot was forced to remain behind with her aged grandfather and grandmother. The mother is dead, and the old folks were too feeble to flee.

They lived in a cave practically every minute of that six weeks, going out only when necessary, for the town was near the line. The Germans told them to stay in the cave, for they would see too much otherwise. The old folks and the child were able to live only by using boarded food sparingly, and by denying they had anything to eat when the Germans came to take it. The grandfather would totter out, despite shells and bring back vegetables from gardens.

Finally the Americans retook the town, and little Marie Yvonne was happy to go out into the sunshine again The doughboys gave her and the grandparents white bread and canned meat, and they all ate as though famished.

Then Marie Yvonne, playing in her own house, found a German potato masher grenade. She picked it up to show it to her grandfather, and a wire fastened to it pulled the pin that kept the trap from exploding. Marie Yvonne first aid treatment and room, wounded in several places, but most seriously in the hand which picked up the grenade.

The Americans hurriedly gave Marie Yvone first aid treatment and rushed her to a Chateau-Thierry hospital where doctors operated, she is getting better now and the Americans who have watched her are glad. Their opinion of Germans is unchanged.

An Eminent Shakesperean Actor at Grand Saturday

Matinee and Night Performances —A Powerful Cast With John E. Kellerd.

The most popular of Shakespeare's comedies, the most widely known, the one by which most abundant success has been achieved on the stage, is "The Merchant of Venice." One reason for its exceptional vitality is the fascinating charm of its style, the simple fluent language of human feeling, sometimes irradiated with the fire of poetical thought and sometimes expanded with the fervour of noble eloquence.

The character of Shylock, which has been so variously interpreted by the actors who have essayed the role since the days of Garrick and Chatterton, acquires in the hands of John E. Kellerd a humanity that compels the audience to grant to the despised Jew a measure of sympathy in spite of the apparent cruelty and relentlessness, with which he seeks revenge upon the hated Christian, for they cannot fail to recognize the fact that his personal wrongs have been very great, as well, has been the contumely that has been heaped upon his race, and that his purpose is in a degree justified. In Kellerd's Shylock there is nothing of caricature, he is the patriarchal Jew, possessed of a certain majesty, and swayed by the same emotions of love and hatred that are common to all mankind.

The love story of Bassanio and Portia is ingeniously fanciful, and it may be doubted if in the whole wide ranze of the poetic drama there is any woman who can vie with Portia as a type of blended intellect, brilliancy and feminine fascination. Shakespeare was an interpreter and in this case as in so many others, the magical touch of his genius transmuted the dross of legendary lore into the pure gold of poetry and lit the still life of narrative with the blaze of action.

Mr. Kellerd will appear at the Grand on Saturday and will present "The Merchant of Venice" at the matinee, and "Julius Caesar" at night. The productions carried are most elaborate, and the cast the most powerful that has ever toured in Shakespearean repertoire. Tickets on sale tomorrow.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

AVOID INDIGESTION, SOUR ACID STOMACH, HEARTBURN, GAS ON STOMACH, ETC.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and health fully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

Russian Asylum Houses Notables

By JOSEPH SHAPLEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Oct. 8.—It is a well known fact that war increases the amount of insanity. What effect does revolution have in this matter? While in Petrograd, I once visited the Nickolai Hospital for Psychiatrics to investigate the subject. To my surprise I discovered that none of the hospitals had cases of typical revolutionary illnesses. The few patients that had been brought to the Nickolai Hospital for example, I was told, suffered principally from the mania of persecution. It is also interesting that the proportion of such patients was divided equally between the lower and the upper classes, although it would seem at first thought that the latter should have supplied by far the larger part.

At the Nickolai Hospital for example there were a number of Red Guardsmen. They were all suffering from the mania of impending execution and kept on repeating that they would be shot at sunrise

Among the patients was one, A. Protopopoff, former minister of the interior, whose policy, more than that of any one else, was responsible for precipitating the revolution. He had just been transferred from the fortress of St. Peter and Paul. He seemed to have retained all the characteristics of the gentleman and bureaucrat. He tried to be enchanting even in an insane asylum. And he seemed to be succeeding.

A POPULAR PATIENT

He was liked alike by the administration, patients and attendants. He is at all times attentive to the soldiers, shows many kindnesses to the patients and his sincerity seems to be questioned by no one. He probably will be released soon. He is neither dangerous to his enemies nor any use to his friends. His illness is not dangerous It consists of temporary fits of insanity, which grew rather frequent at St. Peter and Paul the hospital. But his illness is incurable, for it is due to his old and well-known trouble, which he himself, never sought to conceal.

On the occasion of a certain inspection of employees of his department, the former minister of the Czar suddenly grabbed one of the obscure secretaries, and led him away to his private office, where he spoke with him more than two hours. He told him of how well he, Protopopoff, was liked by the Czar and the Czarina. Then he grew sad and mournful, saying:

And do you know? I have a terrible disease!

A STATESMAN'S WRITING

The story is also told that after receiving a report on an important enterprise of the government, Protopopoff pigeonholed it for weeks. Then he unearthed it, read it and wrote in blue pencil on the margin:

"Ta-ta-ta—Minister of the Interior, A. Protopopoff."

There are no separate soldiers' and officers' wards at the Nickolai Hospital for the Insane. They were abolished by the revolution The soldier attendants announced one day that they would not wait upon the officers and it was necessary to transfer the latter to the soldier's wards. Despite the fear of trouble, however, the insane soldiers and officers get along well All differences in rank were forgotten The revolution could bring no help or salvation to these poor unfortunates. So they remained living in peace with each other. Outside, the soldiers were killing the officers by the hundred, in the cities and at the front It remained for the crazy soldiers and officers to understand in its full grandeur and tragedy, the meaning of a word most loved and dispised in Russia, "tovarisch."

It means "comrade."

Relieve Your Rheumatism For 25c.

NR does it by improving digestion, assimilation and elimination—the logical way.

NR Today—Relief or No Pay

There are three vital processes of human existence,—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of the waste.

Let anything interfere with these processes,—let them be interrupted or improperly carried on, and sickness of some kind follows.

Poor digestion and assimilation means failure to derive full nourishment from food and that in turn often means impoverished blood, weakness, anemia, etc. Poor elimination means an accumulation of waste matter which poisons the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills.

Rheumatism,—due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain body poisons,—cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it. Could any reasonable person expect to rid himself of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body.

Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why not, you, for ten times as much for uncertain things? A 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days,—must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing.

And Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the whole system. You'll feel like a new person when you've taken NR Tablets a week. You've tried the expensive medicines and doctors, now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

Letter From Pte. Stephen Curtis

PETERBORO SOLDIER WAS BADLY WOUNDED

Mrs. S. Curtis, 229 McGill street, has received the following letter from her husband Private Stephen Curtis. Private Curtis enlisted three years ago and was badly wounded in France He is now an orderly in the Ontario Military Hospital, Kent, England. His father who is 50 years of age is in the American Army and is stationed at Tampa, Florida

October 5, 1918.

Mrs. S. Curtis,
229 McGill street.
Peterboro.

Dear Wife and children,—

Just a line in answer to your welcome letters which I received all right I have had another Medical Board and as far as I know am still B. 2. It is now 3 years on the 8th of October since the 8th C.M.R. left Barriefield but I am glad to tell you that the war don't look as if it will last much longer. It has been raining hard the lights are not very good tonight I started a 6:15 his morning and worked up till 7:15 to-night I have just met my fellow from my battalion who was taken prisoner but has got back after being exchanged. He was captured last year in April at Vimy Ridge. When in Germany he saw a few Peterboro fellows that were taken prisoners on June 2 at the scrap at Ypres in 1916. We have quite a few convoys and some are pretty bad cases. I am in a ward looking after those that can't help themselves poor fellows

Yours lovingly,
STEPHEN CURTIS.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

SAY BACKACHE IS A SIGN YOU HAVE BEEN EATING TOO MUCH MEAT, WHICH FORMS URIC ACID

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a wellknown authority Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure, and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

Ficticious Tag Day Collectors Will be Prosecuted Says Chief of Police Thompson

Meeting of the Children's Aid Society Was Held Yesterday Afternoon.

In the absence of the President, Mr. E. A. Peck, Rev. Father C. J. Phelan presidad at the meeting of the Children's Aid Society. Mrs. J. Knox, who is in charge of tag day arrangements reported that everything was in order for next Saturday. It was brought to the notice of the society that money was given to persons last tag day who had no boxes and were not accredited collectors of the society.

Will Be Prosecuted.

"They are getting money by false pretences and will be prosecuted," said Chief Thompson. Thirteen thousand tags have been prepared for tag day, and $1,500 is looked for by the society. Three thousand of the tags will be distributed in the schools tomorrow, the rest will be sold on the streets next Saturday. Tag days will likely be organized in Havelock, Norwood and Lakefield as the society thought that this would even the burden of expense in the county.

Improvements at Shelter.

Mr. G. W. Powell, the agent, was delegated to report next meeting on the cost of a new chimney, a "rain-garden," and other improvements at the Shelter. A new dustless coal sifter will also be purchased.

The Expenditures.

The following expenditures for the month of September were ordered to be paid:

N. Petrie	$ 2.15
Wm. Madill	4.56
R. H. Hunter	22.98
J. W. Edwards	10.16
Wilfred Brown	8.00
Telephone Account	13.35
Lighting Account	1.75
Water Account	.67
G. W. Powell, "Agent"	7.05
	$70.69

Local Delegate.

Mr. Pennefather moved that Mrs. Gibbs be appointed the local delegate to the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare to be held in Toronto on the 5th and 6th of December. Carried.

The township councils will be asked to make a grant of at least $25.00 to the society so that the work may be carried on with as great energy as ever throughout the county.

"No News is Good News," Says Pte. Connor

Pte. T. J. Connor Formerly Resided in Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Loescher, 135 Hunter street east, has received the following letter from Pte. T. J. Connor written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs T. P .Connor of Waupun, Wisconsin .Mr. Connor formerly lived in Peterboro and was connected with the cordage works.

Aug. 22, 1918.

My dear Mother,—I haven't written any letters for the last two weeks as we were then mixing it up with Fritzie and I don't write while those rackets are on. A small party of us captured three Huns and two machine guns. We had two slight casualties from a German bomb so you can see we had the best of it.

I am trying to send home a piece of bag. It is worth a fortune if Dad can get a factory to make them .It is made of paper and replaces burlap It would make a great binder twine bag and could be used in a thousand different industries. Tho substitutes are one of the main reasons why the Germans still keep going. They are not starving as I was tickled to death to get some of their grub which they have in abundance The food was the best this time over the top, of any of my five other times over the top.

The posts and papers come regularly and I sure like to get the Post.

Your loving son,
TOM.

P. S.—No news is good news during an engagement with the Hun, so don't worry when I don't write.

Steamer Had Narrow Escape

Serious Accident Averted at the Peterboro Lift Lock.

Captain White with the tug "Niaid" returned to the Kawartha Lakes to-day for another scow of wood.

The crew of the "Niaid" had a narrow escape from serious injury or death last Saturday evening at the Lift Lock. The "Niaid" was returning from the lakes with a scow loaded with wood and lumber for the Peterborough Planing Mill. The boat had started to leave the pontoon at the lower end of the lock when, through some unexplainable reason the pontoon started to raise. The "Niaid" was 15 feet over the end of the pontoon when it started to raise. The water ran out of the pontoon leaving the tug on its side on the bottom of the pontoon. The tug was only prevented from going over the end of the pontoon by the weight of the loaded scow behind. The snub rope of the tug had been broken by the rush of the water towards the end of a pontoon. Only one man, the engineer, was on board at the time.

Winter Lyceum Course Final Arrangements Made

Sale of Course Tickets Opens Today and Closes October 21st.

At the October meeting of the Local Council of Women plans were discussed for providing the public with season tickets for the Winter Lyceum Course (Chautauqua Coit-Alber Service) and the Sub-Executive with the five team captains were appointed a Committee for further arrangements.

This Committee met at Mrs. Harstone's home on Wednesday evening and completed arrangements for the campaign.

The following team captains were appointed:—

Miss Nina Davidson, 563 Aylmer street; Miss Walton, 506 Smith street; Mrs. Medd, 452 Charlotte street; Mrs. Dr Gallivan, 248 Hunter street; Mrs. F .C. Neal, 314 Rubidge street.

Each of these captains have chosen five helpers, and the standing of the different teams will be announced each Friday until the sale of tickets closes.

Only 600 season tickets will be sold for $3.00 and the sale of tickets will close on Oct. 21st after that date the price will be advanced.

As it will be impossible for the ladies to reach everyone tickets may be secured phoning any one of the above captains. Beside this subscription lists will be placed in all the drug stores of the city and tickets may be secured there.

The first concert will be given by the Plymouth Singers and Players and held Nov 2nd and the others will be announced in good time.

The following is the full list of attractions:—

1. Wm. Taft, Ex-President of the United States.
2. Miss Bertha Farner, Soprano, and her company of excellent artists.
3. John Kendrick Bangs in a humorous lecture.
4. The Plymouth Singers and Players, a male quartette.

This list really needs no comment and already with no canvassing whatever, a large number of names have been voluntarily handed in to the Committee. All the concerts will be held in the Opera House, and season ticket holders will be given the preference in seats.

COULDN'T GET OUT OF BED BY HERSELF

Mrs. Williams Was So Crippled Up With Rheumatism She Could Hardly Move.

"Tanlac helped me right up out of bed after everything else failed, and if I hadn't taken it when I did I believe I would be lying there yet," said Mrs. G. Williams, of 713 South Maybelle Street, Tulsa, Okla.

"I was in terrible run-down condition for the last six months," she explained, "and my sufferings from indigestion and rheumatism were something awful. I had to be particular about what I ate for nearly everything disagreed with me and gas would form from sour, undigested food and bloated me so I was miserable for hours. I got thin and weak and fell off to less than a hundred pounds and rheumatism gave me so much pain I couldn't get out of bed without help and then I could hardly stand on my feet. My arms and lower limbs hurt all the time and many a night I couldn't get an hour's sleep. My nerves were all unstrung and I was so worn out I had to take to my bed and at times I was so weak I couldn't move without somebody helping me.

"One of my neighbours told me about Tanlac and I decided to try it. I have now taken seven bottles and it sure chased away that rheumatism in a hurry. I have been feeling splendid for several weeks now and haven't had a pain to speak of. My appetite is good and I can eat most anything I want without it hurting me. My nerves are in good shape, I sleep like a child and get up in the morning feeling fine. I am picking up now every day and I know from what it has done for me that Tanlac is the best medicine on earth."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Women with small feet are always talking about their big ones so as to attract attention to them.

No, Dorothea, you are wrong, married men do not make better soldiers because they are used to fighting. It is simply because they are trained to obey.

New Wolf Guards Capitoline Hill

By HENRY WOOD.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Rome, Aug. 20, (By Mail)—Rome has a new wolf.

This may not be so very important news for the rest of the world, but it is of supreme importance for Rome.

Ever since a benignly disposed she-wolf nursed Remus and Romulus, thereby making possible the founding of Rome, the birth of Italy, making it possible for Dante to write the Inferno, Verdi to compose Il Trovatore, Marconi to discover the wireless and Caruso to sing at the Metropolitan, Rome has always had a wolf in a cage on the pricise spot on the Capitoline hill where the original wolf gave the present kingdom of Italy its start.

It is of course unnecessary to point out that with the proverbial sense for the eternal fitness of things which the Italians have this is always a she wolf. It would be regarded as little less than sacrilege to maintain on the Capitoline hill a gentleman wolf in recognition of the great services rendered Rome by a lady wolf.

Ever since the original declaraton of war, back in 1914, Rome weather has been completely off. Atmospheric changes said to be caused by the heavy cannonading along the various battle fronts have caused it to be cold in Rome when it should be hot and hot when it should be cold, or often both at the same time.

The she-wolf of the Capitoline hill accordingly developed a case of pneumonia during one of these sudden changes of temperature and died a premature death.

But now the city of Taranto in the southern part of Italy has presented Rome with a new she-wolf.

The latter had been duly installed in the cage on the Capitoline hill and has put in most of her time since then trying to eat the iron bars that cage her in When she isn't doing that she is showing her teeth to onlookers in a manner that leaves no doubt that if she could get out she would not try to nurse the Roman population through the present food shortage, but would take a bite out of its legs instead.

Hopes are entertained by the guardians of the Capitoline hill that by the time the war ends and American tourists again come to Rome the wolf will have taken on some of the dignity which her historic position seems to call for.

Protect Yourself Against Spanish Influenza

A Dangerous Epidemic That is Prevalent Throughout Canada

This disease which is now prevalent throughout Ontario, is "Epidemic Catarrh," characterized by acute inflammation of the mucous membrane of the air passages, attended by severe constitutional disturbances followed by general debility and frequently develops into an attack of pneumonia.

It is highly infectious and every precaution should oe taken to avoid contracting this dreaded disease.

Don't put unclean things into the mouth. Keep the hands clean, and wash the mouth and gargle the throat once or twice a day with "PYROLL."

While this epidemic is prevalent, people cannot be too cautious and careful and everybody, and especially those attending schools or places where a number of people gather, should use "PYROLL," which is recommended by doctors and dentists as the best antiseptic and mouth wash to prevent this disease. mwf-6d 82

PETERBORO POULTRY ASSOCIATION DIRECTORS ATTENTION

A meeting is called for Thursday evening 8 p.m. sharp in Mr. A. Broult store, Simcoe street Please be on hand.

As soon as a man is elected for office he begins to work for a second nomination.

Precaution Neccessary at Present Time

The Spanish Influenza Seems to be Generally Prevalent.

Throughout the whole world according to despatches, it would appear that the Spanish Influenza is prevalent. In some localities it seems to be more fatal than in others. With reasonable care it is said the disease can be avoided and Peterborough for its population seems to have the minimum of cases, but great care is necessary.

During the past week or ten days the druggists have been recommending and selling large quantities of "Pyroll," an antiseptic throat gargle and mouth wash that might have a great deal to do with keeping down the number of cases in Peterborough. One druggist sold twenty bottles yesterday.

All the rules and regulations laid down by the Health officials should be rigidly followed until the danger is over.

CUTICURA

Heals Skin Trouble With One Cake Soap and Two Boxes Ointment.

Terrible itching on back of neck. After three weeks got flaky and became sore. Was red and scratching caused sleepless nights. Got Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Itching not so bad after using them. Now healed. From signed statement of Mrs. William Quigley, Windsor, N. S.

If Cuticura did no more than soothe and heal eczemas, rashes, itchings and burnings, bringing speedy comfort to tortured, disfigured men, women and children it would be entitled to the highest praise. But it does more. By using the Soap exclusively for toilet purposes, allowing no other soap to touch your skin, you will in many cases prevent these distressing experiences.

For Free Sample Each by Mail address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. A, Boston, U. S. A." Sold everywhere.

"Safety First" Measures Were Proposed by Dr. C. H. Amys at Meeting of Board of Health

Board Did Not Take Any Action in Respect to Spanish Influenza—Free Isolation Hospital.

BUSINESS TRANSACTED

No action was taken by the Board of Health last evening towards preventing an epidemic of Spanish Influenza. Dr. C. H. Amys, M.O.H., said, however, that if there should be any indication of a serious outbreak of the disease it may be necessary to close the churches, schools and all places of public gatherings. He proposed a "safety first" measure to the public in advising people to abstain from gatherings where the disease is most easily contracted. The doctor traced the origin of the epidemic to Germany from whence it spread through France to Spain, and is therefore German influenza.

Free Isolation Hospital.

Acting on a suggestion from Dr. Amys that the Isolation Hospital should be free and the general community bear the expense, Mr. S. R. Armstrong, City Clerk, had written to find how such institutions were conducted in other towns. The replies from Brantford, Windsor and St. Thomas were to the effect that their hospitals were free to those who could not pay.

Garbage Grievance.

Mr. C. Stapleton, Sanitary Inspector, had a grievance about the disposal of the garbage from the houses which, he said, is wetter than ever. As the public will not act as requested in using covered tins the garbage, wet in the beginning, becomes worse with the rain allowed to go into the cans and makes it impossible to burn without drying out on a field loaned by Mr. Bogue. "The public will not assist you" Mr. Morgan said. "Then they'll have to assist by paying for wood to burn it if they won't otherwise," replied Dr. Amys. As no reasonable suggestion was made for drying the garbage Mr. Stapleton was left to the old method and the public is asked to co-operate with him in using better garbage receptacles.

Dairy Laws.

Mr. G. N. Gordon sent in a copy of the laws governing the cheese factories and dairies which will be sent to Mr. G. A. Gillespie.

Condemned Building.

Mr. Stapleton was instructed to notify the owner of a condemned building on George street that nothing had been done towards cleaning the place up. He said that in such cases disputes follow as to who is responsible, the landlord or tenant, and was told to notify both.

Poisoned Ice Cream.

A case of poisoning by ice cream was reported to the Sanitary Inspector who immediately inspected the cellar at the restaurant it came from and found it to be in not too clean a condition. Dr. Amys advised him that such food should be reported to the pure food department of the government.

Two Infectious Cases.

The report of the Isolation Hospital showed one case of scarlet fever and one of diphtheria at the hospital.

Real Wonder-Worker For Wrinkled Faces

Those who have tried all sorts of so-called "wrinkle-removers" in a vain effort to lose those unwelcome traces of age, illness or worry, can scarcely find words to express their delight with the wonderful saxolite formula, once they have given it a trial. The success of this method is due not alone to its marvellous effectiveness—upon the deepest lines and crows-feet, as well as upon the very fine ones—but also to its surprisingly quick action and its entire harmlessness. Its simplicity and its inexpensiveness are other commendable features, for one need only dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel, and bathe the face in this solution. At once a remarkable transformation is beheld.

It is not only the effect on wrinkles and creases that is so noticeable, but facial contour is remarkably improved and the face looks much younger. One should be sure to ask the druggist for the powdered saxolite. The lotion, being so refreshing, is particularly grateful to tired faces.

Spanish Influenza May be Prevented

It is a Duty One Owes to One's Self and to the Community.

The difficulty with this form of influenza is that a very mild case may, by contagion, produce in another individual the very worst form of the disease. That is, a person, who seems to have but a slight cold, may be the Carrier of the Germs.

Those, who are liable to be exposed to the Contagion, should, both for themselves and the sake of their families, take every precaution to avoid contracting it.

The mouth should be cleansed once or twice a day with an antiseptic wash and the throat gargled with the same.

Also one of Moncur's Capsules for the Prevention of Spanish Influenza should be taken each morning. These Capsules strengthen the system so that the Germs, even though the person is frequently exposed to the contagion, are quite unable to gain a foothold.

However, they are not recommended to cure the disease but only to prevent one from taking it; which they will do if they are taken before the person is already infected. If the prevalent Epidemic strikes Peterborough in full force, these Capsules will save a lot of people from sickness and also prove an enemy to the Undertaker.

Sold at Moncur Drug Store, 407 George St. Next the Royal Bank.

Baltimore Boys Are Scrappy Unit

By FRANK J. TAYLOR
(UUnited Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept 16. (By Mail.)—The Baltimore trench mortar company, part of a certain division, is a fighting unit. The company has taken its toll of Germans over and over again.

Probably the biggest job was when the division was east of Rheims. The Baltimore boys took their trench mortars out with losts of ammunition, and heaved tons of shells over on the Germans. They worked six hours in intense German gas, wearing masks, of course, to keep in the fight.

It is estimated that almost two German battalions were annihilated by the trench mortar fire The French cited the company from Baltimore for the Croix de Guerre for the second time One more time and the boys will be entitledto wear the fouragere.

Before the war these Baltimore boys belonged to a coast artillery outfit. They volunteered to do trench mortar work when the call was sent out, and have rapidly developed into the fastest outfit along the line when it comes to getting shells over on the Germans.

Baltimore people have kept in close touch with the boys of the trench mortar company, No. 117, and the boys feel they are representatives of Baltimore in the trenches. The mortar guns are always nearest the Germans, since they are close range weapons.

Six "CINDERELLA" Girls with F. Stuart-Whyte's English Pantomime at The Grand next Monday and Tuesday, October 14 and 15, with Special Thanksgiving Day Matinee, Monday, at 2:30. Seat Sale Opens Friday Morning.

F. Stuart-Whyte's fascinating fantasy of fairyland, "Cinderella," will be the attraction at The Grand for two nights and a Thanksgiving matinee starting Monday, October 14th. This is the third annual English pantomime which Mr. Whyte has brought to Canada and it was produced at a cost exceeding the combined expense of "Aladdin" and "Robinson Crusoe."

Mr. Whyte's version of "Cinderella" is divided into two acts and eleven brilliant scenes, which are elaborately costumed and beautifully gowned. The large cast is headed by Miss Zara Clinton as Prince Charming and Miss Sue Parker as Cinderella, and includes Mr. John V. Barrett-Leonard, Mr. Harry Hoyland, Miss Kitty Harvey, Miss Blanche Young and a dozen more experienced pantomime artists, together with a chorus of nineteen, eighteen and under.

Dr. Honeywell Expects Success for the Tabernacle Meetings

Large Attendance at Last Night's Meeting—Business Girls' Rally—The Finances—To-night's Delegations.

The message of Dr. I. E. Honeywell at the Union Evangelistic Campaign, held last night in the Brock street Tabernacle, was a gripping one, particularly to parents. It brought home also to professing Christians their responsibilities in the matter of Christian living and Christian testimony. Dr. Honeywell expects the campaign will prove a great success. Should it not equal his expectations he has made it clear that the responsibility is going to rest at the doors of the Christian people who refuse or neglect to live up to their Christian responsibilities.

A Large Attendance.

The attendance was unusually large, probably the largest of any week night meeting yet held in the campaign. Delegations were present from George street, Knox and Bethany Tabernacle churches and the Salvation Army, for whom special seats had been reserved. All made a good showing. The George street congregation turned out in hundreds and almost filled the seats down one side of the tabernacle and overflowed into the wing on the same side, and had a splendid representation in the choir. Knox church, with its smaller congregation and longer distance to come, also made an excellent showing. During the service the members of each congregation were asked to select their favourite hymn and to stand and sing it. All did exceedingly well. The members of the Salvation Army selected the Twenty-third Psalm and sang it without music very effectively. To-night's delegations will be composed of the members of St. Paul's, St. James', Mark street and Park street churches.

One of the most enjoyable features last evening was a double male quartette, whose rendition of "Only a Contrite Sinner" was very fine. The quartette was composed of Messrs. W. S. Dixon, Asa Huycke, H. F. McKeown, C. C. Parsons, W. F. Skitch, S. J. Graham, Edw Humpage and Mr. Smith.

The Finances.

Rev. Mr. Thomas made an announcement regarding the financial side of the campaign. The expenditures for the rent, heating and lighting of the building, the making of several hundred benches, the erection of the platform, printing and advertising, expenses of the members of the party, etc., will amount to about $2,000.00. This does not include a cent for Dr. Honeywell, who has come without being given any promise of any stated sum. Up to last night the collections amounted to $607. Last night's offerings were $77.70. Thus, about one-third of the expenditures have been met to date. As soon as the expensese of the campaign have been met the taking of collections will cease. It is understood that the final collection on the last Sunday night of the campaign will be given to Dr. Honeywell. Only those who feel that they have been benefitted as a result of the campaign and who will be glad to do so will be expected to contribute at that time.

Business Girls' Rally.

Great preparations are being made for the business girls rally to-morrow. From 5.30 to 7.15 all the girls of the city who are earning money in any way outside of their homes have been invited to attend the luncheon in the George street Methodist Sunday school hall from 5.30 to 7.15. Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Dixon will speak after the tea. Mrs. Russell's address will be on the subject, "The Sweetest Love Story Ever Told." Following the tea those present will walk to the the tabernacle in a body and be given special seats in the hall. It is to-morrow evening also that the delegations will attend from the churches in the surrounding towns and country districts, most of whom will come in by automobile.

The Address.

The subject of Dr. Honeywells address last evening was based on the cry of David, "No Man Careth For My Soul." The speaker said that this is the world's saddest cry. All around us are unconverted people who are hungry for spiritual comfort and yet professing Christians never undertake to speak to them on such matters. Dr. Honeywell told of a case with his own congregation. A prominent doctor had been attending the church for 1' years. He contributed regularly to its support. His wife and son were members. Some time after Dr. Honeywel became the pastor of the congregation he felt led to call on this man and to speak to him on spiritual subject The doctor expressed his pleasure that Dr. Honeywell had done so and told him that although he had been attending the church for so many years no member of the congregation had ever showed any interest in his spiritual welfare or had asked him to become a member of the congregation. Frequently he had been unwell and had longed that people would do so. At last he had about concluded that none of the members of the church had any real interest in his salvation. This man was easily led to accept Christ.

On another occasion Dr. Honeywell received a call to the home of a member of his congregation where he found that one of three boys in the family had been killed in an accident. Dr. Honeywell found the mother in great distress. She was a Christian and knew that her boy was not ready to die when his unexpected summons came. This mother was calling to God in her anguish, yet during all the years she had had that boy with her she had never made an effort to induce him to become a Christian. Dr. Honeywell pointed out that Christians who neglect the spiritual welfare of those around them will some day be held accountable for their neglect.

Dr. Honeywell stated that instead of people being angry when spoken to on such matters in the vast majority of cases they are pleased that others are sufficiently interested in them to lead them to do so, provided the people who thus address them are living consecrated lives that bear every testimony to the keeping power of God.

The attendance in the choir last evening was possibly the largest since the campaign opened, practically all the seats on the platform being occupied. Under the capable direction of Mr. Dixon the singing is improving rapidly, new music being practised each night.

This afternoon after four o'clock there will be a rehearsal of children of nine to 15 years of age of the Public schools in the Brock street tabernacle for the last practice of the Booster Choir, which is to sing at next Saturday's service.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER.

Mr. Manufacturer--

Do You Read The Newspaper?

Of course you do. You want to know how the war is progressing—what's happening in the United States, in Great Britain, and on the continent.

You could not dispense with the newspaper.

There are millions like you.

The multitude are interested in the newspaper as they never were before.

The floating of an immense war loan in the United States interests us; the political situation in Great Britain more than interests us; it vitally affects us, and the work of our boys at the front—it enthralls us!

Billions of dollars have been raised, millions of men recruited in stupenduous armies, the morale of nations kept growing and growing; even the sinister work of the Hun has been fostered through the atlantean power of printers' ink.

Taking all this for granted—

How does this increased power of and concentration on the newspaper effect you and your business? Have you taken full advantage of it?

The war will be over some day—before we realize it, the Hun will be driven off soil bought by the blood of our sons and our sons' allies; our armies will be exchanging the swords for the implements of peace; France and Belgium will be one mighty workshop; problems will have to be faced by every patriotic and country-loving man and woman.

IN THE MEANTIME WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO YOUR MARKETS?

Has your competitor a firmer hold than he had before the war?

The lesson: Don't wait for a "better" day—use the four A's of commercial success—

ALERTNESS, AGGRESSIVENESS, ACTIVITY, ADVERTISING

—and then you don't need to worry about "after the war business" your problems will solve themselves for you as they arise.

Voice of The People

Mrs. McIntyre Is Now Receiving Aid.

Peterborough, Oct. 8th, 1918.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In last night's Examiner was an article under the headline, "Mrs. McIntyre Not Debarred from First Aid," and this article purported to contain a copy of a telegram to Ottawa, with the reply.

The headline of the article is incorrect and is untrue. What purports to be the reply from the Central Office of the Patriotic Fund at Ottawa, states plainly that local committees have absolute discretion, and the following is a minute of the proceedings of the Peterborough Patriotic Committee which is a branch of the incorporated body and which has, notwithstanding the statement contained in last night's Examiner, absolute discretion and judisdiction.

Meeting of Committee, Mar. 8th, 1917. Following Previous Discussion, and Action Taken by Many of the Branches Throughout Ontario.

"Decided that the list of young wives without children, not housekeeping, should be removed from the fund list, until a child came into the family. That the allowance for March be paid. That the executive officer notify all for April. That if any of these take up housekeeping on her own account, that they be re-instated on the allowance list."

I am not defending this ruling of the Committee. It may be wrong or it may be right that married women without children and who are not housekeeping on their own account should not be placed on the patriotic list.

The fact does remain, however, that if representations had been made to the Committee the case would have been dealt with and I understand Mrs McIntyre has now rented two or three rooms, is about to start housekeeping and will be placed upon the list of those entitled to the benefits of the Patriotic Fund.

All this fuss and furour might have been odviated if the true desire of the parties interesting themselveh had been to assist Mrs. McIntyre and not have been trouble making.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I regret that a misprint in my former letter, regarding the Smith Street Bridge, misled your contributor "Senex" or "Citizen," for he writes his name both ways. He quotes from my letter:—"There was a misunderstanding in the Committee," and quoted correctly from the print, but what I wrote was:—"There was no misunderstanding in the Committee," and the context showed that that was my meaning. The extracts from the minutes which I gave proved that the specifications for the contract were read in the committee and that it was perfectly understood what was included in and what was omitted from them, and that the story which your contributor had given in such dramatic form was not based on fact. "Senex" suggests that the Council place on the bridge in question a bronze plate with an inscription which he gives. His suggested inscription is a very good one, but need not be used, for there is a bronze plate on the bridge with the following inscription:—

Inverlea Bridge
—1910—
T. A. S. Hay, Engineer
Conroy Bros., Builders
W. J. Martin, Inspector.

"Senex" asks me questions on points in connection with the bridge to which I had not referred. I stated my object in writing and that object having been accomplished, I am satisfied.

I hope the reminiscenses will be continued, as they are very interesting, especially if written with care.

Yours truly,
S. R. ARMSTRONG.

Hydro Commission Urges No Time Limit on Increased Fares

Not Operating the Street Railway for Profit But for Service to Peterboro and Wish to Meet Cost of Improvements Which Will Total $30,000.

STREET RAILWAY ON BRIDGE

Mayor Duncan and Ald. Edgar interviewed the Hydro-Electric Commission in Toronto yesterday with regard to the laying of rails on the Hunter street bridge for the proposed extension of the street railway to Ashburnham. The deputation asked the Commission if the city should proceed with this work at the Commission's expense. Mr. Frank Barber, the city's engineer, was present and discussed the plans with the Commission, who promised to advise the city in a short time, after fully considering the city's proposal.

The deputation again called the attention of the Commission to the extensions which have been petitioned by the citizens, especially the line desired on Park street south of Albert street to the boundary. This matter will be dealt with again and a reply sent to the Council.

The Commission expressed its approval of the Council's action to increase the revenue from the street railway, with the exception of the clause limiting the period for the higher rates until one year after the war. The Commission advised the elimination of this restriction for three reasons, viz. no one can tell what the condition will be after the war, the extension on the Monaghan Road and other improvements that are under way will cost $30,000, and to provide for this expenditure may require the continuance of the increased revenue for a longer period than one year after the war, and thirdly the Commission is operating the railway with other public utilities for the people and do not make profits out of this service. It was pointed out, however, that it is very desirable that the expenses should be met, and since the Commission is simply working with and for the people this provision is not necessary.

SPANISH INFLUENZA ON THE INCREASE IN PETERBORO

Additional Cases Reported to the Local Medical Officers of Health.

Since yesterday afternoon Spanish influenza has spread farther over the city and with two new cases reported to Dr. T. N. Greer, M.H.O. for North Monaghan, and one to Dr. C. H. Amys, M.H.O. for the city, the reported cases now number nine.

This list, the doctors are convinced, does not cover the entire number of victims as, not being a disease which it is compulsory to report, there are probably many in the city not accounted for.

Fumigate Rooms.

Mr. Moncur said this morning that the drug business has boomed with the 'flu' scare and the druggists are doing a lot of extra hurrying to keep up with orders, not only for camphor, formamint and menthol, but also for carbolic and drugs to fumigate rooms. The effectiveness of camphor being around the neck is not disputed by the druggists but rather advised.

Letters Dangerous.

Asked this morning if the disease is communicated by letters from parts in which an epidemic has already reached, Dr. Amys said that while the use of a gas mask while reading them is not necessary, it would be best to be on the safe side and treat them gingerly.

Bank Staff Depleted.

From one of the banks five of the staff have developed a serious cold, which is suspected of being the genuine 'flu.' The fact that so many have been taken from one place naturally aroused suspicion of something more contagious than a mere cold.

Philadelphia Hard Hit.

In a letter received this morning from Philadelphia, a resident of the city describing the epidemic of influenza there says: The state of the city from the epidemic is unbelievable. People die so quickly the undertakers cannot supply enough coffins for the dead, and when the victims are finally taken to the cemeteries they are left unburied while the hearse hurries back for the next. Church services for the dead are prohibited and the ordinary services are held on the doorsteps and in the grounds. On Saturday the priest told the men at the service to keep their hats on to prevent taking cold. Influenza has already killed 1,000 men from the shipbuilding yards and there are scarcely any men left there. All day long to-day funerals have been hurrying by; at one time four coffins passed at once. One man applied to the newspapers for help, as his little 12 year old girl had died several days ago from influenza and they had been unable to bury her.

Dry Weather Needed.

TORONTO, Oct. 9.—While military camps in various parts of the province seem to be recovering from the epidemic of Spanish influenza, reports continue to come in from some districts of fatalities among the civilian population, from this malady. Unfortunately, the bright dry weather, which physicians say is so necessary to help wipe out the plague, did not materialize in many parts of the province this morning. Cloudy, wet weather was reported, especially in the northern sections. In Toronto there are about eight hundred cases in hospitals, besides hundreds of cases in homes.

Of hospital cases, six hundred or so are among the soldiers. A peculiar feature about the civilians in the hospitals with the disease, is that of 200 cases more than forty are nurses in the various institutions.

Schools Closed.

LINDSAY, Oct 9.—Medical Health Officer McAlpine here has ordered all schools and moving picture houses closed for the balance of the week, owing to Spanish influenza here.

At the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 9. — Commencing to-day, schools, churches, theatres and all places of public gathering here have been ordered closed, by the Board of Health, to remain so until further notice. Spanish influenza has broken out here, and since the beginning of the week there has been three deaths, and numerous cases are now reported.

WIDENING THE FRONT

(United Press.)
(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, October 9. — General Pershing is widening his front north of Verdun in an effort to advance toward the Luxemburg border with an increasing impetus.

The Americans have lengthened their operations to the east of the Meuse and by so doing are now able to bring up more troops, and to concentrate a greater force against the Germans in the Argonne forest.

Up to the present time the Meuse River has been a constant menace to General Pershing's right wing, as the Argonne is a danger to the left. The twelve miles of frontage between these barriers has compelled the utmost care in the dispositoin of the American units and has seriously hampered the tactical operations.

VIEWS CONCERNING PRESIDENT'S REPLY TO PEACE PROPOSAL

The Note Strips Away the Mask—Reply Has Reached Paris.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.— Peace is "up to Germany" more squarely than it ever was before, as a result of President Wilson's query to Prince Mamimilian testing his sincerity.

Official Washington took this view to-day, holding that the President has stripped away the mask and robbed Germany of a chance to stir her people with the thread-bare plea of "our enemy seeks only to crush us." Persons close to President Wilson called his manoeuvre adroit; placing the burden for continued war upon Germany. On the other hand, many in the Capital, including Senator Lodge, the Upper House Republican leader, complained that the inquiry left the door open and did not meet their expectations.

The First Reading.

The first reading produced a feeling of disappointment that the President had asked questions of Germany instead of making a flat-footed statement of unconditional surrender or something equally strong. The over night consideration of the message turns many men's views and there was an inclination among those who first complained to spare the administration in the belief that Germany could now either make peace on strictly American terms or find herself in a diplomatic difficulty before her own people and the world.

Not Weakening.

A feeling on the whole was that President Wilson has shown absolutely no signs of weakness, but on the contrary had given Germany a decidedly stiff jolt when he demanded that there be complete withdrawal from occupied territories before peace could be considered.

As seen in Government quarters, the inquiry does these things:

FIRST—Lays the ground work for the repitition of Germany's overtures later if Germany fails to meet the present terms frankly and squarely.

SECOND—Makes Germany accept the present terms as a whole in good faith and withdraw her armies from Allied soil, or convict the War Lords before their own people and before the world.

THIRD—Gives notice that the Allies and Americans will fight on until occupied territory is cleared, and until Germany is ready to accept plain justice as laid down by the President's various speeches.

FOURTH—Lays the foundations for a new pronouncement to Germany that if the Government is not representative of the German masses no diplomatic peace dealings can be had with it.

FIFTH—Calls sharply to the attention of the German people that her leaders are doubted, and opens the way for the overthrow of these leaders if, after preaching peace, they fail to meet the requirements of honesty and sincerity, as the Wilson query requires.

The general thought here was that the inquiry is more effective than a curt or blustering demand for unconditional surrender would have been.

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.— President Wilson probably will go before Congress to cast further light upon the position he took in his inquiry to the German Chancellor as soon as the latter replies.

Has Reached Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—President Wilson's reply to the German armistice proposal became known here to-day through extra editions issued at noon. The first opinions noted were that the reply was "just as was expected."

WAR SUMMARY

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The summary issued by the Associated Press to-day says:

"There is every reason to believe that the great offensive of the Allied armies in France has reached a climax and that the next few days may witness events which will mark an epoch in the history of the war.

"On a front extending from Roulers, on the north, to Verdun, far down toward the other end of the battle line, the Germans are being battered by successive blows and in some of these sectors they seem to be in a very serious position. British and American forces struck a blow south of Cambrai yesterday that seems to have shattered what remained of the great enemy defensive system in that region over a twenty-mile front. The Allies stormed ahead at nightfall, appeared to be out in the open country and moving toward the Cambrai-Le-Catcau road, which is the only avenue of escape for the Germans still in Cambrai. It now seems that the enemy must retreat hurriedly from the Cambrai region, and that the retirement will involve a front far to the northward. Further south the French have won valuable ground and have moved ahead so that their front is virtually in line with that of the British and Americans. The enemy in the Laon salient is in the jaws of a pair of pincers which are slowly closing.

PRESIDENT'S REPLY.

The step taken by President Wilson in the peace proposal made by Chancellor Maximilian, according to indications to-day, has met with the approval of the American people. Newspaper editorial comment almost universally commended the move. Congressional leaders after carefully studying the communication sent by the President praised it as a brilliant diplomatic stroke. The attitude of the public and press of Allied nations is awaited eagerly but without misgivings. Distinct approval was expected from Great Britain, France, Italy and other belligerents.

Business Men's 5-Pin League Open Schedule Monday Evening

The Business Men's 5 pin league at the Y. M. C. A. got away to a good start Monday night when the Invincibles took two out of three games from the Engineers. Langley had high single for the evening with Browett a close second. Several of the players were new to the game and made a very creditable showing.

The scores were as folloys:—

MR. FRED TREBILCOCK DIED YESTERDAY

Funeral Will be Held in Peterboro To-morrow Afternoon at Two-Thirty O'clock.

Last evening, citizens were shocked to hear of the death of Frederick William Trebilcock of the firm of Trebilcock Bros., following a short illness in Nicholls' Hospital. The deceased contracted a severe cold early last week and on Saturday morning was removed to the hospital where his condition rapidly became worse. The immediate cause of death was pneumonia.

Mr. Trebilcock was in his thirty-sixth year.

The late Mr. Trebilcock leaves a wife and two children. He was born in Bowmanville, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Trebilcock of that town. He lived there for the greater part of his life, until about nine years ago, when he removed to Peterborough and, together with his brother Paul, established the stationery business of Trebilcock Bros. He was a man of sterling integrity, and his demise will be a distinct loss to this city. He was a prominent member of the Masonic order. Three brothers and four sisters survive, namely: Paul of this city; Dr. F. C. Trebilcock, of Toronto, and Arthur, of Buffalo; Mrs. P. Hutcheson, Toronto; Mrs. Capt. J. G. Adam, now residing in Georgia, U. S.A., where her husband is a member of the United States forces, and Margaret and Minnie, at home in Bowmanville.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from the family residence, 499 Homewood avenue. Service will be held at the house at two-thirty o'clock and will be conducted by the Rev. Canon J. C. Davidson. Interment in Little Lake cemetery. The funeral will be under Masonic auspices.

BOUND OVER TO KEEP THE PEACE

Four Italians with three or four-storey names, figured in a police court case this morning. Genuaso Munzie objected to the idea that he leave his boarding house. He told the wife of the landlord, Mrs. Germaro D'Angelentonio that if he met her husband on the street there would be a fight and either one be left there.

Mr. D'Angelentonio constituted this into a threat and made a complaint to the police.

Munzie was bound over to keep the peace for a year, and two sureties of $250 were paid by Mr. G. N. Gordon and a fellow boarder of the accused.

A Tragedy at Niagara Falls

Four Men Lost Their Lives in a Wine Vat.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 9. — Henry Marsh, 35 years old, and his brother, Joseph, 33 years, and two Russians, were instantly killed in a wine vat at the Stamford Park Wine Co., owned and conducted by the Marsh brothers. The foreigners were clearing out the vat, which, it is said, contained a wine sediment at the bottom, and they succumbed to the fumes when this was disturbed. Henry Marsh went to their assistance and fell a victim to the fumes. In a few seconds after his brother, who attempted to rescue him, also succumbed. A rope was put around Fliddingham, a workman, who managed to drag Harry Marsh, who was partially conscious, to the top of the ladder, but Fliddingham was so overcome by suffocation that he had to release his hold and was unable to make the rescue. The firemen were appealed to and two ordered to remove the bodies, the bottom having to be cut out of the vat. The four men were almost unrecognisable. Both the Marsh men were married and were prominently known. An inquest will be held. Mr B. Marsh, another brother, stated to-day that there was no sediment in the vat and death was from the fumes in the wood, and that the foreigners went into the vat without instructions.

WAS FOUND DEAD IN BED

Sudden Death of Former Peterboro Resident.

A Sioux City exchange has the following:

Mrs. James S. Lynch, residing at 1810 Nebraska street, Sioux City, was found dead in her bed yesterday when her daughter, Miss Ethel Lynch went to call her. She entertained friends Thursday and so far as known was enjoying good health. Some time ago she had suffered from high blood pressure.

Mrs. Lynch was a member of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, Cathedral of the Epiphany, and also a member of the Sioux City Women's Club. She was born at Peterborough, Ontario, Canada, December 23, 1850. She was married to James S. Lynch in Council Bluffs, Ia., April 7, 1875. They moved to Sioux City the same year and have made their home here continuously ever since.

Surviving are six children: James Carl Lynch, Albert J. Lynch, Walter C. Lynch, Ethel H. Lynch of Sioux City; Mrs. Frank Hall of Los Angeles, Cal., and Capt. William G. Lynch, of the 804th Pioneer Infantry now on his way to France.

Mrs. Lynch was formerly Miss Bella Carlow, daughter of the late George Carlow.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM PAYNE.

The many friends of Mrs. Wm. Payne, who passed away on Friday, Oct. 4th at her home, 33 Sophia street, were shocked to hear of her sud and sudden death. She had resided in East City for about 44 years and was loved and respected by all who knew her.

She was born in Warminister, England, and her maiden name was Elizabeth Throllope. Her husband predeceased her 17 years ago, but she leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters and one son, Mrs. H. Howley of Detroit, Ross of city, and Miss Emma at home, and a brother in England.

The funeral was held on Monday. Service at the home at 2 o'clock and at St. Luke's church at 2.30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. W. H. White.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY IN PETERBORO

FIRE DEPARTMENT GAVE A DEMONSTRATION

Fire prevention day was celebrated in the city by a demonstration by the Fire Department of the motor driven chemical engine and the steam fire engine at Central Park. Both were in splendid working condition and the large crowd who assembled saw the hose throw a 250 foot stream.

The school children in the various schools throughout the city also gave a very creditable exhibtion of fire drill.

Mr. Albert Stratton is in Norwood to-day to attend the fair.
